Our Insignificant Earth.

If the earth should be annihilated the planets Venus and Mercury would fall a little nearer the sun and move around it a trifle faster, while all of the outside planets, Mars, Jupiter, Saturn, Uranus and Neptune, would move away from the sun slightly and traverse larger orbits, moving a little slower thereon. The earth is so small, however, that only professional astronomers, armed with very accurate clocks and telemicrometers, could hope to measure the minute disturbances.

His Usual Way.

The new waitress sidled up to a dapper young man at the breakfast table, who, after glancing at the bill, opened his mouth, and a noise issued forth that sounded like the ripping off of all the cogs on one of the wheels in the power house. The new waitress made her escape to the kitchen. "Fellow out there insulted me," she said. The head waiter looked at him. "I'll get it," he said. "That's just the train caller, and he is ordering his breakfast."

Must Have Been a Prize.

"But how could you tell, darling, that I had never proposed to any other girl?"

"Because you were not married," she murmured rapturously and admiringly.

No Longer a Secret.

"So that great inventor is dead and his wonderful secret is lost"—

"Not at all. He told it to his wife just before he died."

"Yes; that's what I mean."

The Farmer-ettes

Whether from city or country find themselves living under an unusual strain. The unusual work necessitates the use of different muscles and this development demands a good supply of pure, rich blood.

Because it goes directly to the formation of new blood, Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is of the greatest assistance in building up new cells and tissues and strengthening the muscles.

Large Gathering Took in the Downeyville Garden Party

It is Estimated That 1,500 Were Present—Rain Did Not Interfere With the Programme—List of Prizewinners—Lindsay Band Furnished Music for the Dance.

THOSE IN CHARGE OF DIFFERENT DEPARTMENTS

The countryside for miles around was represented at the garden party held yesterday afternoon and evening at St. Luke's Church, Downeyville. It was one of the most successful events of its kind ever held in that section of the country in spite of the occasional showers that fell during the afternoon. By eight o'clock the sky had cleared and the remainder of the programme was carried out to a complete and successful conclusion. Rev. Father P. J. Galvin and his parishioners were the hosts of the occasion, and needless to say they fulfilled every expectation. The programme opened in the afternoon with a list of sports in which old and young participated. This was followed by a splendid supper and then a dance. Sandwiched in between the main features of the programme were a number of good things such as an auction sale and a well selected programme of music supplied by the Lindsay Band. This organization also supplied music for the dance that was held later in the evening.

1,500 Present.

The attendance is estimated at fifteen hundred, including a number of visitors from Peterborough, Lindsay and other points. The visiting clergy included Monsignor Casey of Lindsay, Rev. Father O'Leary of Lindsay, Rev. Father McGuire of Peterborough, Dean McColl of Peterborough, Rev. Father O'Sullivan, Victoria Road, Fev. Father Guiry of Peterborough, Rev. Father McAuley of Ennismore, Rev. Butter, Rev. Gilogly and Rev. Father Gerard Maher of Parry Sound.

Those who had charge of the gate were: Messrs. Joseph R. Lucas, D. Harrington, John McGuire, William Herlihey ,Sr., Michael Clancy, and Martin Carroll.

Those in charge of the two booths where refreshments were dispensed were as follows: Both number one, Vincent Perdue, James Lucas, James Garry, Miss B. Clancy and Miss Anna O'Brien. Booth number two, Joseph Lucas, Dennis Leary, and William C. Herlihey.

The amusement booth was in charge of Wilfrid Gosslin, while Thomas Spratt, of Lindsay, was present in the capacity of auctioneer for the bazaar which did a land-office business. The young ladies in charge of the bazaar were Miss Mary Harington, Miss Kate Perdue and Miss Mary O'Connell.

The handling of the tea which was no small task for such a large gathering, was successfully taken care of by Mrs. Thos. Clancy, Mr. T. Pigott and Mrs. Thomas Lucas.

Among those in charge of the Commissariat were: Mrs. J. C. Lucas, Mrs. M. Clancy, Mrs. T. Carroll, Mrs. W. Pigott, Mrs. T. Lucas, Mrs. Bernard Murray, Mrs. E. Houlihan, and Mrs. P. Herlihey. In addition to this there was a large bevy of efficient ladies in charge of the tables which were located under a natural avenue of trees. In this way they were partly protected from the showers that fell during the supper hour. The event was a complete success and much credit is due to those in charge.

The Prize Winners.

The lists of sports resulted as follows:

Race for boys under eight years—1st Fred Herlihey, 2nd Paul O'Neill.

Race for boys under twelve years—1st Clare Harrington, 2nd Charles Meehan.

HOMES OF RICH BURNED IN JAPAN DURING THE RIOTS

Violence and Rapidity of Disorders Astonish the Japanese—No Threat Against Imperial Dynasty.

STAFF OF LIFE TOO DEAR

TOKIO, Aug. 22.—The violence of the food riots and the rapidity with which they enveloped the country have astonished the Japanese and have convinced them, though far removed from the centre of the war, that they cannot escape its consequences or remain untouched by the world movements which the war has set in motion. No such disturbances have convulsed the nation since the days of the restoration.

The movement appears to be entirely economic and social and has no political aspect except as it is directed against the Japanese Ministry which is popularly regarded as bureaucratic.

Staff of Life Too Dear.

From the protest against the prohibitive price of Japan's substitute for bread, an anti-wealth demonstration developed. Homes of the rich especially were attacked. The residences of a number of millionaires were burned to the ground and immense damage was done to the property of merchants dealing with the people and in particular those suspected of excessive profiteering.

Not a single instance of anti-foreign manifestation has been reported and the movement has constantly been marked by impressive expressions of loyalty to the Imperial dynasty. The Japanese Crown Prince went riding through the streets in an open carriage yesterday without a military escort and the lanes of people respectfully paid the silent homage customary in Japan where the members of the Imperial family never are acclaimed.

Anarchistic, Not Bolshevik.

Anarchistic elements frequently led the mobs, but there has been no evidence of Bolshevik tendencies such as prevailed in Russia. The Japanese Government frequently has warned the people against "dangerous thought," but a number of educators contend that the Government errs in classing all democratic impulses as "dangerous."

The newspapers of Osaka condemn the Ministry for its failure to prevent the unprecedented outbreak, and the resignation of the Cabinet is demanded.

The ringleaders of the rioting at Koke, who, flourishing their swords, led the mob were killed on the spot. A large number of people are reported to have been wounded in the disturbances throughout the Empire. Seventy policemen are said to have been injured at Nazoya alone. The mobs often were armed with revolvers, swords, daggers and clubs.

Most of the arrests were made by detectives, who mingled with the crowds, chalking a cross on the backs or the ringleaders and then capturing them when the riots were over.

Food Board Flashes

Nine-tenths of all the rice eaten in the world is eaten by the Asiatics and out of a total world's production of 162,000,000,000 pounds the Orient grows 159,000,000,000 To the great masses of Asiatics, rice is both bread and meat. The United States produces more than 700,000,000 pounds of rice, which is a mere drop in the bucket when compared with the tremendous demand in the East for this cereal.

Rice is available on the Canadian market, and it can be used as a substitute for wheat products. It is one of the best and most nourishing of cereals.

You Can't Always Tell.

In a London 'bus a man in civilian's garb rose and offered his seat to a woman. "I never accept favors from slackers," she said witheringly.

"Madam," he replied blandly, "I was all through Gallipoli, and if we'd had as much powder as you have on your face we'd have got to Constantinople in no time."

Cattle Trail.

A cattle trail is to be built in British Guiana by the Government, leading from the annual Savanna on the Rupunui river to the Yawkuri Savanna, a distance of 120 miles.

GOT RID OF BRONCHITIS.

Mr. W. H. Walker, Calmar, Alta., writes: "I am pleased to say that Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine has done much good to myself, wife and children. My eldest girl, seven years old, had bronchitis and the doctor who attended her did not seem to do much good. We got Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine for her and she soon got well. We always keep this medicine in the house now ready for use and find that it soon cures coughs and colds."

Fire Occurred At Downeyville

A fire occurred a Downeyville Tuesday evening which destroyed the contents of the shed in connection with the store of James Guiry. It appears that Mr. Guiry went into the building to fill an order for coal oil for a customer, when the oil became ignited, the flames spreading through the frame structure very rapidly. In endeavouring to extinguish the blaze, Mr. Guiry sustained severely burned hands, with the resultant need of hospital attention. Fortunately the fire was prevented from consuming other nearby buildings.

Thought She Would Lose Her Little Girl With Diarrhoea

Thousands of infants die annually who could be saved by the timely use of Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry.

There can be no doubt about it.

During the seventy-two years that this wonderful remedy has been on the market, it has been proved conclusively that it is the best for diarrhoea, dysentery, colic, cramps, cholera infantum, and all looseness of the bowels, especially when the children are teething.

Many of the imitations of "Dr. Fowler's" being offered to the public to-day are positively dangerous, as they often check the diarrhoea too suddenly, cause inflammation and leave the bowels in a constipated condition. "Dr. Fowler's" will not do this, but will impart a healthy tone to the mucous surface, and stop the diarrhoea in an easy and natural way.

Mrs. M. Tyler, Orland, Ont., writes: "I have used your wonderful medicine for nine years with great satisfaction. My little girl was only five months old, and she was so sick with diarrhoea I thought she would die. I was advised by a friend to try Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry, and it gave her quick relief. I have used it ever since for the whole of my family, six in all, and can praise it more than anything I ever used."

The genuine is put up by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont. Price, 35c.

Anchovy, or other fish-paste, which has hardened through disuse can be turned into good fish-cakes. Take equal parts of boiled rice and mashed potatoes. Bind them together with a beaten egg. Stir in sufficient anchovy paste to impart the "fishy" flavour, add pepper, but no salt, form in to small cakes and fry.

The Woman Who Changed

By JANE PHELPS

IN CHICAGO

THE WOMAN WHO CHANGED
CHAPTER CL

What a welcome we received! Both Mr. and Mrs. Babcock met us at the train, altho it arrived at a very early hour.

"You have grown handsomer than ever," Mr. Babcock said, as he kissed me—after asking George's permission. "Hasn't she mother?" he turned to his wife.

"Yes, I think she has," she returned her head on one side as she inspected me, her eyes twinkling. "It must be the babies."

"It IS," I replied, then launched into a description of them.

George had been cros with me for fretting over them, and I laughingly told her so.

"I know dear," she said laying her hand over mine, "but you have such wonderful help, and you really must learn to leave them occasionally both for your own and your husband's sake. It isn't fair to either for you to give up everything to them."

I was glad that George was beside Mr. Babcock who was driving the car, so he couldn't hear us.

"But I never have left them, and I am so afraid they will get sick or that something will happen."

"Your husband loves them?" she asked, making me look at her in astonishment. The question was so unexpected.

"Of course! he almost worships them, all three."

"Then try to forget to worry, and let him enjoy his trip as much as is possible when business is his reason for coming. Believe me, we women sometime make a mitake when we neglect our husbands for our children—no matter how much we love them."

THE SAME STORY.

"Everyone tells me the same story," I laughed just as we reached the house.

"It is true," she answered soberly. We had a most delightful time. They entertained for us, giving a dinner and musicale, and Mrs. Babcock also gave a luncheon. She asked Julia Collins, as I persisted in calling her, and we really had a good time talking things over together. She told me of her new home, and Mrs. Babcock and I accepted an invitation for tea the following afternoon. Her husband was on the coast, a business trip, she explained. But she told me she was ideally happy.

"I suppose it sounds foolish to you, but I think no one ever was any happier than Tom and I."

"That is because you do not curb his freedom; or require him to lose his individuality," Mrs. Babcock returned. I at once thought of the night up in Maine when George had said nearly the same thing. That one could not destroy another's individuality and be happy."

"Oh, I never would do that!" Julia laughed. "He might retaliate, and that would never do!"

That night we went to hear Paderweski play. I never had heard him, and was overjoyed at the opportunity. But when after the concert Mr. Babcock presented him I said to Mrs. Babcock:

"It was worth leaving the babies for."

How she laughed.

"I imagine you are a sort of hero worshipper, aren't you?"

"Perhaps," I replied, thinking of Merton Gray and how at first, and even yet, he had seemed so awfully attractive to me.

AT LAST PERFECT CONTENT.

We remained for three day. We had a delightful time, but most of all I enjoyed the long heart to heart talks I had with Mrs. Babcock. I told her of my boys, of how wonderfully happy I was now that I had learned some of the necessary things of life—to be unselfish and to trust my husband.

"That is all there is to married life—happy married life, I mean. Unselfishness and trust. Without it no marriage can be happy even if they do say that marriages are made in heaven. With it, nothing else matters much. I have watched you dear,—watched you change from a very sweet and attractive girl, into a well poised, beautiful woman. You have a husband of whom you may well be proud—three lovely babies—and one of the most complete homes that I ever have seen. And you also have the love and respect of the man you married. The other day when you were dressing he and I had a little talk. I was surprised that he opened his heart to me as he did. I am going to tell you what he said. I had spoken in praise of you and he replied:

"I am a very fortunate man; I have a very perfect married life. Mrs. Howard was but a very young girl when we were married, and she had a good deal to learn. But now there is no one I know who has more poise—no more real kindness of heart; who is a more perfect hostess, or makes her home the restful place she does. When you add to that her accomplishments and her beauty, and that she has given me three lovely boys, you cannot wonder that I say my married life is perfect."

"My eyes filled with happy tears as I bade my hostess good bye. I knew I was changed, but to have George admit that his life with me wes perfect, gave me sueh happiness as I never had dreamed of possessing.

"Advertise NOW, and never let up."

WITT K. COCHRANE, the well-known Advertisement Agent, thus cleverly "sizes up" the advertising situation:—

"It is inconceivable that any merchant or manufacturer should cease—or even curtail—his advertising just when the country is on the threshold of a tremendous double harvest—the NATURAL harvest of our own unprecedented crops, and the LOGICAL harvest consequent on the war in Europe.

"It is under such conditions as these that advertising reaches the zenith of its power. The man who listens to the yellow pessimist and sits back to 'wait for things to settle down,' is yielding his common sense and enterprise to the baleful influence of idle sentiment, and actually starving the goose that lays the golden egg.

"Keep the columns of the daily newspapers bristling with your announcements and thus open wide your doors for the flood of prosperity that is bound to rush in. Make hay while the sun shines. We won't have another chance like this in a hundred years."

"I have noticed with a feeling of profound disgust the conservatism and business cowardice that have set in in America since the Kaiser threw down the gauge of battle. We, the very people who will logically profit by the war abroad—and profit immeasurably—are acting as though we were at war ourselves. We are talking blue things, pinching the pennies cutting down our advertising and forcing prosperity to stand back.

"As a matter of fact this is the very hour when we should rush into print to a greater extent than ever before, because, unless the earth opens and swallows us up, there will be greater prosperity in America this fall than ever in the history of the Republic.

"We are not at war. We are not likely to be. The warring world looks to us for its supplies and we can't keep posperity down no matter how hard we try.

"If my advice is worth anything to you business men, it is here conveyed to you in six words:

"ADVERTISE NOW, AND NEVER LET UP."

"Advertise NOW, and never let up" in "The Examiner."

Redeemed!

By WALLACE BERESFORD

"I am sorry, Atherton, but I fear your efforts will be fruitless."

Wade Atherton hung his head. A flush of humiliation mantled his cheek. There was a firmness to his pose that told of strength and power, but his face bore traces of past dissipation o heavy cares.

"If you would allow me to show yo some letters"—he began, but the fussy technical attorney demurred.

"Now, don't ask me to be the friend he spoke. "As the attorney of Mrs Atherton I cannot plead with a client outside of strict legal procedure."

"If I could only see the child, just for a moment, only once! My heart is hungering for her."

"See here," said the lawyer, "go t the house and try and see your wife You look like a changed man and hope you are. You cannot, however blame your wife for her distrust and resentment."

"I don't," murmured Atherton humbly, "but I have tried to redeem th past."

He left the office dejectedly. H winced as he passed down the street and perhaps a dozen persons whom h had not seen for two years nodded i a chilling, perfunctory way, or evade any form of greeting.

Wade Atherton had left the town two years previous worse than under a cloud. Within a year after his marriage to Ethel Briggs he had become a tippler, and then a sot.

Atherton hesitated as he came to th street where he had learned his wif lived. He had about decided to leave the town as abruptly as he had come when he saw approaching his wife' sister. He hurried forward to address her. She gave him a startled start

"Mrs. Guthrie, wont you speak wit me for just a moment? I have come a long way to see Ethel and the little one. I am not as I was. If you would hear my story and intercede for me—"

"If you continue to annoy me," said Mrs. Guthrie, "I will call a policeman and give you in charge."

Like one utterly crushed, realizing the uselessness of an appeal to the stony heart, Atherton turned from the town and struck off across the fields At the base of the bluffs ran the railroad. He decided to get to the upper level and take the road to the next town. A long freight train was coming and he hurried his pace to get across the tracks ahead of it. Abruptly from the roadbed on the further side the bluff arose. His eye taking in the ascent, Atherton halted transfixed.

"It is Ethel!" he whispered to himself.

Where the road ran at the top of the bluff was a figure he recognized as that of his wife. She was walking up and down conversing with a lady. Mrs Atherton had evidently brought out her little child for an airing, for near by was a baby carriage, and the heart of Atherton throbbed wildly as he decided that it held the little one he longed for, but whom he had never seen.

Suddenly that occurred which jangled every nerve in his frame and sent him irresistibly forward with the force of a missile projected from a catapult. A sudden gust of wind sweeping over the height had caught the frail baby carriage in its swirl, carried it to the sheer edge of the decline, and then of its own momentum it went shooting downward.

In a dash Atherton had realized a frightful situation. The freight train was coming, and within a half a minute its locomotive would be between himself and the descending vehicle.

Atherton sprang directly in front of the locomotive. Its pilot struck one foot, and with a sickening sense of pain and peril he was projected through the air to land flat at the bottom of the incline. One limb was numb and useless. He crawled, rolled and writhed into line with the speeding baby carriage. He braced, swept out his arms, caught the wobbling vehicle by its front wheels, upset it and, fairly flung into his arms, was the little occupant. Clasping it close in his sheltering clasp he fainted away.

When Wade Atherton awoke to life he found himself lying on a couch in a darkened room. One limb was bandaged and he could not move it. His mentality was still disturbed from the shock of the last thrilling incident of which he was conscious.

"The little one—her baby, mine!" he murmured incoherently.

And, quickly stealing to his side, holding a child in her arms, Ethel Atherton knelt by his side and a pair of little hands reached out to caress his face, while his wife bent over him in fervent welcome.

It was later that Atherton knew that what he had to tell his little world from which he had wandered away was known to wife and friends, for the surgeon who attended him had handed to the wife a packet of papers fallen from his pocket, telling of how for over a year he, reformed, redeemed had been a tireless worker in the ranks of a society in the city devoted to battling vice and crime and to the rescue of their victims.

He had saved his own child from a terrible death, showing himself to be a brave man. In the later light of discovery and revelation his wife knew him to be a better man, and the shadows lifted, and in the sacred communion of those two tried souls there was no token of another parting.

LEMON JUICE TAKES OFF TAN

Girls! Make bleaching lotion if skin is sunburned, tanned or freckled

Squeeze the juice of two lemons into a bottle containing three ounces of Orchard White, shake well, and you have a quarter pint of the best freckle, sunburn and tan lotion, and complexion beautifier, at very, very, small cost.

Your grocer has the lemons, and any drug store or toilet counter will supply three ounces of Orchard White for a few cents. Massage this sweetly fragrant lotion into the face, neck, arms and hands each day and see how freckles, sunburn, windburn and tan disappear, and how clear, soft and white the skin becomes. Yes! It is harmless.

Strange Modern Building.

One of the most extraordinary buildings erected in modern times is now being built near Dornach, in Alsace. It is called the Temple of the Science of the Spirit and will be the mecca for every student of occultism and mysticism in Europe. The temple should be completed by December, when formal opening ceremonies of great pomp are to be performed.

It owes its inception and construction to Dr. Rudolf Steiner, a German theosophist, who has at least 4,000 followers. The cost of the building, which is of huge proportions, will be $600,000, which has been raised by subscriptions from spiritualists in many lands.

Symbolism and mysticism are the keynotes of the architectural design, for the greater of the two domes which surmount the building is said to represent the universe, and—since the numeral 7 represents the unrolling of things in time"—it is supported on each side by seven great columns. These pillars are in the form of a pentagram and support ornate capitals representing the planets of sun, moon, Saturn, Jupiter, Mars, Mercury, and Venus. Each column is made symbolically of a different kind of wood, for the whole edifice is built of wood except the basements, which are of stone, constructed in the form of terraces.

Such Vanity.

"I have always wanted to enjoy the peace and quiet of farm life."

"Why don't you? You're rich enough to do as you please. I should think you'd buy a place in the country and spend the rest of your days in rest."

"I would, only I'm afraid my friends would think, if I gave up the gay life, that I must be getting old."

The Universal "T"

This story is told of a Missionary instructing a class of Oriental maidens in the English alphabet:

What comes after "S"? she inquired. A bright little maiden piped up "LIPTON'S." Wherever the English language is spoken "Lipton's" is synonymous with "T."

This reason is simple. Lipton's own the finest plantations in the world. They grow the very choicest Tea. They grow, dry, blend and pack it themselves. Consequently they can absolutely guarantee its quality and flavor to the consumer.

No other firm selling Tea in Canada can give this guarantee.

Kinmount Personals

KINMOUNT, Aug. 21.—The berry season is almost over. Both raspberries and huckleberries were plentiful. The long blackberries are a failure, owing to the dry weather.

Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Molyneaux, of Toronto, stared for Home last Saturday and spent a part of Sunday in Bobcaygeon, proceeding to Toronto in the evening.

Mr. Ernest Moore made a short visit to his parents last week.

Mrs. Bowen of Toronto, who spent a few weeks in this neighbourhood, has returned home, taking with her a good supply of preserved fruit, and also a supply of butter and eggs, which are much cheaper here than in the city.

Baby Herliney is almost recovered from the long and severe illness which almost cost the little one his life. Dr. Frost and the baby's mother were in attendance on him for several weeks at the Simpson house, but Mrs. Herlihey and the child were at last able to return to their home at Tory Hill last week.

Miss Wilhelmina Train and Miss Molyneaux, who spent some time at the summer school at Bracebridge, have returned home.

Mr. Roy Hopkins spent the week end with his family at Kinmount.

Mrs. (Rev.) Williams, who has been in the hospital in Toronto undergoing a serious operation, returned home last week. Her many friends were sincerely glad to see her feeling so much better.

Mr. Frank Crowe, who has been assisting his brother, Mr. Cecil Crowe, of "The Cedars," Pigeon Lake, spent the week here.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

On the Mountain

By Susan E. Claggett

(Copyright, 1918, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

From the railroad a faint path stretched upward to a cabin high on the mountain above Horseshoe Bend. The same path continued downward to a cluster of houses, broadened into a narrow road, and came to a full stop before a rough porch, upon which several men were seated in varying degrees of comfort.

They were listening to one of their number. He was reading, with a trace of impatience—as if compelling himself to be neighborly when his desire was to hasten away—the market reports, the sporting page and the stock market. But what interested him, the war news, apparently did not hold their attention. They turned deaf ears to news from the front, but were absorbed in the Army and Navy ball game that had taken place the day before in Philadelphia.

With a sigh of relief, Willy Warren at last folded his paper, wished them good-day and, walking rapidly away, was soon lost to view upon the higher path. As he disappeared from sight the chair of Uncle Johnny Peyton came down on its front legs with a thud, and the old man said, addressing no one in particular:

"'Pears like Billy's mighty low in his mind. He's in a heap of trouble I'm thinking."

"What sort of trouble, Uncle John?" a girl asked casually, as she came through the door of the post office and general store.

"Now, Miss Ma'y, y'know he's 'listed an' don't know what'll becom o' his leedle gal. He's feared he'll have to go 'fore he kin place her."

"I had not heard; but things right themselves in time, and this will be straightened out."

"Maybe, Miss Ma'y, maybe. But y' know Billy's got no one, leastwise down byar. There's an old aunt in Ioway, an' I guess he's writ to her, but hain't seen fit to answer, so I reckin she's dead. Course, we-alls 'll luk arfter her, but he's riz her diffrunt. She's a pretty leedle gal.

"Billy don't b'long byar, y'know. He jest come. Something the matter with him. Never hearn tell of his wife. Jest came with thot gal an' she was a baby. Hired thot cabin up yonder an' didn' make fren's till the fever tuk we-alls, then he come down an' tuk kyar of Jim," nodding toward a mountaineer sitting on the steps, "then he tuk hold o' me. Reckin we'd both be in the boneyard if he hadn'."

"So he made friends, after all," said the girl. "I think the child will be taken care of, Uncle Johnny."

"Sure. But thot's not the p'int, Miss Ma'y. She's riz diffrunt." His voice took on a wheedling tone. "I jest wonder if you couldn't think up some way to help Billy? He sartinly needs it!"

"That would be unwarrantable interference, Uncle Johnny. I scarcely know Mr. Warren."

"Don't take no stock in sich talk," said Uncle Johnny, reaching for his twist of tobacco and cutting off a piece of goodly size. "When it comes to doin' things, an' thinkin' up things, Miss Ma'y, you're right smart. You didn' know we-uns when you come to the mountains, but you now has us trained to eat from your hand—almost."

She threw back her head and laughed heartily. "'Almost' is well put, Uncle Johnny; but I do not see how I can help you in this."

"'Twon't hurt to think erbout it, anyhow, an' p'haps you'll see light," was his concluding comment, as, with a glance toward the faintly outlined path she turned from the group and walked away.

She had been in the mountain three years—at first for her health, then because it claimed her. She had heard all about Billy Warren, had occasionally met him, but save for the merest courtesy no word had passed between them. For some reason he had not impressed her pleasantly. This was probably due to the fact that he had made no effort to know better one who had made friends with all the mountain people.

But the talk of old John Peyton, or some subconscious sense of trouble in the man himself as he stood silently beside her that morning, waiting for his mail, influenced her in the direction of her walk that afternoon. Yet she was not aware that she had been so influenced until she found herself watching a child dabbling bare feet in the rushing water of a tiny stream the while she hushed a corncob doll to sleep.

There was no fear in the child's eyes as she raised them to the woman beside her. Instead there was a whispered "hush; you'll wake her. She's been real sick and is just going to sleep."

Mary Hilton dropped upon the ground, and in an equally low voice asked what was wrong.

"Daddy's says it's a case of mumps or measles, he's not sure which; but she's been so awfuly cross and has tired me so, he says there is no living with either of us."

"Betty, to whom are you talking?" The voice came from the shadow of the cabin.

"A pretty lady, honey?"

"Don't tell me fairy tales, child; pretty ladies don't climb the mountain."

"She looks real, daddy. Shall I pinch her and find out?"

"I wouldn't. I'll come and find out for myself. There was a rustle of leaves, and Mary Hilton raised her eyes to Billy Warren's face.

She did not move, and the child, with steadily advancing fingers, again asked: "Shall I pinch her, daddy?"

He did not reply. Instead he drew his hand across his eyes as if uncertain as to the reality. When he did speak his voice was sadly unsteady.

"Thank God! Hereafter I shall always believe in prayer."

Mary looked at him thoughtfully. "You have been praying, and I am an answer to your prayer? In what way, especially?"

"You have come."

"You wanted me?"

"Yes."

"Then why did you not come to me?"

"I want help. I could not ask for it unless as a last resort. Offered, it is different."

"And you think I will offer it?"

"Judging from your goodness to the mountain people. You give comfort to them."

"That is different. They are poor. In my humble way, I give help where it is needed. Years ago I took a course of training in an eastern hospital. It has stood me in good stead in my life here. But my work does not approach yours. You are a physician?"

"An army surgeon, retired on account of ill health, which I have ruined on the mountain. You know what that means at this time. I am ordered to Fort Oglethorpe by the 15th. That leaves me but two days, and I feared I would have to ask for that which I hope will be offered."

"And that is?"

His gesture toward the child was eloquent. "I am all she has."

"If I do this thing, do you surrender her entirely, or will you claim her upon your return?"

His eyes held hers with an expression quickly veiled. "I will not return."

"I do not quite understand," she replied slowly. "We are strangers. You must have friends who would gladly do this for you."

"Yes, but I would choose you from all the world."

There was a certain controlled emotion in his voice that affected her strangely, and she rose to her feet.

"Again I say that I do not understand."

"That is natural." He walked the length of the level in front of the cabin and back. "Upon the eve of a great upheaval a man can allow himself a certain latitude of expression, especially when he knows it can do no harm," he said gravely. "I do not expect to return. Because I am convinced of this, I can say to you what under other circumstances would be little short of impudence, for, as you say, we are strangers. But I began to care for you when you first came to the mountain. I want you to know this, and to believe it. I could not let you know before. My wife—I do not wish to speak of her. She is dead, and I offer you not affront when I tell you that I love you. It is because of this I wish to leave Betty in your care."

With troubled eyes Mary looked toward the child. "I did not imagine this."

"How could you? My effort has been to keep you from knowing. Will you do this for me, now that you do know? It will be my comfort when my time comes, 'over there.'" He turned from her, looking out into the limitless space. "It will be my comfort," he repeated.

"Why are you so sure you will not return?"

"There would be no incentive, with Betty cared for."

Then it was that Mary surprised herself by saying deliberately. "Mr. Warren, if I told you that my interest—"

"Interest! I would want something more than interest," he interrupted.

"Would that not do for the present?"

"No. It must be something more definite."

For long she hesitated, then said steadily. "I think it is more than interest. I am not sure. But if an overwhelming anxiety for your safe return is an evidence of a deeper feeling, it is yours."

He took her hand, raising it to his lips. "In that case, Mary Hilton, God willing, I will return to you and Betty."

How Black Haytian Plucked the Cigar From Mouth of Canadian.

Certain Canadians from whose cheeks the tropical tan has not yet faded are un-Booker T. Washington-ish enough to wish that the colored ruler of Hayti had, like Pharaoh, hardened his heart and refused to pay that little item of $62,000. This was the bill rendered recently by Great Britain for the destruction of a Britisher's sawmill in one of the perennial revolutions. The dusky potentate who rules at Port au Prince was informed that he had until just six o'clock to come across with the coin. Otherwise, the cruiser Suffolk would put one of King George's officers in charge of the custom house. After a very brief deliberation, Hayti's Government touched the National Bank for the amount and paid over the gold.

These Canadian tropical trippers who took in the sable isle on the Panama cruise, have a grudge against Hayti and its native population, hence their expressed wish that the President would dare attempt to beard the Lion.

Hayti, the negro republic, is a land where the white man gets off the sidewalk to let his superior black brother pass. Here the brash colored man is at his brashiest, and gets away with it every time. Negro policemen back him up. Negro soldiers back them up, and higher up still are ebony officials and an Ethiopian President.

Notwithstanding Hayti is a popular port of call and here the Canadian contingent spent a day — and what a day!

One of the number was walking up a main thoroughfare with a friend enjoying a perfecto, when suddenly a native sprang out from an alleyway, grabbed the torch from the gentleman's astonished mouth and made off with it.

Just at this time another Canadian was haggling with one of the vociferous crowd of cabbies.

The avaricious Jehu demanded $5 for his fare, whereupon the passenger beckoned a policeman. Clutching the $2 proffered to the driver, this guardian of the peace dashed off with it, followed by the infuriated cabby.

More serious than funny was the predicament that another party from the same ship got into when, after viewing the old cathedral they turned to find the door locked and themselves confronted by a naked dirk in the hands of a ransom-demanding guide.

"Why doesn't the steamship company police this wharf?" angrily asked one passenger who had been jostled by some Haytians.

"It's a wonder (pointing out over the harbor) that that dinky Yankee gunboat of yours wouldn't do something to keep this place in order," retorted the steamship officer.

All visitors were disgusted with the filth of Port au Prince and the lawless disorder of its negro population, one of the Canadian squad commemorating his impressions in verse.

Why He Drowned.

Describing the stringent police regulations of Berlin, a citizen of that city by way of illustration told the following story:

"Schmidt and Krauss met one morning in the park.

"'Have you heard,' says Schmidt, 'the sad news about Muller?'

"'No, says Krauss. 'What is it?'

"'Well, poor Muller went boating on the river yesterday. The boat capsized, and he was drowned. The water was ten feet deep.'

"'But couldn't he swim?'

"'Swim? Don't you know that all persons are strictly forbidden by the police to swim in the river?'"

The Blue Sky.

The blue sky, which reveals itself as the hemispherical vault of the firmament in the absence of clouds is the far depths of the air sending back to the observer some part of the solar illumination which they receive. The light thus returned to the eye is "blue" simply because the particles of the air are of such exceedingly diminutive size that they can effectively deal with only the smallest of the luminous vibrations. There are a few faint interminglings of the other colored rays in the blue of the sky, but they are in such trifling quantity that the blue swallows them up.

A Medal of Blood.

Garibaldi was once presented with a medal made of his own blood. The giver was Dr. Manini of Naples, who was well known as a petrifier and preserver of the human body. Dr. Manini in offering the gift to Garibaldi said that whenever the general looked at it it would brace him up for the last fight, and across the medal were engraved the words, "The Blood of Garibaldi Is Forever Red." The strange medal is preserved by the general's descendants

Irish Plot With Germans

GLANCING at the Sinn Fein record since the beginning of the war, the average man would say that the onus is on its leaders to prove that they were not conspiring with Germany, rather than upon the British Government to prove the affirmative. Everybody knows that they did plan the Easter rebellion of 1916 with Germany, that Roger Casement arrived in Ireland in a German submarine, after having tried to recruit an Irish regiment in Germany among the prisoners-of-war there. Criminal maniacs those leaders may be, but they know that an Irish rising hasn't a Chinaman's chance unless it is to be helped on by Germany. They must know, too, that if Germany were to win this war Ireland would be about as much a self-governing republic as Belgium or Poland. If, then, they would conspire with Germany in the name of an Irish republic the fact must be that they desire a German victory first, or rather a British defeat, without regard to what effect it would have on Ireland. Ireland, indeed, being no more to them than Russia is to the Bolsheviki.

It will be necessary for the Government, probably, to prove that the Irishmen arrested on a charge of planning a rebellion are guilty of specific acts. The relationship of Sinn Fein to Germany does not need to be proved again. The facts are already as plain as the fact of the unprovoked invasion of Belgium. Some of them are presented by Charles Johnson in the New York Times. He quotes from an article in a German publication written by Casement, when he saws that without Ireland there can be no British Empire, and that Germany ought to grasp this fact if it is to play the great role in the history of mankind that it is entitled to. That is the bond of union between Ireland and Germany, namely, their common interest in the destruction of the British Empire. He goes on to say: "The foundations of a common policy which will be prompted by a common hope are already laid in America." Casement was working for a political union between Ireland and Germany, and he had reason to count upon powerful backing from a certain element in the United States.

At the same time Teodor Schliemann, professor of Berlin University, was writing: "Ireland has only one enemy. Let every Irish heart and hand, every Irish penny strike for Germany. American-Irish, hold yourselves in readiness." In December, 1915, James K. McGuire, one-time mayor of Syracuse, and presumably an American born, wrote a book called, "What Could Germany Do for Ireland?" In his opinion Ireland could guarantee to Germany immunity of attack from England after the end of this war, which he assumed was to be won by Germany. He advocated the establisament of an Irish republic buttressed by a strong alliance with Germany. He also said that Ireland should resist conscription to the death, and pointed out that Ireland would thus be conserving her man-power while England would be bled white on the battlefield. Ireland would thus be in a most advantageous position, as compared with England, at the end of the war.

Arthur Griffith, founder of Sinn Fein, and now under arrest, wrote that Bryce's policy of conciliation was beaten by the anti-Anglo-American alliance entente between the Germans and Irish-Americans. He added that the title of pro-German was one of honor and worthy of an Irishman to wear. In the "History of the Sinn Fein Movement," by Francis P. Jones, for which Judge John P. Goff, of New York, stood sponsor, the author says that the Irishman who joined the British army or navy was a traitor to his country. "His place is to prepare for the coming of the German." He also congratulated Alsace-Lorrain upon the prosperity which German rule had brought to the inhabitants. Speaking of Casement's efforts among the Irish prisoners in Germany, Judge Goff's friend says that the idea was to get them discharged from the camps, have them dressed in an Irish uniform, armed and equipped by the German General Staff and transported to Ireland.

If the Sinn Feiners now under arrest have not plotted with German representatives for another rising in Ireland, why have they not? How excuse this gross negligence to their supporters? They have never denied their readiness to establish an Irish republic by force of arms if possible, and as has been pointed out, they know that only by German assistance could such an adventure end in anything but dire failure. De Valera, that true son of the sod, who was born in New York and whose father was a Spaniard, says that he would regard as a friend any nation that would help Ireland to free herself from England. He would view Germany in the same light as Belgium considers Britain. The original proclamation declaring Ireland a republic referred to her "gallant allies in Europe." There was once a most intimate association between Sinn Fein and Prussianism. What Sinn Feiner has ever announced that the unholy alliance is at an end?

Pity the Grocer.

The grocer saw his best customer was a bit ruffled over something, so strove to be extra obliging and pleasant.

"I think," he said blandly, "living's getting cheaper. For instance, a year ago them eggs would have cost you five cents more."

"A year ago," said the customer, "when these eggs were fresh they would have been worth more."

Temperature of Soil.

Beyond a depth of three feet the temperature of the soil does not vary very much from day to day. At sixty feet it is impossible to measure any change due to changing seasons; at forty feet it is barely measurable. At twenty-five to thirty feet a change from season is quite perceptible, though the change takes over six months. At three feet the average annual means is 45 degrees F.; at twenty-five feet a degree more.

Milk from the goat has probably been used for food purposes ever since the advent of the first "Mrs. Gotee," and the chances are that it will until time is no more. What thoroughbreds we have are kept on feather mattresses, almost, and fed the best and choicest that the market affords. Over the Line

By ELLIOT WALKER

(Copyright)

"Whoa, Betty!" The gray mare stopped and sniffed. "Someone called me," whispered the girl in the buckboard—"close by, too."

She snatched the whip from its socket and gripped the handle. "I may have to start quick," she thought. Then her clear voice rang out, starting the echoes from the boulders above:

"Who is it? Who spoke?"

A little stream of gravel trickled down beside the big rock at her side; a few small stones rattled; then a white face lifted into view, and a hand implored silence.

Jennie Freeland raised her whip in sudden alarm and looked again. "George!" she cried. "It isn't you? What are you doing here?"

The young man was in the road now. "For God's sake, Jennie get me over the line," he whispered. His voice and eyes implored piteously. He held up a red, swollen wrist. "It's broke, I guess; I can't drive."

The girl's lithe arm went out and dragged him up beside her.

"You did it, George!" trembled her lips.

"Yes! They're after me, Jennie. I've been running and hiding all night."

"Get up, Bet!" The lash fell in a stinging cut. The mare leaped under it, and then steadied to a rapid trot. "It's ten miles, George; we'll beat them! They can't be far behind. Oh, I never dreamed it was you!"

"Don't give up, Jennie."

"Give—you—up!" The color surged back to the fresh young face. Her tone was half scornful, half tender. "I suppose you want to go straight to Hiram's?"

"No, I can't trust him. If I can strike Grant Brookers he will know where to put me, and blind them somehow. Old Grant will do anything for me."

She pressed her face to his. "I know the road. That'll help us if we get by the stretch. The sheriff was hitching up as I drove past. Bob Ellery was with him."

"What did you hear, Jennie?" The man's voice trembled. "I never meant to—to—"

"I didn't hear much Don't let's talk about it. I know they made out a warrant, and that the—the doctor was still working over him. That's all."

Along the ill kept, gravelly road winding through the rugged Vermont hills, the gray mare sped.

"What became of your hat, George?"

"I lost it in the woods. I fell over a stump. Oh, Jennie, think of how happy we were to be, and now!" He was weak, exhausted and horror stricken.

"Mother risked everything for father," she said, "and things came out all right. After you're over the line I'll come. It will be hard to leave home, but I'll come. If you're caught, I'll wait."

They had covered half the distance, Betty rattling bravely along, but panting slightly. Far behind, the anxious lovers heard a faint halloo. Their heads turned in simultaneous fright.

"It's Parmelee, and he's got Sampson's pair. It's all up, Jennie. Kiss me, darling, before they see us." Case's tone was strong and firm now. His features lighted up. "It's worth it all," he whispered. "It's worth it!"

As he leaned forward for that last caress the girl straightened up and laughed shrilly. "Sit still!" she cried. "Don't hinder me!"

Now the hoof beats came plainly to their ears, and now the sheriff's shout.

Jennie looked back and waved her hand. A hundred yards and she turned abruptly into an old wood road, up a sharp incline—goading her beast, encouraging, guiding with hands that never faltered—a little further, deeper into the woods.

"Keep quiet, George. We can cross it—they never can," she said.

The gray mare snorted, trembled, felt carefully with her forefeet.

"Go on, Betty! It's all right, Betty!"

They were over. Behind them was a frail, half-tumbling bridge of ancient logs and boards, spanning a chasm thirty feet in depth.

"You may kiss me now. Oh, George dear!" She burst into wild weeping and clasped him close.

Sheriff Chester Parmelee stopped his horses on the other side of the gap.

"Of all the crazy coots I ever see!" he yelled in high wrath. "An' me comin' all this way to find George, as I heered he was follerin' the road! No need of runnin' off, George; that man hez come to all right, and says 'twas all his fault, an' he hed no business ter say what he did about the gal—didn't know she was anythin' ter yer. Says ye're a hard hitter." The sheriff grinned. "I've a warrant here for service, an' hev ter go back. What'll you two do? 'Taint possible to cross over agin. This end's all loose an' cavin'. Jennie, how come yer ter pick him up?"

"Oh, I found him on the road."

"I see, I see," remarked Parmelee sagely. "Well, ye're a plucky gal. Where ye goin' now?"

"I guess we'll go around by the wood and come back by the highway," replied the girl, smiling at him. "Tell my folks I'll be a bit late."

And Betty resumed her way more leisurely.

The British Army Is Encountering Desperate Resistance

Villages Change Hands Several Times in the Fighting

British Forces Opened Up a New Attack This Morning And Are Still Advancing

Several Thousand Prisoners Taken—The Allies are Nearing Bapaume —Several Important Positions Gained by the French—Early Fall of Noyon is Looked for by Military Experts.

GERMANS MAKE A DESPERATE RESISTANCE

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, August 22.—British forces attacked this morning between the Somme and the Ancre Rivers. Between two and three thousand prisoners were captured by the British in yesterday's operations. North of the Ancre, the statement says, the Arras-Bapaume Railway has been crossed in spite of strong enemy resistance.

Fresh German counter attacks are reported to have developed east of Miraumont and Irles. The hostile artillery is said to have been very active during the night, and to be continuing its heavy fire this morning.

French troops under command of General Mangin, according to information received in London to-day, from the battle front along the Oise River, are continuing to press back the Germans. Several important German positions already have been gained by the French. The Germans are offering stubborn resistance, and heavy fighting is taking place. General Mangin's army has taken numerous prisoners

THE FRENCH ARMY MADE A GREAT ADVANCE BETWEEN METZ AND THE OISE RIVERS AND REACHED AILETTE RIVER

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

PARIS, August 22.—General Humbert's army has made a great advance between Metz and the Oise Rivers and has reached the Ailette River. French military men say this makes the early fall of the town of Noyon inevitable.

The Allied armies have taken more than one hundred thousand prisoners since July 18, and the Allies have severely smashed six German armies since July.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

PARIS (Official), August 22.—German troops were forced back over a twenty-mile front to a depth of from one to two miles from Lassigny to the Ailette River during the night. The enemy is retreating between Metz and the Oise, and east of the Oise. We have occupied Leplemont, Thiescourt, Cannectancourt and Ville, and have reached the Divette River and have reached the Oise to the east of Noyon from Sempigny to Bretigny. The outskirts of Pommiers, west of Soissons, has also been taken.

THE BRITISH ARE ONLY SIX MILES FROM HINDENBURG LINE AND VERY HEAVY FIGHTING IS IN PROGRESS

(By Lowell Mellett—United Press Service.)

WITH THE BRITISH ARMIES IN FRANCE, August 22.—The Germans are opposing General Byng's advance north of the Ancre with the utmost desperation.

With the British only six miles from the Hindenburg line at one point to-day, the enemy is crowding the back roads with additional troops coming up. Six divisions, comprising 72,000 men, were identified yesterday. The Germans used their big guns all through the night. It is evident that Byng's sudden push has considerably destroyed the enemy line in view of the constantly developing French success to the south.

The areas about the railroad has been the scene of fierce fighting, the British being required to clear out dugouts in the embankment along the whole portion. Many dead Germans resulted. The Boches undoubtedly are ready to make a stiff battle against any effort to reach Bapaume.

BRITISH ARMY IS ENCOUNTERING DESPERATE RESISTANCE; FRENCH TROOPS HAVE REACHED THE AILETTE RIVER

PARIS, August 22.—General Byng's army is encountering desperate resistance in the region of Bapaume. Achiet-Le-Grand changed hands several times late yesterday afternoon and last night. The British are now in that position. French troops have reached the Ailette River at several points. It is not expected that the Germans will try to hold the Ailette line, but may retreat to the Oise.

HEAVY FIGHTING REPORTED ON BRITISH FRONT— NOYON IS BEING RAPIDLY ENVELOPED

(By Lowell Mellett—United Press Service.)

WITH THE BRITISH ARMIES IN FRANCE, August 22.—Between Schampe and Bray this morning the fighting was good when this despatch was filed.

Fighting continued to-day, but was less favourable than yesterday. There was no mist and the ground was hot.

(By John De Gandt)

The French have crossed the Ailette River on a front between Schampe and Guny, and are pushing toward Schoucy-Le-Chateau. In the Schoucy-Le-Chateau region, a German division prepared a counter attack, but a lightning-like French attack forced them to retreat. They fled in a panic. Their wing divisions immediately threw the rear into confusion.

Noyon is rapidly being enveloped. It is now flanked from the east. French troops are ready to cross the Oise. Cadal which they have reached is between Varesnes and Morlincourt, a mile and a half southeast of Noyon.

The Divette River is entirely in the hands of the French.

Mangin's men are nearing Manicamp, near the junction of Soissons-Ailette River, seven miles east of Noyon.

Northwest of Soissons the Germans attempted a counter attack on the Juvigny Ridge, four miles northwest of Soissons, but were quickly repulsed.

A fleet of seventy tanks at one point in the French advance spread terror among the Germans.

"THE GIRL WHO HAD NO GOD"

To-day marks the close of The Examiner's great feature story —"The Woman Who Changed." It will be replaced on Saturday next by a new serial story from the pen of Mary Roberts Rinehart, who needs no introduction to the reading public. "The Girl Who Had No God" is a real adventure tale with a pulse-stirring love story of a most unusual sort. Watch for the opening chapter on Saturday, August 24th.

FRENCH FORCES ARE APPROACHING TOWN OF NOYON

In Some Places the French Are Only a Few Hundred Yards From the Town.

DOMINATE OISE

(United Press.)

(By Webb Miller.)

Paris, August 22. — The armies of General Mangin and General Humbert are closing in on Noyon, the bulwark of the German line, from two directions.

In some places they are only a few hundred yards from the town, and are heavily bombarding it with field guns.

Fighting is continuing along a front of practically 35 miles extending on both sides of the Oise.

The allied armies are bombarding the enemy areas beyond Noyon, and report considerable disorder and apparent preparation for a big retirement.

In the past 48 hours the French have taken more than 15,000 prisoners and a vast quantity of material, including thousands of machine guns and hundreds of cannon.

After taking Lassigny, the French pushed beyond in the direction of Vauchelles, (a mile and a half west of Noyon). They have reached La Hare and Mont La Bache, dominating the Oise.

HINDENBURG IS BEING ENTANGLED IN NETWORK OF LOCAL OPERATIONS

Any One of These Operations May Bring About a Major Disaster —The New British Drive

SUCCESSFUL TACTICS

(United Press.)

(By J. W. T. Mason.)

NEW YORK, Aug. 22. — Marshal Foch's blows are now falling so fast and so deftly at so many places along the western front, that Von Hindenburg is being entangled in a net-work of local operations, any one of which threatens to bring about a major disaster to the German army.

Yesterday Gen. Byng started work on a salient in the direction of Bapaume, sixty miles away, after the western side of the Vesle salient was practically completed. To-day the British have begun a new wedge-like drive north of the Somme, not far from the Bapaume operations, and all the while the French are conducting squeeze operations at the Lassigny angle, midway between the Somme and the Vesle fronts.

Local Operations.

At no time since the war began have local operations in the west been carried on so continuously and with such persistent success as now. Nor have the possibilities of a major allied success ever been so threatening to Von Hindenburg. The developments of the western side of the Vesle pocket is a serious danger to the famous Chemin Des Dames defences, which are now threatened with a flanking and rear fire. At the same time the southern sector of the Hindenburg line is insecure.

Farther north the halt by Gen. Byng's attack toward Bapaume is strictly in accord with the strategic plans of the allies. The present operations are in no sense a major offensive and are being conducted under new and highly successful tactical direction for minimizing the Allies' casualties.

BURNED WHILE OPENING TIN OF CHLORIDE OF LIME.

While opening a tin of chloride of lime, Mrs. Wellington Asling, 579 George Street, was severely burned about the face and hands. This class of an accident is becoming all too common, and it is pretty near time some action was taken to change the present form of container so as to remove the danger when opening the tin.

QUOITERS ATTENTION.

Any person in Peterborough interested in this fascinating game, or any persons who at present time are pitching quoits, are requested to meet at Room 103, Barrie Building, on Monday evening, Aug. 26th, at 8 o'clock, for the purpose of organizing a quoiting club in this district.

BOLSHEVIKI TROOPS ARE ADVANCING

CANADIANS HAVE BEEN QUIET FOR PAST FEW DAYS

The Old Battlefield of the Somme Constitutes Very Difficult Fighting Ground.

CONCRETE AND STEEL

(By J. F. B. Livesay, Canadian Press Correspondent.)

WITH THE CANADIAN FORCES IN FRANCE, Aug. 22.— Except for minor actions entered into with a view to consolidating our line, the past two days have been relatively quiet on the Canadian front. The enemy held in force a number of strong points, and the country is exceedingly difficult. It is the old battle field of the Somme and the defences are practically intact. These include elaborate trench systems with fortified points of support and concrete and steel pill boxes. It is, in fact, a very different proposition from the open, rolling country over which the great advance of a fortnight ago was made, while the net-work of wire and permanent defences have been very little affected.

TO RETURN WAR PROFITS.

Henry Ford Announces that Personal Dividends on Contracts will now be Returned.

Detroit Mich., August 21. — Henry Ford, through his private secretary, announced this afternoon that he will return to the United States government all the profits that he personally makes on war contract work. He added that he expected a number of the other stockholders of the Ford Motor Company would follow his example.

HUN POSTS CAPTURED

British Troops Ripped Through the Enemy Lines on a Ten Mile Front—Casualties Light

RIVER CROSSED

(By Lowell Mellett.)

With the British Armies in France, August 22. — Troops that had gone blithely through the German lines on a ten mile front this morning; with the aid of a helpful mist, were rushing doggedly ahead this afternoon under a cruel sun which proved as bad an enemy as the Boches.

The farther the British advanced, the stiffer grew the German resistance. The kick-off was easy, however, except the crossing of the Ancre and the railroad near Deaucru. The defensive system of the river and railroads made this portion of the advance costlier than taking Beauchurt itself. The British casualties in the town were said to be only three, notwithstanding it was defended by a force of Boches sufficient to yield 20 prisoners.

MARKED SALIENT.

By the afternoon it was known that Logeast Wood, one of the two hardest nuts to crack, had yielded. The other a small wood near Miraumont, still holds out, the defence about it forming a marked salient in the British line.

The area immediately in the rear of the fighting line supplied some odd contrasts. Soldiers were harvesting wheat, while some women were working in fields that ended only a kilometre or two farther back. Fresh troops bound for the fighting line were alongside, with bands playing cheerfully.

SOUND ADVICE.

ALL EFFORTS TO TRACE MISSING BOY HAVE BEEN FUTILE

Archie Donald Davidson is Still Missing From His Home— Parents Distressed.

All efforts to trace Archie Donald Davidson, the little eleven year old boy who disappeared from his home, 222 Rubidge street, on Monday last, have proved futile and the distracted parents are in constant terror that some silent testimony of a fatality will be brought in.

Mrs. Davidson, the mother, is absolutely at a loss to know what might have happened. She said this morning that the little lad, while not delicate constitutionally, is very slenderly built, and a child who seldom left his mother to play with other children, preferring home life. The only exception to this is that, on a few occasions, while out delivering the Saturday Evening Post and the Ladies' Home Journal, or while on an errand, he has stayed up town for, at times an alarmingly long time. On one occasion, two or three weeks ago, he spent the day from nine in the morning until nine at night, at the river.

On Monday, the day he left home, he had as usual helped his mother with some work in the kitchen, and after asking if there were any other errands he could do, left home with his papers, and about one dollar, and has been traced at several stores he visited.

In the evening when he did not return his parents took it for granted he had gone to a camp belonging to one of his playmates. Next day, however, the alarm was raised, and since then the country has been scoured, and relatives in all directions communicated with to no avail.

When he left home he wore a ready made checked suit of dull colours with a Norfolk jacket, a blue peak cap, a white shirt with blue stripes. In appearance he is tall for his age, pale, with very red lips, blue eyes and dark hair. Any information of the whereabouts of the boy will be thankfully received by Mr. and Mrs. Davidson, 222 Rubidge street, whose telephone No. is 1062.

Schooners Sunk by Sea Raider

Two Vessels Lost Off American Coast.

Canadian Press:

MONTREAL, Aug. 22.—Practically the entire fleet of the Maritime Fish Corporation has been destroyed by the trawler "Triumph," which was captured by a German submarine and armed, according to reports to the company's office here to-day. The fleet was operating off the Grand Banks of Newfoundland. It was composed of boats of both Canadian and American registry.

A CANADIAN ATLANTIC PORT, Aug. 22.—One American schooner, the Sylvania, Captain Jeff Thomas, was sunk yesterday on the Banquerau fishing banks by an armed trawler, presumably the Triumph, owned here, which was captured by a German submarine on this coast on Tuesday and converted into an enemy raider. The crew of the Sylvania arrived at a fishing port a considerable distance east of here this morning.

Report Confirmed.

The crew of a Nova Scotia fishing schooner, the Pasadena, has arrived at a port east of here, reporting their vessel sunk by the trawler Triumph on Tuesday midnight.

"Peterborough Presents Possibilities Unsurpassed."

THURSDAY, AUGUST 22ND, 1918.

THE COAL SUPPLY.

The Fuel Controller's announcement to the effect that Peterborough's share of the Dominion's allotment of coal for next winter will be 5,000 tons less than last season's receipts makes unpleasant reading for those citizens whose bins show only the bare boards of the bottom. It is practically a reduction of seventeen per cent. of the requirements for a normal winter, and at a first glance appears to be a drastic reduction. The allotment covers the domestic sizes of coal, and in reviewing the possibilities for the winter, Alderman Dobbin states that the steam sizes, including "run of mine," will be available for home use. This is saving exception, and may mitigate the severity that is threatened in the Controller's notice.

The decreased allotment is an obvious substantiation of the recommendations of the Trades and Labour Council that the general distribution be reduced from 10 per cent to 25 per cent of each family's requirements before further deliveries were made. That proposal proved unacceptable, but it may not yet be too late to adopt some system whereby the fixed supply for the entire community may be equitably apportioned.

The old conditions that left trade unhampered have been swept off the board. The Government becomes the custodian of the total quantity alloted to this country, and local dealers are virtually its agents. They have strictly adhered to the Fuel Controller's regulations, and if any homes are unsupplied when winter breaks the dealers should not be censured.

The appointment of a Fuel Commissioner becomes an imperative duty to which the Council should attend as soon as possible. Furthermore, the complicating conditions that have arisen suggest that this official be paid a salary. The present developments demand action that will prevent the recurrence of the mid-winter, handsleigh queues of last season.

KITCHENER HEARD FROM AGAIN.

The name of Kitchener has failed as an inspiration to Ontario's one-time Berlin judging by certain notorious incidents during the war, that were scarcely expressive of sound loyalty. The latest episode is written in the minutes of the Kitchener Council on Monday night when by a vote of 9 to 4 a resolution to provide additional water supply for the Military Hospital at Freeport, near Kitchener, was defeated. The Daily Telegraph interprets the opposition of the aldermen as follows. "The facts of the matter seems to be that Alderman Bowman and Alderman Bitzer do not want any soldiers quartered in or near the city — no matter whether they be young recruits or returned veterans bearing the honourable scars of battle."

The enlargement of the Freeport Sanitarium will require an increased water supply and other facilities for the larger number of returned men who would be moved to it. Mayor Gross intimated that no improvements to the water system could be carried out without the Council's consent, and their recent action is regarded as a challenge to those citizens who are in favour of enlarging the hospital. If the convalescent and invalid soldiers are unwelcome to any section of Kitchener there are other communities prepared to receive them.

"Surely such rank ingratitude could be found nowhere else in Canada," the Telegraph concludes.

LIFE IS NOT WHAT THEY WANT.

Patriotism could hardly be carried further than it was by the 114 Polish officers and privates who, captured by the Austrians after they had deserted to the Russians, and later joined the Czechoslovak forces in Siberia, now demand that no consideration of their impending—and legally deserved—fate shall move the Poles at home to any compromises in the struggle they are making for Polish independence.

This takes a sort of courage not greater, perhaps, but certainly different from and rarer than that which enables men to face death in battle without a tremor. The prisoners know the Austrians well, and that they certainly will be shot or hanged unless by sparing them their captors can gain political and military advantages of real and great importance. And those advantages can only be derived from utilizing the natural desire of the Poles still in Austria to save the lives of men whom they regard not as criminals, but as heroes. That in such circumstances the captives scorn to have their lives saved shows an utter devotion to the cause on which they staked everything when they turned to what was then the Entente side.

Comparable with their spirit of self-sacrifice is that displayed a few weeks ago by a group of French soldiers who, when surrounded by an overwhelming force of Germans and unable longer to hold the village in which they had been stationed, signalled that the French cannon should be turned on it as the only way of preventing its loss. That meant that everyone of themselves would be killed by the shells from their own artillery, but that fact did not count with them as against the more hated fact that so only could the loss of the position be prevented.

What the French gunners did was not told, but the presumption is that they accepted the sacrifice so nobly offered, opened fire and drove the Germans back. That, however, was in the heat of battle, and not to save the Polish prisoners, if it could be done at not too great cost, would require a virtue more hard and stern than any except that which the ancient Romans claimed and sometimes revealed.—New York Times.

TO DEVOTE MILLIONS TO SOCIAL UPLIFT

REV. DR. BYRNE ANNOUNCES PLANS IN CONNECTION WITH HIS HERITAGE.

Ottawa, August 21. — Social uplift and Christian work is going to receive an impetus in this country if the Rev. D. S. K. Byrne, of the Montreal Christian Workers' Church, carries out his present intentions.

He has just inherited the $10,000,000 estate of the late W. B. Byrne, an American millionaire, whose adopted son he was, and intends to devote the vast heritage to bettering conditions amongst the poor and rescuing the fallen.

The manner in which Mr. Byrne came in for his fortune smacks of romance, as it was willed to him in recognition of his having rescued the late Lucy Byrne, daughter of the dead millionaire, from a fate which would have been worse than death. He was formerly David S. Kidd, and one stipulation made by Mr. Byrne when he adopted the young man, was that he should change his name. Rev Mr. Byrne is in the city to get the signature of His Excellency the Governor-General to some papers in connection with the will, and is at the Windsor Hotel, accompanied by his secretary, F. Ford. He has been engaged in uplift work the greater portion of his life, and by the terms of the will inherits vast properties in Australia, America and this country. He was born at Cyrville, near Ottawa, where his father the late D. Kidd, was a well-known farmer.

PROF. SCHLIEMANN'S SON NOW IN THE PUBLIC EYE.

Father of Diplomat Spent Years of His Life Excavating the Site of Ancient Troy and Came Upon Traces of the Long Lost Continent Between Europe and America—Book Is In Prospect.

The recent appointment of Mr. Schliemann to represent the Greek Government at Washington, recalls the dream of his father, Henrich Schliemann, of uncovering Troy, and the story of his fifty years of preparation for digging up the ancient ruins.

He was the son of a pastor with classic tastes, a grocer's boy at 10, a cabin boy, an underwriter, an indigo merchant. But from earliest childhood the story of the Trojan war had exercised a great influence over the future explorer. Of his earliest childhood he writes:—

"My father had often told me with a warm enthusiasm of the tragic fate of Pompeii. He also related to me with admiration the great deeds of the Trojan War and the Homeric heroes, always finding in me a warm defender of the Trojan cause. With great grief I heard from him that Troy had been so completely destroyed that it had disappeared without a trace. My joy may be imagined then, when I received as a Christmas gift a book with an engraving representing Troy in flames, with its huge walls and the Scaean Gate from which Aeneas was escaping with his father.

"I cried out, 'Father, you must surely have been mistaken; if such walls existed they cannot have been completely destroyed; vast ruins of them must still remain, hidden under the dust of ages.' He maintained the contrary, but I was of my opinion and at last we both agreed that I should one day excavate Troy.

"Small wonder that the boy who at eight years had this interest should keep true to the dream of youth. But the story of how he realized that dream half a century later reads more like the chapters of a fatalistic romance than any true biography.

Learning Russian, he was appointed agent of his company at St. Petersburg. Later he embarked in business of his own—the indigo trade. In 1858, at the age of 36, he was able to retire on his income, and now devoted himself to the study of archaeology for ten years. At that time his fortune had increased to an income of approximately $50,000 a year.

"A trip through the Orient resulted in the writing of his first book, "Le Chine et le Japon," and in 1869, after a careful and extensive investigation in Greece, a second volume, entitled "Ithaca, the Peloponnesus, and Troy."

In Greece, before the publication of his second book, he had married Sophie Kastromenos, a remarkable Greek woman of strong character, notable scholarly attainments and considerable wealth. She was in hearty sympathy with his aim, and aided him to such an extent that he expressed himself as being gravely in doubt if his work would have ever been as successful without her untiring interest and assistance.

In 1870, at the age of 48, having received permission of the Sultan, through the office of the American Minister, Schliemann's chance came.

Some idea of the barriers presented by the work itself may be gathered from the excavator's story of the proceedings in his greatest book, "Ilios." He says:

"We had to break through a wall ten feet thick consisting of large blocks of marble, most of which were drums of the Corinthian columns, cemented with lime. We then had to pierce the wall of Lysimachus, also ten feet thick and built of large hewn stones, and to force our way through two Trojan walls from five to ten feet in thickness.

"While making this excavation we found a number of large earthen jars from three to six feet high, as well as numerous drums of Corinthian columns and other sculptured blocks of marble. All these must have belonged to the Hellenic buildings."

Schliemann found the great edifice he called the Tower of Ilium — a building nearly 40 feet thick. In turn were unearthed the "Scaean Gates" of Homer and the palace of Priam the king.

The contributions made by the Schliemanns to the archaeological knowledge of the life of Greek antiquity, and, in addition, the increased light thrown on the Homeric poems by the material discovered, are almost inestimable. But not content with the work accomplished Doctor Schliemann turned his attention to Greece proper and succeeded in unearthing the ruins of Mycenae and Tiryus.

Here were discovered the remains of the Lion Gate, the royal tombs, and a number of priceless additions to the world's knowledge of archaic history.

Schliemann died in December, 1890, just before his 68th birthday. Upon fulfilling the conditions prescribed in his will, his grandson, in 1906, received the documents specially prepared by the great archaeologist, and made public enough to let the world know that Doctor Schliemann believed he had discovered a certain clue to the discovery of the fabled Lost Continent, Atlanta. The book, which is to be based on the discoveries, has not yet been published.

There Was a Change.

A Government inspector, entering a rural postoffice, expressed surprise upon seeing a woman at the delivery window. "I was under the impression," said he, "that a man was in charge of this office."

"And so he was," replied the woman sharply, "but I married him."

ROBBERIES GROW IN VIENNA.

Thieves Eager to Get Clothes, Which Cost $375 or More a Suit.

BERNE. — Public insecurity is greatly increased in Vienna because of the war, according to a traveller who has just returned to Switzerland from the Austrian capital. Thefts are reported every night, the thieves being especially anxious to obtain clothes, the price of which has risen fabulously.

A good suit for a man costs from 1,500 to 2,000 crowns. Shoes are worth 300 crowns, and a pound of bread, bought secretly without a card, costs from 12 to 15 crowns.

On the other hand, the ordinary worker is earning from 400 to 500 crowns a week and often more. As a result iron-workers and coal carriers are seen drinking champagne at fashionable bars.

Coopers are greatly needed in view of the excellent harvests in the wine district. Hungarian vineyard owners are offering master coopers 80,000 crowns a year.

WOMEN EXCEL IN SHIPYARDS.

British Find Them More Efficient Than Men in Some Work.

LONDON.—Women have outclassed men in certain work in British shipwards, and more of them are being added to the shipbuilding forces as rapidly as possible.

At the Furness yards on the Tees 700 women are working with spades and shovels on extensions. Some of the women have been assisting in the building of a temporary railway at the yards and others laying concrete platforms on which the keels of ships will be put down.

In preparing concrete for the keel platforms gangs of women work beside gangs of men, and in one instance the women beat the men by four cubic yards. Numerous other incidents have been cited whereby the women outpointed the men workers on the same kind of work.

There are branches of work from which women are barred because they have not the muscular endurance, but whenever possible the yards have been replacing fit men of military age with women.

At first there were many sprained ankles, due to the habit of women going to work in flimsy boots, often with worn pegg-top heels, which were no use among loose soil and stones. A standard low-heeled shipyard boot has now been introduced.

THE WORLD OF SPORT

CHAMPION WILLARD LOYAL TO UNITED STATES BY FARMING

Jess Too Much Absorbed in Production of Foodstuffs to Fight—Taunts of Critics in a Measure Unjust.

There are a few critics in this country who seem to be lying awake at nights ransacking their brains in an effort to belittle World's Champion Jess Willard. The big, good-natured cowboy has never resented their taunts either by word or through the columns of the press. Willard has friends and their name is legion. Why? Because he has lived a clean life, has been a model ring champion is now helping the Government to his limit and has ignored the men who aim to belittle him.

When the late John L. Sullivan was the undisputed world's champion and spent four-fifths of his time in riotious living and drinking all the "grape" (which he used to call champagne) he could lift to his lips he was roundly condemned. And rightfully, too. At the age of fifty he discovered his mistake. He conceived that he had one good fight left in him. And he decided to fight his own enemy, rum. Then, as a temperance orator, he was derided by the friends of his barroom days. So he could not please both. When he died he had been married eight years to the sweetheart of his school days. He told the writer that he wished it had been thirty-eight years instead of eight, and the world would have been better for them both.

Willard's Life Exemplary

Jess Willard has no such regrets He is married and has a bunch of kiddies. He is rearing his boys for an exemplarly life. He believes in temperance and perfect physical condition. He is the best example of that himself. Nature molds but one man like Wiliard in a century.

But what has that to do with Jess Willard, the world's champion, you will ask? Because he lives a clean life is that any excuse for the disgruntled critics to make him the target of abuse? Now, here is where Willard has proven himself to have more real brains than all his unbiased criticis rating them as a team.

On April 5, 1915, he beat Jack Johnson for the world's heavyweight title at Havana, Cuba, in twenty-six rounds. For six and a half years Johnson had traveled through the world undefeated. Two hemispheres had been scoured for a man to dethrone him. He beat Tommy Burns December 26, 1908, at Sydney, N.S.W., in fourteen rounds and was awarded the title. On July 4, 1910, James J. Jeffries was lured from retirement in order to dethrone the "big black gladiator." The boilermaker was a toy in his hands. In the fifteenth round Jeffries was beaten to the floor of the ring pitched at the foot of the Sierra Nevada mountains at Reno, Nev.

Two days later to the day Jim Flynn, the Pueblo fireman, was trotted out in a ring at Las Vegas, N. M., and in the ninth round the police had to interfere. Flynn being so completely outclassed.

After that day Johnson's revolting escapades began to multiply and he was virtually driven out of the country. He landed in Paris. Two disgusting bouts, one with a Russian wrestler and the other with Battling Jim Johnson, made the Parisians sore, and they clamored to have him beaten. Frank Johnson was nominated to do the trick. Johnson had trained little for the contest, which took place June 27, 1914, at the Velodrome in Paris with Georges Carpentier as the referee. Moran carried Johnson along for twenty rounds, and while the latter earned the decision he was very tired at the finish.

Johnson's Conquer Picked.

The writer cabled to America that Johnsons' star was beginning to wane and Jess Willard was the one man in the entire world who could furnish the total eclipse. The opinion was communicated to the Kansas cowboy. The match was made and its result and all the incidents leading up there to are now a matter of history. For six and a half years every man in the world had a chance to beat Johnson. Ten tried and they all failed. Willard accomplished the trick after twenty-six of the hardest and fastest rounds the writer has ever seen between heavyweights.

At the start he did that much for America. On the train coming north from Key West a southerner came into the Pullman car at St. Augustine He sought Willard. "I want to shake your hand!" he ejaculated.

The new champion apologized for remaining seated, saying "I'm just resting a bit." The southerner's eyes flashed. "Why, Mr. Willard, you can rest for the remainder of your life. That's what we think of your victory."

Willard did not rest after his return north. He received little else beside the world's title as the result of the fight in Havana. There was the wife and kiddies. A world's title is a real good asset if properly managed He had visions of a college education for the boys and future comfort for the then sickly wife. His visions and dreams were realized. In two years' traveling with a circus he accumulated a fortune.

Yielded to War Demands.

War demands became incessant. His height and weight barred him from service. As a boxing instructor he was a misfit. So he did the next best thing bought out the circus. Subsequently dissolved it. Took all his horses and hauled lumber, which reared Camp Johnston in Florida. When the work was finished he allowed the Government to take the pick of his stock, and he sold the rest at auction.

The promoters began to harass the champion for a match with Fulton. He agreed if it could be pulled off. The country did not go ecstatic over a world's ring bout unless the entire receipts would go toward one of the many war charities. Then the promoters stopped bidding. The match died a-borning.

Willard, in the meanwhile, bought a large farm at Lawrence, Kan., where he moved his family. He is now rated one of the largest producers for Uncle Sam in the state of Kansas in proposition to the acreage tilled.

That is what the world's heavyweight is raising rdlu u dup up uu, u weight champion is doing for America. He is raising grain and stock enough to feed thousands of soldiers at the front. Does that warrant unjust criticism? He says he has not retired permanently, but will not fight a ring battle until after the war

His policy could well be emulated by thousands of nonproducers throughout the country.

LIMITS COLOURS OF SHOES

Black and Two Shades of Brown and Tan All That Are Permitted.

WASHINGTON. — The War Industries Board has notified tanners that it would insist on its ruling that the only permissible colours for the tanners to make and shoe manufacturers to cut after Oct. 1, exclusive of black, would be a medium and a dark shade of brown and tan. Other colours will not be permitted. The following notice was sent out:

"Reports continue to come to this office to the effect that 'field mouse' and 'field mouse brown, are permissible colours for the tanner to make and the shoe manufacturer to cut after Oct. 1.

"This is absolutely contrary to the rulings of the War Industries Board, which has provided distinctly that a medium shade of brown and tan and dark shade of brown and tan are the only colours that will be permitted, and it has actually gone so far as to send out samples of these shades to the tanners.

"The War Industries Board looks to the entire industry to live up to these regulations, both in spirit and in fact."

RABBITS NO LONGER A PEST.

British Board of Trade Orders 21,600,000 from Australia.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 22.—Rabbits, which were once the curse of Australia, as they have been to a lesser extent in the Southwestern United States, are now providing a profitable source of revenue, and at the same time are helping to win the war by increasing food supply.

Official despatches here say that the British Board of Trade has ordered 600,000 crates of skinned rabbits, which will require the killing of 21,600,000 rabbits weighing 36,000,000 pounds after dressing.

How to dispose of the skins is causing the Australians speculation. There is a ready market for them in this country, but tonnage is scarce.

Full Preparations Are About Completed to Supply Your Fall Clothes

What are You Going to Do About That New Corset?

Supposing that we were to tell you that there is a certain well-known dressmaker on Fifth Avenue that absolutely refuses to design a new garment for the most wealthy of her clientele unless a corset in the approved fashion tendencies is worn and upon which a dressmaker can build a proper foundation?

And yet there are hundreds of the most fashionably dressed women in New York that flock to her. Nor do they look upon this as a peculiarity of a fashionable modiste, but as a sensible, proper belief.

So if you are contemplating the purchase of a new suit or dress, don't—PLEASE don't let the selection of a new corset in the new Fall models slip by day after day.

Corset prices are $1.00 to $5.00. Another point—our Corsetierre has made hundreds upon hundreds of friends in Peterborough, and you are sure to like her immensely.

Girls' Serge Dresses, $3.75 to $9.00

"I'm busy enough as it is and I simply haven't the time to sit down at the machine and make a dress or several of them for my little girl for school. I find I can't do it." This is the remark a woman made two days ago. Probably you are in the same position.

Serge is a material that is splendid for children's wear, makes up very neat school dresses, and will give longest service—particularly the serges in the dresses here. There are navy blue, show new panels, plaits, and in some cases large pockets. One model is in the surplice effect, finished with a white collar.

Riversides Won in Cobourg

Score Was Eight to Seven at the Close.

The Riversides were, as usual, in good form when they played the Cobourg team last night. Nine innings were played, and in the last innings it was so dark that it was hard to see the ball. It was a swish, then "ball one" from the umpire. The score at the end of the game was 8-7, but this is no indication of the play. The Champs at no time were in trouble, and the game was conceded to them from the first.

A Marathon.

While in Cobourg yesterday, Manager Jake Solomon of Peterborough's champion Riversides, was challenged to a hundred yard foot race by one of Cobourg's prominent citizens. Jake promptly accepted and for the time the traffic was stopped on Main street. Up the street they went with coats thrown off and hair flying, Jake won out by a nose. He beat the challenger. Jake should be in good form as a coach for to-night's game.

Good Bye Baseball

The big leagues close up shop September 1st. The game will no longer spread the names and the fames of Ty Cobb, Tris Speaker, Cravath and a flock of other heroes of the sporting page.

The big game for men with red blood and the fighting instinct now, is the war. If you cannot fight Overseas, but if you still have the sporting spirit which needs an outlet, now is your opportunity. Next to fighting harvesting is one of the most genuine ways of assisting the cause.

Join the harvesters for your holidays. It is better than baseball, times like these.

DEMPSEY'S REPLY.

Time For Fight is the Present is His Message.

"I'll meet Willard anywhere on his own terms and turn my share of the purse over to the Red Cross or any other war relief fund," said Jack Dempsey, the Californian, who recently knocked out Fred Fulton in record time down at Harrison, N.J.

Dempsey has been in St. Joseph, Mich., for the last few days to take the mineral baths, and leaves for Buffalo, where he will put on an exhibition bout for the benefit of the K. of C. war fund.

For the last six or eight months Dempsey says he has been trying to get a rise out of the heavyweight champion.

"Wait till the war is over," is the only satisfaction he can get.

"The time to fight that fight is now," said Dempsey, "while it will do somebody some good."

"My money is all going to war relief."

On September 6th the young giant will meet William Meehan at San Francisco to raise $10,000 for the soldiers in France.

SAW GERMAN SUB. OFFICER.

In New York Saloon, But He Disappeared.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 22.—American naval officials now concede the possibility that German submarines operating off the Atlantic coast have been in communication with persons on shore, and even may have landed members of their crews.

It was learned here that the navy has a report that an officer of the American steamer O. B. Jenkins saw, and recognized in a New York saloon, a submarine officer who boarded his ship off the coast. The American turned to call a companion's attention to the German, and the latter disappeared.

Two of the raiders, which have been off the coast, now are declared to have ceased operations, one of them not having been heard from since it was bombed.

MISS RUTH VIVIAN TELLS OF WORK FOR WAR RELIEF

Leading Lady With Ben Greet Players Tells The Examiner Some Interesting Things About Stageland.

Miss Ruth Vivian, the leading lady with the Ben Greet Players, who charmed her audience at the Chautauqua last evening when she played Luciana, the little sister, in "A Comedy of Errors," is a most delightful person to meet off the stage, and quite unreservedly tells some interesting little bits of gossip of stageland which are not generally known.

This morning, speaking of what the stage folk are doing for the war, she said that personally she had said good-bye to every one she loved, and had seen them go to France. Of the Ben Greet Players 160 have enlisted, 25 will never return. Eight weeks ago when the Chautauqua started, the Company, 19 in number, lost one man before they had been out two weeks. He is already in action and has been replaced, as usual, by some other Ben Greet player from New York. "To say a Ben Greet player," she said, "means you have played at least five years with the company." The original Ben Greet is at present in England playing with Mary Anderson. He will play for the Court next year.

Of herself Miss Vivian was very reticent in speaking. The only fact she divulged was that she has signed for overseas with the Y.M.C.A., who take over amusements for the soldiers. The "Y", however, prefers vaudeville for present engagements, as the players are more easily managed. When she came to Canada Miss Vivian was warned that her audience would be cold—"but you're not," she said. "You're appreciative in a different manner to the Americans, not so much hand-clapping, but the little we do get we know is sincere."

War Relief.

"We actresses," she said, "are doing a really wonderful work in the Stage Women's War Relief Club. With headquarters on Fifth Avenue an actress between rehearsals or while looking for an engagement, spends all her time there making Red Cross supplies and doing every manner of relief work. Our latest work is the care of a soldier's child which we have adopted. Another branch in which we serve our country is in secret service. The women go amongst the suspected pro-Germans, and with the tact inborn in an actress, succeed in drawing the people out and finally reporting at night at Hoboken the actress succeeds in having the suspect arrested." One of Miss Vivian's friends has had seven spys arrested recently. She herself, however, has not yet had any experience.

HOLLAND WITHOUT ACCOMMODATION FOR HER JAIL-BIRDS NOW.

The Hague, Holland. — Criminality is still on the increase in Holland. There is no more room for prisoners. Many dangerous persons have had to be let free, provisionally. The large towns are about to erect temporary prisons. Amsterdam will have one, which will contain from 500 to 1000 deliquents. The Hague is building an annex to contain 700 deliquents, to its prison. Rotterdam is contemplating a floating prison of one or more ships.

In Amsterdam in June over 1600 bicycles were stolen. A man came to the Rotterdam police station and reported having stolen a bicycle in that city months ago. He stated that he sold the bicycle in Germany, but as he was without a passport the officers arrested him and set him at agricultural labour. The labourers were under the supervision of military overseers who did not scruple to prod them with bayonets if they did not work fast enough to please them. The man said that he had received thirty-two bayonet pricks. He escaped to Holland.

When the police investigated they found that he had exactly thirty-two bayonet wounds, some of them healed, some in the process of healing.

The man pleaded not to be returned to Germany, "where they prod people with bayonets."

According to the Volkszeitung, under the system of the enforced civilian service now existing in Germany, a boy of 14 was hired out to a Mecklenburg farmer. The farmer ill-treated the boy, beating him about the head until he became deaf, when he ran away. For that offence the boy was condemned by the court of justice to pay a fine and to return to his master. The Socialist press investigated the matter, but the result is not known.

International Trade Union Discussed by Mr. Bancroft

Member of Conciliation Board Explains Reasons for the Organization of Labour—Doctors, Bankers and Other Interests Organize.

ATTENDANCE WAS LIGHT

Mr. Fred Bancroft, who is a member of the Conciliation Board sitting in Peterborough, addressed a slimly attended meeting of labour men in Victoria Hall last evening. The subject of Mr. Bancroft's address was "The International Trade Movement."

"Many people," said Mr. Bancroft, believe that the International Trade Union is a body created solely for the purpose of making trouble. Now it is a fact that we have prevented a great deal of trouble in the industrial world. There are still great financiers who think that labour should not organize, and that they have no right to organize and interfere with business. The doctors have an organization. They call it the "Medical Association," a more high sounding name, but it makes rules and regulations for the government of its members, and I have even heard it said that it has a tariff of prices. The lawyers have a real union called "The Bar Association," a splendid organization. The bankers, yes they have an organization, too, "The Bankers' Association." All these associations or unions are recognized by statute and are protected by the government. Put out your shingle as a doctor or try to start a bank and see what would happen. We are not recognized by the government. We have not the large powers of these other unions. If it is a good thing for a doctor to organize for a purpose, why is it not a good thing for us to imitate them? The Trade Union is a simple organization, a business proposition, whereby we take care of our own affairs. The capitalists say, "What will be the ultimate demands of labour?"

System of Education.

There is a system of education that makes the working man a better citizen and a standard way of living and they are entitled to that. We don't want to merely exist, we want to live.

Why do they ask big wages to-day? Because the Trade Unions have the absolute right to maintain the standard wages of this country and maintain a decent living until somebody steps in and regulates the price of commodities in this country. Is there anybody here who will tell me that prices to-day are solely due to the war? No.

Here are some facts concerning the Trades and Labour Movement:

(a) Up to 1914 the labouring man had to produce $150,000,000 a year to pay the interest on the public debt of this country.

(b) The Trades Union Movement doesn't need any certificate of its loyalty. In one Council in Toronto sixty per cent. of the membership enlisted, and another one has 900 on active service.

(c) In Great Britain there are 4,000,000 members in the International Trades and Labour Union.

(d) Every man is welcome into the Trade Union if he works for wages.

(e) During the last year the Trades Union has increased its membership over 40,000 in Canada.

Munitions Profits.

Last year in Great Britain the government collected one billion dollars in excess munition profits and other profits directly influenced by the war. Why shouldn't the government do it here and there, perhaps the workers might get uniform wages; they could pay larger allowances to the wives of soldiers at the front; they could put more aside for pensions.

At the beginning of this war Great Britain took over factories, mines, ships and railroads. Why? Because men who worked at the level and in the mines burned the midnight oil and studied conditions and came to the conclusion that they would have to enter the political arena. And look what a success as lexislators they have made. Why not do it here, for after all the real seat of power is in the Commons outside of the economic power of the Trades Unions. Why are we International? Because we discovered years ago, when we were organized separately in each locality that our voice was powerless.

We have joined with the United States' Unions, and now our voice is heard. In the Senate of Canada it was questioned whether we (Trades Unions) received as much money in return as we sent to headquarters in the United States. After an investigation it was discovered that $10 was spent by headquarters in Canada to every $1 that was sent there by Canada.

Mr. J. J. Hartley, President of the local branch of the Trades and Labour Council was chairman, and members of the Council were on the platform.

Raspberries can be preserved in the sun as well as strawberries.

$28.50 Weekly Cost of Living For Peterboro Family of Five

Detailed Statement of Household Expenses Submitted to the Board of Arbitration This Morning in Support of Demand for Higher Wages—Interesting Budget of an Ordinary Family's Needs.

The weekly cost of living in Peterborough for a family of five persons is $28.50, according to a statement submitted to the C.G.E. Board of Arbitration this morning by Mr. Harry Harper, the representative of the International Machinists' Association, who has had charge of the employees' case before the Board.

The family's total expenditure for a year reaches $1,481.82, comprising only the ordinary expenses of a tradesman's household. This computation was presented to the Board in support of the demand for higher wages for some of the employees, particularly those who would benefit by a higher classification. The list makes interesting reading. A casual reading of the list shows that some necessities of family life have been overlooked, and there are other things that may not be essential, but which the average family should enjoy, which are also omitted. There is no allowance for music of any kind, books, fiction, technical, etc., concerts and the theatre.

The statement received by the Board follows:—

Application should be made at the Toronto Mobilization Centre at the armouries. A special company has been formed, with the 1st Depot Battalion, of the Central Ontario Regiment, at Niagara Camp, for recruits for the Siberian forces. So far there are not many recruits in this company, but the authorities at the armouries are considering many applications.

WOMEN SHOULD BUY THEIR TOMATOES NOW

Market gardeners complain that housewives are so tied to the habit of waiting until the week of the Toronto Exhibition to buy tomatoes and cucumbers for the annual pickling drive that they overlook the attractive market that is now available. Merchants have reported the same fact. They urge the women to buy their supplies of tomatoes and cucumbers now. The prices are at their lowest figure the growers declare, and there is no reason for passing over this market now. The growers add that the crop may be nipped by frosts at any time now, and in that event, the market will stiffen and prices advance.

No Need Now For Session This Autumn

PARLIAMENT DOES NOT HAVE TO SANCTION FURTHER ENLISTMENTS.

Ottawa, August 22. — The government statement of last night, declaring that the powers of the Military Service Act will not be exhausted until one hundred thousand men have actually left, or are ready to leave the shores of Canada, has created considerable interest in military and political circles.

It had been generally supposed, even critics concede it to Sir Robert, that the powers conferred by the Act would be exhausted as soon as one hundred thousand men were called to the colours, that the limit of 100,000 men applied to the number enlisted or recruited. The text of the order-in-council issued last evening, however expressly declares that "the number of these reinforcements should be computed by reference only to the men ultimately selected, and actually despatched for overseas service."

In other words, only those who have actually gone, or who have been ordered to go overseas, shall be counted as reinforcements.

Upon the number of men to be called out, there is actually no limit. The authorities, if they deem it necessary, can call out 150,000 or 200,000 men, but they would not be 'reinforcements' until actually shipped, or immediately ready to be shipped, overseas. One of the expected results of this interpretation is that Parliament, which it was thought would have to be called this autumn to authorize further reinforcements, will not now need to assemble before the New Year; at least, not so far as the need of military reinforcements is concerned.

A NEW PETITION FOR ST. RAILWAY EXTENSION

The signatures of Mayor Duncan and the members of the Council head a new petition for extensions to the Street Railway, which will be presented to the Hydro-Electric Commission next week. It is proposed to make this petition as impressive as possible. Ten copies of it have been prepared and are in circulation for the purpose of obtaining as many signatures as possible. The extensions sought are those which have already been tentatively promised the city. One loop is in the De Laval factory district, another is in the west end.

1,115 RECRUITS GAINED.

Between August 1 and 15, After Allowing for Wastage.

OTTAWA, Aug. 21.—A net gain to the C.E.F. of 1,115 recruits is shown in the recruiting figures for the period, between August 1 and 15, given out to-day by the Military Department. The total number of recruits secured in Canada, the United States and England was 4,002, while the total wastage reported was 2,887. It is estimated that forty-five per cent., of the casualties will within a period of six months be fit for general service.

For the period mentioned enlistments in Canada numbered 3,144, in the United States 849, and in England 9. The wastage of 2,887 men included overseas casualties to the number of 1,435.

During the fortnight Montreal military district produced the largest number of recruits with Toronto district a good second. The figures by military districts are as follows:—London, 255; Toronto, 692; Kingston-Ottawa, 312; Montreal, 1,021; Quebec, 160; Halifax, 341; St. John, 152; Winnipeg, 171; Vancouver, 377; Regina, 92; Calgary, 130. These figures for the various districts with the nine recruits secured in England make the total of 4,002 for the first half of August.

Peterboro is Allotted 29,670 Tons of Anthracite Coal, a Reduction of About 5,000 Tons

Ald. Dobbin Explains the Effect of the Fuel Controller's Latest Restrictions, and Suggests Means by Which the Shortage May be Met—Council Has Supplies of Wood in Sight.

Early this week Mayor Duncan received from the Fuel Controller, at Ottawa a communication relative to the now known coal allotments throughout the country, as for the balance of the coal year, 1918-19. Such notifications appear to have been sent out to all points in the province, and have caused the deepest concern wherever received. The communication states that there has been allotted to Canada a fixed tonnage of hard coal, based, first, on anticipated production at the mines, second, on the conditions of the various sections of the American and Canadian countries. The Fuel Controller has under the conditions made Canada's allotments.

In brief we have allotted to the City of Peterborough and district surrounding 29,670 tons of hard coal. This would seem to be a fair supply. But when it is considered that this city consumed last winter over 34,000 tons of hard coal it is at once seen that we shall be about 5,000 tons short. Of course last winter was an abnormal one, and the coal required this coming winter may not be so much. As against this we know that a very considerable quantity of wood has been brought into the city, and is in the home yards and yards of the dealers. Possibly enough to offset the shortage of coal, if the coal be used with economy and caution. The statement is made that every possible effort will be made to send forward fully seventy-five per cent of the allotted coal by the end of November, the balance to come forward during the months following, December to end of March, 1919.

Some Suggestions.

It is advised that the allotment consists of domestic sizes of hard coal including pea size. There is no restriction as to the quantity of steam sizes of hard coal that may be procured, and this kind of coal is not charged to Canada's allotment. So it is recommended that the size known as "Buck wheat" be procured as it can be burned when mixed with larger sizes. Liberty is granted to procure one and one-half tons of soft coal for each ton of hard coal that we are short on the before mentioned allotment, and this soft coal is to be in excess of regular soft coal requirements. The caution is added, that there is no justification whatever, under existing circumstances for a dealer to supply coal to anyone who can obtain wood. But there is this to consider, and the direction seems contradictory, that in the cases of towns and cities and villages having portions of the country dependent on them through their local dealers, that these, should be looked after. Many of the smaller communities have not a dealer to supply them, and it is pointed out that it would not be fair to shut these people off their usual sources of supply. But what is evident is this, that in the country, anyone who has standing wood, or his neighbour has wood, that he will have to cut for his own use the wood that he has been reserving, or borrow from the cutting of his neighbour. It would seem that the local dealers will have enough to do to take care of the city demands.

Should Make a Survey.

The admonition is offered, and this concerns this city, at present without the services of a Fuel Commissioner or Fuel Commission, that we require, at once, the services of such a man or body, to make an immediate survey of the fuel situation, within the city, to administer the provisions of the regulations, to see that the best possible distribution is made of the coal available, and to only those dependent on coal for fuel, to keep records of coal received, to obtain wood to cover any deficiency of coal, and to assume the responsibility in seeing that every means is taken advantage of to provide for the reasonable requirements of the citizens. And in this connection it is respectfully asked that will such a man or men please step forward.

Criticism Should Be Constructive.

It may be pointed out that some provision of a Statute that was suddenly discovered, took out of the hands of the Council the appointment from its membership of a fuel commissioner or commissioners. And when appointed, some foolish and reckless criticism and word-hurling incited those appointed to promptly resign. We might as well make up such minds as we have that no citizen or citizens are going to take up the very distasteful and onerous duty of looking after this matter of a coal distribution, giving service free and receive abuse. That is settled. In the face of what is promised for the future the distribution of fuel will be a most vexatious job, and one that no man will willingly take on if he can get out of it. And if such be found, for goodness sake let us be decent and not start in to rip them up the back before we can even get a look at their methods and prospects. The whole proposition is far too serious to be trifled with. One difficulty has been that under the so-called regulations, the commissioner has had really no authority or power, beyond that of registering the coal as given out by the dealers. Possibly that may be amended for the future, as it needs to be to get anything like results.

Taken together with the regulation, put in print last week, fixing the price of coal to the consumer as at $2.50 per ton added to the cost of the coal on the track, in this city, the situation is an interesting one. At a glance it would seem to be plain and above board. But is it so? Carried out we will have changing prices, not at intervals, but the same day.

One citizen might buy coal, from one car, at nine in the morning and a price. Another in the afternoon, and pay a dollar more for it. Because all coal does not cost the same, depending on the freight cost and mines prices for the size and grade. This diversity in price is sure to follow, and thus a seemingly open and fair regulation result is wrangling, bitterness, and much dissatisfaction. Truly the coal man has his troubles.

Many Problems.

At a Council meeting, possibly this week, the matter will be taken up and considered. The effort to procure wood will place before Council two propositions for a supply. These will be considered, and if decided to be feasible action will be taken. But any enterprise undertaken to-day, must face the possibility of hold-ups in the way of almost extortionate charges for service, the desire of every one connected to get in and gain all that can be gained, the known shortage of coal and the conviction that if wood must be got the ultimate price must be paid. Wood to burn is one thing, to get it at a most not unreasonable is a totally different proposition.

GETTING TOGETHER TO OPPOSE GERMANS

Russian Anxiety Chiefly Concerns the Difficult Position of the Marooned Czechs.

LONDON, Aug. 21.—The great and growing party in Russia which is both sincerely democratic and thoroughly at one with the aims of the Allies is showing much anxiety, first as to whether sufficient help will be given to the Czechoslovaks in Siberia and, second, whether that help will arrive in good time. Naturally enough every Russian patriot feels that a political programme must develop with the development of events rather than remain conditional on circumstances of the past.

For instance, the question now arises of declaring martial law in Vladivostok, a thing which is considered absolutely necessary by Russians acquainted with the local conditions while the allied commanders show a perfectly understandable reluctance to take such a drastic measure.

The position of the day, or of the hour, for it changes with remarkable rapidity owing to the maelstrom of forces now contending in Russia, is somewhat as follows: The Government of Northern Russia has been constituted under the Presidency of M. Tchaikowsky, and includes in the Government Socialists of various shades. Their programme is a recreation of Russian democracy and of the Russian Army, with an active renewal of the war on the eastern front and the expulsion of the invading Germans together with other enemies of Russia, in co-operation with the Allies.

Bellby Alston, Counselor of the British Legation at Peking, has met the delegates of the Siberian Government, as well as those of General Horvath. It is proposed that a small Cabinet shall be constituted, with three members from each organization, to deal with local questions. More important matters, such as the governing of Siberia, will be settled with the Government now formed at Omsk as soon as a decisive defeat of the Bolsheviki enables the Cabinet to reach that city.

The Czechoslovaks seem to have revised their early unfavourable opinion of General Semenoff, and are ready to co-operate with him. Of course the air is full of rumours. Among other things it is reported that the Scandinavian kingdoms are inclined to intervene in the cause of law and order in Russia, chaos on one side of the frontier being exceedingly disturbing to constituted authority on the other side.

Meantime it is cheerful to note that the first American and British battalions which arrived in Eastern Siberia as the advance guard of the allied forces at Vladivostock were received with the utmost enthusiasm by the Czechs.

Peterboro Boys Endorse Y.M.C.A.

Communication Addressed to Examiner From Peterboro Boy Overseas.

The following letter is addressed to The Examiner:

France, July 25, 1918.

Dear Sirs,—I notice in your paper, which is well read by myself and Peterborough boys with me, that there is considerable talk about the Y.M.C.A. I can't speak to highly on their work. They are always on the job; an hour's walk from the place where they slide through the wire to give Fritz a beating up. You can find the Y with good Canadian canned vegetables, biscuits, chocolate, matches, cigarettes and other things soldiers require, at prices the same as Canada, and often less. These Y's are not palatial buildings, but a counter and shelves made of boxes in an old battered house, barn or dugouts, where the 5.9 and 4.1 are no scarce articles, and any Peterborough soldier will, if he has had a 5.9 burst near him, be able to explain. I have come back to camp at 4 a.m. and received a cup of tea and biscuit gratis, and felt well refreshed. Also use the Y writing paper. Believe me, they don't soak the boys, and if it wasn't for the Y the boys would go minus, and their 45 francs a month, or $9.00 would look like 2 cents after buying at a French store.

I meet many Peterborough boys who are all looking fine. I am connected with the 2nd Canadian Trench Mortar Battery, and like the outfit fine. Trusting I have made it plain the Y.M.C.A. is a great benefit to the boys. Some of the boys with little business education do not figure the expense of such a big work, or the trouble about transportation, and a thousand details. The Y has baseball outfits to loan, paper to write on, and shows when talent is available.

Yours respectfully,
GUNNER CHAS. G. KINGAN.

FOR BABY'S TENDER SKIN.

A child's skin is tender as well as beautiful and eczema may be caused by chafing of clothing, the use of poor soap, exposure to cold or sudden change of temperature. Probably no treatment for eczema has ever proven so successful as Dr. Chase's Ointment, and this applies particularly to baby eczema. This ointment is delightfully soothing, stops the itching and consequently prevents scratching. Gradually the sores are healed up and the skin is left soft and velvety.

Soup should not be discarded if the cook has been too generous with the salt. The secret is to slice a raw potato up and pop into the liquid. Leave it for a short time, and you'll never notice the salty flavour afterwards.

CARD OF THANKS.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Dearly loved by all who knew him. It is comforting to our grief-stricken hearts to know that we shall meet him again, for as well as being a soldier of the King, he was also a soldier of Jesus Christ—two links gone Home.

Sadly we'll miss him yet in our sorrow,
Hope for the future will banish the pain;
Faith points the way to a brighter to-morrow,
And whispers a hope that we'll meet him again.

KINGSTON IS GETTING COAL IN STEADILY.

Limestone City Will Have to Get Along on 46,100 Tons Next Winter.

KINGSTON, Aug. 22. — Mayor Hughes yesterday received notice from R. C. Harris, Fuel Controller for Ontario, that the allotment of anthracite coal for Kingston for the season of 1918-1919 would be 46,100 tons. Fuel Commissioner Harris tells the Mayor that no municipality should any longer delay in appointing a fuel controller or Board of Commissioners to take the fuel situation in hand and see that the best distribution possible is made of available coal.

As far as can be learned there is now in the city between 28,000 and 30,000 tons of anthracite coal. This is much better than last year at the same time. Soft coal has been coming in very steadily since the opening of navigation. There is therefore every indication that the allotment of 46,100 tons will be reached before navigation closes. It is quite likely that with the more general use of soft coal and coke there will be no danger of a fuel shortage here next winter.

BEN GREET PLAYERS MADE A BIG HIT LAST EVENING

Chautauqua Performance Drew a Capacity House—"A Comedy of Errors."

Peterborough surpassed all previous records last night in her reception to the Ben Greet Players, who presented "A Comedy of Errors" at the Chautauqua, and the enthusiasm which has been gradually growing during the five previous Chautauqua entertainments reached a high mark. Many who attended argued that it has the best Shakesperian production ever presented in town. Powerful acting was done by each of the company of 13. Miss Ruth Vivian especially delighted the audience with her clever acting of the "little sister." It will be learned with satisfaction that a contract has already been signed to bring the Chautauqua back to the city in 1919, and those who saw last evening's performance hope for a return of the Ben Greet Players.

Man Seriously Injured Early This Morning

Horses Ran Away and Threw Driver Out—Now in Hospital.

This morning a team of horses driven by Samuel Lansky, 268 Dalhousie Street, was frightened by the train at the corner of Bethune and Dalhousie Streets. The team ran away and crashed into a tree on Dalhousie Street, east of the G. T. R. tracks, throwing Lansky onto the sidewalk and dislocating his hip. Dr. E. E. Harvey was called, and had Lansky removed to Nicholls Hospital in Belleghem's ambulance. The horses were not injured beyond a few scratches, and were removed to their stable by Joseph Vurktoe, 249 Aylmer Street. Five persons witnessed the accident. Lansky suffered great pain but he is resting comfortably this afternoon. Besides his hip being dislocated, he is badly cut and bruised about the knees and back.

ARBITRATORS OFF ON FISHING TRIP WITH CAPITAL AND LABOUR

Capital, Labour and the Judiciary, arm and arm, went fishing this afternoon, as friendly a little group as ever cast a line. Angling admits no animosities, and there was only the best of spirits as the party motored off to some secluded fishing spot. His Honour Judge Colin Snider, of Hamilton, was the genial and distinguished representative of the bench, Mr. Fred Bancroft, Mr. John Noble and Mr. Harry Harper, the amiable and confident deputies of Labour and Capital, walked in the various but cordial and unpretentious personalities of Col. Watt, Mr. E. G. Patterson and Mr. J. G. Merrick.

One advantage of arbitrating in Peterborough is the possibility of getting away to the river. Mr. Harper had already discovered a spot where they were big and hungry. Tom Ogilvey brought down a can of minnows from his summer camp for this particular expedition, and Mr. Patterson's ample car provided transportation. There wasn't a ripple on the surface of this gathering of diverse interests. It was even more placid than the sessions of the Board, and the party rolled away from the Empress with every prospect of an afternoon's sport. This foregathering of the lion and the lamb seemed to belie the impression that there was any misunderstanding between the two pillars of industry. It seemed rather to be the fulfillment of the Christmas spirit of "good will toward men."

TOO MUCH "ROPE."

One St. Thomas Bakeshop is Ordered Cleaned Up for Good Reason.

ST. THOMAS, Aug. 22.—Inspector Lynn of the Dominion Food Board paid a visit to this city on Tuesday at the request of Health Inspector W. J. Shaw, and made a thorough inspection of the bakeshops here, with the result that he found one shop, previously complained against, where bacteria, known as "rope," was prevalent in large quantities. He ordered a thoroughly cleaning with acetic acid. Inspector Lynn stated that the great trouble with a number of bakers is that they have not yet become accustomed to the use of substitutes, baking their bread in too hot an oven. In consequence the latent germs fermented after baking and caused the trouble. Several cases of sickness have been reported from the use of the bread complained of, the disease taking the form of inflammation of stomach and the intestines. The other shops were found to be in first-class condition.

SOLDIER KAUFF IS IDOL OF THE FANS.

Man Who Shuns Shipyards and Steel Plants is Deservedly Popular.

CHICAGO, Aug. 22 — Benny Kauff's entrance into the army and his short absence from the ranks of the Giants before he succeeded in obtaining the furlough which he is at present enjoying did not serve to lessen his popularity with fans all over the country. In fact, he is, if anything, more popular to-day than he ever was before.

So many players have jumped to the shipyards or steel plants to avoid military service, thus casting a slur upon the baseball game, that the fan have the deepest respect for men like Kauff, who willingly answered the call to the colours. Every time Benny steps to the plate he is given an ovation, and the happy youngster is looking forward eagerly to his return to the Polo Grounds, where he can again play before the home fans who have always been most generous in their treatment of him.

DR. CONWELL HERE FOR LECTURE TO-NIGHT

Dr. Russel H. Conwell, of the Baptist Temple, Philadelphia, who will deliver his celebrated lecture, "Acres of Diamonds," at the Chautauqua tent to-night, was resting at the Empress this afternoon. He arrived in the city this morning accompanied by Mme. Florence Bodini, Mr. Osborne, violinist, and Mr. Elwell, pianist, together with Dr. Norman Plass, the manager of the Chautauqua in Canada. Dr. Plass bears a striking facial resemblance to Dr. Conwell except that he is considerably younger. Dr. Conwell is a magnetic speaker with a subject that has inspired thousands of men and women in America to greater and higher ideals of living. The last night of Chautauqua week should bring out the largest attendance.

PREDICTS LONG STRUGGLE

Hon. Hugh Guthrie Says 4,000,000 Yankees Are Needed.

ALBANY, N.Y., Aug. 21.—Importance of the movement being supported by the New York State Women's Land Army to obtain women for work on farms was emphasized by speakers at the closing session of the organization's conference here today. Hon. Hugh Guthrie, Solicitor-General of Canada, delivered the chief address.

Mr. Guthrie confined his talk entirely to the war. The only peace that should be tolerated, he said, would be an allied peace. He predicted a long struggle, with the end not in sight until at least 4,000,000 American soldiers are on the battlefields of France.

EPIDEMIC OF MARRIAGE.

Of "Amazing Character" in Ranks of England's Junior Civil Servants.

In spite of the war and the increased cost of living there has of late been an amazing marriage epidemic in the ranks of junior civil servants. A large proportion of them have married girl clerks in the same departments, and as the girls are only temporary employees they have been permitted to retain their posts. Many of the girls have bigger salaries than their husbands. In one case, for instance, the husband has only £2 10s. a week, while the young wife of 22 has £3 and a war bonus in addition. In prewar days a civil servant was allowed six days' extra leave on the occasion of his marriage, but this privilage has been temporarily cancelled for the duration of the war.

MUCH-MARRIED MAN IS SENT TO JAIL

Toronto, August 22. — With two "wives" and three families to support it was not a matter for wonder that Joshua Guscott, alias John Winfield Scott, who appeared in the Criminal Court yesterday, worked 17 hours each day, mealtimes included, as a motorman for the Toronto street railway. Apart from the fact that Guscott had committed bigamy, his character was otherwise reported free from blame. He left his wife in Cleveland, Ohio, and came to Toronto with his young son. He lived with a woman with one child before he went through a form of marriage at Niagara Falls with Gertrude Dovey, a married woman, who is the mother of one of his children. Guscott not only did his best to provide for the two women in Toronto and their children, but also supported his wife in Ohio. This week Guscott and Dovey were each sent to the Jail Farm for having registered under false names. Both were in the dock yesterday, which the man left to start in a sentence of six months in the Ontario Reformatory. Mrs. Dovey will be tried at the Criminal Sessions for her share in the bigamy.

BIG MAJORITY OF WOMEN.

Scientist Sees Eugenic Gain in the War's Depletion of Men.

London, August 22. — An Italian scientist, in a book just published on the subject of war and population, says that there will be in England 121 women between the ages of 24 and 44 years to every 100 men between the same ages if the war ends next year. In 1910 the proportion was 108 to 100. In France there will be 124 women of those ages, the writer estimates, to every 100 men. In Germany, where the sexes were almost evenly balanced before the war, the proportion will be 119 women to 100 men.

Eugenically in all the fighting countries, the war will cause an improvement, the scientist believes, because every man in taking a wife will have a larger selection of women to choose from, and therefore he will be likely to choose the healthiest and the strongest.

Shop Committee To Classify Men

The C.G.E. Board of Arbitration held its last meeting at the Court-House this morning. Yesterday afternoon Mr. Merrick, the arbitrator for the company, proposed that the question of classifying employees of the machine shop, as requested by the men, should be entrusted to the mechanical superintendent, Mr. Robert Dobie, and to some employee to be selected by the men. Mr. Harper hesitated to accept the responsibility for acquiescing in this idea, but replied that he would give an answer this morning. After meeting with the committee of the men, he accepted the offer this morning, and named Mr. Alex. Murray to act with Mr. Dobie.

This sub-committee, as it were, have been at work at the factory all day, and the Board's progress was delayed until their report is received. It is generally hoped by the representatives of the men that this plan will effect a solution of the problem that has hinged on the point of classification. Should it fail to agree on the grading of some of the men, the Board itself may attempt to settle these details.

To-night, it is expected that Mr. Dobie and Mr. Murray will present their recommendations, and that the way will be clear for the discussion of all the evidence that has been filed by Col. Watt, for the company, and Mr. Harper for the men. It is understood that an effort will be made by the Board to reach a decision at once, and forward their report to Ottawa.

Dollar Day a Big Success

With perfect weather to help out, Dollar Day proved an unbounded success yesterday, and the merchants and people who co-operated are satisfied by the results produced. From eight in the morning, from street cars, train and automobiles, the crowds filled the streets, until the city looked much like a circus day before the war. Every store had an army of temporary clerks to help out, and even with this the staffs had all they could do to serve the thousands who crowded in.

INDIANS' EYESIGHT POOR, SAYS SEATTLE PHYSICIAN

SEATTLE, Wash.—The popular belief that Indians have better eyesight than the white race is a falacy, declared Dr. T. T. Waterman, professor of sociology and anthropology at the University of Washington, in a lecture in Bagley Hall last night.

"Some people think that because Indians are more primitive, like an eagle or a buzzard, they can see better than we can," he said. "The fact is that a large proportion of them have defective eyesight, owing to the smooky cabins in which they live. They can follow trails better than we can, not because they can see more distinctly but because they know what to look for."

After all, patience is about the highest form of politeness.

True, age brings wisdom, but only a precious short time to use it.

Shipping Losses During July

The Figures Compare Favourably With Previous Months.

Canadian Press:

LONDON, Aug. 22.—Merchant tonnage losses in July, due to enemy action and marine risk, was 313,011, which makes a total for the quarter ending with July for Allied and neutral countries, 959,392. Ships built in British yards and in foreign yards on British account in July reduced the British deficit to 22,311, which compares favourably with the average monthly deficit during the first six months of this year of 90,000 tons.

Big Fish Caught at Stoney Lake

'Lunge Weighed Over Twenty-four Pounds.

Mr. Richard Stubbs, of Toronto, who is staying at Chateau-Du-Lac Cottage, Kawartha Lakes, caught a splendid 'lunge on Wednesday evening, weighing 24 1-2 pounds. It was 48 1-2 inches long and 18 inches in girth. The big fish struggled for half an hour before it was landed. The fish was presented to the Red Cross Society by Mr. Stubbs and will be auctioned off at the Red Cross concert in the pavilion at Juniper Island to-night.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—Czecho-Slovak troops in France have participated in a successful attack against German positions in the Vosges. No details of the engagement were given.

5,000 Prisoners in Two Days.

BRITISH ARMY IN FRANCE, Aug. 23.—In capturing Albert, the British took fourteen hundred prisoners and a few guns. The British have taken five thousand prisoners in the last two days. Germans are retreating between Albert and Bray-Sur-Somme, and the British are hammering them hard. The British have made a gain of two miles on a six mile front.

WASHINGTON, D.C., Aug. 22.— A regiment of United States' regulars have arrived at Vladivostok from Manila.

Have Reached Oise Canal.

PARIS, Aug. 23. — French troops have crossed Ailette between Guny and Champs, north of Coucyle Hateu and have reached the Oise canal between Vernnes and Norlincourt. Sudden attack of the French caused panic among German reserves.

Another Strategic Retreat.

LONDON, Aug. 23.—There's no definite information, but it is believed here among experts that the Germans are preparing a withdrawal on a huge scale.

Albert Re-captured.

WITH THE BRITISH ARMY IN FRANCE, Aug. 23.— The town of Albert is unofficially reported to have fallen into the hands of the British.

Canadian Front Relatively Quiet on Old Battle Ground

Minor Actions to Consolidate New Line Follow the Big Advance—Now a Warfare of Positions—French Spirit is Splendid.

MANY DIFFICULTIES

With the Canadian forces in France, August 21, via London, August 22.—Except for minor actions entered into with a view to consolidating our line, the past two days has been relatively quiet on the Canadian front. For the time being it has resolved itself into warfare of positions. The enemy holds in force a number of very strong points and the country is very difficult. It is the old battle field of the Somme of 1913, from which the enemy retired in the spring of 1917, to the Hindenburg line. Its defences are practically intact and these include an elaborate trench system with fortified points of support and concrete and steel pill boxes. It is in fact a very difficult proposition from the open, rolling country over which the great advance of a fortnight ago was made, while the net work of wire and permanent defences have been little affected. The weather has eroded the trench system, creating a condition of ground exceedingly difficult for the successful operation of tanks, and without these any considerable infantry advance can only be made with heavy loss.

An apt illustration of the difficulties to be overcome was applied yesterday by the brilliant action of the French troops in capturing St. Mard-Les-Friot, the village stronghold, which to that date had stood in the way of an attack on Roye, and had also obtained a strong foothold on Caesar's Camp, to the immediate west. Roye itself lies in the valley of the Avre, flanked by the hills. It is no longer a city but a pile of heaped stone. The Boche has seen to that. It yet has considerable strategic importance, as the pivot of the enemy's advanced defence in front of the Somme. The Avre here is a wide marshy morass and an attack on the St. Mard in this valley could only be carried out over the various roads leading into the village situate on the south side of the river. Two previous attempts had been checked, largely owing to the concrete pill boxes concealed in the slough.

The attack opened at two o'clock with a heavy concentrated bombardment, and shortly after troops advanced. For an hour the battle hung in the balance, its western frontal attack being held up, but at the crisis storming parties from Caesar's Camp to the north broke across the bridges on that side and soon were grenading the streets and dug outs. The mopping up of such a position takes a whole day and the number of prisoners must be considerable.

At the same time came the cheering news that another hard nut had been cracked four miles south of Roye, this being Beauvraignes.

The French spirit is marvellous. With such brothers in arms it is impossible not to conquer. The French soldier is convinced that it is only a matter of months before the Boche will be driven on to the Rhine.

It was noticeable that the enemy counter battery work was weak and ineffective. He concentrated his guns on the infantry and reserves, leaving the French batteries alone. This seems to me an indication that he has withdrawn his heavy guns across the Somme.

Our Prosperity

And What It Has Cost

You remember the uncertainty as regards trade when the war broke out.

We finished 1913 with a balance of $293,000,000 against us. We wondered——!

The British Navy swept the German flag off the seas. The submarine remained, and the floating mine. Death lurked in the path of every vessel that carried the products of our farms and factories.

None but heroes of the finest type would have faced such dangers. But because the men of the Merchant Marine did face them, we finished 1917 with a trade balance of $314,000,000 in our favor.

We were able to fill war orders amounting to one billion, eight hundred and twelve million dollars ($1,812,000,000) from 1914 to 1917.

But what a price has been paid!

Remember the Lusitania! Remember the 176 vessels of which all trace has vanished, together with crew and cargo! Remember the 15,000 seamen of the Merchant Marine who have fallen a prey to the U-Boat and the hellish mine!

We are enjoying prosperity that was not dreamed of at the beginning of the war. Let us show our appreciation in the only way worth while—by contributing handsomely to the support of the widows and orphans of the seamen who have died for us. Justice demands we shall not let them want.

CATTLE MARKET

Receipts of the Union Stock Yards yesterday were 46 cars with 632 cattle, 48 calves, 628 hogs, and 861 sheep and lambs.

There was a comparatively heavy run of cattle on the local live stock market yesterday, considering the runs of the past few days. Plenty of sheep and lambs were shipped in. Hogs, however, were more scarce than usual for a Thursday.

Choice, fair and medium cattle were steady in price, the best stock bringing $15.25 per cwt. Lambs were much easier, selling down to $20.50 for the choicest stock. Calves were strong, on the other hand, bringing $17.50 in many sales.

Hogs, generally speaking, remained firm at $19.50. At least packers declined to pay more. One lot of 49 hogs, however, was sold at $20 by Messrs. J. B. Shields & Son, but this did not reflect the condition of the market.

Through Deadly Peril

By ELLEANOR CARLS

"Your wife, Mr. Duane, is relentless. She feels she is wronged. She will not listen to arguments or persuasion. It is a separation; she insists upon it, and the wise system is to provide for herself and the children."

Thus said Martin Rowe, the lawyer, but Virgil Duane raised his hand with excitement and determination.

"No!" he said. "If she cares no longer for me it would be folly to think of our ever getting on peacefully together. But if we separate she cannot have the children—that is, both of them."

"What do you suggest?"

"That she have the girl and myself the boy."

That way the high-tempered disputes of Virgil and Marcia Duane, wedded ten years, were adjusted. Mrs. Duane demurred at first, but finally validated the legal contract whereby little Eva, five years old, was to live with her. Roland, aged three, was given over to the charge of his father. Gossips stated that this was preliminary to a divorce, but as time went on no move in that direction was made by either husband or wife. It was after a lapse of time that Marcia Duane began to wonder if she had not been arbitrary and unjust.

He had been a convivial, reckless man, and that had led to the quarrels that had disrupted their happiness. His business required long-distance travel and at times a sojourn in other cities than his home one. His mission was to secure construction contracts, mainly through political influences. This brought him in contact with a group where high living and careless morals were prevailing elements.

To his credit be it said that, while he at times skirted the perilous abyss of riotous dissipation, he was innocent of defections later laid to his charge and which, aggravated, led his wife to a state of unforgiving resentment.

Virgil Duane made liberal provision for his wife and little Eva, for he possessed substantial means, and Marcia felt drawn towards him when she learned that he had settled down with little Roland and a nurse in a quiet town in Florida, had cut off all acquaintance with his former reckless associates and, a changed man and a sorrowful one, was living a secluded life devoted to reading and the constant companionship of the child he loved.

He had given up all hopes of a reunion with his wife. She was too proud to make the first advance. The years went on and the secret solace of the husband was, as he learned through correspondence with his lawyer, that she had no idea of securing a final legal separation from him.

It was at dusk one summer evening that Duane, with little Ronald, stepped aboard the steamer Patriarch, bound from a Florida port for New York city. It was an hour later and he had put Ronald to bed in their stateroom and had sought a camp chair in the shadow of the side of the steamer when his ear caught the echo of a voice that thrilled him through and through. A lady was kissing her child, a sweet-faced little girl, good-night, and was about to hand her over to a maid to put to sleep. Older, her face sadder and thinner, but still lovely as of old, it was his wife.

"And say 'dear papa' and 'dear Roland' in my prayers—yes, mamma, I never forget," the little one was lisping.

Carried out of himself irresistibly, Duane arose to his feet. At that moment the steamer sustained a frightful shock. There was a crash forward; the vessel careened. With a shriek the maid dropped the child, darting away and screaming out: "We've struck a rock—we shall all be drowned!"

Duane ran to the side of his wife who had caught up the child, her face blanched with terror.

"There's peril, but be calm," he spoke. "Wait here while I bring little Roland." He was away, fleet-footed, and returned, brushing his way through frantic groups. Marcia Duane did not speak. She crowded close to his side. The word had gone about that the ship was sinking. The lifeboats were lowered.

"Two more here; bring those children!" commanded the captain, as the boats were filling, and Mrs. Duane, with a sob, released little Eva and her husband, with a set, stony face, allowed Roland to be passed over the side. Those two faced one another.

"Room for one more—a woman!" shouted the captain.

"Go!" spoke Duane, urging his wife forward.

"Not without you."

He stood spellbound, a great paen of exultation seemed surging in his soul. He put his arm around her and she nestled close to his side. A woman servant of the steamer rushed to the side and the last lifeboat departed.

"Will you trust to me?" whispered Virgil Duane.

"It is sweet to go down to death with you—oh, my husband!"

He felt as if inspired with the will and strength of a giant. He lifted a grating, flung it overboard, sprang after it with Marcia in his arms and struck out for shore.

Upon the desolate shore, finally gained in safety, those two felt not chill, nor exhaustion, nor the terrors of darkness and shipwreck—reunited!

BOOKS BOUND IN GOLD.

Costly Volumes Which Have Been Made For Connoisseurs.

One thousand four hundred pounds is the value set upon a magnificent specimen of present-day English bookbinding about to be sent to America. The book is an illuminated manuscript of some of Keat's poems, and has just been completed after two years' work. The poems are written and illuminated on vellum, and illustrated with original water-colors, while the morocco cover is elaborately gold-tooled, inlaid with over 4,400 pieces of colored leather, and set with over 1,000 precious stones.

This book was designed and bound by Mr. George Sutcliffe, the noted bookbinder of Poland street, London, who has evolved many original ideas in bookbinding. He was the first to use jewelled decorations—pearls instead of white leather, garnets instead of red leather, and so on. That such work pays is evident from the fact that Mr. Sutcliffe now employs eighty men.

The illuminated manuscript of Keats referred to is the most elaborate specimen of binding executed by Mr. Sutcliffe since he designed a jewelled Omar Khayyam, which was purchased by the German Government for the Frankfort Museum twelve years ago, and in the decoration of which twenty-one opals were used. Another specimen of Mr. Sutcliffe's art is a sumptuously-bound copy of Shelley's works, each flower on the hawthorn decoration being set with a pearl.

Volumes in modern binding which sell for $1,000 to $2,500 each are by no means uncommon. Not long ago, for instance, a set of Dickens was published, the price per volume being $1,000, each book being bound in vellum and enclosed in a casket of white silk and leather.

It was a marvellous production, but scarcely so interesting as the Hon. Walter Rothschild's book on "Extinct Birds," which represented many years of labor and cost its author something like $100,000 to produce. Mr. Rothschild stipulated that the book should be turned out in imperishable form, as it was improbable that the subject would ever be done again and he wished the work to endure for all time. Only 300 copies were printed in English for private circulation, the price of each copy being $125.

"Working the Oracle"

By JAMES RUSSELL SPOERER

Two rascals of one mind sat in secret conference. One was Gregory Bliss, promoter; the other, his familiar partner in crooked ways, Adrian Raynie, a lawyer.

"It's come!" Bliss had remarked.

"You mean?" questioned the other, in his usual specious way.

"I've got to work the oracle."

"H'm!" muttered Raynie gently, but with a retrospective eye. "The old resource, eh?"

"What else? When you meet a dead blank wall go around it. Here's the situation: I started the Blue Chip Gold Mining company on wind. It's blown in a hundred thousand dollars in stock subscriptions.

"Naturally we have expended a due amount on organization expenses. You can't have plate glass, mahogany and directors' banquets for nothing. Rapid-fire stock salesmen cost money, and I've got to live. I find a deficit at date."

"In what form?"

"Thirty thousand dollars overdue notes given for mining machinery, camp supplies, publicity campaigns and advertising. Those we owe are pressing. We must call a creditors' meeting and get six months' extension.

"In the meantime I can borrow on the two hundred and sixty acres comprising our mining claims, twenty-five thousand dollars. It isn't much, but it will suffice to carry me to a new field of business activity and start in with new offices and a new company."

"There is no possible prospect of the mines turning out all right?" questioned Raynie.

"There is every chance, but it needs brains and money on the spot. I know how to run an office and sell stock. I don't know how to operate a mine and dig dirt. There's young Milton Payne, who has put ten thousand dollars in the proposition and now superintends the mines. He wrote me last week that if I can send on fifteen thousand dollars he feels sure we can uncover a pay streak. I can't take the risk. I've got to get out of the deal with a grub stake."

Meantime young Milton Payne, in every way the opposite of the men who had lured him into the scheme, was full of work and faith at the diggings, dreaming of a lucky strike some day and of the girl he loved—Dora Wynne. He would have been terrified had he overheard that shameless conversation between the man he trusted and his hyena-like accomplice. He would have been shocked, stunned, had he suspected that this same smooth plotter, ever since his departure had called three times a week on Dora Wynne, and had only two urgent motives in view—to leave for parts unknown, and with the fair Dora as his bride.

"Everything is fixed to light the fuse," announced Raynie, the next week. "The creditors have agreed to the extension, the papers are all made out for the loan."

"Good!" jubilated Bliss. "When will the twenty-five thousand dollars cash materialize?"

"You can sign up today and get your cash tomorrow."

Gregory Bliss chuckled, whistled, and hummed a gay song as he went to call upon Dora Wynne that evening.

"Miss Dora," he said, "as you know, I am a plain man. I have loved you for a long time. I want you to be my wife. Tomorrow I shall have in my hands twenty-five thousand dollars to spare. I propose to spend five of it on the wedding, five on a tour worth making and let you pick out a ten thousand dollar mansion when we return."

"Oh, Mr. Bliss! I am so sorry, for you are such a close friend to Mr. Payne."

"What's he got to do with it?" demanded Bliss.

"I have been engaged to him for nearly a year. If I were single-hearted, Mr. Bliss," proceeded Dora, who did not want to antagonize a partner of her beloved, "it might be different, although money would not influence me. Uncle Marston had a chance to buy a large block of Blue Chip stock yesterday, very cheap. He has faith in Milton, and consequently in the mine. He has set aside the stock as a wedding present for me, so you see I am rich, myself."

Gregory Bliss groaned inwardly. He took his departure, collapsed. Only the day before he had put that Blue Chip stock on the market. He hurried to the office of Raynie first thing the next morning and recited his woes.

"There's been a hitch," pronounced Raynie.

"Eh?"

"Yes, your oracle didn't work. The people loaning the twenty-five thousand dollars got wise to your owing the creditors and refuse to pay the cash unless it goes to settle the bills."

Gregory Bliss savagely drew out his checkbook. There was a three-thousand-dollar balance at the bank.

"I'll divide and emigrate," he announced.

"Telegram," spoke a messenger boy, appearing at the open doorway, but Bliss was through with the Blue Chip.

"Zounds!" exclaimed the lawyer, as he scanned the telegram after the departure of his baffled client. "It's from the mine, and—"

"Pay streak uncovered. Am offered double our capitalization for a half-interest. Wire instructions."

Military Substitutes.

Wealthy Belgians pay a little over $300 to substitutes in order to avoid military service.

BIRD DIVORCES.

Feathered World Has Social Institutions All Its Own.

Generally speaking, the social life of birds is of the happiest description. Their courtship and marriage is one long love song, and it often happens, as one famous naturalist has put it, that while some young human couple are pouring out their hearts to each other beneath the leaves of an apple tree some feathered Romeo is making ardent love to his coy, coquettish Juliet in the branches above.

That clever student of bird life, Mrs. Olive Thorn Miller, maintains that birds have a distinct social life of their own, which is full of interest to the careful observer. The most important feature of their life is that bird marriages are permanent, implying constancy in their affections, of which proof may be found everywhere.

Parrots are notably devoted birds, and are willing to make great sacrifices for their mates. She instances a case where one of a caged pair had managed to make her escape into the open air. The owner of the birds, having observed the attachment between them, hung the cage, with the deserted one in it, at the open window. His calls reached his runaway mate and soon persuaded her to forsake the attractions of the summer woods and return to share his prison.

Grief at the death of their mates is nearly always shown by birds, and some species mourn for what might seem an incredible length of time. They frequently return to the old haunts, flying about and calling as if they hoped to be able to find the lost one again. Another instance of the affection between them is the attention almost invariably shown by the male to the female while the latter is hatching the young brood. He brings her food, sings to her, and often shares the task of sitting on the eggs, thereby giving her an opportunity for rest.

"I am sorry to say, however," says Mrs. Miller, "that in spite of this usually happy state of domestic affairs, there are occasionally unmistakable instances of bird divorce. Sometimes it is the husband who tires of his spouse and drives her away to make room for a new bride. Again it is the wife, who, perhaps, makes up her mind that the father of the family is not providing properly for its wants, and rejects him on that score. In one case of the kind which I watched I am sure this was the trouble. The husband was a cripple, from an injury to his leg, and was certainly rather helpless. But he opposed vehemently all efforts to drive him away, and succeeded in maintaining his authority until he was again able to care for his household.

Ibsen Studied Medicine.

Henrik Ibsen, the Norwegian dramatist, at the age of twenty-one, was a medical student at the University of Christiania. Before receiving his degree a play from his pen was produced at the National Theatre, with such success that Ibsen concluded he would do better in the realm of literature than in that of medicine.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

Fast Friends

— By ELEANOR LEE

Gabriel Thomas, old, lonely, but rich, and therefore able to cater to whatever whim came into his mind, drove his automobile from his home town over to Moorville, fifty miles distant, with a plan in view that at least temporarily lifted him from the mental slough of little interest in life into which he had fallen.

He carried a letter from his lawyer to a brother, also a lawyer, at Moorville, and, arrived at his destination, was speedily in consultation with the latter.

"I wish to be extremely confidential with you," announced Thomas. "I have not a living relative in the world that I know of, no close friends, few familiar acquaintances. I have done my duty by my native town, donated a library, subscribed generously to all public charities and the like, but I am not only lonely, but the thought that no one is bound to me by any influence of real interest and friendship depresses me. I have determined to take up some deserving, ambitious young fellow, educate him, make him my heir and have the consolation of some one caring unselfishly for me in my old age.

"My mind naturally ran back to the early days when I had real friends. Two of them formerly lived in Moorville. Both are now dead, but I find that one of them, Robert Martin, has left a widow, two sons and daughter. The other, John Willis, is survived by a son only. I have made some quiet investigation. The youngster son of the Martin family, Arthur, is at a pliable age and I think I should like him. Stanley Willis is a few years his senior but from what I learn is a bright, industrious young man. I think my selection would rest between the two."

"Then," insinuated the lawyer delicately, "your plan is—"

"To try them in turn. Say we take Arthur Martin first. I wish you to act as my intermediary. You doubtless know Mrs. Martin?"

"Intimately."

"You can impart to her my plan, basing it on my former acquaintance with her husband. Arrange it so that young Martin lives with me for a month. I will feel him out, test his capabilities and if he completely fills my ideal, we need go no further and Stanley Willis need not know that he was in the selective list. You think you can meet my wishes in this affair?"

"Without doubt," assured the lawyer. "I know both the young men and they are models of their class. Arthur Martin has a great longing for a thorough education and will make an able man. Stanley Willis is inclined towards invention and has quite a clientele requiring electrical work to be done. You could not have chosen more deserving and promising candidates for your favor."

Arthur started in on his probation. His mother and his sister, Luella, were greatly delighted to realize that the ambition of his life to become a great scholar was about to be realized. For a month Mr. Thomas and his protege got along famously.

Then, one unfortunate day, the twain got into a political argument. Alas! for Arthur's future. They almost came to blows, for, being fairly beaten in the discussion, Mr. Thomas packed Arthur home and sent word for Stanley to come on. Now Stanley was a close friend of Arthur, because he loved his sister. Furthermore he was earning a good living.

"Don't worry, Luella," he said to the disappointed sister of Arthur. "I'll guarantee this whimsical old man will soon banish me and call back Arthur."

The old man missed Arthur after he had gone away. He had discovered many fine qualities in the young man, but the political faith of Mr. Thomas was nearly as strong as his religion. Come to think of it, however, as he cooled down he realized that he had acted arbitrarily and came near sending word to the lawyer not to have Stanley come on.

But Stanley came, and with a purpose. He "blew in" at daybreak. Mr. Thomas heard of him before noon. His latest protege was "tearing up the town." Thomas found him at the hotel treating a loitering crowd to cigars, boasting of wild freaks as his daily amusement and letting how he was to become the adopted son of "a rich old guy" whose cash 'n' would keep in rapid circulation!

When Stanley Willis joined his amazed patron, he greeted him familiarly as a hail-fellow well met. He forced an argument upon the old man at their first talk, and jeered at him and knocked about the opinions of his patron in a way that, by comparison, tended to make Arthur an angel of light.

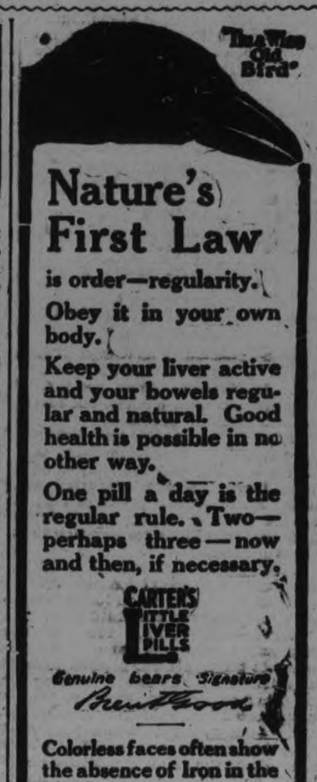
"I'll have my jolly chums get up a party on us next week," he began.

"No, you can go back home. I'll pay you to," stated the old man. "You won't do at all," and Stanley chuckled at his purpose accomplished.

Arthur was sent for the next day to resume his studies and harmonious relations re-established.

"Oh, Stanley!" said Luella, "how could you cast aside the chance of a lifetime, just because you liked Arthur?"

"Well, you see," observed Arthur, with a glance that made pretty Luella blush, "I liked his sister better."



Hit or Miss

— By VICTOR REDCLIFFE

It was no wonder that the old face was shrouded in gloom, the deep-set eyes faded and the hands wavering. For five years Hugh Tyrrell had felt his mental and physical powers wavering. His position with Marsden & Co., brokers, was becoming more and more insecure daily, he felt it and feared that at any hour his employers might notify him that he was worn out in harness and a younger man needed in his place.

If he could only get a month off and rest and recuperate! But his earnings barely supported his large family even with those added of his daughter, a stenographer.

There was a phase of the situation, too, that sorrowed him deeply. Elsie, his daughter, had been engaged for two years to an estimable young man who wished to hurry the union.

"I will not marry until I see my father once more on his feet," the loyal daughter had declared.

It was half an hour before the closing of the stock exchange and Tyrrell was alone in the office.

Suddenly the telephone rang and Tyrrell took up the receiver. "Marsden & Co., private New York wire," came over the phone.

"All right," responded Tyrrell, pencil in hand.

"Your branch office wires: 'Buy everything in sight, Beacon Preferred.'"

"Repeat," directed Mr. Tyrrell. "O. K." and went over to another phone and called up the junior partner on the exchange, repeating the message hastily, for the order was unusual and of importance and there remained less than thirty minutes in which the rush purchase could be effected.

The junior partner came into the office puffing and panting, half an hour later.

"Whew!" he aspirated. "Some rush. I hope Jenks at the New York end knows his business. We're well into a hundred thousand dollars on Beacon. I don't think much of the buy, but Jenks must have a sure tip, or he wouldn't let us in for half our capital."

Tyrrell went home shortly afterwards. He tried to put on a brave front, but the gentle cheer of his wife, the tender solicitude of Elsie told him that they saw how worn and tired he was, and were anxious to mitigate his cares.

"It has simply come to a point where you must give up your confining work," spoke Mrs. Tyrrell, when the children had all gone to bed.

"I saw Doctor Lane today and he says you must get some work that takes you outside into the open air."

"I have come to that conclusion myself," agreed Tyrrell. "Tell you, Mary, I don't want to break down entirely and I believe I will resign my position tomorrow before it is too late. A collection agency offers me a place, but it is on a commission basis. It will give me what I need, though—exercise and the open air. Shall I risk it?"

"You must," urged Mrs. Tyrrell earnestly. "If it means less income we will make it do somehow."

Tyrrell reached the office the next morning and resolved to inform Mr. Marsden of his decision during the day. It was the custom of the affiliated brokerage house which furnished direct wire quotations to Marsden & Co. to confirm verbal messages by later written ones. Upon the desk lay one of these. As a mere formality Tyrrell read the inclosure, preparatory to filing it away.

"Oh, impossible!" he cried, coming to his feet with a sharp gasp and a blanched face. "Oh, impossible!"

He stood staring at the tissue message, rooted, appalled, for it read:

"Buy everything in sight, Beaton Preferred."

Beaton Utilities—not Beacon Copper! His worn hearing had caught the phone call wrong. A hundred thousand dollars invested in Beacon, not Beaton! He just managed to totter to the ticker. His whole form was shaking as his eye ran over opening quotations—Beacon down four points first call on the Eastern exchange. His costly error would ruin the house of Marsden & Co.!

"Hold on, what's the trouble?" sang out one of the office traders, just entering the door.

"I am ruin. I—" There Tyrrell reeled. Just in time the other caught him, limp, senseless. He carried him to a settee in an inside office and hurried for a doctor.

Tyrrell opened his eyes amid a babbish confusion. The room was filled. A physician was just departing with the statement that his patient was all right. Mr. Marsden and his partners were jubilating volubly. The former darted at Tyrrell and seized his hand fervently as he discovered his restoration to consciousness.

"You clever old war horse!" he fairly shouted. "Beacon has gone up twenty points and we have made a fortune. Our New York man made a wrong guess and made it Beaton. You made a mistake and made it Beacon, and Beacon, by some strange hit, went up. See here—there's a five thousand-dollar check waiting for you, a six months' leave of absence and come back a new man when you get tired of doing nothing."

So a lucky mistake brought to the deserving old hero money, a longed-for rest and a son-in-law.

$30,000,000 Spent on Refugees.

Forty thousand Belgian refugees are receiving financial assistance in England. In the second report of the War Refugees Committee, just issued, it was announced that there is no foundation for the curious but widespread belief that the money expended on the maintenance of Belgian refugees is, or will be ultimately, provided by the Belgian Government. The cost, which cannot be less than $30,000,000 has fallen on private British hosts, on contributions in money or kind, on the War Refugees' Committee and the British Government. The large majority of the refugees are now, the report says, regular wage-earners.

A Wasp That Uses Tools.

So far as known, only one small insect—a wasp of the sphex family—among the millions of creatures belonging to a lower order than man, has ever employed the aid of a tool to accomplish a desired result. The mother wasp of this family digs a tunnel in the ground, deposits her egg in it and provides a caterpillar stung to death or to a condition of paralysis for her baby to feed on when hatched. The grub subsists on this caterpillar until it passes through the pupa stage into the perfect-winged insect. Then it digs its way out of the tunnel and begins life above ground as a wasp.

But after the mother wasp has made its tunnel and deposited the egg, it finishes its task by ramming down pellets of earth, little stones, etc., into the mouth of the tunnel. This is the race habit of these wasps. It is recorded on undoubted authority that one inventive moth, when the mouth of the tunnel was covered to a level with the rest of the ground about it, brought a quantity of fine grains of dirt to the spot, and picking up a small pebble in her mandibles, used it as a hammer in pounding them down with rapid strokes, thus making the spot as firm and as hard as the surrounding surface. Then she departed, brought more dirt, picked up the pebble again and used it as a hammer as before.

The English thrush brings its snails to a certain convenient stone, on which it will crack their shells by beating them upon it. Some sea birds carry shellfish to a height and drop them on the rock to break their shells, but this brings only the anvil into use, not the hammer. The case of the wasp is the only one which records the seemingly intelligent use of a tool to accomplish a given purpose.—People's Home Journal.

Pan-German Hamburg.

In Hamburg is to be found a greater pan-Germanic spirit than in Berlin. It is the centre of the anti-British crusade. "From no other centre of population is the raucous voice of hate so loudly raised. It was in Hamburg where the largest subscriptions were raised to commemorate dead commanders of submarines who had wrought the greatest havoc against England. It was in Hamburg that the Lusitania medal originated. It was a Hamburg pastor who declared from his pulpit that his people were doing God a service in hating the British and in taking every step possible to wipe so pestiferous a nation from the face of the earth which they polluted."

Be Prepared.

George Washington, in his first annual message to Congress, said: "To be prepared for war is one of the most effectual means of preserving peace."

Tired Nervous Mothers

Should Profit by the Experience of These Two Women

Buffalo, N. Y.—"I am the mother of four children, and for nearly three years I suffered from a female trouble with pains in my back and side, and a general weakness. I had professional attendance most of that time but did not seem to get well. As a last resort I decided to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound which I had seen advertised in the newspapers, and in two weeks noticed a marked improvement. I continued its use and am now free from pain and able to do all my housework."—Mrs. B. B. ZIELINSKA, 202 Weiss Street, Buffalo, N. Y.

Portland, Ind.—"I had a displacement and suffered so badly from it at times I could not be on my feet at all. I was all run down and so weak I could not do my housework, was nervous and could not lie down at night. I took treatments from a physician but they did not help me. My Aunt recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I tried it and now I am strong and well again and do my own work and I give Lydia E. Pinkham's Compound the credit."—Mrs. JOSEPHINE KIMBLE, 935 West Race Street, Portland, Ind.

Hadn't Been Taught.

Little Grace, who had recently entered school, brought home some pumpkin seed one day and told her mother that the teacher said that although the seed was white the pumpkin would be yellow.

"And what will the color of the vines be?" her mother asked.

Grace replied that the teacher had not taught her that yet.

"I know, dear, but we have pumpkin vines in our garden, and you must know what color they are."

"Oh, of course I do, mother, but we ain't supposed to know anything until we're taught," replied Grace convincingly.

KIDNEY DISEASE OVERCOME.

Mr. James Prouse, cattle dealer, Shebo, Sask., writes: "For about ten years I suffered from kidney disease; at times was bad with backache, and derangements of the digestive organs. During that time I was treated by four different doctors. One day I read in Dr. Chase's Almanac about the Kidney-Liver Pills and began to use them. Altogether I used six boxes. All I need say is that I feel well now and attribute this condition to the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills."

Many Are Disloyal.

It is quite within bounds to say that in the armies of pan-Germany, of every three soldiers there is one who certainly does not desire to make use of his weapons against the Entente; and one who, on the contrary, will joyfully make use of them, as soon as he shall be clearly convinced of the necessity, to assist in the destruction of pan-Germany, whose continuance would perpetuate his own slavery and that of his people.

This is a fact of tremendous importance to the allies.

The Berlin staff feels so far from sure of the Slav and Latin troops that it dares not use them in dense masses on the western front. They are, for the most part, either sent to Turkey, or utilized in the garrisons of the interior, or mobilized in the munition factories of pan-Germany. Thus the majority of them are so situated as to make an insurrectionary movement on their part particularly effective. It is for the Allies to have the intelligence to do whatever may be necessary to make the most of it.—Andrew Cheradame in Atlantic Monthly.

Dark blue denim or khaki cloth may be used for making. The overalls have a seam at centre front and the opening is at the sides. Three big patch pockets will provide him with plenty of places to keep his treasures.

The boy's overall pattern No. 8827 is cut in eight sizes—2 to 16 years. The eight-year size requires 2¼ yards 27 inch, or 2 yards 36 inch material.

WHEN REGIMENTS RESIGNED.

Curragh Episode Is Not the First One In British History.

The cavalry crisis at the Curragh recalls how, in 1783, th old 77th Regiment, commanded by Col. Gordon, refused en bloc to go to India, and voiced their reasons in a barrack room song:—

If it were to fight with France or Spain
With pleasure we would cross the Main;
But for like bullocks to be slain—
Our Highland blood abhors it.

The question of this wholesale resignation came before Parliament, and the regiment was ordered to be disbanded forthwith at Perth.

Another Scotch regiment, the Black Watch, being brought to London from Scotland in 1743, on the pretext that George II., never having seen a Highland regiment before, wished to inspect them, turned about and marched home when they found His Majesty not in London to meet them. He had left the previous night for Hanover. They accordingly believed themselves the victims of a trick to reduce the number of Stuart supporters in Scotland. They were overtaken by a superior force in the Midlands and forced to capitulate. The regiment as a whole was then banished to Flanders; 200 of the men—all of good family—were sent into exile, and many were court-martialled, whilst three ring-leaders were shot on Tower Hill.

Another instance of a regiment's desire to be quit of service wholesale occurred in 1807, when 300 men, chiefly Irishmen, of the 28th Foot, stationed at Maldon, Essex, feigned blindness in order to procure their discharges and escape being sent abroad. They bluffed the doctors for a time by applying an irritating ointment to their eyes, declaring they had caught the disease from afflicted soldiers just home from Egypt. But the ruse was discovered, and the ringleaders were tried under the Mutiny Act.

Diving Water Birds.

Water birds which are ordinarily able to float high on the water can also sink at will by expelling the air which is enclosed within the film of feathers surrounding their bodies, thus making them heavier than water. This mechanical trick on the part of diving birds is probably familiar to all who have watched the kingfisher at close quarters, and have noted the sudden contraction in the bird's apparent size as it takes the plunge. This is much more easily observed in the case of the starling which imitates the kingfisher by plunging into water for food. The shrinkage of the bird in apparent size is very noticeable when, after hovering above the surface, it turns downwards to dive.—Family Herald

GERMANY STARTED WAR

FORMER HEAD OF KRUPP'S DENOUNCES HIS COUNTRY.

He Says That Everything Was Carefully Prepared by the Militarists For the Great Conflict and Austria, Now a Subject State of Prussia, Was Then Utilized as Tool In Gigantic Plot.

GERMANY was wholly in agreement with Austria-Hungary concerning the ultimatum sent to Serbia at the outbreak of the war, says Dr. Wilhelm Muehlon, formerly director of Krupps, in further disclosures on the responsibility for the bringing on of the conflict. Emperor William was personally responsible for Germany's participation and forced the German leaders to support his war policy.

Dr. Muehlon, who was head of Krupps at the outbreak of the war, and who recently startled Europe with his disclosures, received the correspondent of the Associated Press at his country place in Switzerland, where he is now living in retirement. The visit came as Dr. Muehlon was preparing to issue a more detailed review of conditions leading to the war, and the correspondent had the advantage of going over the document, with the personal explanations of the author.

Dr. Muehlon's first disclosures, which caused such a commotion, gave conversations with Dr. Karl Helfferich, former Vice-Chancellor, and Dr. Krupp von Bohlen, chief owner of the Krupp Works, in which both told him the Emperor had disclosed his agreement with Austria-Hungary on the ultimatum to Serbia and that Germany would mobilize immediately if Russia mobilized, which would inevitably draw in the other powers and precipitate a universal war.

The document now issued is more detailed and general and gives day-by-day notes made by Dr. Muehlon at the critical time at the opening of the war. Dr. Muehlon then had gone from the Foreign Office to the directorate of Krupps, and his position gave him constant access to the highest quarters. He gives glimpses of the chief figures from the Emperor down, but in the main avoids the mention of names for reasons of discretion, though there are likely to be further chapters later giving names, letters and documents showing how the highest quarters in Germany planned systematically for the bringing on of a general war.

The whole trend of the present work is to show that the world conflict was imposed by the German Emperor's personal military policy and his private engagement with Austria on the eve of the struggle.

Dr. Muehlon gives further details of his conference with Dr. Helfferich immediately preceding the war, in which Helfferich told of the Emperor's plans toward Austria and Russia. Although Muehlon has been fiercely attacked by the German Government and the Reichstag, his present version is substantially unchanged. He makes the following addition concerning the Emperor's agreement with Austria on the Serbian ultimatum:

"I got the impression that the choice of words had not been agreed upon, which was a dangerous omission by German diplomacy in view of the risks Germany was taking. In effect, Austria was given carte-blanche, and Germany agreed without condition to everything Austria wrote into the note."

Dr. Muehlon was asked who were the Austrians with whom the German Emperor had made a private agreement. He said he was unable to say positively, although he had heard from reliable sources that it was Field Marshal Conrad von Hoetzendorf, former chief of the Austrian General Staff.

The former Krupp director relates an incident following the outbreak of the war when the Emperor required all the German leaders to become involuntary supporters of his war policy. Assembling them as guests, the Emperor exclaimed suddenly:

"Now, gentlemen, advance, and, as we grasp hands, promise me you will stand with me to the last breath."

Commenting on this, Dr. Muehlon says: "The guests could hardly do otherwise when bidden by their Imperial host in his own castle to shake hands with him, and thus a vow was extorted which would be of value only if given freely."

Dr. Muehlon declares that the order issued by the Crown Prince of Bavaria to the troops in Belgium amounted to a command to give no quarter to prisoners. He adds:

"I have received a letter from the field which brings me the unheard-of information that the Emperor has himself said he had enough prisoners and has told his officers he hoped they would take good care to make no more prisoners. This news is quite authentic.

"What a complement to the order of the Crown Prince of Bavaria, and what a continuation of the Emperor's previous order to troops about to leave on the expedition to China: 'No quarter will be given!'"

Other phases discussed in the document are the methods followed by German Foreign Consuls in influencing embassies, writers spreading propaganda, Governmental control of the press and the complete suppression of independent personal judgment. It also takes up the unreliability of the German military communiques, and the writer expresses severe criticism of the German aristocracy, industrialism, and the hopelessness of the present conflict to place Germany in an enduring position over the destinies of Europe.

The chief significance of the criticisms and disclosures is that they come from one who occupied a foremost position in the public and industrial life of Germany.

In the course of his review, Dr. Muehlon takes up the subject of the guns made by Krupps for the Belgians, which were retained by Germany and used by her in the war. Dr. Muehlon's position as a Director of Krupps permits him to tell how Belgium refused to accept the guns, which were for the defence of Antwerp, thus demonstrating that Belgium had no hint of Germany's purpose to begin the war. He says:

"Belgium drew virtually all her war material from Germany, and depended upon us for models and manufacture. Thus 28-centimetre guns for fortifying Antwerp had been ordered and were ready for delivery. The earthworks at Antwerp, however, were not sufficiently advanced, and Belgium asked us to keep them, and shortly before the war even offered to pay storage on the guns if they were kept until it was convenient to accept them. The guns, therefore, were held, and when the war broke out the Prussian War Minister took possession of these valuable cannon and turned them to his own uses."

A USEFUL TREE.

People In South Sea Islands Live Without Work.

The nearest thing nowadays to the Garden of Eden is a South Sea island. Missionaries have persuaded the natives to wear clothes, but there still remains the cocoanut.

So far as known, the only important advantage of residence in the Garden of Eden was that one might dwell there without bothering to work. An equivalent privilege seems to offer itself anywhere in hot latitudes that is suitable for planting the cocoanut tree.

A Polynesian proverb says, "He who plants a cocoanut plants vessels and clothing, a habitation for himself and a heritage for his children.

The cocoanut yields food, both solid and liquid—the latter a very palatable milk. Its oil, pressed from the dried "meat," is useful for frying and other culinary purposes, or may be converted into soap and candles.

The buds of the trees are good to eat, being usually prepared like cabbage. From the sap and fruit are obtained both "temperance" and intoxicating beverages.

The shells of the nuts furnish cups. The coarse and strong fibre that covers them affords material or matting, cordage, fishing lines and clothing. The leaves of the tree supply a waterproof thatch for houses, and from the leaf-ribs brooms and brushes are made. The wood of the trunk serves admirably for house-building purposes as well as for sea-going canoes, the planks of which are fastened together with cocoanut twine.

An Aged Airman.

Adjutant Mounirien, a French aviator, destroyed his tenth German machine on June 7, as it was attacking an observation balloon. Mounirien enlisted in the infantry at the beginning of the war, although sixty years of age, and two years later passed into the aviation service. His first victory was won April 26, 1917, twenty days after his arrival at the front as a pilot. It was Mounirien who shot down the German aeroplane piloted by "Fantomas," the would-be bugaboo of the poilus. This German used to cross the trenches just at dawn, firing upon outposts, supply trains, and anything else moving at that hour.

There are two thousand and sixty-four languages spoken in the world.

The English of It.

A lady, accompanied by her small son, was making various purchases at the army and navy stores in London. The boy grew tired.

"Who are you buying these for?" he asked.

"Why, for father," was the mother's reply.

"Father in heaven or father in India?" the boy persisted.

The lady mentioned the remark to a friend, who, thinking it amusing, repeated it to an Englishwoman at church a few days later. The Englishwoman listened sympathetically. "Poor woman!" she sighed. "She was married twice."

Cutting the Finger Nails.

Cutting the finger nails appears to have been the most indispensable service the ancient Roman barber rendered to his patrons. Martial, chaffing a fop who had tried to dodge the barber by using plasters to remove his beard, asks triumphantly, "How are you going to manage about your nails?" And the miser in Plautus collects the parings of his nails from the barber to make something out of them, apparently never dreaming that he could save money by cutting them himself.

Cocoanut Oil Makes A Splendid Shampoo

If you want to keep your hair in good condition, be careful what you wash it with.

Don't use prepared shampoos or anything else, that contains too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and is very harmful. Just plain mulsified cocoanut oil (which is pure and entirely greaseless), is much better than anything else you can use for shampooing, as this can't possibly injure the hair.

Simply moisten your hair with water and rub it in. One or two teaspoonfuls will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather, and cleanses the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily and removes every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get mulsified cocoanut oil at most any drug store. It is very cheap, and a few ounces is enough to last everyone in the family for months.

"Advertise NOW, and never let up."

WITT K. COCHRANE, the well-known Advertisement Agent, thus cleverly "sizes up" the advertising situation:—

"It is inconceivable that any merchant or manufacturer should cease—or even curtail—his advertising just when the country is on the threshold of a tremendous double harvest—the NATURAL harvest of our own unprecedented crops and the LOGICAL harvest consequent on the war in Europe.

"It is under such conditions as these that advertising reaches the zenith of its power. The man who listens to the yellow pessimist and sits back to 'wait for things to settle down,' is yielding his common sense and enterprise to the baleful influence of idle sentiment, and actually starving the goose that lays the golden egg.

"Keep the columns of the daily newspapers bristling with your announcements and thus open wide your doors for the flood of prosperity that is bound to rush in. Make hay while the sun shines. We won't have another chance like this in a hundred years."

"I have noticed with a feeling of profound disgust the conservatism and business cowardice that have set in in America since the Kaiser threw down the guage of battle. We, the very people who will logically profit by the war abroad—and profit immeasurably—are acting as though we were at war ourselves. We are talking blue things, pinching the pennies cutting down our advertising and forcing prosperity to stand back.

"As a matter of fact this is the very hour when we should rush into print to a greater extent than ever before, because, unless the earth opens and swallows us up, there will be greater prosperity in America this fall than ever in the history of the Republic.

"We are not at war. We are not likely to be. The warring world looks to us for its supplies and we can't keep posperity down no matter how hard we try.

"If my advice is worth anything to you business men, it is here conveyed to you in six words:

"ADVERTISE NOW, AND NEVER LET UP."

"Advertise NOW, and never let up" in "The Examiner."

Contending Armies Are Locked In a Mighty Battle

The British Are Making Progress At Some Points

Severe Battle is in Progress on a Front of More Than Twenty-five Miles

British Troops Have Made Progress at a Number of Points—Enemy is Counter Attacking at a Number of Places.

OFFICIAL REPORTS

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON (Official), Aug. 23.—The battle is being fought on a line between Lihons, south of the Somme, to Cojeul River, south-west of Arras, on a front of more than twenty-five miles. British troops are making progress at a number of points. Two enemy attacks east of Beaucourt were repulsed during the night. On the Lys front, the British line was slightly advanced east of Letouret, northwest of Neuf Berquin and east of Outterrsteen.

THE STATEMENT READS.

Fighting is taking place along the whole front between Lihons, south of the Somme, and Cojeul River. Our troops are reported making progress at a number of points. During the night the enemy twice attacked our positions in the neighbourhood of Baillescourt Farm, east of Beaucourt. He was repulsed. On the Lys front our line has been advanced slightly east of Letouret, northwest of Neuf Berquin and east of Outtehsteen. A hostile attack northwest of Bailleul broke down before our positions.

FRENCH OFFICIAL.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

PARIS, Aug. 23.—(Official.)—Between the Oise and the Aisne, French troops advanced their lines during the night to Guny and Pont St. Mard, just north of the Ailette River. They hold the right banks of the Oise and the Ailette from Sempigny to the railroad west of Coucy-Le-Chateau.

Between the Oise and the Aisne, during the advance of Wednesday and Thursday, General Mangin's army took five thousand prisoners.

"We Will Win."

Special to The Examiner:

PARIS, Aug. 23.—General Debeney, commanding the French army north and west of the Oise, issued the following order of the day: "The battle has won ground to the depth of 25 kilometers (15 1-2 miles) and has liberated scores of villages. Sixteen German divisions (192,000 men) have been beaten. More than 10,000 prisoners and 220 guns have been captured. We will win."

British Still Advancing.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

WITH THE BRITISH ARMIES, Aug. 23.—(3 p.m.)—The Town of Meaulte, southeast of Albert, fell early in the British drive. British troops pressing on here are crossing the Bray-Albert Road. Happy Valley to the north of Bray was taken by Field Marshal Haig's troops after hard fighting. Three German battalion headquarters have been taken in the locality of Happy Valley. A number of new fresh German divisions have been identified. They were rushed up in the hope of saving something from the disaster which threatens the whole German army on this front.

PETERBORO GIRL WINS ANOTHER SCHOLARSHIP

Miss Gretchen Gladman Adds More Laurels to Her Record.

Miss E. Gretchen Gladman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Gladman, 458 Rubidge Street, who recently won signal honours by passing the senior honour and scholarship matriculation third in the Province, and by taking the Edward Blake scholarship prize, has added more laurels to her record by taking the William Dickson scholarship given by Trinity College for moderns. The scholarship has a monetary value of $200.

Miss Gladman this morning received a letter from Provost Macklem of Trinity College, congratulating her upon her success, and spoke of her probable entry in the fall at St. Hildas College.

The Peterborough Collegiate has reason to be proud of Miss Gladman's record, as her success is a decided reflection upon her tuition there, where she received her education.

The individual who sits next to a fat man in a crowded street car knows what it is to have greatness thrust upon him.

Big British Airplane Makes Trip Across Channel With 9 Passengers

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, Aug. 23.—A big British airplane carrying its crew of nine passengers, has made the trip from France to England, it is announced here. The whole journey from an airdrome in the interior of France to one in the interior of England, occupied but little over half an hour. The test was made under routine conditions with an ordinary service airplane of the largest type. The passengers carried a normal amount of baggage as they would if they had travelled by train and boat.

Albert is Now Merely a Battered Heap of Ruins

The Famous Church Has Been Completely Destroyed by the Germans—Prisoners Captured

FRENCH ADVANCED

(By Lowell Mellett—United Press).

WITH THE BRITISH ARMIES IN FRANCE, Aug. 23.—Prisoners taken by the British in the last three days total nearly six thousand. More than a thousand of these were taken south of the Somme this morning.

Albert is merely a battered heap of ruins, which can no longer be called a city. The famous church, from which the figures of the Madonna and child hung suspended for so long did not greet the Tommies when they entered the city. The church had been levelled to the height of other ruins. Prisoners taken in Albert totalled 750, including a battalion commander and his staff.

Swept Enemy Back.

(By John De Gandt—United Press).

PARIS, Aug. 23.—The French advance has swept the Germans back to within three miles of Chauny, the highly important railway and highway centre between Noyon and La Fert.

General Mangin's men are reported to have reached the borders of Coucy-Le-Chateau, only three miles from the old Hindenburg line. They are pressing eastward along the roads leading into the town from the Ailette River, and have launched a heavy attack against Coucy Grove, south of the village. Noyon is being attacked from the north-west, south-east and north-east. The French are across the Oise and Manicamp Canal, and have reached the edge of Morlincourt, 2,000 yards (slightly more than a mile) from Noyon railway station.

Determined Resistance.

Byng is gradually overpowering the German defence along the whole front, from the Somme northward to the Cojoul River. There is determined resistance at many points. In the east of the attack further northward the progress is good, according to reports. The French have apparently reached Boyon-Becquerelle and Boyelles (five miles south and east of Arras and three miles west of Coiselles). They also have reached Hamelincourt (a mile and a half south of Boyelle) and Gomiecourt (four miles north-west of Bapaume).

Many prisoners were taken in Gomiecourt and Bray, and the north bank of the Somme is practically surrounded.

The road from Noyon to Leon soon will be penetrated from another direction. (This road passes Chauny, a mile and a half to the southward.)

The Boches, clinging to the hills north of the Oise, aleady are under the heaviest fire from the French artillery.

CANADIAN CASUALTIES

Ottawa, August 23.—Three casualty lists issued to-day by the Records Office contain one thousand nine hundred and ninety two names. Of this number 249 killed in action, 46 died of wounds, 1674 wounded, others ill, etc. Only 12 are given as missing or prisoners of war.

The Germans Are Nervous

Allied Offensive is Now at its Greatest Height—Rapid Advance.

(By Fred S. Ferguson—United Press)

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, Aug. 23.—The Allied offensive is now at its greatest height since July 18, not only in accomplishment but in possibilities.

Although the more recent operations lack the spectacularity of the Soissons-Marne and British attacks, their accomplishments are of higher importance. The rapid advance of the French between the Oise and the Aisne, reaching within four or five miles of the original line, is fast creating a salient in the Boche positions and increasing the necessity for an early withdrawal from the Vesle to the old Aisne lines.

Huns Are Nervous.

In the fact the constant Allies' advance at one point or another during the last month is striking. The Boches are showing the greatest nervousness in all sectors where they have not yet been attacked. This is clearly indicated in the raids by Americans in the Vosges region. The enemy is particularly jumpy along the Vesle, putting down numerous unnecessary barrages, apparently in response to calls from infantry units fearing an attack.

In contract to the German methods of conducting an offensive with long waits between blows, the Allied hammering has been constant for more than a month. And the limit of their punchings has not yet been reached.

PETERBORO CASUALTIES

Several Peterboro Soldiers Appear in the Casualty Lists Issued Last Night and To-day.

LIST OF NAMES

The Peterborough casualty list is still growing. Each list issued from Ottawa contains the names of several Peterborough soldiers who were killed or wounded in the recent fighting. To-day's list follows:

Killed in Action.

Word has been received that Pte. Bertram Wall has been killed in action. He is a brother of Mr. E. M. Wall, 581 Gilmour Street. He resided in Montreal, and enlisted with the crack McGill University Highlanders over two years ago. A cheery letter was received lately, dated July 20, saying that all was well and that the grub was good. His father resides in Brantford, Ont.

Pte. Wm. J. Lustic.

Pte. William Jacob Lustic, who enlisted in the 93rd Battalion, was gassed on August 1, and admitted to No. 1 Australian General Hospital, Rouen, France. Mrs. Maud Lustic, 465 Elm Street, received the sad news.

Word From Lieut. Armstrong.

City Clerk Armstrong has received a cablegram from his son, Lieut. W. W. Armstrong, who was wounded in the recent Canadian drive, as follows: "Wounded right arm, slight." There is much relief and comfort to the relatives and friends of Lieut. Armstrong, who was widely known in Peterborough. He went overseas with the 93rd Battalion.

Two More Wounded.

The lists include the names of two more men from this district who have been wounded:

Pte. D. J. Goodley, Clydesdale, Ont., 93rd Battalion.

Pte. J. A. Smith, Havelock.

PTE. LEO FONTAINE.

For the second time Pte. Leo Fontaine has been wounded. About a year ago he was removed to the hospital with seventeen bayonet and shot wounds, but recovered and returned to the front. This morning his mother, Mrs. Frank Fontaine, 480 Aylmer street, received word that Pte. Leo Fontaine, No. 412269, has been officially admitted to No. 32 Stationary Hospital, Wimereux, France, on August 14, suffering from a gunshot wound in the chest. Mr. Fontaine was in New Orleans, U.S.A., before the war, but came to Canada to join the 39th Battalion. He was transferred to another unit in England.

KILLED IN ACTION.

Word has been received that Private Harold Bell has been killed in action on August 10th. He enlisted with the 93rd Battalion, October, 1915, and went overseas with that battalion. He was wounded at Vimy Ridge, April 10th, 1917, but went back to France with the Machine Gun Battalion. He was born in Peterborough 21 years ago, but moved to Toronto with his parents seven years ago. One brother, Pte. Jack Bell, is at Witley, England. His father, Sapper H. G. Bell, is at Stanley Barracks with the Canadian Engineers. His parents, four brothers and four sisters survive.

His mother, Mrs. H. G. Bell, resides at 55 Devon Road, Toronto.

PTE. GEORE D. MARTIN

Among the many Peterboro boys in the casualty list following the recent advance by Canadian Corps was Private George D. Martin, son of Mr. George K. Martin, Eastern Superintendent at Montreal of the Imperial Guarantee and Accident Insurance Company. Private Martin was admitted to No. 5 Military Hospital Rouen, France, where Lieut. W. W. Armstrong and other Peterboro boys have been received. He was shot through the chest and abdomen, and the serious wounds have given his relatives and friends great anxiety.

Private George D. Martin qualified for a commission with the Toronto, C. O. T. C. He went overseas as a Sergeant with the 198th Battalion, but when the 5th Division was broken up he was transferred to the 19th Battalion. When serious losses were sustained this year and the need of reinforcement was great he volunteered to go across to France with several other sergeants and fight as a private. It is to be hoped that this devotion to duty will be rewarded by a complete recovery, and his father will soon receive encouraging and cheerful information. Pte. Martin attended the Peterboro schools before his father's strides in business necessitated the family's removal from the city.

SHORTENING THEIR FRONT

That is the Evident Purpose of Hindenburg—A Rearguard Action.

MUST RETIRE

(United Press Despatch.)

(By J. W. T. Mason.)

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—There are indications that the Germans do not now intend to halt their retreat permanently along the Hindenburg line, but are planning to move still further eastward for the purpose of shortening their front and securing additional men for their new reserve armies.

Marshal Foch's continual hammering is sadly interfering with Von Hindenburg's pre-arranged retirement. In reality, Von Hindenburg is now fighting a gigantic rearguard action. His retirement is a foregone conclusion because there is no other way for Germany to concentrate her manpower to defend the Rhine against America's forthcoming offensive. But, the paradox exists that by attacking the Germans through incessant local drives, Marshal Foch is actually retarding the maximum speed of retirement of which Von Hindenburg is capable. This action by Marshal Foch, however, makes Von Hindenburg's retreat a far more perilous enterprise than it would otherwise be. Not only are extensive stores of munitions and large numbers of prisoners falling into the Allies' hands, but also the possibility is always present that during the German retirement Marshal Foch may be able at some point to break through the German lines. The danger of a break through is now occupying the major atention of the German general staff. It accounts largely for the slow, faltering steps to the rear, and for the dogged back-to-the wall fighting now characteristic of the German retirement.

WAR SUMMARY

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—The Associated Press war summary says: British and German armies are locked in a mighty battle to-day over twenty-five mile front from Lihons, six miles south of the Somme river to the Cojeul river south-west of Arras. This combat, which began with the British attack against the enemy positions east of the Ancre river on Wednesday, has now spread into one of the greatest battles of the Allied offensive in Picardy. It is officially reported from London that the British are making progress at some points and that German attacks east of Beaucourt at about the middle of the battle front, were repulsed.

ON THE AGGRESSIVE.

The British are apparently still on the aggressive along the whole line; French troops have occupied the southern banks of the Oise and the Ailette, between Sempigny, south of Noyon, to the railroad bridge west of Coucy-Le-Chateau.

South of Coucy-Le-Chateau they have reached the outskirts of Guny and Pont St. Mard. This progress brings them still further toward the rear of the German forces holding the hills north of Soissons, and within three miles of the German positions north of Chemin Des Dames as they stood before the offensive of May 27.

Band Concert in Victoria Park

Special Programme Has Been Provided for This Evening.

This evening a special programme will be rendered by the 57th Band in Victoria Park. Gliddon promises a real musical treat to the music lovers of Peterboro. The concert will start at 8 o'clock sharp and everybody should be on hand if possible to hear the opening numbers. Many of the selections which will be played tonight have been effectively rendered by Sousa's Marine Band, Creatore's famous band and Gilmour's Band which has more than anything else made Boston the music-centre of North America.

WILL CONDUCT SERVICES.

Rev. Thos. Joplin, of the Shantyman's Church Association, will address the services on Sunday at the Bethany Tabernacle.

Organizing New Positions

Enemy Prepares to Evacuate Noyon—Heavy Fighting in Progress

(United Press.)

(By Webb Miller.)

Paris, August 23. — General Marchel is organizing new defensive positions in the rear of the present German positions on the Picardy front, according to information received from Headquarters to-day.

Marchel, the military expert, who is on the Picardy front, believes that the evacuation of Noyon is already under way. The French have pushed on at various points around the town. Meanwhile the enemy is pressing to make a stand at Hill 164 Pourques and Mont Doneby.

Between the Aisne and the Vesle, German aviators are making desperate efforts to keep off the allied observation planes and a big reckoning there is expected hourly.

More than fifty villages have been recaptured by the French. The arrival of a Hungarian division on the west front is reported.

SUBJECTS OF THE PAINTINGS IN ST. PAUL'S, NORWOOD

The Norwood Register gives the following description of the paintings in St. Paul's Church:

It is only a little over two years since the Rev. Father McCarthy was appointed to this charge, but in that time he has carried out a number of other improvements in the parish property, in all of which the same thoroughness and judgment with an eye to the beautiful is reflected.

The general colour scheme is of soft sienna tones, the deeper tints in the lower wall spaces blending in the frieze to a lighter and more olive tint which is delicately repeated in the ceiling panelling.

The ceiling has been set off in a gothic panelled scheme, forming a setting for five large paintings illustrating the "Joyful Mysteries" in the life of our Lord. The central subject, "The Nativity," shows the child Jesus in the manger with Mary and Joseph. The wise men in adoration are presenting their gifts of gold, frankincense and myrrh. Above, a group of cherubs rejoice at the happy event.

In the other subjects are portrayed. "The Annunciation," "The Visitation," a picture suffused with a soft evening glow, where Mary at the end of her journey to the "Hill Country" is met and welcomed by her cousin Elizabeth.

On the opposite side are "The Presentation," in which the High Priest receives, and turing, holds up the infant in the light from the Sanctuary. Behind Joseph and Mary are St. Anna and aged Simeon, who on his knees gives thanks for this day. Then in the "Finding in the Temple" the boy Christ is seen in one of the outer courts with the doctors.

On the north gable at either side of the altar are two large pictures, "The Crucifixion" and "The Ressurrection."

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—Floyd Gi... bons, war correspondent of the Chi... cago Tribune, who was wounded ... the reduction of the Marne salient ... Marshal Foch, and who arrived at ... "The Germans knew that the log... cal place for an attack to be made wa... along the western side of the salien... and for that reason made the line a... most invulnerable with their Prussia... Saw Nothing.

"Every day he allowed Germa... planes to come over and reconnoitre... They saw nothing, and so concluded... that the French had no troops t... spare for an offensive. The moment... however, that the Germans gave... away their plan of striking at the oth... er side of the salient and making ... play for Epernay, Foch gathered to... gether from distant parts of the line... 70,000 of the finest troops in the... FORTUNES GIVEN AWAY.

Culm, once considered waste by inhabitants of Hawley, Pa., is now being turned into dollars as quickly as trucks can haul it to the numerous factories and mills in neighbouring manufacturing cities. Culm, or small particles of coal, has for years been dumped wherever a large vacant field could be had. Coal companies were glad to get rid of it.

Unknowingly, many farmers were practically handed a fortune, for when the coal shortage made itself felt, the burning of culm was tried and the experiment proved successful.

Many farmers had piles 100 feet high, which are now being sold to trucking companies on a sliding scale, ranging from $2 to $3 a ton. Thousands of dollars have thus been made by those who several years ago would have considered themselves fortunate had the culm been taken away without any charge.—Wall Street Journal.

"SUPPLY AND DEMAND" MUST YIELD.

There is a striking example of the inconsistency of the authorities who contend that fixing the prices interferes with the "law of supply and demand" in the action taken by Mr. McAdoo as secretary of the United States Treasury, in his control of the price of money. If the "law of supply and demand" works anywhere it ought to be in the money market. But Mr. McAdoo puts a bombshell into the "law of supply and demand" by declaring that "the situation should be kept sound by stabilizing the rate at 4½ per cent. interest."

If we can stabilize the price of money why can we not stabilize the price of potatoes? If we can fix the price of wheat, why can we not fix the price of bread? If we can fix the price of steel why can our food not be reduced to a standard rate?

The profiteers can best answer these questions if they would. But the point for a foreseeing government to take note of is the fact that the uncontrolled rise in prices necessitates a corresponding rise in wages, and the vicious process continues to the satisfaction of no one but the middleman profitters who contributes least of all to the common good.

In the emergency conditions which prevail on account of the war there should be no more liberty given the profiteer than would be given to a wealthy man, in an open boat at sea with a shipwrecked party and a limited supply to provisions, to buy up everything in sight and deal with it for his own comfort and profit. In the open boat the "law of supply and demand" is nullified. Equality is the only principle to be observed. Our war conditions require the observance of the same principle as far as possible, and the fixing of prices is necessary for this purpose.—Toronto World.

AFTER THE PUBLIC SCHOOLS, WHAT?

Passing the Entrance examinations is the end instead of the beginning of the education of many children. They are too young to appreciate the advantages a Collegiate Institute, High school or Business College holds out to them. Perhaps they have lost interest in their studies or are allured by the wages the shops and factories offer them. Companions, already working, are well provided with money, spending it freely and exciting the desires of possession in youths who have only a small and irregular allowance from home. To them the future is an unknown and unsought land beyond their ken, and opportunity has not yet unfolded its meaning. They see and feel only the tangible present, and at that stage of their progress they need advice and careful direction.

Too often parents are satisfied to permit their children to quit school when they have reached only the threshold of education. A few of them demand that their children shall put away their books at fourteen or fifteen years, and almost any job receives the parental sanction.

All this is in an evil that should be discouraged as much as possible. There never was a time in this country when the education of our youth was so urgent. The war has taken the brightest of our young men, and the usefulness of countless others is impaired by their injuries. This fact should be evident to parents who in these days of the summer vacation may be tempted by temporary high wages to allow their children to remain at employment they secured during the holiday. Let them rather prepare for any conditions that may result after the war.

It is unnecessary to point out that the lack of home discipline, too much freedom and far too much money are war influences that have so distorted the normal ideas of boys and disarranged their habits that they may never recover the poise and steadiness that will carry them through the studies or occupations they would have passed under ordinary conditions. Hence, the school boy and girl who have just passed their Entrance examination should be encouraged and urged to enter the Collegiate Institute or Business College for their further education. Their ambitions should be aroused and enlivened, and if they have the first qualities of character it should be emphasized to them that the past four years have left many vacancies in the trades and professions for which they must prepare themselves.

Boys and girls have gone to the farms with a patriotic impulse that has carried them through long, hard labour to which they were unaccustomed. The same method of approach may be successfully used upon those who have become discontented at school. It is a very serious responsibility thrust upon the parents of today, and the laxness of home control is not an assurance that parental advice and exhortation will have the desired effects.

The Regent TAILORS

STRICTLY TAILORED TO MEASURE

Head Office: Toronto, Ont.

The Regent Tailors Open in Peterborough

WHAT THIS MEANS TO EVERY MAN IN THIS CITY!

The Opening of a Store by the Regent Tailors of Toronto at No. 186½ Charlotte Street is an event of importance to every man in Peterborough. It means the Saving of Thousands of Dollars in Clothing Bills every year to the men of this city, without the lowering of the quality of the Clothes worn. The man to whom the saving of eight or ten dollars on a Suit or Overcoat is a consideration, will have just that much more money to spend on other necessities of life. We can give you the greatest tailoring values in Canada because of the strength and buying power of the organization. We buy our materials in large quantities direct from the makers and we make your Suit or Overcoat in our own large Tailoring Shops in Toronto, in charge of the best experts money can secure. There are no middlemen's profits; no costly overhead expenses. You pay one profit only--and that a small one. In thus enabling men to be well dressed at small outlay, in helping to fight high living costs, we believe we are doing as important and as patriotic a work as any business house in the Dominion. This is the first opportunity the men of Peterborough have had to save money on Men's Clothes to Measure, and the promise of support already by scores of well known citizens is a bright augury for the success of this business.

OPENING DAY SATURDAY

Our Store will Open for Business at 8 o'clock Saturday morning and will remain open till 10 o'clock in the evening. For opening day we have selected an unusually fine assortment of Imported Tweeds, Worsteds, Cheviots, Serges, Heather Mixtures, Fancy materials in Checks and Stripes, all the very newest weaves in every conceivable colour and shade, Light and Heavy Overcoatings in Meltons, Oxfords, Homespuns, Ulsterings, etc., such a collection of materials as you would not expect to find outside the large cities. At $17.50 for Suit or Overcoat to measure they are simply astonishing values. It will give you a wide range for selection. After choosing your material we take your measure and your order will be made in Toronto, delivered to you at the time promised, and fully guaranteed to fit and be perfectly satisfactory, or money paid will be cheerfully refunded.

Suit or Overcoat

$17.50 TO MEASURE

WHY YOU SHOULD BUY NOW

Those who would make sure of securing their Fall Suit or Overcoat at $17.50 should lose no time in placing their order. Everyone knows how materials are soaring in price, how the Government has almost prohibited the exportation of woollens from Great Britain. It is only because we ordered months ago, in very large quantities, and at the prices then prevailing, that we are able to make Suits or Overcoats at this low price. How long we can continue to do so depends entirely on the condition of the woollen market, and any tailor will tell you that prices are steadily advancing. It will pay any man to buy all the clothes he needs without delay. While we are fully determined to keep down the cost of clothing to the very lowest point, it may be impossible to continue to offer Suits or Overcoats at $17.50 for any great length of time.

Help to Make "Opening Day" the Biggest Day in Our History by leaving your measure for Suit or Overcoat or both. We will finish your order any time you desire and will doubly appreciate your good will and interest. Remember that every Garment we make is Guaranteed to be Satisfactory.

"Acres of Diamonds" Formed a Fitting Close to Chautauqua

Dr. Russell H. Conwell Held a Large Audience Spellbound With His Eloquent and Logical Address— The Origination

SUMMARY OF ADDRESS

The lecture of Dr. Russell H. Conwell last evening closed Chautauqua week for this city. It was a most fitting close. A man with a clever, ringing and steady voice and black hair, he effectively falsified his real age. For said he "If I told you my age you might think that I dyed my hair.'

The Origination.

Dr. Conwell told most entertainingly how he came by the story that was the basis for "Acres of Diamonds."

While travelling in Persia with a party of Americans he was making his way up the Tigras and Euphrates rivers. They hired a guide at Bagdad—"the same Bagdad,' declared Dr. Conwell ."which the brave English took from the Turks so short a time ago."

The Guide's Story

This is the story the guide told: There once lived, not far from the River Indus, a Persian named Al Hafid, who was very wealthy, had a beautiful home and productive farm, and lived very happily and contentedly with his family. One day he had a visitor in the person of an old Hindu priest, who as he sat by Al-Hafid's fire, related the story of how the earth was made, stating that once upon a time our earth was but a huge bank of fog, and the Almighty one day stuck His finger in and whirled it around and around in a ball, then threw it away in space, where it gradually hardened and the crust was formed. The centre of this great ball was composed of fire. Then came copper, silver, gold and diamonds—Diamonds which were but congealed drops of sunshine, but with a handful of which, the priest told Al Hafid, he could gain his every desire.

Search for Diamonds.

Al Hafid, hitherto most happy of men, returned to rest that night most discontented and miserable, and at last, unable to stand it any longer arose at an early hour and woke the old priest.

"Tell me,' he pleaded, "how can I get diamonds? I must have them, or I will never be happy again!"

The priest (like all other priests), was a little peevish at being awaked so early in the morning, and told him to just go ahead and find them, that was all.

"But how? asked Al Hafid, "and where must I go?"

"You must find a river running through white sands between two great mountains ,and there you will find plenty of diamonds."

So Al Hafid sold his farm, left his family, and wandered forth on his quest for diamonds and all that they meant to his future happiness. For years he kept up his fruitless search, till at last, poverty stricken and despondent, he ended his existence in the sea off the shore of Spain.

Acres of Diamonds.

Meanwhile the man who bought Al Hafid's farm was prospering. One day he led his camel out to the brook at the back of the house to drink, when he saw in its depths a black stone, which, whenever the light caught it, sent out a myriad of rays. The stone was very beautiful, and the man picked it up and taking it in the house placed it on the mantel, from where it sent its rays of light into every corner of the room.

Some time later, the old priest chanced by that way again, and called at the farm as before. Immediately on being conducted into the house his eye caught sight of the beautiful stone and quickly going over to it he exclaimed, "Diamonds! Did Al Hafid then succeed in his search?"

"Al Hafid!" reiterated the owner of the farm, "Al Hafid has never returned. But that pretty stone I found out at the back of the farm in the brook where my camel drinks."

The priest revealed the value of the beautiful stone, and together they went out and scooped up handfuls of them.

"There are acres of them here," said the priest, "Acres of diamonds!"

Story With a Moral

And so there were, for from Al Hafid's farm came the most beautiful diamonds of the world—the Koh-i-Nor and others, and the famous Golconda ,mine sprang up,' and the purchaser of the farm Al Hafid had been so eager to relinquish in his lust for riches, became wealthy beyond his wildest dreams.

"The story had a moral to it," went on Dr. Conwell, "as all those stories had, though all were not moral, and this one taught the lesson of contentment, that if Al Hafid had stayed at home and been happy in his own possessions, he would have gained his heart's desire, but in his haste and avarice he overlooked the fact that it lay within his reach.

"It was a hint to me, too, though I would not show that I saw it, that I also, would have done better to stay at home."

The speaker gave numerous instances of the same kind, where owners of unbelievable treasures had sold their possessions in their mad desire to go out into the world in search of that which had been overlooked.

Local Salvation Army Corps Will Lose Presiding Officers.

Word has been received that Commandant J. A. McElhiney has been appointed to the chaplain service. Chief Thompson will lose a very helpful colleague in the person of Mrs. McElhiney, who has been Police Matron for over three years. Apsley Soldier Was Well Liked

Late Pte. Jones Was Member of 287th Battalion.

J. H. Beck, missionary at Apsley, has the following to say regarding the late Private William Jones, whose death in action was reported several days ago:

The many friends of Mrs. Anna Jones of Apsley, Ont., regret very deeply to learn the sad intelligence of the death from gunshot wounds of her son, Pte. William Jones, No. 1063054, who left with the 247th Battalion, from Peterboro, and was later transferred to the 116th Battalion. His only brother, Pte. B. H. Jones, was killed in action at Vimy Ridge, on the 12th of April, 1917.

Willie was always a boy that was kindly and affectionate and he will be greatly missed out of the home as well as by his many friends.

We all feel keenly his passing but do not doubt that he was a brave and true soldier and did his duty up to the last. The many friends extend their heartfelt sympathy to Mrs. Jones and her four daughters who have been made to suffer so much by this loss.

May God's abundant grace be given them, is our earnest prayer.

She's Willing.

Pearson's:—"Does your wife show any interest in the war?"

"Yes, indeed. She talks about it."

"What does she say?"

"Why, she says that she wishes I could go."

Corner Stone of Pontypool Methodist Church Was Well and Truly Laid Yesterday

Window of Old Charlotte Street Church Finds a New Home—Chancellor Bowles, of Toronto, Performed the Ceremony—Peterboro Ministers Were Present.

CONCERT HELD IN THE EVENING

A new chapter on the reconstruction of Pontypool was written into the village lexicon yesterday with the laying of the corner stone of the new Methodist Church. It is nearly two years since the old church was destroyed by a devastating fire that wiped out the business section of the town, including the hotel. Two fires have visited the village since that occasion, so that to-day Pontypool is but a shadow of its former self. With the destruction of the old church the congregation moved into the hall occupied by one of the local fraternal societies, and in November next the completion of the new edifice is anticipated by the building committee. Peterborough's interest in the new church that is beginning to assume material form on the site of the old building is represented by a large ornamental circular shaped window that forms the outlook to the eastern end of the church. The window was taken from the gable of the old Charlotte Street Church when that building was demolished and turned over to the congregation of St. James' Church. The old gable window has found a permanent home in the Pontypool church, and it constitutes a very acceptable background to the choir and pulpit.

The Absentees.

Sir Sam. Hughes and Hon. Newton Wesley Rowell were to have been present at yesterday's ceremony. They sent the usual messages of regret at their inability to be present, and, to all outward appearances, their absence did not in any way mar the success of the occasion. The Hon. N. W. Rowell has promised to be present at the dedication ceremony in November next.

The actual ceremony of laying the corner-stone was performed by Chancellor Bowles, of Victoria College, Toronto, assisted by Mr. E. Booth, who is conceded by the local residents to be the best mason and bricklayer in that part of the world, and Mr. N. D. Chambers, contractor. Within the hollow place in the stone was placed the usual collection of documents relating to current events, including copies of the press, names of the pastor, building committee and other local celebrities.

The service, which commenced at 4.30 o'clock, was in charge of the Rev. William Higgs, Millbrook, chairman of the district. Mr. Higgs gave a brief and concise address on the social relationship of the church to the community and its development.

Mr. Higgs was followed by the Rev. Mr. Benjamin Greatrix, of St. James' Methodist Church, Peterborough, who characterized the reconstruction of the building as an attestation of faith on the part of the congregation.

Rev. G. R. Clare, of Orono, was the next speaker. Mr. Clare congratulated the congregation upon the success of their efforts, and urged the assembly to make the church a social centre of community life.

The New Building.

Rev. A. McLauchlin, B.A., the energetic pastor of the Pontypool church, followed with a resume of the financial standing of the church. The new building is being erected at a cost of $6,500. Of this amount the sum of $3,884.50 has been subscribed, in addition to a "brick fund" of $294, making a total of $4,178.50. The Ladies' Aid Society of the church contributed five hundred dollars of the total amount. The building is a two-storey structure, including a cement basement. The exterior is pressed brick. When complete it will be a very attractive looking edifice, and will fill a long felt want in the community. The old building was a one-storey structure, and when erected cost in the neighbourhood of $2,300. Later on in the season it is the intention of the building committee to erect a shed at the rear for the accommodation of horses. All the work on the new building is being done by local labour, and the building, which is three parts complete, is a tribute to the skill of the workmen.

Rev. Mr. McLauchlin has been in charge of the Pontypool circuit for one year. Excellent and far-reaching results have marked his ministration among the people of Pontypool, and yesterday more than one member of the congregation volunteered an expression of appreciation of the good work being accomplished by Mr. McLauchlin.

Social Life.

"The idea of social life is beginning to possess us," said Chancellor Bowles. "I hope the idea will last. We have been rank individualists. I think sometimes this kind of talk is more needed in the country than in the larger centres. It is not because you take less interest in the church but rather due to social conditions. In the country we live farther apart and do not come in contact with each other as much. That is one reason why it takes us so long to get out of a country church. I think I would arrange a few shade trees outside the church and make a little park, so as to encourage the people to get together more. Do anything to foster the spirit of sociability. Such a condition is based on the common thought that God is ever present and is the owner of all things that are good."

The ceremony was concluded with prayer by the Rev. Montague Leigh, B.A., LL.B., of Fraserville.

In the Evening.

In the evening a concert was held in the Orange Hall, following a supper that was provided by the Ladies' Aid Society. Rev. W. T. Wickett, of Bethany, presided, and an address was given by the Rev. Montague Leigh. The musical portion of the programme was provided by a number of entertainers from Toronto.

The visiting clergy included the Rev. R. A. Whattam, of Mark Street Church, Peterborough, secretary of the Bay of Quinte Conference; Rev. B. Greatrix, of St. James' Methodist Church, Peterborough; Rev. William Higgs, Millbrook, chairman of the district; Rev. Montague Leigh, of Fraserville, ex-secretary of the Conference; Rev. W. T. Wickett, of Bethany; Rev. G. R. Clare, of Orono; and the Rev. J. G. Griffith, of Newtonville.

Mr. W. A. Jakeman, police magistrate of the district and township clerk, was also present at the ceremony.

The members of the Trustee Board of the church are: Messrs. Wesley Glenney, Robert Beggs, William Ridge, W. H. Hooper, W. H. Pollard, T. E. Cain, and J. Aldread.

SOLDIER'S KIT FOUND ON ROAD

E. R. Hatton is the Name Stamped on the Bag—To-day's Police Court.

Mr. R. Smith, of Toronto, while on the Buckhorn Road last night, about 7 o'clock, found a soldier's kit lying on the road. It contained a woollen blanket, a rubber blanket, and a pair of towels. It is altogether likely that it has fallen out of a buggy or some vehicle. The name appearing on the bag and printed on the towels was E. R. Hatton, Peterborough. The owner may recover his property by applying at the Police Station.

John McLarren, City, was assessed the usual $8.10 for speeding about 6 o'clock last Sunday.

PAGEANT OF THE ALLIES PUT ON BY PETERBORO CHILDREN

The Performance Was Well Carried Out and Was a Credit to Those Who Took Part.

EVENING SESSION

The "Pageant of the Allies" presented yesterday by the children of Peterborough at the afternoon Chautaqua was enthusiastically received, and the praise the little ones received thoroughly well merited, as the boys and girls did remarkably well after less than one week's preparation. The pageant was put on in two parts, the first a representation of the ancient way of seeking freedom when the girls danced and boys fought before the Godess Minerva to gain her favour. In the second the modern way of winning a war was represented by organized effects with thrift, Red Cross, etc. Several of the little ones representing Canada, United States, England, France, etc., answered the call of Liberty, and as each country appeared she brought in her own soloist, who sang her National Anthem. This pageant had a lesson for the little ones in giving them an idea of what is needed to win the war, and how each child, however small, may help. The children went through their drills admirably, showing that they had been interested pupils under an apt leader.

Miss Johnston, the instructress who arranged the pageant, was very capably assisted in her work during the whole week by Miss Margaret MacDonald, who played for the parts requiring music, Miss Lily Davidson, Miss Margaret Eastwood, Mrs. Harstone, Miss Marion Rush, Miss Collinson, Mrs. W. R. Morris and Mrs. H. Clayton, all of whom tirelessly assisted in the different branches.

Evening Performance.

The final programme of the Chautauqua was staged last night before a record audience, and the artists, Madame Florence Bodinoff, Danish prima donna; William Osborne, the boy wonder violinist, and Herbert Elwell, the noted pianist, proved that each were great artists in their chosen line. The performers were encored and re-encored repeatedly.

LINDSAY, Aug. 23.—One of the saddest accidents to happen in this vicinity was reported yesterday, when the ten months old baby of Mr. and Mrs. Marshall, of Toronto, who are spending the summer at Cameron's Lake, was sleeping in the hammock and had turned over, with its face buried in the pillows. When found it had smothered and life was extinct.

REABORO FARMER HAS BARN BURNED.

The fatal electric fluid created havoc and destruction once more on Wednesday evening during the storm, when the large new barn belonging to Mr. Melville Irvine, adjoining the village of Reaboro, was struck and destroyed at six o'clock Wednesday evening.

The large new barn, together with twenty-nine loads of grain, 10 tons of hay, implements and 1 hog was destroyed. There was some insurance on the barn but not enough to cover the great loss. It is a severe blow to Mr. Irvine as he has only recently been married and had only been farming for himself for a short time. The neighbours immediately rushed to the burning barn and aided greatly in getting the stock out of the building.

Capt. J. Sorsoleil Tells of Investiture With Military Cross

COBOURG, Aug. 22.—Eighteen-year-old Capt. Jack Sorsoleil, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Sorsoleil, of Toronto, who are spending the summer here, took with boyish dislike of display the honours conferred upon him, as this description of his investiture with the Military Cross will show. He says: "I went to Buckingham Palace in proper style, having hired a taxi for the occasion, and was admitted to the inner courtyard. All investitures in summer are held outside. We were taken into the palace and put our walking-sticks in the cloakroom. There were 50 of us altogether. From here we went into a large reception chamber and were lined up according to rank. This took about half an hour. We marched out in single file and found about 1,000 people present, and yours truly began to feel quite nervous and uncomfortable. Slowly we took our turns. The King was seated on a large platform and we marched up to him.

"Well, I walked up to him like an old pal, saluted and took a step towards him. He pinned the Cross below my wings. His Majesty asked me how many Huns I had, and how long I had been in France. These I answered without a falter, but when he asked me my age and wanted to know how long I had been a Captain I nearly died a natural death. I told him all and he was quite surprised that I had been a Captain at eighteen. His Majesty graciously congratulated me upon my work, and, according to the custom, shook hands with me. I saluted again and beat it. The King is much younger than he looks in his pictures, and is pleasant in manner. His voice is low and soft, and he puts you at ease as soon as he speaks. I was too excited to see the palace."

SLAYER SAVED FROM DEATH.

Ottawa, Aug. 23.—Clemency has been extended to the Governor-General on the report of the Minister of Justice to Jung Sam, a Chinese, sentenced to death for killing a companion, Chong Tew, at Parry Sound. Jung Sam was to have been hanged on Friday next. His sentence has been commuted to one of imprisonment for life. A plea of insanity was advanced at his trial, but the jury found a verdict of guilty of murder.

IS FINER THAN IN MANY YEARS

Thompson Says Tanlac Proved Its Great Value in His Wife's Case

"My wife has gained ten pounds by taking Tanlac and her health is better right now than it has been in eight or nine years," said George Thompson, a well known employe of the Belle Ewart Ice Company, residing at 94 Greenlaw avenue, Toronto, recently.

"The value of Tanlac," Mr. Thompson continued, "has been proved beyond a doubt to my mind by what it has done for Mrs. Thompson. She had been nervous and all run-down for a good many years. She had no appetite and never seemed to relish her food and her nerves were in such bad condition that the least little unusual noise would upset her. She could not rest well at night and would get up in the mornings feeling tired and worn-out. She looked pale, had no strength and energy and was hardly able to look after her household affairs. Her whole system seemed to be in a badly run-down condition and in spite of all she could do to kept going down.

"Seeing Tanlac so highly endorsed I decided to get her to try it and before she finished the first bottle she was feeling better and I could see good results. She is on her fifth bottle now and has improved until she looks like a different person. Her appetite is fine and that her food agrees with her is shown by her increase in weight and strength. Her nervousness has left her entirely, her worn-out, listless feelings are gone and she has more life and energy than in years. We are both delighted over her wonderful improvement and advise everybody in the condition she was to try Tanlac.

Tanlac is sold in Peterborough by W. B. Warne Drug Co., Ltd. In Havelock by A. C. Denike. In Lakefield by Tanner Drug Co., Ltd. In Fowler's Corners by W. A. Hunter. In Gelert by A. J. Scott. In Westwood by G.

Recommendation of Shop Committee Presented to the Board of Arbitration To-day

The C.G.E. Board of Arbitration entered upon the last stage of its work this morning when it received the report upon the question of classification prepared by Mr. Robert Dobie, Mechanical Superintendent at the C.G.E. plant and Mr. Alex. Murray of the Machinists' Union. In the sessions at the Court House, the Board received the statement of the men's demands, the evidence supporting them and the objections or suggestions of the company. The representatives of the two parties who were heard by the Board failed to agree on the proferred solutions of the classification problem. Finally Mr. Harper suggested that the company appoint one of three Toronto men, whom he named, to act with himself in tabulating a tentative rating of the employees, who are under consideration, which could be submitted to the Board for their disposal. The company objected to admitting an outsider to their plant, but made a counter offer through Mr. Merrick that Mr. Dobie and Mr. Murray constitute the proposed committee. This proved acceptable to the men, and accordingly the details of the much debated classification were carried out yesterday. Mr. Murray went through the Brass, Machine and Tool making departments and obtained from the employees for whom the classification was particularly desired, all the information regarding their ability, experience and the work they have been engaged at.

He took this list and data to Mr. Dobie's office, the status of each man was considered, and their suggestive report was laid before the Board this morning. Its contents have not been given out, but the fact that Mr. Murray and Mr. Dobie approved it would indicate that it will be eventually ratified by the Board.

Upon receiving the recommendation from Mr. Murray this morning the three members of the Board retired to a room in the Empress to deliberate upon all the evidence before them, preparatory to framing the report or award which will be forwarded to the Department of Labour from which source it will be made public.

Corporal Brady Returns Home

Peterboro Soldier has been Overseas Since 1914.

Corporal William Henry Brady, the first volunteer to join the Imperial forces from Peterboro, has returned quietly to Peterboro, after four years absence in France and England. Corp. Brady had served 15 years with the Sherwood Foresters, and when war came he rejoined his old Notts and Derby Regiment to go to France, and left in 1915. After three months without receiving a wound he returned to England, where he served in coast defence, with the Durham Light Infantry, and was in charge of the R. F.C. Landing grounds.

Far from being down hearted England, he says, is just going on in the same old way. Air raids are a thing of the past. There is no starvation, but there emphatically is no waste, since everything has become restricted. Corp. Brady's return trip was made in 12 days on an ocean as calm as a pond and without a sign of an enemy submarine. Landing in New York with 36 returned men, he said he had more trouble to get out of the States than he had to leave England.

BIBLE CLASS OF GEORGE STREET CHURCH TOOK IN CRESSMAN PICNIC YESTERDAY

An Enjoyable Time Was Spent at South Beach and Burleigh— A Presentation.

The members of the Co-Workers Bible Class of the George street Methodist Church, of which Mrs. Shields is the teacher, took in the Cressman picnic yesterday to South Beach and Burleigh. There were about 25 members and their friends. After an ideal sail up through the canal the party reached South Beach shortly after 12 o'clock. A most bountiful and appetizing dinner was served on the boat by the members of the class, which was thoroughly enjoyed by all.

Before rising Mrs. Shields introduced her friend, Miss Elliott, a Methodist deaconess, who is spending a few days with her, and who is on her way to Newfoundland.

Miss Elliott gave a very interesting talk on Deaconess's work.

Mrs. W. H. Cunningham was called on for a speech, but instead of making a speech, she read an address to a member who is leaving the city shortly. The address was as follows.

THE ADDRESS.

Peterboro, Aug. 22, 1918.

To Mrs. Thos. Rutherford,
Union Street:

Dear Mrs. Rutherford: It is with the deepest sorrow and regret that we the members of the Co-workers' Bible Class, of the George street Methodist Sunday School, learn of your departure from among us, and although we are unable to express in words the loss we are about to sustain, we feel we can not let the opportunity pass without uttering a few words in appreciation of you and your work.

We feel that we cannot let you go from among us without some small token of remembrance, which although small, we hope it will ever remind you of the large space you hold in the hearts and love of the class. We would ask you to accept as a slight token of our affection, this suit case, and wishing you all the good and all the happiness which makes life so well worth while. Signed:

J. M. Shield, L. Cunningham, E. Curtis, A. Allison, E. Rowe, S. Frederick, E. Lindsay, A. Rowe, B. Spencer, H. Dryden, E. Harrison, M. Hanbidge, Mrs. Whylie, Mrs. Stubbs, Mrs. J. Kendrey.

Mrs. Rutherford made a suitable reply, in a few well chosen words.

The sail home was delightful, and so ended one more of the many good times the class have spent together.

Hydro-Electric Commission is Ready to Sell the Street Railway And the Gas Plant to the City

The Hydro-Electric Commission has advised the city that it is ready to consider the sale of the street railway and gas plant. These properties were acquired when the Hydro bought up the assets of the Peterborough Light and Power Company, of which the Peterborough street railway was a subsidiary enterprise.

Citizens are now signing a petition to the Commission, asking them to make the extensions to the street railway that have been discussed and outlined during the past year. The announcement that the Hydro-Electric Commission is prepared to negotiate with Peterborough for the transference of the two public utilities to the municipality has probably no connection with the petition that will be carried to Toronto next week, but, nevertheless, it has the effect of anticipating the request embodied in the petition. The Commission has hitherto assured the city that it will retain these properties until Peterborough is prepared to buy them, but when the Mayor presents the requests for extensions next week, he may receive in exchange an offer whereby the city may buy the two utilities and extend or enlarge them, accordingly as the Council desires.

THE WORLD OF SPORT

THE RIVERSIDES TRIMMED THE ALL STARS LAST EVENING IN CLOSELY CONTESTED GAME

The Champs of the Twilight League Played a Fair Game—The Opposition Was a Little Light—The Play by Innings.

The Riversides may now be regarded as serious factor in the O. B. and A. A. series after defeating the All-Stars last night. The Solomonites had by no means their own way. The infield for the first innings was like a sieve and the All Stars took advantage of it and clouted the ball for four runs. Both pitchers were in trouble more than once and it was anybody's game. All through the nine innings.

First Innings.

Shaugnessy started the fireworks for the All-Stars when he found a hole in the infield and got safe on first on Cherrett's fumble. McLeod also got safe on an error but was out when he tried to steal second. Shaw hits theball and Kirn throws it to the plate but Shaughnessy is in safely. Jackson makes a beautiful hit and McLeod and Lowe score. Frost also gets a life on an error and Jackson scores. Legrow strikes out and Collins lifts a fly to the third baseman, Sheehy, the champs agile short stop knocks a grounder to the first baseman— out. Cherrett manages to get on the bases when the third baseman juggles his liner. Guerin, the big hitter of Tuesday's game fails to connect with Neary's slants.

Second Innings.

Only three men faced Kirn in this half, Neary's fly to centre is nabbed and both Shaughnessy and McLeod fan.

Both the pitcher and catcher try to catch Phelan's pop fly and of course both miss it. Murray is retired on a little fly. Kirn struck out and Murty ends the inning with a little pop fly.

Lowe Hates to Fan. He Seldom Does.

Third Innings.

Murty in the left garden made a beautiful running catch of Lowe's long hit. Shaw makes a single but is caught trying to steal second. Jackson is hit by the ball but Frost fanned.

Le Bar fans, Sheehy made a hit to short but is thrown out but McCarney levels one in the same direction and reaches first safely. Cherrett makes a single advancing McCarney third but Guerin ends all chances of scoring when he fans.

Sheehy is a Regular Trapeze Actor on the Bases.

Fourth Innings.

Legrow fanned, Sheehy robs Collins of a hit and he is thrown out at first. Neary knocks a fly to Lowe.

Phelan fanned, Murray fanned, Kirn struck out.

Fifth Innings.

Shaugnessy gets a life in an error and steals second. McLeod gets a single and advances Shag. to third. Lowe makes a sacrifice and McLeod reaches second base. Shaw and Jackson both are retired on flies.

Murty was out on a slow grounder to the pitcher. Le Bar fanned. Sheehy is walked and reached second after nearly the whole team tries to get him on the line. McCarney made a two base hitter and Sheehy scored Cherrett made a single and Guerrin retires the side when Shaugnessy catches his long fly.

Sixth Innings.

Murphy replaces Frost in the game and gets to first on a fast grounder. Legrow struck out. Collins gets a base when he is hit by the ball. Neary clouted the ball for a two-bagger scoring Murphy and advancing Collins to third Shaugnessy singles and Collins scored. Both McLeod and Lowe fanned.

The All-Stars had their worst innings in the last of the sixth when the Riversides scored five runs. Neary was erratic and Phelan, Murray and Kirn got bases on balls Murty singled forcing in Phelan who is out. Solomon batted for Lebar with the bases full but is walked thus scoring Murray. Sheehy gets to first on an error and the ball hits him while off first bouncing into the field and Sheehy later scores when Lowe falls to sleep with the ball in his hand. Cherrett walks and steals second but is caught trying to steal third. The score stood six—all at the end of the sixth.

Seventh Innings.

Shaw makes a hit and steals second. Jackson also singles advancing Shaw to third. Murphy makes a sacrifice and Jackson reaches second.

Solomon Feels Like This.

Legrow is caught out by Murray and Collins was out at first.

Guerin gets on a base when he is hit by the ball. Phelan gets on the bases by means of a bunt. Murray lands the ball and scores Guerin. Kirn makes a hit to short stop. Phelan is out at the plate. Murty scores Murray when he hits a fast grounder through second. Solomon comes through with a timely single scoring Kirn, thus ending the game.

TY COBB'S BRIGHT EXAMPLE

Ty Cobb says that he does not believe people want to see healthy young men paying baseball, when their sons and brothers are fighting in France. There is certainly much public sentiment in his favour. The trend of popular sentiment is for the useful man and woman. The shirker and the idler do not count these days.

With baseball and other sports being postponed on account of the war, the spare time formerly spent on these fields of action can be used in the harvest field. Harvesting is on, and men are needed on the farms. Lend a hand. Now is the time.

GOLF.

Players are reminded that tomorrow is the last day for the first round of the Hall trophy. Anybody neglecting to play before or on that date will be disqualified.

GOOD GAME FOR TOMORROW

Oshawa Will Play the Peterborough Champs.

The Champions of the Oshawa town league will play the Riversides at Riverside Park to-morrow afternoon at 3 o'clock. Needless to say this will be a good game. Oshawa has always made a good showing in the baseball annals and their team has certainly lived up to their reputation this year. Manager Jake Solomon anticipates a close game and if anything is little nervous of the result. This will be the first game in the Ontario Baseball and Athletic Association series and winner of this group including Peterboro, Oshawa, and possibly Lindsay will clash with the champions of Toronto City League. The Athletics and Wellingtons are well up in the race in Toron to but the league schedule does not close until September 4 and any team has a chance to nose into first position. The champions of the Eastern group versus Toronto will play the Champions of the Western group which includes Hamilton, Galt and other such wide-awake baseball towns. Jake has put his strongest line up in the field for to-morrow afternoon and the fans are promised a battle royal.

MUSIC IN THE HOME

PUBLIC SCHOOL CHILDREN TAUGHT PIANO IN CLASSES OF FOUR.

The cause of music in the public and high schools is well advanced in Schenectady, N. Y., where an efficient course has been mapped out and put in effect for three years now. The supervisor of school music there makes this comment on the piano classes in the public school which were undertaken as a practical contribution to the cultural life of the community. In the majority of cases they are patronized by the children of those parents who either cannot afford to pay the prices charged by private teachers or who avail themselves of the classes to discover whether their children possess sufficient talent to justify the expenditure of larger sums of money on private tuition. It will be readily seen therefore, that the private teachers look with favour on the classes since they are hardly affected by them except in the way of desirable increase in the number of their pupils.

Beginners are taught in classes of four, each child having his turn of fifteen minutes at the piano. Those who are not playing invariably follow closely the work of their comrade at the keyboard profiting by his successes and failures as well as by their own. The more advanced pupils are taken in classes of two, each having one half hour at the piano. In classes of four, each child pays twenty-five cents; in classes of two, fifty cents. With the beginners the effort is made to correlate as closely as possible the piano work with the music as taught in the grade school. This plan has proved of mutual benefit to both the piano and the school room music. With the advanced pupils the special aim is to prepare the interest and proficiency of the child so that he may continue his piano study after entering high school, receiving thereby credits toward graduation. Children who have no pianos on which to practise are permitted the use of the school pianos for this purpose, paying fifty cents per month practice fee. The amount necessary for the child to spend on buying music is reduced to the minimum.

Regarding the high schools. A pupil playing any instrument of the symphony orchestra may play in the high school orchestra as one of his regular studies. Members of the orchestra must (1) take one thirty-minute lesson weekly from approved private instructor, for the forty weeks of the school year, (2) attend one two-hour or three forty-five minute rehearsals weekly, (3) play at any entertainment given by the school authorities when requested. Two credits will be given for one year's work. Eight credits for four years' work.

A glee club will be organized with not fewer than sixteen members. Members must (1) pass an examination in voice and musical ability, (2) attend one ninety minute or two forty-five minute researals weekly, (3) sing at any entertainment given by the school authorities when requested. One credit will be given for one year's work. Four counts will be given for four years' work.

On this city children are also allowed credit in the school course for all music lessons, taken under private teachers, that conform to a set of prescribed rules.

DANGEROUS FIRE WAS AVERTED

A spark from a forge fire set to a workshop owned by James Bogue, contractor at the rear of his residence, 220 Dublin street, at 11 p.m. yesterday. There was a large quantity of saw dust and shavings in the shop and the fire would no doubt have done considerable damage but for the quick run of the fire brigade. Acting Chief Johnson's men promptly extinguished the fire and prevented it from spreading to the other wooden buildings which are numerous in this part of the city.

FISHING PARTY NOT BOASTING OF CATCH

The members of the C.G.E. Board of Arbitration may be efficient arbiters, but unquestionably they are poor fishermen. Around the Empress this morning there wasn't even a whisper of a fish story. No one was dilating upon how he hooked the sixth one, and the fabulous kinds that are almost but never securely landed. However, it was a very pleasant outing, and in yesterday's reference to the preparations for it, the personnel was incompletely reported. Mr. E. G. Patterson not only brought along his own car, but also another for the overflow. Hence there were not only Judge Snider, J. G. Merrick, Fred. Bancroft, Col. Watt, Mr. Harper, Mr. Patterson, Mr. Noble, but also the Union representatives who attended the sessions at the Court House. They were Tom Ogilvey and J. E. Kenney, of the Electrical Workers, and John Cairns, of the Machinists. Mr. Murray, the other Machinist, was engaged at the plant, while the rest of the group were off to the silent waters, where fish should have been waiting for those minnows.

Setting out for the city empty-handed, the party was filled with contentment and Col. Watt's well selected fruit. Labour questions were "old, unhappy far-off things," and the spirit of the moment might have been expressed in those familiar words, "Home James," directed to Mr. Patterson, the host.

Heavy Crops Are Reported From the Nearby Townships

Reports from the country side around Peterborough bring the welcome information that the bulk of the grain crop has been cut and the most of it has been drawn into the barns. Threshing is in full swing, and the first yields are decidedly promising. Two loads of oats on a Smith farm belonging to a farmer named Miller, produced 101 bushels of grain, and Mr. Herb. McFarlane, at Mather's Corners, Otonabee, has threshed 50 bushels of barley to the acre. Although the fall wheat was a general failure, the grain that was planted on those fields in the spring shows an excellent crop, according to the information that comes from the townships. The corn crop is doing well, and there is every prospect of an abundance of ensilage.

It is stated that farmers have to pay $30 a day to the owners of threshing outfits, and that the gangs are all receiving unusually high wages.

CHASSEURS SEALED FATE OF LASSIGNY

FIGHTING HAND-TO-HAND.

Grenades, Mine-Throwers and Other Means of Trench Warfare Used.

WITH THE FRENCH ARMY ON THE OISE, Aug. 22. — The fall of Lassigny at noon yesterday followed five days of incessant fighting in the trenches of the old positions which were abandoned by the Germans in March, 1917. Grenades, mine-throwers and all other means of trench warfare came again into play, and hand-to-hand fighting took place frequently.

The Germans made a stout stand in Devitte Wood, which bristled with machine guns and made an almost impregnable position. A battalion of the famous Chasseurs, however, stormed the wood and took it yesterday morning, thereby sealing the fate of Lassigny.

While the officer commanding the Chasseurs, at the head of his men, and with a rifle in his hand, led them to the summit of the height to the east of Lassigny and planted the French flag there, an infantry regiment, advancing from Plessier-de-Roye, turned the famous Plemont height to the north.

A Gallant Exploit.

Thus Lassigny not only had fallen, but its possession by the French was made secure by the encircling of a strong position from which the Germans might have delivered counter-attacks.

In the fighting at close quarters, and while the Germans were pressing hard at one point in superior numbers, a French lieutenant fell while directing his men. The men were determined not to allow the body of the lieutenant to fall into the hands of the enemy. They had exhausted all their rifle and machine gun ammunition and grenades.

With nothing else to fight with they grabbed the picks used for digging trenches and drove back the Germans until the body of the lieutenant could be recovered.

Most of the fighting around Lassigny was in stifling weather, and men were seen in the trenches stripped to the waist throwing hand grenades and working the machine guns.

Housing Problem To Be Studied

Reconstruction Committee of Dominion Cabinet to Take Some Action.

OTTAWA, Aug. 22.—It is practically certain that some attention will shortly be given by the Reconstruction Committee of the Dominion Cabinet to the housing problem in Canada. The steady and continuous growth in the cost of building materials and labour has to a large extent stopped the construction of dwellings by private owners, and in the cities and communities where large numbers of people are engaged in the making of munitions the shortage of houses is becoming a serious matter.

In considering this question attention is also likely to be given to the problem as it affects agricultural production. The inability of farmers to secure labour is often due to the lack of housing facilities for labouring men and their families. In Great Britain a Government organization provides plans of standard types of houses for dwellers both in the cities and the country, and it is altogether likely that some plan of this kind will have to be undertaken in Canada.

Some time ago the Commission of Conservation recommended co-operation between the Federal and Provincial Governments and the municipalities in dealing with the housing problem. More recently the Ontario Government has announced its intention of loaning two million dollars through the municipalities to people who desire to construct small dwellings, and the plan has been well received. It is believed here that the other provinces are likely to take similar action and that the Dominion Government will in some way lend its assistance.

HOUSING SCHEME.

Government is Working out Details.

Toronto, August 23.—Plans are now being worked out by the Ontario government and the provincial housing committee to give immediate financial assistance to municipalities desirous of at once taking part of the $2,000,000 loan, Sir William Hearst said yesterday.

Since the announcement of this loan at five per cent., the government and the housing committee have been swamped with applications of private firms and individuals for a portion of the loan to assist in building homes. Sir William made it quite clear however, that it is impossible for the government to make loans direct to private corporations or individuals. The government will only make the loans to municipalities, and the local councils can enter into negotiations with the individuals who wish loans.

Henry Ford to Build Thousands of Whippet Variety For Government.

DETROIT ,Mich., Aug. 22.—A contract has been given Henry Ford by the United States Government for the construction of thousands of "whippet" tanks of the type playing such a successful part in the allies successes on the western front. The contract amounts to millions of dollars and the work will begin immediately. While the exact number of tanks, to be built daily, will not be made known, it is believed to be one of the largest war orders yet placed in Detroit.

A Large Section of Crop Has Been Stowed Away

A Lot of Threshing Has Been Done in the Open—Barley is Turning Out Good—Departmental Report on the Crop Situation.

WEATHER HELPS THE FARMER

The following is a summary of reports made by Agricultural Representatives to the Ontario Department of Agriculture:

Most of the barley and spring wheat and a considerable portion of the oats have been cut and stooked, and some threshed. More than usual of the threshing has been done in the open, owing to the favorable weather prevailing.

Barley is turning out a first class crop both as to the yield and quality. The yield will be well above the average, some fields going as high as 66 bushels to the acre.

Spring wheat has done so well that it is likely to become a more established crop with some who have been neglecting it. Marquis and Goose have been the varieties mainly grown this season.

Oats also are a bumper crop, and will be considerably over the average in yield per acre. Essex and Kenora report some fields running as high as 80 to 90 bushels to the acre. There will also be a fair crop of excellent straw.

Buckwheat on the whole gives promise of being a fair crop.

Peas for canning and seed purposes have done well, but the vines of the later varieties were affected by the drouth and intense heat.

CLOVER CROP.

Second growth of clover, which started well, has been somewhat checked by droth, but recent rains have helped conditions.

Corn has been growing remarkably fast during August, and with favorable weather should do much better than in 1917, or the preceding year.

Potatoes are not a uniform crop,but on the whole have done fairly.

The tubers so far are remarkably clean but the drouth has checked the growth. There are complaints of blight and other diseases but there is remarkable freedom from rot.

Field roots are not so promising as early in the season, being much in need of rain.

The fall wheat cut this summer, although very small in yield per acre, is on the whole of excellent quality, and will provide good seed for the new crop. The ground has been dry and hard for plowing, but considerable land has already been prepared for this fall's sowing. Tractors are very busy and have much work arranged ahead.

It is estimated that in the Sudbury District alone $50,000 worth of blueberries have been picked this season. Norfolk also reports that strawberries of the everbearing variety are now coming on the market.

CATTLE PRICES.

Prices paid for cattle sold to drovers and butchers range all the way from 10 to 15c a lb. Grade dairy cows have been in strong demand during the week at from $100 to $160. While the flow of milk has dropped off considerably it is about normal for mid-August.

Prices for bacon hogs have been keeping around $19 to $19.50 per cwt. according to locality.

Sheep have indeed come to their own. Good ewes are bringing $30 in Norfolk.

Poultry prices are beginning to advance.

The continued open weather of the summer has greatly eased the labour situation, and the harvest leave for drafted men has also helped to get the grain cleared off without undue rush. Women's work has also been of benefit in meeting the rural labour emergency.

USING OLD TIN CANS IN MANUFACTURE OF GAS

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, Aug. 23.—A French prisoner, who escaped from the Germans and returned to his own lines, told a story of having been forced by the Germans to work in an asphyxiating gas factory. The Frenchman said the Germans now are using old tin cans in the manufacture of one of their gases.

Home comfort in all weathers

The Sunshine Furnace is a never failing source of pleasure, satisfaction and home comfort.

CATTLE MARKET

Receipts at the Union Stock Yards this week are as follows: 329 cars with 5,439 cattle, 514 calves, 2,156 hogs, and 3,250 sheep and lambs.

Trading during the past week has been comparatively quiet; Monday there was an unusually heavy receipt of medium cattle, the quality being rather poor, with a demand for choice heavy steers that could not be satisfied adequately. Buyers and sellers were quoting and bidding between rather wide extremes, but in actual sales prices were easier. Hogs remained at last Saturday's price — $19.50—fed and watered. Lambs were easier, selling down to 20 cents; light sheep and calves steady at 14 to 15 cents.

On Tuesday some of the packers were inclined to pay higher prices for lambs with the result that the few head on sale were forced from 50 cents to a dollar higher. Hogs continued at $19.50, but the sale was comparatively light. Prices remained steady in all other branches.

Wednesday saw lambs go 50 cents higher, there being a light run at the yard. Quality of cattle was fair to good. Calves were a bit more firm in price, hogs remaining at $19.50, at which price only a few were sold, the drovers holding out for more money. On the whole trading was fairly active. A comparatively heavy run of cattle came in on Thursday considering the runs of the past few days. Plenty of sheep and lambs were received, hogs being more scarce than usual for a Thursday. Choice, fair and medium cattle continued steady in price, the best stock bringing $15.25 per cwt. Lambs were found to be much easier, selling down to $20.50 for choicest stock. Calves, on the other hand, brought as high as $17.50 in many sales. Hogs still stood at $19.50, the packers declining to pay more, with one exception. The market closed the week with prices quoted as follows:

Highwaymen Kill Truck Driver Who Was in Charge of $60,000 Worth of Silks

Then They Abandon Loaded Truck —Posse Searching Jersey Counties.

HELPER THREATENED

NEW YORK, Aug. 23. — Lying in wait beside a lonely road between Bound Brook and Cranford, N.J., three highwaymen held up an automobile truck loaded with $60,000 worth of silks and shot and killed the driver. After driving off with the loot they later abandoned the entire load near the village of Aldene and escaped.

A posse of police, deputy sheriffs and citizens are scouring Somerset county headed by C. A. M. Beekman, prosecutor; William Nash, chief of police of Bound Brook, and Detective George Patten.

Charles Hilbert, the slain chauffeur, accompanied by a helper, Frank, Meyer, was driving the truck from the Newark offices of Kaltenbach & Stephens, at No. 56 Bigelow street, to the factory of the firm, at Allentown, Pa. The men were unarmed. When they had reached a bend in the road just west of Bound Brook the three highwaymen suddenly sprang from the roadside. Meyer as dragged from his seat by one of the men and led off into a bit of woods. The two other bandits attempted to drag Hilbert from the truck, but he put up a fight.

Got Away.

According to Meyer, he heard one of the men threaten Hilbert and then he heard two shots. Meyer's captor ran away. When Meyer reached the roadside the truck was whirring down the road in a cloud of dust. Nearby lay the body of Hilbert, a bullet wound through his back, his face and head badly beaten up.

Meyer ran to a farm house and telephoned for help. Chief Nash and Mr. Beekman hurried to the place in an automobile, and, on finding the body of Hilbert, sent in a general alarm.

Meyer was detained as a material witness so that he could tell more of the affair. The body of Hilbert was removed to the morgue at Somervill, at which place Meyer is being detained. Hilbert was thirty-six years old and has a wife and six children in Allentown.

Later in the evening another truck belonging to the firm hauled the load of silks back to the Newark stores of the company. Meantime the search for the bandits continued. The only description of them seemed to be that they looked like foreigners.

MILLBROOK BOY KILLED IN ACTION.

Mr. Stanley Carveth has received the sad message that his son, Sergt. Lawrence Carveth, had been killed in action.

Lawrence Carveth was born in Millbrook 22 years ago. He was bright at school and after matriculating decided to try out the banking business, at which he was very successful, having been teller at Youngstown. But the bank had no hold on him when his country's call came to him, and he enlisted, trained, and went over to do a man's part in the great war. He was wounded at Vimy Ridge. When convalescing, he applied to get into the Flying Corps, but was not accepted. As soon as he was able he returned to France.

More wash materials than ever will be used for children's school dresses in the fall.

Removes Wrinkles and Refreshes Tired Faces

As the skin tends to expand in warm weather, causing wrinkles to form, a good astringent-tonic lotion should be used these days. Dissolve an ounce of pure powdered saxolite in a half pint of witch hazel. Bathe the face in this and see how quickly the wrinkles and furrows will disappear—and how much younger you will look! There's nothing better for sagging cheeks or double chin, or for enlarged pores.

Use this simple lotion during the heat of the day and you will find it wonderfully refreshing. You will lose that wilty, tired look. The ingredients of course are perfectly harmless. Be sure to ask the druggist for powdered saxolite.

FOOD BOARD FLASHES FOR FEMININE FOLK.

Are you slowing up on your food conservation programme because the harvest is at hand, and we have had reassuring news from Britain?

Don't!

Just remember that the Allied Food Controllers, meetin gin London some weeks ago, passed a resolution to the effect that increased production, rigid economy and the elimination of waste of all kinds, must be continued. Large emergency drafts may have to be sent to Europe. It is impossible to tell yet how the harvest crops will turn out. We must build up reserves for all we are worth on this continent. There is not an ounce of superfluous food in Europe and there is actual starvation in countries which have been over run by the Germans. We cannot afford to abate our efforts a whit.

AT THE MARNE.

The Marne was full of Huns, 'tis said
Of good Huns—that is, good and dead.
It was a Marneful sight to see,
So quoth the Crown Prince, moodilee;
"Ah, 'tis no time for mirth nor laughter,
The cold gray dawn the Marneing after."

Sun Burned Skin

You want a healthy summer tan. But sometimes you get it too quickly and then there is a few days of suffering.

The application of Dr. Chase's Ointment takes out the stinging and burning and leaves the skin delightfully soft and smooth.

Because it is equally effective in relieving stings of insects and ivy poisoning as well as chafing and skin irritations it is invaluable in the summer camp.

Food Board Flashs

For once in his life Dr. Johnson was check-mated when he made the remark that they fed oats to horses in England and to men in Scotland. He promptly met with the retort that Scotland was famous for its men and England for its horses.

Oats in various forms has been the staple food of some of the sturdiest people in the world. Although not extensively used on this continent in the past, the increasing demand for wheat substitutes is bringing oatmeal and oatflour more prominently before the Canadian public.

In bulk, oats is the greatest of all cereal crops in the world to-day, although in weight it is surpassed by several others.

With Fingers! Corns Lift Off

Doesn't hurt a bit to lift any corn or callus right off. Try it!

For a few cents you can get a small bottle of the magic drug freezone recently discovered by a Cincinnati man.

Just ask at any drug store for a small bottle of freezone. Apply a few drops upon a tender, aching corn or callus and instantly all soreness disappears and shortly you will find the corn or callus so loose that you lift it off with the fingers.

Just think! Not one bit of pain before applying freezone or afterwards. It doesn't even irritate the surrounding skin.

Hard corns, soft corns or corns between the toes, also hardened calluses on bottom of feet, shrivel up and fall off without hurting a particle. It is almost magical.

Ladies! Keep a tiny bottle on the dresser and never let a corn or callus ache twice.

Strength of Eggshells.

Most people are aware of the power of eggshells to resist external pressure on the ends, but not many would credit the results of tests recently made, which appear to be genuine. Eight ordinary hen's eggs were submitted to pressure applied externally all over the surface of the shell, and the breaking pressure varied between 400 pounds and 675 pounds per square inch. With the stresses applied internally to twelve eggs these gave way at pressures varying between 32 pounds and 65 pounds per square inch. The pressure required to crush the egg varied between 40 pounds and 75 pounds. The average thickness of the shells was 13-1000 inch.—London Globe.

"The Girl Who Had No God"

By MARY ROBERTS RINEHART

Author of "The Man in Lower Ten," The After House," Etc.

Hilary Kingston had been shot.

Old Hilary had been a familiar figure in the village of Woffingham for years. The eccentricity of his gray derby hat, his beetling gray brows, his always fresh gray gloves, his erect, rather heavy old figure, singled him out from the mass of commuters that thronged the city trains. The gray derby was a part of old Hilary. Except on those rare occasions when he attended service at Saint Jude's he was never seen without it.

He lived on the hill above the village, with his daughter—had lived there for ten years. The Hall was beautiful, but old Hilary received no visitors, returned no advances. Visitors thought this curious. The villagers, prosperous business men with smart wives, shrugged their shoulders. The man's house was his own. If he found that he could do without the town, the town could get along without him.

There was no mystery about the Hall, and little curiosity. Cars going to the country club passed under the brick wall of its Italian garden. Their occupants sometimes caught a glimpse of Elinor Kingston there, reading in a rose arbor, wandering among her peonies and iris in the spring, or cutting sprays of phlox in midsummer.

The men thought her rather lovely; the women, odd, with her blond hair and dark eyes. The assistant rector of Saint Jude's, new come to the village, met her face to face on one of his long country walks, a month or so before old Hilary's death, and could not forget her.

He led the conversation to her that night at a dinner.

"An exquisite face," he described her, "but sad, almost tragically sad."

"Blondi" the lady on his right was a Mrs. Bryant. In honour of the new assistant rector, who came of fine family and was a distinct acquisition to the village, she wore the Bryant pear-shaped pearl. She spoke rather curtly. "I should not call her exquisite—but you probably met Elinor Kingston. Her sadness is a pose, I believe; she has everything she wants."

The assistant rector was young, but very wise. So he spoke no more of Elinor until the women had left the table. Then he ventured again.

"Don't join the army of those of us who worship from afar," advised the youth who had moved up beside him. "She's the loveliest thing in this part of the country. But, except our sainted rector, no one ever gets to put a foot on the place. It's exclusiveness to the nth power, and then some. There's a lot of talk, of course, or used to be. Old Kingston brings his servants from New York, and except an elderly housekeeper, none of them speak English. They used to say around here that he was a refugee, but that's all rot. He's a stingy old dotard, afraid some handsome youth like myself will captivate the girl. That's all there is to it."

The assistant rector, whose name was Ward, smiled perfunctorily. Instead of the gleaming table, spread with flowers and candles, with the gay colours of cordials and liqueurs, he was seeing a girl standing at the turn of a country road and gazing down into the valley and the distant village with sombre eyes.

Faith, hope and charity, and the greatest of these is faith. Faith in ourselves, faith in those around us, and that sublimest faith of all which trusts in Something Beyond. To all men is given such faith at the beginning of life, and some keep it to the end. But here and there is one who has lost it, who can not turn his eyes up and say "Lord, Lord." Old Hilary had not kept the faith.

Years ago he had not been evil. He had gone from philosophy into unbelief, that route which all must travel. But, unlike the many, he had not come back.

He had started with Socialism, but Socialism must be founded on the Christ, and Him he scorned. So from Socialism he had drifted to anarchy. To rob the rich and give to the poor, at first. Later on, to rob the rich, to incite seditions, to arm the rebellious—oh, it was comprehensive enough, vastly wicked with that most terrible lawlessness of all, that believes itself law.

To pit his wits against the world and win—that had been old Hilary's creed "For the oppressed" had been at first the slogan of the band he gathered around him. "Against the oppressor" it became later on. Vastly different the two. Most of human charity and kindliness lay crushed down and trampled underfoot during old Hilary's progress from Christ to Antichrist.

The band had been gathered with much care. Respectability, order, decorum—these spelled safety to old Hilary's astute mind. Most of them were younger sons of English landed families, with a sprinkling of other nationalities. Young Huff was an Australian, for instance, the son of a wealthy sheep-owner. Borday the Russian—implicated in the bomb-throwing that destroyed the minister of war—was a nobleman. Old Hilary had got him out of Siberia during those early days when he righted what, to his crooked mind, were wrongs.

There were twelve in the band at the beginning, and for five years there were no changes. Then came the kidnapping and holding for ransom of Mackintosh the banker in Iowa, and the unexpected calling out of the State militia. The band had hidden Mackintosh in a deserted mine and three of the band went down in the shooting that followed his discovery. In the looting of Tiffany's vaults, which has never been published, a Frenchman named Dupres was killed; and only recently a tire had burst after the holding up of the car of the Governor of Delaware, and their car overturning, had crushed Jerrold, the mechanic of the band and old Hilary's chauffeur. One way and another, there were only five left: Talbot and Lethbridge the Englishmen, Boroday, Huff and old Hilary himself. And old Hilary's hour was almost come.

Old Hilary lived well, as he might. His foreign servants were artists. He liked good food, good wines, good books. He even had a few pictures—from the leading galleries of Europe. He hung them in the house at Woffingham, with a cynical smile.

"Safest place in the world," he said to old Henriette, who protested. "The village has never even heard of them!"

And so in this atmosphere with which he surrounded himself, of fine living and wrong thinking, of atheism raised almost to religon, of no law and no Christ, old Hilary had brought up his daughter. He had been proud of her in his way; absolutely selfish, too. She had had no other companion. He taught her his unbelief, pointing out the churchgoers, as they drove together on Sunday mornings, as slaves to a myth. Also, he taught her to hate a lie, and to give alms. Early in her life their drives together had been punctuated with questions.

"But if my mother is dead, where is she?" asked Elinor on one of them.

Old Hilary had eyed her from under eyebrows that were already gray.

"She lives in the memories of those that knew her and loved her."

"But I never knew her. Then for me she doesn't live! But Mademoiselle—" she checked herself. Suspicion had been dawning in old Hilary's eyes.

"Death is the end," he said tersely, and quoted Darwin and Haeckel to her. But at the end of the drive he interviewed Mademoiselle, and sent her flying to her chamber, where from under the carpet beneath her bureau, she got her rosary and wept over it.

Elinor was twenty the year her father died, a slender girl, fond of flowers, rather a dreamer. Well educated, too. Old Hilary had seen to that; she knew Malato, Haeckel, Bakunin; spoke French and Spanish—Hilary had spent much time in Central America helping the insurgents; it was he who financed the insurrection in Northern Mexico—and wrote fluently the form of shorthand that her father had devised as a means of communication between the leaders of the band. A keen-eyed, wistful-mouthed slip of a girl, shut off in the great house on the hill above Woffingham; living her life of big theories and small duties, calloused to robbery and violent deeds, and viewing wistfully from her windows the little children in the road below.

WHOOPING COUGH.

Mr. Arthur Hainge, Ashton Farm, Perley, Sask., writes: "Two years ago whooping cough was very bad in this part of the country; our eight months old boy caught it and had a very severe attack. A neighbor advised the use of Dr.Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine and we gave it and nothing else with splendid results. When the older brother took the whooping cough we used this medicine promptly and prevented serious trouble, as the cough passed off in two or three days".

CHATHAM DEALERS REFUSE TO PASTEURIZE

CHATHAM, Aug. 22.—A demand was made to-day by the local Board of Health on the Provincial Board of Health for the lifting of the order providing for the pasteurization of all milk and cream sold in the city on the grounds that milk dealers refuse to submit to the drastic order and threaten to go out of business. An increase in price is also threatened.

A Desperate Sacrifice

By WALTER RAY DUNCOMBE

The man stood just at the side of the cashier's window, his eyes fixed upon the great heaps of money piled up systematically. They particularly lingered upon one bundle, the paper band upon which bore the notation "Five Thousand Dollars." He was pale-faced, attenuated of form, and the glow in his eyes was intense to the point of feverishness.

His tense pose, his nervously working fingers, the eager expression of his features indicated a covetuous desire and determination. A bold man, surely, for, while he might thrust his hand through the ungrated window and seize the bundle, he could never hope to leave the building undeterred, for as many as six police officers were scattered about the place.

Quick as lightning the lurking stranger shot out his arm. His fingers clutched the bundle. He drew from his pocket a piece of wire with a heavy leaden weight at either end. Deftly he inclosed the bundle within it. At that moment the teller turned and recognized the package in the hands of the thief. His hand reached out to touch an electric button.

Buzz-zz-z!

In an instant everyone of the uniformed guardians of the bank sprang into action. Precipitately they made a dash towards the source of the alarm call. The teller seized a revolver—the thief laughed in his face, disdainfully, selfishly. Then he lifted the hand with the weighted bundle, directed it at the street window and let go.

Crash!

Through the great pane went the package. A strange smile upon his face, the thief stood mute and unconcerned. Half a dozen pairs of official hands seized him.

One of the officers who had run outside returned, panting and exasperated.

"Had a pal out there," he blustered, "anyhow, someone planted grabbed the money as it hit the sidewalk and vanished."

"Now, you," began one of the officers, giving his captive a jerk, "what's this new wrinkle?"

"I'm tired," observed the prisoner baffingly. "I won't talk."

The officers led their unresisting captive towards the street. A bank official, notified of the robbery, interrupted them with the words: "Take him into the president's room and see if he can't get something out of him."

Calmly the thief sank to one of the sumptuous arm chairs in the apartment in question. He met the glance of the stern-faced head of the bank without flinching.

"My man," spoke the prince of finance imposingly, "it will make things easier for you to explain."

"Nothing to say," voiced the thief duply. "I've done a deserving deed and counted the chances. The doctor gave me ten days to live a week ago. I've discounted three days of freedom to benefit deserving ones, and I'm glad of it."

It was just as the bank was closing the next day, that a poorly dressed woman leading a little girl entered the place and asked to see its president. The manager advanced, drawing from under the faded cloak she wore a package.

"I read of the loss of money by your bank," she said in a timorous tone, "and I—I—found it, and have brought it back to you."

"Why, where did you find it?"

"I must not tell," and she started to depart.

A keen student of humanity, the banker discerned that his visitor was hiding something from him. He spoke in a more kindly and reassuring tone.

"Will you not explain matters a little more definitely?" he urged, his hand resting gently upon the head of the little child.

"If I will do that," she said, after a moment of hesitation, "will you pledge me your word that what I say will not in any way make it harder for the noble friend now in the power of the police? Gerald Wolfe—oh, sir, pity him! save him! He has suffered so much, he is not responsible. It was all done because his heart was torn with sorrow for my crippled husband, my dear little one here and myself."

Perhaps it was because little Corinne Weston reminded him of a child of his own, long since dead, perhaps the apparent poverty and distress of Mrs. Weston softened him, but tears stood in his eyes as she related a strange story.

Her husband, temporarily crippled, had taken in an old friend, Gerald Wolfe, a confirmed invalid. To their last morsel of food they had divided with this welcome helpless guest. A realization of their terrible situation must have driven Wolfe, with the assistance of a trusted accomplice, to rob the bank. At all events, Mrs. Weston had read the account of the crime in the newspaper and at once surmised that a package mysteriously placed and found by her in her kitchen was the stolen money.

"You will retain this money," spoke the bank president in an unsteady tone. "As to this Gerald Wolfe, I will see that he is cared for."

And he kept his promise, and in a sunny health-giving clime in the new home of plenty of the Westons, the man who had been willing to sacrifice himself for others knew peace, and comfort, and love.

HOW WOMEN AID FRANCE.

139,000 More of Them in Industrial Work than before the War.

Paris.—Women employed in all branches of industry in France number 626,000, according to an official report. This compares with 48,000 employed in normal times. This increase is due almost entirely to the employment of women in metal industries, chiefly in munition works. The weight which women can be required to carry in factory work is limited by law to fifty-five pounds.

Women are widely employed for the inspection of finished goods. They examine separate parts for automobiles, verify light shells, fuses and grenade plugs. They inspect the big shells externally and internally by the use of electric lamps, and they test the calibre, using the complicated measuring apparatus and microscopes. They nail up cases of all kinds, even the cases for aiplanes and automobiles. The women supervise the buildings where men are at work, and keep them clean.

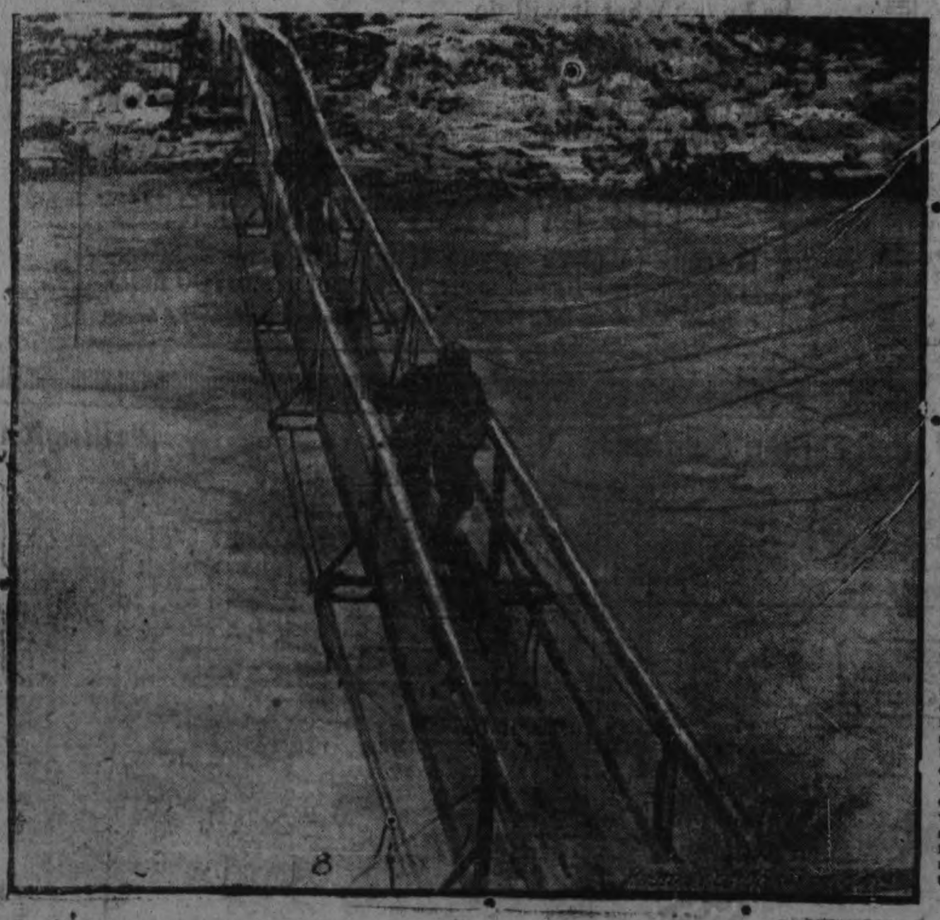
MYSTERIOUS SUBTERRANEAN CHAMBERS



8

THE Nakimu Caves at Glacier, B.C., whose mysterious subterranean chambers, washed out of the marble heart of a Canadian Rocky Mountain by a glacial river, are reached in summer from an Alpine meadow six thousand feet high, surrounded by beautiful snow-clad peaks, though the meadow itself is gay with flowers. In winter, however, the snow falls deep, and in early spring Mr. Deutschman, who originally discovered these caves, and who is employed by the Canadian Government to show them to passing tourists, has to prospect for the entrance, which may lie ten feet under a snow drift. All around are the tracks of wild animals which pass this way in winter over the Baloo Pass to the heights where only the keenest hunter is likely to follow them—grizzly bear, mountain lion, wolf, caribou, goat and mountain sheep. In summer, of course, the fiercer animals are but rarely seen, but the whistling marmots come and play around the cabin door, cheekily begging bread from the luncheon sandwiches, while overhead the eagle flies in tireless watch for his own prey. The caves themselves are entirely uninhabited, and so far no fish have been discovered in the waters of the river. Under the blaze of a magnesium ribbon, however, there is scenery enough, and to spare—the marble flowered walls contrasting strangely with the water torn floor. Up to the present no one has discovered what becomes of the torrent which rages through the caves. It does not find any exit in the Illecillewaet Valley below, but there are strange springs on the mountainside forty miles away, which Mr. Deutschman suspects to be connected with this subterranean river.

SMALL STORES need advertising as well as large ones. If the small dealer fears that his little ad. will be lost in a newspaper carrying large ads., he should be reminded if this were true, it would follow that his little store located in a city with large stores, would also be lost.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

A Schemer Foiled

By Florence Lillian Henderson

"I have resigned my position, Myrtle, and I am going away."

Myrtle Farr looked up at Archie Lane in dismay. They had been engaged for just a month and this news affected her gentle spirit as though the world had suddenly come to an end.

"But you are doing so well now. They have promoted you twice."

"Yes, Myrtle," interposed her lover, "before the new manager, Dorn Wycherly, took charge. Since then it has been insult, depreciation, and nobody with a grain of self-respect would endure the humiliation thrust upon me by this man."

"But why, Archie?"

"Plainly, because he hates me and loves you."

Myrtle's eyes flashed with indignation at the mere thought of anyone daring to dislike the man she loved.

"Oh, I am not jealous," proceeded Archie. "Everybody knows that he has tried to supercede me in your affections, that his attentions have been an annoyance, but he has boasted that he will drive me away from here. I am going to seek a living elsewhere."

Archie left Myrtle in tears. On his way to the plant he stopped at the home of a widow where he lived, unchained his pet dog, Tiger, and gave him a rolled-up newspaper to carry. Tiger always liked to be endowed with some such trusty responsibility.

"You need not start at work," greeted him from the manager, as he entered the office. "The officers have deputized me to inform you that your services are no longer required."

"I discharged myself by mail last evening," said Archie quietly. "The letter should reach you this morning. I will place my desk and papers in order."

Tiger lay down in the corner of the office. Archie cleaned up his desk, drew his pay, whistled to Tiger, left the place and stopped at a meat market to get Tiger his usual package of meat, took him home and went over to see Myrtle again. There was surprise and speculation when it was known that Archie had left town. There was excitement before the day was over, when it was announced that a package containing several thousand dollars had been found missing from the desk of the manager immediately after the departure of Archie.

The package of money had really disappeared and apparently no one but Archie could have taken it. Wycherly gloated over the power that had come to him to ruin a rival. If the knave had been satisfied with scheming downfall of Archie he might have won out. Just as he was suspicious, envious and plotful, however, he was a thief at heart. He really believed that Archie had succumbed to temptation. Then it occurred to him how he might make something out of the situation. What he did was to falsify the collection returns of Archie so that they showed a shortage of over a thousand dollars, and placed the money in his own pocket.

It was two mornings later that Dorn Wycherly and the senior partner of the business were amazed to have Archie Lane quietly walk into the office.

"Mr. Boyden," spoke Archie, "only last evening I read in a newspaper the unjust charge of theft and embezzlement. I have come back to affirm my innocence. Regarding the package of money I know nothing. As to a shortage in my collections no one knows better than your manager here that they balanced to a cent the day I left."

"I know there is a discrepancy of over a thousand dollars," declared Wycherly, and was interrupted by the office boy, who came into the office, a number of banknotes in his hand.

"The bank says there is a discount on Canadian money, Mr. Wycherly," he said, and the latter changed color.

"Wait!" cried Archie, with sudden illumination of mind. "Mr. Boyden, I demand that you allow an inspection of those bills. If there are ten twenties they are a part of my last day's collections. I took them to accommodate a client who had received them by foreign mail. How comes your manager to have them when they should have been turned over to the cashier?"

"You can't go in there—there's a conference on," sounded outside at the door.

"I guess I will!" declared a stentorian tone, and the keeper of the market where Tiger received his daily supply of scraps burst into the room. "Say!" he almost shouted. "I've found that missing bundle of money. Here it is. I swept it into the dustbin two days ago, not noticing what it was, and was burning up the refuse when I examined it more closely."

"Why!" involuntarily exclaimed Archie—"Tiger!"

"What do you mean?" inquired Mr. Boyden.

"That Tiger must have picked it up from the desk here and dropped it when he got his meat bundle."

The surmise tallied with later investigation. The guilt of Wycherly as to the false returns was proved. He sneaked from town, a broken man.

"They have given me his place," reported Archie to Myrtle the next day, "and I guess we had better fix the wedding date."

Dinner by Daylight.

It seems incredible that anyone should object to the very sensible daylight saving plan whereby so many thousands of workers are presented with extra hours of outdoor enjoyment for all the outdoor months, to say nothing of the saving to the nation in coal, gas and electricity. But there are always objectors to every movement, and the objectors in this case appear to be the women who like to give dinner parties. Even a "little dinner" of six or eight people is apt to last over an hour, or an hour and a half of time and hostesses claim that it is impossible to make the dinner table look right by daylight. Flowers, silver and table decorations have not the same effect, viewed by the rays of the setting sun that they have under the subdued gleam of shaded candles; neither do the women guests look quite as charming by dying daylight as they would by candlelight or the soft rays of indirect electric light. And the provoking part of it is that Canadian servants will not accede gracefully to such a vital change in the domestic schedule—and in their hours of freedom—as an eight o'clock or half-past eight o'clock dinner such as is the rule in England, where daylight lasts late, would involve. Indeed, a newly established dinner hour of 8.30 would be sufficient cause for a riot in the average Canadian kitchen.

So the hostess these days must make the best of it and wait for October for the giving of conventional dinners, lighted harmoniously—and becomingly — by shaded candelabra and indirect gas or electric fixtures. Meanwhile a simple dinner table, with fresh flowers and windows wide open to the sunset glow, is not so unattractive after all; and tall candles in silver sticks may be placed on the table, ready for lighting the moment the outside light begins to fade. Society is getting away from artificiality these stern days of war, and dinner by daylight is one of the features of the new regime.

Mosquitoes and Malaria.

That the mosquito is a carrier of malaria is supposed to be a recent discovery, but it was suggested in a medical work written in Ceylon 1,400 years ago.

NOT LIABLE

A. O. U. W. Need Not Pay This Death Claim.

TORONTO, Aug. 23.—Two days after the death of a member of the A. O. U. W. a sister paid arrears of dues and later as sole beneficiary under her brother's will claimed to be entitled to collect on a life policy valued at $2000. The rules of the order permit of a member being reinstated at any time within three months by payment of arrears, but Justice Latchford, at Osgoode hall ed that a dead man was ineligible for reinstatement, as he could not pass another medical examination, which was compulsory. For this reason his lordship gave a verdict in favor of the A.O.U.W. lodge at Welland, which resisted payment of the policy.

In the Bois de Boulogne.

Italian officers, slender and dark, are swathed in close-fitting puttees and uniforms, while Serbian giants swing proudly along. We turn and watch the latter; they are seldom seen, their race is scattered, their numbers pitifully few. Belgians are everywhere and of many types—one thinks of them en masse as sturdy soldiers in khaki, each with a tassel swaying from his cap. Even the composite American offers a more concrete type — reminding one most of the colonials, but always more or less self-conscious. There was no doubt as to the resolution and enthusiasm with which they had plunged into military life in this fourth year; but the grip on rifle and sword was a bit unsteady as yet; palms were moulded more accurately to plough or axe, the habit of fingers was still too facile with pen or brush or lever. Raw as we seemed to the game, nothing but assurance of the ultimate worth and skill of these big, clean men ever came to one's ears from any of their allied brethren. One loved them all the more to see approaching groups searching nervously for any officer's insignia which they might miss. And for a lieutenant unconsciously to lift his cap to a fellow country-woman, was a delight —Atlantic.

German War Humor.

The following printed inscription on a Hamburg postcard received October 19th, 1917, was taken, say the London News, from the body of a dead German soldier. The original of course was in German:

Citizens' Receipt for Cooking.

Take the Meat Card, stir it in with the Egg Card and fry the whole to a beautiful brown with the Butter Card.

The Potato and Vegetable Cards must be cooked and the flour Card sprinkled in.

In order to quickly and intensively cook you place the Coal Card and the Spirit Card underneath the pan and light them.

For Dessert you pour boiling water on the Coffee Card and add the Milk Card to it, sweetening it to taste with the Sugar Card. After eating, you wash with the Soap Card and dry yourself on the hill.

Flour sacks make good dish towels.

RECKONING

With Waste In ADVERTISING

NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING offers the manufacturer the best possible way to eliminate waste circulation, for it enables him to advertise where he has and can get distribution. To sell goods profitably depends largely on ability to reach the maximum number of people at the minimum cost.

Newspaper advertising is the quickest and surest means of getting retail distribution. It shows the retailer that a wide spread demand is being created.

The dealer is always ready to sell products that sell easy. He is a reader and an advertiser of the daily newspaper, and is sold on newspaper advertising, for he knows what it will do.

You prove to the retailer you are doing the utmost to help create a demand for him; this is real distribution. You can expand at will, adding steadily to your markets making each a permanent stronghold.

The French Are Still Advancing

The Germans Are Resisting Desperately—Reserves Dwindling.

(United Press Despatch.)
(By Webb Miller)

PARIS, Aug. 24.—The unceasing push upon Noyon resulted this morning in the French improving the positions of yesterday. General Mangin continued the work of clearing the south bank of the Oise and Ailette Rivers.

The Germans are resisting desperately on the Divette River and north of Soissons. French troops are nearing the Soissons-Chauny highway, and are threatening to outflank the enemy at Chavigny (three miles north of Soissons).

Marcellutich, a military writer of the "Echo De Paris," declares the Germans have only 24 fresh divisions (288,000 men) left.

"Marshal Foch holds the cards," he says, "while General Pershing has not yet entered the ring."

LIEUT. JOAN ARNOLDIE GAVE A VERY INTERESTING ADDRESS

Speaker Represents the Field Comforts Commission—Attendance Was Not Large.

While the attendance last evening at Lieut. Joan Arnoldi's address on the work of the Field Comforts' Commission was not large, those who turned out on so threatening an evening were amptly repaid for coming, inasmuch as they heard some interesting details of the work of the Commission which is, to quote Lieut. Arnoldi, the hyphen between Canada and her men overseas. Lieut. Arnoldi was brought here under the auspices of the Progressive Club, which sends practically all their work to the Field Comforts' Commission.

The speaker, who wore the uniform of the Commission, was introduced by the chairman, Dr. Cameron, who spoke of the inauguration of the Progressive Club when the war was in its infancy. He paid a tribute to Miss Peck, who, he said, was in a great way, by her untiring efforts, responsible for the growth of the club to one of considerable importance.

Field Comforts.

Lieut. Arnoldi told of her connection with the Field Comforts, which dated from the days of Valcartier, when, at three days' notice, she was sent to England, quite unexpectedly, to carry on her work. From Valcartier she was sent to Salisbury and hence to Shorncliffe, where the Commission is still situated.

She spoke of the greatly increased efforts which must be made with the growth of the army. In spite of the increased army the Commission has kept in touch with the want of every Canadian soldier, and a record of every parcel and pair of socks ever sent has been carefully kept.

Assisted By Mrs. Clegg.

In speaking of the volunteer helpers, whose services to the Field Comforts have been invaluable, Miss Arnoldi made a grateful reference to Mrs. (Col.) E. B. Clegg, who had materially assisted while she was in England.

Careless Packing.

The speaker cautioned her audience against careless packing, and advised them to pack cocoa in more wrappers, as the factory wrapper bursts and proves a nuisance. Taffy is fatal; it melts in either hot or cold weather, and peanuts which have been shelled threaten spontaneous combustion. She asked particularly that all socks should be thoroughly washed before sending.

Some Figures.

Supplies received by the Commission in 1917 were most encouraging. Socks alone amounted to 260,428 pairs, cigarettes 18,477,222 boxes, sweaters and clothing 84,920, towels 799,921. Besides these figures, thousands of other necessary supplies were received.

Miss Arnoldi made it clear that the present is no time for slacking, as, instead of the original 40,000, we have an army five times as great to support. She paid a warm tribute to the many comforts sent by the Progressive Club to the Field Comforts.

Moved Thanks.

Dr. McNulty moved a vote of thanks to Lieut. Arnoldi, expressing the great benefit it was to hear one so well informed on the needs of the soldiers. Miss Peck seconded this.

ARBITRATORS GONE.

Their Award may be made Public on Wednesday.

The C. G. E. Arbitration Board has dispersed, and their award is expected to be made public on Wednesda next. Judge Snider left this morning for his home in Oakville, Mr. Merriok returned to Toronto, and Mr. Bancroft went to Ottawa last night.

Japanese Troops Stemmed the Tide

Cossacks and Czechs Bore the Brunt of the Fighting on New Russian Front.

CASUALTIES LIGHT

Special to the Examiner:

HARBIN, Aug. 24.—In the heavy fighting along the Ussuri River (north of Vladivostok) the Allies withdrew slightly before superior numbers until Japanese troops stemmed the attack. Cossacks and Czechs both bore the brunt of the fighting. British and French troops suffered light casualties. Bolshevik monitors on Lake Hanka (above Vladivostok) shelled the Allied left flank.

WAR SUMMARY

NEW YORK, Aug. 24.—The Associated Press this morning issued the following summary:

Overcoming enemy resistance with smashing blows, the Allied forces between Arras and Soissons are moving steadily forward. The menace to German positions on a fifty mile front increases hourly as the Allies take thousands of prisoners and inflict heavy losses.

On the north, having hurled the Germans from more or less important positions on a thirty mile front, the British are nearing Bapaume and threatening the outlying defences of Peronne. The fall of Bapaume, it is said, would be a disaster to the enemy. Field Marshal Haig's men now are but little more than two miles away on the north-west, having taken Achiet-Le-Grand and Bihucourt in determined fighting. West of Noyon the French have forced a crossing of the Divette at Evricourt, three miles from Noyon, and they maintain their strong pressure from the south and east. Between the Aisne and Ailette, north of Soissons, General Mangin's troops are pressing close to the heights dominating Chemin Des Dames from the west, increasing the menace to the German positions along the Vesle. The British third and fourth armies are fighting over the old battlefield of the Somme and are making marked progress in the fighting, which resembles in intensity the first days of the drive of July, 1916.

ARE CLOSING IN.

North and south of the Somme the British are closing in on Bray. They hold the heights to the northwest. South of the river they have taken two villages east of Bray, which lies on the north bank. In the area of Lihons the British are east of Herleville. From Chaulnes to the south of Roye the battle line remains unchanged. French and British guns are pouring a heavy fire into the enemy lines. Noyon is still in enemy hands, but its usefulness wanes as the French artillery bombards it and the armies of Generals Humbert and Magin move towards it.

RAPID ADVANCE.

British troops along the extreme northern sectors of the battle line in Picardy and Artois are advancing at a comparatively rapid rate. Their attack in the Albert region was continued early this morning. According to unofficial reports from the field the British have reached the village of Henin, on the Cojeul river, 5 miles south-east of Arras. They have advanced further to the south and are in the outskirts of the town of St. Leger. Advancing Britons appear to be closing in on Bapaume, the reputed keystone of the German positions between Arras and the Somme. The Germans have been forced to give up towns just to the north of Bapaume, while the British are reported to be operating just to the west of the town.

LIGHTNING STRUCK THE PARSONAGE LAST EVENING

Home of Bridgenorth Pastor Had a Narrow Escape—Other Damage.

BRIDGENORTH, Aug. 24. — A very heavy thunder storm followed by a heavy rain passed over the village last night. Lightning struck the Methodist Parsonage, occupied now by the Rev. Mr. Webster. Mrs. Webster and her two daughters were the only ones at home at the time. The lightning struck the chimney destroying it and tore off a lot of shingles from the roof and broke off some lath and plastering in one of the bedrooms, but did not set fire to the house.

One of the balls on the lightning rods was burst open on Percy Udy's stable, but otherwise no other damage was done.

Germany Objects to Spain's Proposal

Spain Will Replace Sunken Spanish Tonnage by Interned German Ships.

HUNS PROTEST

Canadian Press:

AMSTERDAM, Aug. 24.— Germany has energetically protested against the intention of Spain to replace sunken Spanish tonnage by interned German ships, according to an official statement issued in Berlin. The Spanish Ambassador at Berlin had been instructed to inform the German Government that Spain will utilize German vessels now in Spanish ports in place of Spanish ships sunk by German submarines.

Peterboro Boy Commends the Work of Y.M.C.A.

Sergeant Bert Hamilton is Disgusted With Recent Criticism.

Mrs. John Sanderson, Braidwood Avenue, has received the following from her brother, Sergt. Bert. Hamilton, who went overseas with the 33rd Battery:

"The most disgusting and discreditable thing going on in Canada now is the unfair deal which is being handed out to the Canadian Y.M.C.A. in France. We signallers have been following up the papers pretty closely, and it is all too evident that the people who are criticising the "Y" are going by what the Y.M.C.A. was in 1915 or 1916, as they had too small a capital to put on a big front street display at the start.

"The Y.M.C.A. means a great deal to us out here, more than you can imagine, and, besides, the idea of the G.W.V.A. to replace the Y.M.C.A. with a liquor canteen for us is a thing most of us should fight against. However, we are helpless in that respect, as they only ask our opinion when they want a Premier elected, who runs a chance of being defeated. This summer is one of the best I have spent in France, due to the clean sports got up by the 'Y.'

"Will close now, hoping I have not wearied you,

"Bert."

GEORGE STREET METHODIST CHURCH ORCHESTRA OUTING

Mr. W. H. Cunningham, leader of the George street Methodist orchestra, entertained the members of the orchestra, about 25 in number, at the parsonage. Owing to the inclement weather, the intended trip to Chemong, was cancelled, and tea was served on the verandah. Mr. Bert Heard, Mr. Roy Powell, Mr. Walker, Mr. Parsons and Mr. W. H. Cunningham, loaned their cars for the occasion, and gave the young people a trip around the city.

Special Features at Braundport Service

Quartettes will also be sung by Mr. and Mrs. Ford and Mr. and Mrs. Naish. Mr. R. C. Braund will lead the service. Every one is invited. Last Sunday the attendance was 81.

THE WEATHER

Yesterday was a warm day for the latter part of August, and was reminiscent of some of the days of the hot wave of last July. Ninety degrees in the shade was the highest reached. As usual, the hot day was followed by a thunderstorm in the evening. The rainfall, however, was not heavy. — W. P.

AMERICAN AIRMEN IN BOMBING RAID

(United Press Service.)
(By Frank Taylor.)

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, Aug. 24.— American airmen dropped thirty-six bombs on Conflans this morning. Six direct hits were made not far over the northwest portions of the railway yards, blowing up military stations. All machines returned safely.

The Americans made ten direct hits at the railroad at Conflans yesterday.

Germans Are Still Retiring

Several Infantry Dashes Have Occurred in the Past 24 Hours.

(United Press Despatch.)
(By Fred S. Ferguson.)

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMIES IN FRANCE, Aug. 24. — The Vesle front is buzzing with local infantry operations which are possibly the prelude to a German withdrawal.

The bombardment of the American rear areas has slackened and numerous fires can be observed between the Vesle and the Aisne, suggesting that material and small ammunition dumps are being burned. Half a dozen sharp infantry clashes have occurred in the past twenty-four hours. In one instance the Germans and Americans attacked at different points practically at the same time. A general mix-up followed, companies and platoons fighting in the open.

EGGS TOOK A DROP TO-DAY

Butter Remains at About the Same Price.

Eggs took a drop this morning at the market and sold at from 46 to 48 cents a dozen. Butter remained stationary at 50 cents a pound generally, while some few sold at 48 cents.

Chickens brought 28 cents a pound and ducks 30 cents. New potatoes sold at 30 and 35 cents a peck, cucumbers 10 cents a quart, corn 15 and 20 cents a dozen, beets, carrots and onions at 5 cents a bunch.

Damage by Last Night's Storm

The storm last night did comparatively little damage to the surrounding country, and only one case of lightning striking was reported. At North Monaghan a stook was struck and burned. All the early apples were blown from the trees, and in some parts the grain was blown down.

BILL WHITTY WAS KILLED IN ACTION

Pte. G. V. Whitty, of Stirling, Ont., former star hockey player, is reported killed in action on Aug. 9. He was on the all-star junior O.H.A. team of 1913 and 1914, and in 1916 was a member of the Belleville team, runners up for the intermediate O.H.A. championship, which was won by Sarnia. Pte. Whitty was then in uniform and went overseas, being wounded at Passchendaele Ridge, Nov. 7, 1917. He went back into the trenches in March of this year, and was killed in the present offensive.

Whitty played in the old Trent Valley Hockey League, and also with the local T.A.S. lacrosse team.

A pretty dress for the little girl is made with skirt of blue chambray and waist of dotted percale, the dots matching the blue of the chambray.

British Forces Are Still Advancing on a Wide Front—Many Prisoners Captured.

VILLAGES TAKEN

WITH THE BRITISH ARMIES IN FRANCE, Aug. 24.—(By the Associated Press).—A large number of cannon, including complete batteries of howitzers and trench mortars, have been captured by the British north of the Somme. Immediately south of the river the British have taken twelve cannon. The village of Behagnies, two miles and a half north of Bapaume, on the Bapaume-Arras highway, has been reached by the British. British forces are operating east of Bihucourt, within two miles and a half of Bapaume on the west.

British forces are reported to have reached points east of Henin, on the Cojeul River, five miles south-east of Arras. They are in the outskirts of St. Leger, further south, and have captured Ervillers, two miles east of Courcelles. They are still advancing.

Heavy Fighting.

The British fourth army is on the outskirts of Bray, where heavy fighting is proceeding.

Tanks participated heroically in the fighting yesterday, it is reported. One engaged in duel with an enemy battery and silenced the German guns. Another group of tanks co-operated with a group of airplanes when the latter attacked German anti-tank guns which had been strategically located at the head of a gully through which the tanks had to go. One tank suffered seven direct hits, and all the crew was wounded except the pilot, who kept the monster running, finished off the machine-gun nest and brought the wobbly, badly damaged tank and his wounded comrades back safely through the rain of fire.

British troops hape pushed forward to within more than a mile and a half from Bapaume, it was learned this afternoon. The third army progress continues, and it has advanced in some places to the depth of four and a half miles.

"Peterborough Presents Possibilities Unsurpassed."

SATURDAY, AUGUST 24TH, 1918.

A USEFUL SIGN.

In these days when automobile accidents are becoming so frequent it is worth while to draw attention to a very useful sign which is being used in Rhode Island with good results, and to suggest that Canada should adopt it. As has been well said concerning it, it should make the speed-maniac ashamed of himself, and tend to the safety not only of pedestrians but of automobilists themselves. "Thank you it reads. Preceding it, is a request to "Please Go Slowly." Then as one rounds the curve stands out the polite signboard. And if a man has come whizzing around, disregarding the courteous request, it ought to make him rather ashamed of himself.—Kingston Standard.

IRISH BLOOD FLOWS STILL.

Mr. Floyd Gibbons, the Chicago Tribune's war correspondent, who has just returned from France, tells of the fighting qualities of the 69th New York Regiment, "The Fighting Irish," which became the 169th Regiment of the "Rainbow" Division. A French General, probably General Mangin, had planned to hold a line for ten hours, after which the troops were to retreat three kilometres. "That line never retreated, and the General has not yet had a chance to work out his strategy," Mr. Gibbons said. "He has decided that you can start the Americans fighting, but you have to let the privates decide when they are going to stop."

The first American casualties following the advance from Chateau-Thierry included a large percentage of Irish names. A short time ago one day's list in the New York Times read like the roll call of the A.O.H. In an almost unbroken succession they followed thus—Lieut. Patrick J. Dowling, Corporal Joseph A. Dunigan, Corporal Frank Doughney, Privates Francis I. Kelly, Thmas Brennan, John J. Conroy, John J. Conefry, Thomas B. Kelly, Patrick Hackett, and so on. The old Irish regiments may lack reinforcements from Ireland, but Irish blood flows freely when some of the American regiments go over the top.

A LESSON FROM OUR WAR EFFORT.

Canada's reaction to the industrial panic that seized the country in the first months of the war has been a development that is not fully realized by the people who have witnessed it. In a pamphlet issued by the Director of Public Information at Ottawa, under the title of "Canada's War Effort, 1914-1918," one of the most impressive sections is the review of the achievements of Canadian industry during the past four years. It is sketchy and statistical, but the bare summary is an absorbing recital of accomplishments that were undreamed of when the war clouds chased manufacturers to cover.

The story of the development of the munitions industry may be contained in the statement that the value of the British Government's contracts in Canada for shells totalled $1,200,000,000. The total number of shells produced was 60,000,000, the workers engaged on war contracts was between 200,000 and 300,000, with an additional 50,000 in handling stores in transportation and other collateral organizations.

It is safe to assume that before the war not a single shell had been turned out in this country, and yet, despite lack of knowledge, Canadian capital and labour combined forces so successfully that the Imperial War Cabinet has gratefully recognized the valuable assistance we have rendered. The experience should give courage to our enterprises after the war. In the last six months of 1917, of the total expenditure of the Ministry of Munitions, 15 per cent. was incurred in this country, and during the same time we supplied 55 per cent. of the shrapnel shells purchased by the Ministry. Not only was this huge industry created during the four years of war, but the efficiency of all its branches finds testimony in the absence of complaints of premature explosions or of lesser defects.

Recent evidences of the revival of the shipbuilding industry have been especially satisfactory. Contracts already let to Canadian shipyards total $70,000,000, representing 43 steel ships and 58 wooden ships, aggregating 360,000 tons. The most promising feature of the restoration of this manufacture is the assurance that it will not be interrupted by the cessation of fighting. Our resources and maritime facilities inspire the hope that this industry will regain its former estate. The manufacture of high explosives, of which 100,000,000 lbs. have already been produced, the birth of the aeroplane industry, and our enormous trade, are equally splendid contributions to the war equipment of the Allies.

In its essence this pamphlet is a tribute to Canada itself, to her people it is true, but especially to her wealth of natural resources. The first months of the war found us perturbed and alarmed. Industry was curtailed, capital entrenched itself as for a siege, and all the while events were rapidly shaping themselves that gradually revealed our latent strength, our inexhaustible resources and finally our ability to use them.

The foreword to the brochure on our war effort reminds us that all we have done may be but the prelude of a greater effort still to come, but it must also leave the conviction that we should look with a new confidence in ourselves and in our country to the return of peace.

The report that the Hydro-Electric Commission has suggested that Peterborough take over the local street railway and gas plant gives special interest to the following comment from the Toronto World:

Once more the annual report of the London and Port Stanley Railway shows results of the most convincing character of the success of public ownership principles when applied under intelligent management to transportation problems. After paying all charges and providing for all standard obligations there is a net profit left from the year's operations of over $23,000. Profits were also reported for the last two years, the three years showing over $68,000 profit. Besides this the City of London receives the substantial rental of $26,000 a year from the road.

When it was first proposed to operate the road in the public interest, as always happens, the most doleful predictions of failure and disaster were uttered, but as in other cases they have proven utterly baseless. Railways run in the public interest are, of course, not run for profit, but for the public convenience. The big dividends that would be turned over to watered stockholders are expended in providing better and more convenient service for the people. It is found that this policy pays, and the better the accommodation afforded the larger the patronage grows. The service on the London and Port Stanley road is luxurious compared with that given by most of the private roads, and the public are showing their appreciation by the increasing traffic this road receives.

ORILLIA PUBLISHER EXPIRED SUDDENLY.

Was Connected With the Business Life of the Town for 25 Years.

ORILLIA, Aug. 23.—Mr. H. T. Blackstone, publisher of the Orillia Times, passed away suddenly between 9 and 10 o'clock yesterday. While he had been in poor health of late, he was able to be at the office as usual on Wednesday, but suffered a partial stroke during the night. Mr. Blackstone has been prominently connected with the business life of Orillia since 1893, when he purchased the Times from the late Peter Murray. A native of Portland, Maine, and in his 65th year, he went to Winnipeg in 1885, and was associated with Mr. T. H. Preston on the Sun. Later he accompanied Mr. Preston to Brantford, and was advertising manager of the Expositor for several years. He is survived by his widow, one son, Mr. George A. Blackstone, who has been associated with him in business for some years, and two daughters, Mrs. M. R. Upton, of Peace River Crossing, Alberta, and Mrs. (Dr.) Kinsey, of Christie Street, Toronto. Mr. Blackstone was an elder in the Presbyterian Church. The funeral will be held to-morrow afternoon, and will be under Masonic auspices.

The hand of fortune often looks like four races.

WHAT OTHER EDITORS SAY

British Staying Power.

(New York Sun).

If the enemy thought that his two strokes of last spring, on the Somme and at Armentieres, had made the British harmless, he greatly misjudged and, underestimated the traditional staying power of the breed of men he faced. On the return trip at last, and renewed in vigor and confidence the troops so severely punished a few months ago are forcing the fighting in their turn.

Good Runners Themselves.

(Detroit News.)

Remember how the Germans were forever ridiculing the Canadians, the English and the Americans for devoting so much attention to athletics? And here they are themselves going crazy over cross-country running!

The Right To Be Idle

(Boston Transcript.)

The same convention which adopted this demand for the six-hour day also demanded for repeal of the law against idlers. Socialists are at least consistent. Six hours' work in the day would come so near to idleness that thelegislation against idleness must threaten the future liberties of the six-hour worker. The inalienable right to work as little as possible, even to the point of doing no work at all, must be maintained at all hazards.

Women Not Amenable to Discipline

(Hamilton Herald)

Mme Botkarova, the woman who organized the Russian women's "battalion of death," is candid enough to confess that she was wrong— that women do not make good soldiers, "because they cannot be thoroughly organized and are not amenable to discipline." Perhaps, after a few years, suffrage leaders will be making similar confessions.

England's Efficiency.

(Buffalo Commercial.)

No fault can be found with the efficiency with which England is doing her recruiting in this country. No other country that has nationals in the United States is making half the effort that Great Britain is, to see that all of her sons render patriotic service at this time. Britain is showing in this the same sort of tenacity and thoroughness she has shown all the way through. One of the real causes of the war was the mistake Germany made when she assumed the British bulldog had degenerated into a sleepy hound, sun-basking and fire-loving.

The Fighting Men.

(Le Midi, Paris, France.)

Let us acclaim the American soldiers, but never forget the British sailors without whom Germany would continue to utter sarcastic remarks on the vain menace and fruitless efforts of America. She already knows, and will know better to-morrow, all that this menace means. The day when the American army gains the big success to which we are looking forward let us pay homage to the British sailors, those unseen and silent conquerors who are guarding the seas for us.

HAS ASKED CROSS FOR RESIGNATION

No Other Changes Coming in Alberta Cabinet.

CALGARY, Aug. 24.—Premier Stewart, of Alberta, in an interview over the long distance telephone with the Albertan, from Edmonton, admitted that the rumour that he had asked Charles W. Cross for his resignation was correct. He added that he had seen all the other members of the Cabinet, and that there would be no other changes. He would say nothing about the reconstruction of the Government, or who would be successor to Cross, either as Attorney-General or new minister.

It is generally accepted here that the new minister of the Cabinet will be Hon. A. G. MacKay, one-time leader of the Opposition in Ontario. What re-arrangement or Cabinet changes will be made necessary is not yet known. Either MacKay, Mitchell or Boyle will be Attorney-General.

It is rumoured here that Cross will not resign, but will stand pat and allow himself to be put out, with the stray hope that the Lieutenant-Governor may suggest some sort of conciliation.

TO HELP UTILIZE BARLEY AND WHEAT.

Food Board to Recognize Flour From These Grains as a Substitute.

OTTAWA, Aug. 23.—In order to save for human consumption the large amount of wheat and barley which have been grown together this year in many parts of Ontario, and thus relieve the demand on wheat, mills are being prepared under the direction of the Canada Food Board for milling such mixed grains. Fall wheat was partly winter-killed in certain districts in Ontario, and it was found necessary to re-seed the land with barley. As a result many farmers will have mixed barley and wheat, which cannot easily be separated commercially except at undue cost. It is the intention of the Canada Food Board to standardize the flour manufactured from these grains, and to give it official recognition as a substitute for wheat flour. The aggregate production of these mixed grains is estimated at about 1,000,000 bushels.

Ashamed of Corns

As People Should Be—They Are So Unnecessary

The instinct is to hide a corn. And to cover the pain with a smile. For people nowadays know that a corn is passé. And that naught but neglect can account for it.

It is like a torn gown which you fail to repair. Or a spot which you fail to remove. The fault lies in neglecting a few-minute duty—just as with a corn.

Any corn pain can be stopped in a moment and stopped for good. Any corn can be ended quickly and completely.

All that is necessary is to apply a little Blue-jay plaster. It is done in a jiffy. It means no inconvenience.

Then a bit of scientific wax begins its gentle action. In two days, usually, the whole corn disappears. Some old, tough corns require a second application, but not often.

Can you think of a reason for paring corns and letting them continue? Or for using harsh or messy applications? Or of clinging to any old-time method which is now taboo?

Or for suffering corns—for spoiling hours when millions of others escape?

Can you think of a reason for not trying Blue-jay? It is a modern scientific treatment, invented by a famous chemist. It is made by a house of world-wide fame in the making of surgical dressings.

It has ended corns by the tens of millions—corns which are just like yours. It is easy and gentle and sure, as you can prove for yourself tonight.

Try Blue-jay on one corn. If it does as we say, keep it by you. On future corns apply it the moment they appear. That will mean perpetual freedom. A corn ache, after that, will be unknown to you.

PICTURES ARRIVAL IN FRANCE OF 36,000 AMERICAN TROOPS

Correspondent Tells of Midnight Scene When Early U. S. Flotilla Reached Port.

AMERICAN PORT, WESTERN FRANCE, July 25.—Twelve o'clock at midnight all lights out ashore and afloat, heavy rain squalls sweeping out to sea, and this great port dark and silent as the latest fleet of American transports and convoys—thirteen great ships, ten destroyers, thirty-six thousand fighting men and five thousand crew—creeps in from the Atlantic.

With an American army escort we had climbed to a high point on the sea front to get a glimpse of this first process in the gigantic military migration from America to Europe, the greatest the world ever has known, and then to follow it, step by step, as its vast and intricate activities unfolded up to the arrival of the men on the fighting front.

The wireless station had received a cipher message giving warning of the approach of the fleet. It had been hoped the arrival would be in daylight, with flags flying, bands playing and the sun shining as the American fighting men got their first glimpse of Europe. But this is no dress parade, said the Admiral, and there is no time for stage effects.

And so at midnight in the rain and darkness with signal lights showing for the first time since they left the other side, the huge flotilla moved in a long line of lights to the sheltered roadstead. There was the creak of windlass and chains as the anchors gripped.

Part of Mighty Stream.

And yet this midnight arrival in the darkness and rain is only one of the steady succession of great armadas coming every three and four days in the colossal American military influx which Secretary Baker gives at 275,000 men for a single month. These 36,000 men just in are the population of a good sized city; twice as many as we sent to Cuba for the Spanish-American war; about half the force Napoleon had at Waterloo when the destinies of Europe were in the scale.

And while this is one of the record debarkments, yet it is only a small part of that mighty stream coming in from the West. It is the unprecedented magnitude of such a military movement, across the ocean, in the face of submarines, that has thrilled the Allied world and broken the spirit of the adversary.

It was a stirring scene in the harbour the morning following as the transports unloaded their 36,000 men. The sky had cleared and the huge hulls of the transports loomed out of the mist, their funnels puffing black smoke, their sides painted with fantastic camouflage, and their decks rising like terraces crowded with khaki-clad Americans in their broad brimmed sombreros. The destroyers had drawn off and were lying bunched ten across. They looked diminutive besides the big ships, but their power showed in the glint of guns and the long, lean build like a greyhound stretched for action. Further back were the French warships.

All about were innumerable small craft, army and navy tugs, lighters, launches and a flotilla of fishing craft with their nets hanging to dry like huge sails of lace. Back of this water scene stretched the huge American warehouses, sprung up like mushrooms, until the whole front was black with buildings and more buildings.

Men Get First Sight of France.

The Americans found this port without any system of big docks. A few of the smaller ships can come to the docks, but the most of the unloading from the deep draught ships must be by lighters. The American commanders are planning to change all this, and soon the long breakwater will be linked to the land by bridges thus creating at a stroke a huge docking system by which the American troops will march straight ashore from the ships.

A lighter was now pushing off, with five hundred troops packed on it like the crowd at a holiday procession. The men were feeling gay, for they were about to step on solid ground again, and to have their first look at France; and besides they had the regimental band, which was sending the "Star Spangled Banner" echoing over the water. Every head was bared as the strains of the anthem went up. Over the men floated a huge dirigible balloon pointing out to sea in quest of a submarine. After it rose two hydroplanes like monster beetles and joined in the search for submarines.

Now the lighters were at the dock, and with the tide out the men climbed up twenty feet to the wharves. As they fell in for the march to camp they had an earnest, quizzical look, for this was the first sight these men of the New World were taking of the Old World—most of them from Iowa, Nebraska and the Middle West.

THOWS GRENADE 215 FEET.

American Ball Player Sets World's Record at Fontainebleau.

PARIS, Aug. 23. — That baseball is a fit preparation for one branch of the military service was shown recently, when Gordon Sarre, an American member of the Foreign Legion, established a new world's record at Fontainebleau for throwing the hand grenade.

Sarre threw the death-dealing grenade a distance of 70 meters and 50 centimeters, or nearly 215 feet. A few years ago Sarre was a baseball player on a preparatory school team in the United States.

The former record of 66 meters and 67 centimeters, made on the Fourth of July, is also held by a former baseball player named Shockers.

"EXALTED CAUSE"—HINTZE.

Is in Danger, However, Says German Foreign Secretary, Urging Unity.

AMSTERDAM, Aug. 24.—"Our cause is an exalted one, but it is in great danger," Admiral Von Hintze, the German Foreign Secretary, told a conference of German journalists in Berlin, according to the Cologne Volks Zeitung. He asked them to co-operate with him.

After asserting in what high esteem he held the press, the Admiral said:

"In these times the Government, the press and the nation must hold together with one aim—to win the war. If these factors do not hold together we shall be beaten.

"I am not at all concerned regarding attacks either on my person or against the Imperial policy. I am merely concerned with our cause. Our cause is an exalted one, but it is in great danger. I therefore call on you to co-operate."

The Foreign Secretary then had a confidential talk with the newspaper men, who represented the most important papers in Germany.

BRANTFORD'S MILK WILL BE PASTEURIZED

BRANTFORD, August 20.—Medical Health Officer Pearson stated here to-day that he proposed to insist on the City Council passing a by-law for the pasteurization of all milk delivered in this city as the only method of combating typhoid and restricting tuberculosis. The municipalization of the milk delivery system will be part of the by-law in order to prevent duplication and excessive cost.

If in Brantford, why not in Peterborough?

METHODS EMPLOYED IN LOCATING MISSING SOLDIERS FROM CANADIAN UNITS

The following are the steps taken by the War Office to ascertain whether officers and men who have been reported Missing are Prisoners of War, or, if not, whether any definite information is obtainable as to their fate:

(1) The Commanding Officer.

The Officer Commanding the Unit, before making his report, ascertains as far as possible from the officers and men present with the Unit, whether any reliable evidence is forthcoming. If not, he reports the soldier Missing.

(2) The British Red Cross and Order of St. John.

Lists of the the missing are supplied by the War Office to the Enquiry Department of the Red Cross, 18, Carlton House Terrace, London.

The representatives of this body are given facilities at the hospitals and camps at home and overseas to collect informtion from wounded soldiers.

Information so collected, if likely to establish the fate of the officer or man, is passed to the War Office and in the case of the rank and file is taken up officially without request from relatives.

In the case of officers these reports if sufficiently definite are also investigated, but the initiative is as a rule left to the relatives, since it is found that the relatives have in many cases received more reliable information direct from the officers of the unit.

Enquiries addressed to 18, Carlton House Terrace, London, S.W.1., will also be answered direct, and all reliable information collected will be communicated. The enquiry should give the name, Christian name, regimental number, regiment, battalion, company or platoon, and date of casualty. For Royal Artillery the Battery is necessary, and for the Royal Engineers and Army Service Corps the Company or other unit.

(3) Enquiries in Germany and other enemy countries.

Full lists of the missing are prepared in the War Office, and a large number of copies sent monthly to the Foreign Office for transmission through the good offices of the Netherlands Government to Germany and to other enemy countries. These lists are circulated through prisoners of war camps and hospitals and are accompanied by Forms on which evidence can be furnished regarding officers and men whose names are on the list. By this means in an appreciable number of cases, information has been received showing what has been the fate of the missing.

(4) General Remarks.

It will be seen that by these arrangements an endeavour is made to cover broadly the whole field of possible witnesses of the missing soldier's fate, and if he has unfortunately met his death upon the battlefield to place his relatives in possession of definite information upon the subject.

If on the other hand he is in fact a prisoner of war, news is in the great majority of cases received from him direct in the first instance by means of letters addressed to his relatives. In a few cases his name first appears upon an official German List, but unfortunately in a number of these, the list shows that he has died in hospital a few days after capture. In all but very exceptional cases, the news of his being a prisoner comes through before there would have been time for an enquiry to be sent to Germany, and for an answer to be received.

Individual enquiries sent to Germany in missing cases have been found by experience to produce no correct information that was not already in the possession of the War Office, and as the issue of the lists of missing ensures much wider circulation of the names, individual enquiries are not now sent.

The placing of the name on the missing list is done by the War Office automaticallly, and it is therefore not necessary for relatives to take any steps to ensure that official enquiries in Germany are set on foot. It is particularly requested that letters should not be sent to the Netherlands Legation or to the Foreign Office, as applications of this description cannot be dealt with there.

It should be noted also that the Prisoners of War Information Bureau, Wellington Street, London, is concerned solely with enemy prisoners of war, and can give no information concerning missing British soldiers.

It has been brought to the notice of the War Office that in certain cases, where relatives of missing soldiers have advertised in the Press for information, fictitious particulars have been supplied by impostors with a view of obtaining money. Relatives who advertise are warned to be on their guard against this fraud, and to refer to the Secretary, War Office, for confirmation of the information in all cases.

DEATH OF A SOLDIER SERVANT

.... (By Lieut. J. B. Morton.) ....

"In memory of L—— K——, 2nd. Lieutenant, 4t Battalion, —— Regiment, who fell in action during the Battle of the Somme, July 1st 1916; also of his faithful soldier servant, B——, killed while rendering aid to his fallen officer."

I came across those lines in my paper, and quite suddenly K—— was in the room with me. I was almost conscious of his brilliantly happy smile, and I began to remember things I had forgotten. It came as something of a shock to me that I had to search deep back in my mind before I could recall B——, as he used to be, always in the shadow of K—— following him, almost worshipping him. This is the story of those two as I remember it.

K——and his servant B—— had been together in France a long time. Many experiences of trench and billet they had shared, and his servant looked up to his officer with an admiration that increased as he knew him better. In a bombardment, or an attack, B—— was always to be found by the side of K——, holding himself in readiness to anticipate orders or even wishes. And K—— found him invaluable, and a companion as well.

One night at the end of June, the 4th —— marched up to the line and took over a trench in front of Thiepval. On July 1st the guns lifted at 7.30 and K——'s battalion clambered over the parapet and headed for Beaucourt, their objective. Close to K—— was his servant, following in his steps. They came under a terrible machine-gun fire; many men fell, but the remainder never faltered. In the forefront, erect and confident, went K——, and behind him, watchful and anxious, B——. A machine gun firing from a shell-hole enfiladed them, and held them up. Without an instant's hesitation K—— decided to rush the crew. He and B—— and two other men turned aside and darted towards the shell-hole. They had not gone far before K—— stumbled oddly, and fell, shot through the lung. Meanwhile the British wave swept on, while B—— knelt, and with feverish haste, tried to staunch the blood from K——'s wound. The two remaining men, one of them wounded, fought like lions to keep that gun from its murderous work; but B——, looking up, saw what would happen. He shifted his position, so that the pillowed head of his offecer was sheltered behind his own body. What he must have felt as he waited, nobody can ever know. It was a deed of absolute self-sacrifice, and in cold blood. There was none of the fever of battle to sustain him. He simply knew that his master had fallen ,and that he must do his best for him. The end was not long in coming, and when the stretcher-bearers, wandering over that tattered ground, came to where K—— lay dead, they found B—— lying hunched up, across the body of his officer; he was riddled with bullets.

Now for the Fall Garden

MAY PROVE MORE IMPORTANT THAN THE WAR PLOTS PLANTED IN SPRING.

The Autumn war garden is almost as important as the Spring garden, and in some respects more so. It is the Autumn garden that produces the turnips, beets, cabbages and other late vegetables that are stored away for Winter. Besides, many a gardener will have found that his Spring-planted beans, beets, chard, etc., have supplied him with only enough provender for the table, or that the drought of July burned up the beans that were to have been canned. There is still time to remedy some of these misfortunes if the war gardener will get to work at once.

Weather Bureau observations covering many years show that the first killing frost may be expected hereabouts on or near Oct. 25. The days between now and that date are among the best of the year for growing. The sun is usually hot and moisture is less likely to be scarce than in midsummer, so that seeds planted now will germinate in a few days where two weeks would be required in the early Spring. With a little quick-acting fertilizer applied to the rows, such as sheep manure or a half-and-half mixture of sheep manure and commercial fertilizer, beans, beets, turnips and rutabagas may be made to thrive without a moment's backset. As to what he may plant the gardener needs only to have before him a table giving the number of days required for the maturing of vegetables, and count back the number of days from Oct. 25th. Thus, bush beans, require from 40 to 65 days; beets, 60 to 80; cabbage, late, 90 to 130; cadrot, 70 to 100; cauliflower, 100 to 130; celery, 120 to 150; corn, sweet, 60 to 100; cucumbers, 60 to 80; kale, 90 to 120; lettuce, 60 to 90; parsley, 90 to 120; pea, 40 to 80; potato, Irish, 80 to 140; sweet, 140 to 160; radish, 20 to 140; spinach, 30 to 60; squash, bush, 60 to 80; tomato, 80 to 125; turnips, 60 to 80.

Hence, bush beans may be planted up to August 20, lettuce to September 1, kale to September 15, parsley to October 1; peas to Sept. 1; spinach to September 1; radishes to September 15; and turnips till September 1.

The food conserving interests are urging that every possible foot of ground be kept busy, that the garden be kept going till it's gone.

Early Vegetables.

ed the land should be planted a second time to something that will give returns during the Autumn months. Early peas, beets, onions, cabbage, lettuce, radishes and Irish potatoes may be followed by late crops of snap beans, navy beans, turnips, carrots, beets, late cabbage, kale, spinach, lettuce, and radishes. In many of the milder sections of the north such crops as spinach, kale and hardy varieties of onions may remain in the ground all the Winter.

Seedsmen advise that there is sufficient seed available to provide for an extensive planting of Fall gardens. The problem is to escape the drought of late Summer and yet to endure the crops before the weather becomes cool enough to injure them. If the land is dry at planting time it should be rolled or slightly packed over the seeds to insure an even start.

Gardeners uncertain of when and what to plant in Fall gardens are advised to consult experienced neighbours.

As soon as the raspberry crop is gathered cut out all the old canes, those which have just fruited, and burn them, so as to destroy any diseases and insect eggs or immature insects on them. The old canes will die in a short time if left, but in the meantime will rob the new shoots of much nourishment. When the new shoots reach a height of from three and a half to four feet pinch out or cut off the growing tip to cause the shoots to branch. Cut out also all the weak shoots, leaving only the strong ones.

Give blackberry bushes the same treatment.

Clean up the old strawberry bed for another year's fruiting unless a new bed was planted last Spring. If the rows have become wide and matted, run a cultivator with large pointed shovel through the centre of the rows to tear out the old plants, but leave the young plants at the edge of the row to make the new rows. If the matted rows are only moderately wide, run the cultivator or plow along one side, cutting down the row from one side only, and leaving the young plants on the other side. Either pull out or hoe out the weak and surplus plants, leaving strong plants from six to twelve inches apart in the new rows. Mow off the leaves of these plants at once. New plants will be produced by these to make new rows for next year's fruiting.

Give the new bed thorough cultivation.

Excellent jelly is made of blueberries.

Mr. V. J. Corkery Has Received Commission In the British Navy

The Admiralty report in the London Times of July 31st, announces that Vincent J. Corkery, of Peterborough has been transferred from the Royal Naval Canadian Reserve to the Royal Naval Volunteer Reserve with the temporary rank of Sub-Lieutenant. This promotion will be most gratifying news to Lieutenant Corkery's numerous friends in this city. It means that he has not only been received into the British Navy, but also that his services during the past two years have been recognized and rewarded with a temporary commission in the British Navy.

Lieutenant Corkery is the son of Mr. John Corkery, the local deputy post master. He enlisted in the Canadian Naval Reserve in November, 1916, and after a course of training at one of the English ports entered into active service in the channel and North Sea. He has been engaged in the hazardous work of mine-sweeping, and has also been with the motor launches which are constantly patrolling the shipping lanes in the English Channel. At the time of his enlistment Lieutenant Corkery was with the Bank of Ottawa at Parry Sound to which branch he had been transferred from Peterborough. The official announcement from the Admiralty Department states that his commission became effective on July 26th.

IMPORTANT CHANGES FOR GROCERY TRADE

Highest Price Increase Ever Known Prevails on Staple Products.

Important changes have been made in many lines affecting the grocery trade, says the "Canadian Grocer" this week. Corn syrups show an advance of 15c. case for the 2-lb. tins, with barrels up 1-4c. per pound. Sharp advances in corn, along with increased freight rates, have been factors in this increase.

Laundry starch and corn starch are up 1-4c. per pound. Condensed milk is higher by 25c. per case, and Reindeer coffee and cocoa are also up 25c. per case. Salt has reached higher levels, and macaroni shows an upward trend.

Latest reports on the canned salmon pack indicate that packers hope to deliver about 80 per cent. sockeye halves but only 10 per cent. talls. Pink salmon, chums and white springs, halves and talls, are expected to yield full delivery. Cohoes are mostly yet to pack, and deliveries are expected to reach 75 per cent. halves and about 40 per cent. tails. The present outlook is that the trade will have to be satisfied with the cheaper grades of salmon this year.

Advances in nutmegs, white pepper, herbs and cream of tartar in some quarters feature the spice markets during the week. Supplies generally on all lines are fair, with the demand nominal in accordance with season.

Cables contain advice of a sharp advance in filberts. Present cost shows an advance of about 50 per cent. The first cost to the importer today is higher than present selling price to the retail trade. Almond quotations continue high, while walnuts are very scarce and very high.

Highest prices ever known, it is said, now prevail on oranges, with little chance that easier conditions will exist for some time to come. Lemons are higher at primary points, though declines locally have been recorded.

An Age of Weak Nerves

"No heart for anything," is the cry of thousands of men and women who might be made well by the new, red blood Dr. Williams' Pink Pills actually make.

Misery day and night is the lot of hosts of men and women who are today the victims of weak nerves. Their pale, drawn faces and dejected attitude tell a sad tale, for nervous weakness means being tortured by morbid thoughts and unaccountable fits of depression. These sufferers are painfully sensitive and easily agitated by some chance remark. Sleeplessness robs them of energy and strength; their eyes are sunken, their limbs tremble, appetite is poor and memory often fails. This nervous exhaustion is one of the most serious evils affecting men and women of to-day. The only way to bring back sound, vigorous health is to feed the starved nerves which are clamouring for new, rich, red blood. This new, good blood can be had through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, which fact accounts for the thousands of cures of nervous diseases brought about by this powerful blood builder and nerve restorer. Through the fair use of this medicine thousands of despondent people have been made bright, active and strong.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all dealers in medicine, or may be had by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50, from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

CONTROVERSY IN POLICY.

Newspapers of Italy Separated in Two Factions—Comment is Bitter.

Rome, August 24.—The newspapers are having a rather bitter controversy over Italy's foreign policy. The Corriere Della Sera of Milan leads a portion of the press in attacking Baron Zonnin, the Foreign Minister, and says that he has not been sufficiently liberal and open handed in recognizing the claims of the Jugo-Slavs on the Eastern Adriatic.

The opposing group is lead by the Giornale d'Italia of Rome. It urges that Baron Zonnin must adhere to the agreement made in London in September, 1914, with the understanding that once Austria is beaten Italy will be generous in dealing with her eastern peighboure.

We Invite You To Inspect Our Advance Showing Of Fall Suits and Coats

A Very Complete Presentation of Suits

THEY are here. Our stock of New Autumn Suits is practically complete and we strongly advise you to make your selection as soon as possible. We have had extreme difficulties in procuring them but we feel perfectly sure that you will be delighted with our results.

Even in these abnormal times and considering the great scarcity of woolen materials, you will find our prices conspicuously moderate.

Tailored effects will reign supreme in Suits for this Fall and Winter and the simplicity of the Suits is what makes them so charming. You will notice in our display that we are featuring individuality, for in most instances we have bought only one of a style. They are styles which will fairly enwrap you with their distinction and attractiveness. And as for the fabrics, they are as good as they are good-looking. Come in and see them now.

Exclusive Models In Coats

THERE are two things that "Dame Fashion" insists upon in the coat that is really smart—the slender silhouette and a fur collar, preferably of the convertible variety that will button closely around the throat. For the rest you may do as you like, your coat may be panelled or gathered across the back under a half belt, it may rejoice in hip empiecements, in loose side panels, in an apron front or quaint little tabs at the back, and you will be equally certain of being modish.

About the length of the new coats, favor is equally divided between the three-quarter length and the full-length model. And for trimmings you must have fur, fur of all kinds is being used extensively in various ways—collars, bandings and even full panels of fur. Capacious pockets serve for decoration as well as for use.

Let us show you our comprehensive array of new models. We might talk volumes about their excellence and still fall short of adequate descriptions. On our Second Floor you may see them for yourselves in all their Autumn Grandeur.

Peterboro Children Assisted in Red Cross Society's Work

Results Obtained Through the Medium of the Supervised Playgrounds Work Hampered by Lack of Equipment.

"What will we do with ourselves next week?" was the question upon the lips of two hundred little ones who attended the closing of the King Edward Playgrounds yesterday afternoon, and the visitors looking at the results of their supervised play could not help but wonder too how they will settle down to back yards, and in many cases the street outside crowded flats.

Under the capable supervision of Miss Lily Davidson, who is experienced in such work, and is assisted by Miss Collinson and Miss Crompton, the children have learned to use their hands at profitable employment. Instead of wasted hours spent in stoning empty houses, and frightening their parents by their mysterious disappearance, boys and girls alike, ranging in age from one year to 13 years old, have for the past eight weeks, been located at the playgrounds learning to sew, weave cunning raffia baskets, to play unselfishly, and to swim.

The Ehibition.

The exhibition yesterday of the children's work was really remarkable. The baskets made up by them, without suggestion or pattern, andb cleverly worked out entirely by raffia, without suggestion or pattern, were stitch by which elementary sewing is taught, has been taught to the children in attractive and interesting ways by giving them pretty patterns and gaudy colours.

No Equipment.

Although hampered by having no equipment, sports such as baseball, volley ball, tennis and races, have been taught to the children in such a way that the effect is remarkable. No selfishness is to be found amongst the boys and girls and they have learnt the right spirit of being as good losers as winners. Twice a week during the summer Miss Davidson has taken the girls to the river, the boys to the Y.M.C.A. and taught them to swim.

Red Cross Work.

Outside of their play the little ones assisted in Red Cross work by neatly hemming 400 handkerchiefs for the soldiers. Every day the attendance has ranged from 50 to 75, while on a record day 210 came to sew and play.

Provided Refreshments.

The parents who to a great extent have also used the grounds as a recreation ground, yesterday provided refreshments of ice cream and cakes, which were appreciated by both the instructresses and children.

Millbrook Boy Likes the Life

Was a Member of the 247th Battalion.

The following letter has been received from Alvin Richards, a Millbrook boy, who is overseas in France. He was a member of the 247th Battalion, Peterborough:

France, July 23rd.

Dear Dad,—It is raining to beat the band now and the roof of our billet is not exactly water-tight. Just now it is a case of rain to left of me, rain to right of me, rain in front of me—pittering and pattering. However, it is not touching me yet, and we are thankful for our small mercies over here; (notice drops on paper).

We are in a different place to what we were yesterday. It was lovely weather for walking after the rain yesterday. Air quite cool.

Alvin Gray is in the 3rd Battalion, and Cole is in the 54th. I don't know where Harry Lord is, but hope is Jake.

So Bert Harness has married a nurse—lucky boy. I'll consider that when I get a blighty, may I? Perhaps it is not for you to say, eh? The latest war news is very good. Surely the Canadian papers keep you well supplied with news. Any I see give much fuller details than we get in France.

France is nicer than England in some ways. There is less red tape here, and the grub is better. As regards the country and people England is O.K., but give me Canada.

The Padre was giving us some jokes on the march yesterday. Here's one: "A number of bands had a competition to see which could play, the longest." The Canadian band won. It played "The Maple Leaf Forever."

No, I haven't been in Paris yet. A Paris "leave" counts the same as a "leave" to Blighty, and I would prefer the latter.

We see French people quite often. As people are the world over, some being good natured, while others are very much the opposite; so it is with the French.—Yours.

Alvin.

England's Greatness

Some fine words are put in verse about England's greatness, Prov. 14: 34.

I entered on a stately hall,
Through portals wide and high,
Where hung a picture on the wall
Which quickly caught my eye.
'Twas not a splendid work of art
By some great painter's hand,
But still it deeply stirred my heart,
To me 'twas truly grand.

'Twas just a Bible open wide
Portrayed before my view;
With gilt-edged leaves on either side,
And silken mark of blue.
Above the book in letters tall—
Inscribed in red and gold,
'Twas England's greatness that was all,
But oh, a truth it told.

Yes, England's greatness in the past,
And England's fame to-day,
Is not alone her riches vast,
Her culture nor her sway.
'Tis not alone her men of state,
Her heroes 'neath the Sod,
But what hath made the nation great
Has been her faith in God.

And England's greatness at this hour
In this tremendous fight,
Is faith in God's unfailing power
To crush the tyrant's might.
Her faith is not in weapons made
By human skill and strength—
For these alone without His aid
Will surely fail at length.

The noblest King upon a throne
Is England's King to-day.
Among the Christian nations known
Old England leads the way.
The bravest soldiers who have fought
Before the enemy's guns,
And who such noble deeds have wrought
Were England's gallant sons.

The Word of God has been her guide
In trial and suspense,
And God has been on England's side,
Her shield and her defence.
So long as England holds the word,
And pride and wrong doth hate,
So long will England's fame be heard—
So long will she be great.

"Righteousness exalteth a nation, but sin is a reproach to any people."—Prov. 14:32.

CREATE A LARGE CREDIT BY A SMALL DEPOSIT

When you take out a life insurance policy you are making the biggest bank deposit you ever made at one time. Did you ever put $5,000 through the receiving teller's window and say, "Credit that to my account?" Well, when you pay the first premium on a life insurance policy for that amount, you are really paying the first instalment on your new bank account. You have actually provided that entire sum—against the day that is coming to you some time—the one on which you will never get an extension of time. One Reader Favours the Importation of Labour

Peterborough, Aug. 23rd, 1918.

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—I beg to enclose you an article from "Toronto Saturday Night," which I consider well worthy of reproduction in your valuable paper, and I will be obliged to you if you can find space for it.

If as Marshal Foch says, "Coal is the key to victory," the sooner the other Cabinet Ministers at Ottawa stop playing at politics and fall in line with the Hon. Frank Carvell and get the Coltie labour, to get out the coal, to get out the steel, to get out the munitions, to beat the Hun, and to win the war, the better it will be for all concerned—except perhaps the profiteers.

Yours truly,
COMMON SENSE.

Coolies to Relieve the Coal Crisis.

The Hon. Frank Carvell is to be commended for his manly stand in respect to the importation of Coolies to see us over the labour crisis. Silly sentiment over the question of importing a sufficient number of Chinese to bring our coal mines and other necessary employments up to the point where production may meet the demand should not be allowed to interfere. Other members of the Cabinet have been "pussy-footing" over this question ever since Union Government took hold, but Frank Carvell is the only member with sufficient nerve to come out and express a view that the majority of them unquestionably hold, but for political reasons (and there was to be no politics in this Government) are afraid to express. Owing to inadequate labour our coal mines are not by any means producing the tonnage they should. The Nova Scotia mines have been on a steady down grade so far as production is concerned for many months, and there is no hope, with the labour now available, to better this condition. In the Canadian west the mines are also in a bad way from the same causes. We cannot hope for much relief from the United States, nor should we expect it. If their coal experts' figures are correct they are now mining in both the anthracite and bituminous fields just about enough coal for their own use, and what we obtain from them means just that much of a shortage in their own country. If our coal burning plants are silent and our homes cold the coming winter it will be the fault of our Cabinet Ministers who, unlike Mr. Carvell, refuse to face the crisis like men.

If France and England can import Chinese labour to help out during the war, why not Canada? The Coolies working behind the lines in France are reported to be giving splendid service at any work they undertake, and unquestionably the same results would be experienced here. Our coal miners are working short hours for huge pay, with the result that they feel that they can afford to loaf a good share of the time, with the result that production is far below normal. It is late, but not too late, to remedy the situation. Had our Cabinet done its duty these Coolies would long ago have been arranged for under indenture to go home when the war is over, and would now be on the job, making it certain that many of our big manufacturing plants, steel works for instance, will not be obliged to slow down or to close next winter for lack of fuel. Think what that would mean. It would cut down the country's production of war materials to a minimum, and would be felt in every community in one form or another. However, there is still time to get these Coolies on the job and speed up production where white labour has failed to do its duty.—Saturday Night.

LIGHTNING BOLT HITS SOUTH WARD HOUSE.

LINDSAY, Aug. 24.—Yesterday afternoon the residence of Mrs. John McIntyre, 24 Mill Street, was struck by a fierce bolt of lightning. Mrs. McIntyre was out of the house at the time and first noticed bricks falling to the ground. On investigation it was found that the chimney had been knocked off the house, the stove pipes were twisted and smashed and thrown on the bed, with soot and dust. The total line of pipes were wrested from the stove and whirled about the room. A neighbour woman, who was gathering vegetables out of her garden, was knocked down and dazed and men who were bowling on the green were stunned.

The HOME CIRCLE COLUMN

CHILD WELFARE.

Miss Julia Lathrop, chief of the federal children's bureau, in a recent address at a child welfare conference, said:

"We have been told times without number that the children of to-day are the citizens of to-morrow, and that unless we care for to-day's children we shall have a citizenship to-morrow that is not trained and equipped to meet the duties and responsibilities of citizenship. What we need now is to materialize this ancient and overworked statement into action."

One of our able exchanges most truthfully says that one of the best editorials on child welfare was spoken by a ragged youth in Chicago a few days ago.

A welfare worker making an inspection tour of one of the thickly settled districts. She found one lad in the street and walked up to him. His clothes were in tatters. His face was covered with dirt. His shoes were worn out.

"Whose's boy are you?" asked the welfare worker.

And the youth replied laconically, "Nobody's."

It is "Nobody's boy" that makes the real problem for the child welfar workers.

There are some youths who belong to the "Nobody's boy" group who have parents and who stay at their parents' home—but perhaps these parents do not take an active interest in the boys. In that case the boy is little or no better off than the youth who has no father or mother. Home, in order to be a home, must be something more than a shelter from rain and a place where meals are served. It must be a home where people live, where boys and girls may enjoy themselves, where lives are trained, where courses are shaped, where ambitions are fired, where troubles are shared by older people, and where a mother's arm can help out in a hundred and one ways.

"Nobody's boy" is a real problem—and it is just as much a problem in places where there are parents who take no vital and genuine interest in their children as it is in a place where there is no father or mother at all.

"Nobody's" — that is the poor child's answer to the question, "Whose boy are you?"

Organized child welfare bodies, well directed community clubs, neighbourhood houses—these and other institutions have the great responsibility of taking "Nobody's boy" and making "Somebody's boy" out of him.

Man, like the fire, is apt to torment women by going out at night.

A step taken for mother is a pearl dropped into your future diadem.

Of all places, praise should be most lavishly used in the family circle. How many of us keep all our words of kindness for strangers, for those in whom we have not one spark of vital interest; and to the hearts dependent upon us for sympathy and appreciation, have scarcely one cheery word.

Make every home where there are boys, cheerful, comfortable and enjoyable. Remember the good example, taught us by the best of books, let us kill the "fatted calf" for the prodigals. Then they will not frequent billiard and drinking saloons, but will love and enjoy the friendship of the fireside.

We never knew a man who was faithful to his early and adopted home who was given over at the same time to any gross form of wickedness. If you find more enjoyment in the clubroom, in the literary society, in the art saloon, than you do in these unpretending home pleasures, you are on the road to ruin.

All the elegance in the world will not make a home, and a spoonful of love exceeds whole ship loads of furniture and all the gorgeousness the world can gather.

After all that has been said about rare treasures of art and nature that may lend attraction to a home and its surroundings, it remains that the fairest home ornaments are bright joyous faces; and where these are wanting, all else goes for little.

The woman is the heart of the home. If she is cross, miserable and dispirited, there will be little life and true happiness within. Let her do her part, but let her refuse to labour beyond her strength. A wise, tender mother is of more importance than anything else in the world to young children. Let every mother train herself to a wise neglect of unimportant things that she may be to her own the embodiment of sympathy, hope, gentleness, charity, wisdom and love.

A little fun has a great effect upon the different characters of men and women. Martha—the Martha we all love—knows this and encourages it in her home. So sisters, if John is cross, if the children try your patience, if—well, if the stovepipe even should fall down (as ours did to-day), and everything goes wrong—don't worry. Worry drains the system and shortens our lives. Joy is the sunshine of the heart. Let's laugh and enjoy every moment of time as it passes. It's just as easy to be a leader as a wheel horse. If the job be long the pay will be greater. Be cheerful; don't worry; laugh at your troubles and your home will be happy and you will be the Martha who made it so. Try it for one year.

Wife and Little Boy SAVED BY DR. FOWLER'S EXTRACT OF WILD STRAWBERRY

Both Had Dysentery.

Dysentery comes on very suddenly and is one of the worst and most dangerous of all bowel troubles. The pains in the bowels become intense, the discharges occur with great rapidity, and are very often accompanied by blood. Unless these discharges are checked the sufferer becomes weak and languid, and very often death ensues. There is only one remedy to use in all cases of dysentery or any other looseness of the bowels, and that is "Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry."

It will cure where all others fail. It has been on the market for 73 years.

Don't accept a cheap substitute and thus endanger your health.

Mr. W. J. Metcalfe, Tofield, Alta., writes: "I wish to state that we have used Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry with good results. I will say that it can't be beat. It saved my wife and little boy last summer, when they were very low with dysentery. We always have a bottle of it in the house, and would not be without it if it cost five dollars a bottle."

The genuine "Dr. Fowler's" is manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont. Price 35c.

WOMEN ANSWER THE CALL

The Time, the Place and the Costume.

NEW YORK, August 24.—Isn't it wonderful to think of the vast army of women that is standing behind our army of men? Everywhere one sees posters of "The Women's Land Army of America," and the thousand and one other things that the women are doing so well. Just the one subject of the Canning Kitchens (that are being run by communities at large) is interesting from the scientific standpoint for the strides made in canning according to the instructions issued by the Government.

Of course, in this day of efficiency,

Work Suit of Khaki.

it would be ridiculous for the women to wear costumes that are suitable only for hours of recreation. Ruffles and furbelows are out of place in the kitchen, and so the working dress has come into a very prominent place in the wardrobe of the woman who is doing things.

Clothes—And the Hour.

Our time is all planned out, so much for the Red Cross, so much for the Canteen, so much for the Canning Kitchen and, of course, so much for our homes and the duties that we must perform there. Our wardrobes, too, are carefully planned. We have our Red Cross Apron and Cap, our Canteen Apron and Cap (for the cap plays as important a part as the apron these days) and the apron and cap that we wear in the canning kitchen. Then there are uniforms for women who are doing their bit in the munition plants, trim and without any unnecessary fulness whatsoever. There are service uniforms for women who are driving ambulances or motors for the transporting of troops. Each is different, and each is in itself an indication of the times.

When we work in our gardens (and of course we all have gardens this year, we wear a smock, perhaps, with a very short skirt and a wide brimmed sun-hat. Perhaps, however, we prefer bloomers as being less troublesome than a short skirt. It is all a matter of personal taste, and which we feel the most comfortable in!

Here is an illustration of a work suit for women, which has been adopted by the United States Government, to be worn in munition plants where flying skirts are a danger on account of the machinery. There is a cap to protect the hair, a blouse and trouserettes. The blouse is finished at the waistline with a belt, and the trouserettes button to this belt. There are quite as many pockets on this suit as on a man's suit, and they are in just the right places. Note the large hip pocket on the right side of the back, and the big ones in front, both on the trouserettes and on the blouse.

In Leisure Hours.

For those hours when we rest from our labours there must be the most comfortable of costumes. The dressing gown or negligee of to-day is always included in the war-time wardrobe. It need not be elaborate, far from it! but it must be pretty, and becoming, for it is in these times of relexation that we need the contrast afforded by frills and dainty colours. There are fascinating little slipover jackets to be worn over skirts of satin or crepe de Chine. The sleeves are always loose and flowing, and the girdle, if there is one, is fashioned on rather medieval lines. For very warm days the wash kimono is best. Dotted Swiss or voile is cool and dainty, and some of the lighter China silks are also good. The house dresses also are carefully thought out. Gingham and calico have been elevated to the position of honour this summer, but still hold their places for morning dresses.

QUEBEC'S NEW ARMY IS RECRUITING RAPIDLY

QUEBEC, Aug. 22.—Draftees reporting for duty before the expiration of the delay granted are simply pouring in. An average of one hundred and sixty per day have reported since Monday last, and as the ultimate date for reporting with immunity is drawing nearer their numbers raise. Such is the influx reporting that since Monday all hotels and lodging houses in Lower Town and the Palais (railroad depot districts) have been overcrowded, and accommodation had to be rigged up in private houses to lodge the men coming to town to enlist.

ALBERT WAS MADE FAMOUS BY ITS "LEANING VIRGIN"

Albert is a town in the department of Somme, 18 miles north-east of Amiens. It is situated on the Ancre River and is a railroad centre. Before the war it had a population of more than 7,000.

Albert has been the scene of some desperate fighting and in the recent British drive the town was surrounded on three sides by the armies of Field Marshal Haig, the village of Aveluy on the north and Meaulte on the south having been reached by them.

It was at Albert that for more than three years the famous "Leaning Virgin" hung from the top of the cathedral. The base of the statute of the Virgin, which surmounted the spire was hit by a German shell while the town was under a heavy bombardment in August, 1914, and the image toppled over. It did not fall from the pedestal, however, but hung in a horizontal position until April of the present year, when a German shell again struck the statue and sent it crashing to the ground.

THE WORLD OF SPORT

Three Giants Are Among Those Who Accuse Chase ---He Must Get Out---Matty

The case against Hal Chase, which is now in the hands of John Heydler, acting president of the National League, for decision, and which is one of the gravest in the annals of baseball, is strengthened by supporting affidavits made by three members of the New York club. One of the players to add his testimony to that of Christy Mathewson is Poll Perritt. Another is Ross Young, while the identity of the third has not yet been established. John McGraw and Larry Doyle also conferred with August Herrmann and Matty relative to their knowledge of the case, but it is understood that neither the Giant leader nor his second baseman made affidavits.

It is understood that Perritt testified that on July 17, on the occasion of a visit by the Giants to Cincinnati, he was approached by Chase as he made his way from the Giants' clubhouse to the field and that Chase asked him which of the two games scheduled for that day he would be called upon to pitch. Perritt, so it is said, replied that he did not know. To which Chase, it is alleged, rejoined:

"I wish you'd tip me off, because if I know which game you'll pitch, and connect with a certain party before game time you will have nothing to fear."

All Giants Questioned.

The inference drawn by Perritt from this remark, so the affidavit continues, was that he would be allowed to win his game and he thereupon ordered Chase to keep away from him and to make no more advances of this sort. Perritt then went direct to McGraw and reported to his manager the brief conversation he had with Chase. Incidentally Perritt pitched the first game of the double header and lost, by a score of 2 to 1.

The actions of the Cincinnati first baseman have been common gossip among his teammates and the players of other clubs for a long while, so that when Matty prepared his charges against Chase practically every member of the New York club was questioned as to his knowledge of the case. President Herrmann was advised that perhaps Doyle could add to the testimony which was piling up against Chase, but Larry visited the offices of the Cincinnati club on Saturday and told Herrmann that the only remark Chase had ever made to him was in the ninth inning of a game between the clubs in the recent series in New York.

He said, "come on and get some runs and finish up this game in a hurry," Larry told Hermann, and continued: "But any one is likely to make a remark like that and I thought nothing of it at the time nor do I think it is of any importance now."

Herrmann agreed with Doyle in this, so that Larry was not asked to make an affidavit.

As Matty Views It.

According to the Giants, the Cincinatti players knew early in the season that Chase was not giving his best efforts to the club, and this naturally resulted in a spirit of unrest and discouragement on the team. The disclosures in the case have aroused the Cincinnati fans and Chase, once an idol in Redland, is universally condemned. The opinion is prevalent that the evidence against Chase is positive and that he will be forever barred from baseball. While neither Matty nor Herrmann is willing at this time to divulge the details of the testimony in the case, each strongly intimates that there is no doubt in their minds as to the player's guilt.

"It is a shame that a player of Chase's ability must face such serious charges," said Matty. "Yet it would be a greater shame for Mr. Herrmann and myself, in possession of the facts which we have at hand, to allow Chase to continue in baseball.

SPORTING COMMENT

The Detroit Sunday News says that Collins is superior to Cobb in that he preserves his equilibrium better than Tyrus. The paper does not say whether the preserving material of Collins is whisky or gin.

After seeing a photograph of Jack Dempsey one does not blame Fred Fulton for his exhibition against the former recently. One glance at Jack's mug is enough to scare the average person into insensibility.

Neale, the former London player, has knocked out two and has been knocked out by one fellow-player so far this season. He missed his vocation when he entered baseball.

A bellhop is suing Heinie Zim for giving the boy a worthless coin for carrying the ball player's valise. In the language of the fan Zim gave a foul tip.

The tender hand of Tener is no longer at the helm of the National League. The old circuit will soon be about as peaceful as a Piute war-dance in winter.

The Manchester Guardian is not completely won to baseball, as the following indicates:

"The fielding was good, but not notably so, as there were a good many misses, although the fielders had always the heavy gloves for stopping hot balls. To English eyes the game seemed circumscribed in its possibilities, because the batter can neither cut nor hit to leg, as he must send the ball to the top angles of the diamond."

If a man doesn't lose his sweetheart when he acquires a wife he is indeed lucky.

There is but one thing that women are more apt to discover than the faults of men—the faults of other women.

BASEBALL MAGNATE'S LACK OF VISION HAS HURT THE GAME BY FIASCO OF THIS SEASON

CHICAGO, Aug. 24.—Perspective is a valuable asset in any business or profession, vocation or avocation. Lack of it is a heavy handicap in the long run.

Professional baseball promoters would not find themselves in their present purple valley if enough of them had possessed sufficient perspective to prepare themselves for rough going, or if they had possessed sufficient common sense to listen to those who warned them.

Rummaging through a lot of correspondence the other day from men and boys in uniform, I turned up a letter written by Maj. T. L. Huston, then Capt. Huston of A. Company of the Sixteenth Engineers, who were among the first of the American expeditionary forces to leave for France. The latter was written on Jan. 23 last, and, being half owner of the New York American league club, it was natural he should touch on professional baseball after telling me all he thought best about the war situation over there at the time.

Boom Abroad in 1920.

Referring to the outlook for baseball in France, he wrote:

"Baseball over here will not have much of an impetus, I think, this year, because all our units will be shifting into position, involving, no doubt, a great deal of moving about. I don't expect much organized baseball over here until the latter end of the season of 1920."

It will be interesting to see if Maj. Huston's dope on the advent of organized baseball in Europe is as correct as his forecast of what was going to happen to organized baseball in America this season. Here is some of it:

"The baseball situation in the States seems to me to be a very precarious one. Surely the gate receipts can't be any better in 1918 than in the bad year of the Federal league war, but what little news I get here indicates that those crazy magnates are adopting no measures of economy whatever.

Lost in Own Little Rut.

"They expect to play the usual schedule, take the customary training trips, and pay the same salaries. Baseball people seem to me to be a tribe apart from the general run of ordinary beings. They don't seem to be animated by the same sentiments or guided by the same rules which control the conduct of ordinary mortals. They never seem to know what is going on outside of their own little rut.

"The national game will always be co-existent with the American nation. The mutations of war may force the existing controllers of baseball out if they don't wake up, but the game itself will, like Tennyson's brook, go on forever.

"For the time being it should be made a 'sand pot' proposition and used to an appreciable extent to further patriotic movements.

Pin Hopes on Johnson.

"If the baseball people were well informed men of broad vision they would accept the existing opportunity created by the national crisis to make organized baseball what it should be—a glorious institution, respected and adored by the whole nation. Somebody will rise to the occasion. I had and have strong hopes of Ban Johnson, who is really a very patriotic and well read citizen."

Remembering that those sentences were written nearly seven months ago, their truthful forecast of baseball's immediate future is remarkable. The advice he gave was sound. No doubt it was given to his partner in the ownership of the New York club and to his business associates in the American league.

Ban Takes Right View.

It took with very few of them. Ban Johnson, in whom Maj. Huston expressed so much confidence, was one of the exceptions. He counseled all winter a shorter season, to end by Labour Day at latest, and a general curtailment to meet the coming storm. He was overruled by his narrow visioned club owners. If they had listened the present fiasco would have been avoided.

Sand lot baseball, which is the major magnate's term for Saturday and Sunday leagues, was bound to come, just as the Yankee engineer predicted. Now that it has arrived, the club owners are too dazed to see their way out.

Right Men Will Appear.

But somebody will turn up with sufficient patriotism and foresight to keep the basis and will earn some financial reward in addition to the thanks of a nation distraught by sorrows and anxieties. And when the war is over that somebody, be he singular or plural, will find a last reward by being in on the ground floor, while the present club owners, most of them, will be trying to peek over the walls of their parks, which now as before have bounded their vision.

Ball Game Has Been Postponed

Game With Oshawa Will be Played on Thursday Next.

This afternoon's ball game with Oshawa has been postponed owing to the unsettled condition of the weather. Manager Jake Solomon wired to the lake-side bunch this morning calling off the game until Thursday afternoon, half-holiday. Oshawa are tremendously eager for the fray, and confident of success. If Old Sol would only come out for half an hour the grounds would be in good condition, but it was thought better to postpone the game when there would be no chance of rain spoiling the game.

ORGANIZED BASEBALL OUT OF THE QUESTION UNTIL AFTER THE WAR

CHICAGO, Aug. 21.— No attempt will be made to reopen the American League parks next year. Even if it should be possible to use players exempt in the next draft, President Johnson would be sustained in his determination to keep the gates closed until the war is over. Johnson contends that the Government doesn't favour professional baseball in any form, and that an effort to keep the sport alive under limited conditions would not meet with popular favour.

It is pointed out that baseball was attracting the usual patronage until Secretary Baker declared the sport "non-essential," whereupon the attendance began to decrease until at present many of the ball parks are practically empty. In short, Johnson has arrived at the conclusion that baseball will amount to nothing unless the Government's attitude is changed, which is entirely out of the question. The National League, too, will suspend operations until peace is restored.

BASEBALL BECOMES PART OF FRENCH ARMY'S TRAINING

PARIS, Wednesday.—Baseball playing is to become a regular part of the physical training of the French army as a result of reports made by French officers on what they had seen of the effects of baseball on the American army. The reports led the Ministry of War to issue an order recommending the adoption of baseball in the French army.

General Vital Tuesday sent Captain G. Forbes, an American officer attached to his staff, to the headquarters of the Knights of Columbus with a request that John Evers, once an American baseball star, be sent to his corps to instruct the soldiers in the American national game. The request was granted and Evers will go to the French camp with two assistants and equipment provided by the Knights of Columbus. He will remain a fortnight, after which his assistants will continue the instruction.

Without decision of character no man or woman ever amounts to much. Proverbs are the fruits of long experience conveyed in the fewest words.

Peterboro Bowlers Will be Present

Any members of the Peterboro Lawn Bowling Club who desire to attend the Balmy Beach (Toronto) Tournament, which commences on Saturday, Aug. 31st at 1 p.m. and concludes Monday, Sept. 2nd (Labor Day), kindly notify one of the officers of the local club by Monday next as they are arranging to enter 2 or 3 rinks. The Balmy Beach Club are expecting an entry of 120 rinks and the games will be played at Balmy Beach, Kew Beach or other East Toronto greens.

MASS PLAY

The old mass play in football is merely an ancient memory, but it can be utilized in some good way now.

Imagine the energy of the world's series ball crowd if it could be harnessed to some kind of war work. Imagine 40,000 men on the farms of Canada for a length of time equal to that generally spent in witnessing ball games. Here is a job for a statistician—figure out how much could be accomplished in horse-power units by the baseball crowds of normal times.

Lovers of baseball and other sports should organize parties of old sporting cronies and supend their holidays this season with the harvesters. It would not be hard on any individual and the combined energy of a mass play would accomplish something.

Think it over.

KING OF HEIAZ DEAD?

Was Recognized by Allies, and Has Ably Upheld Their Cause.

AMSTERDAM, Aug. 24.—Constantinople newspapers received here print reports of the death of Hussein Ben Ali, King of the Hejaz and Grand Sherif of Mecca.

In 1916 the Grand Sherif Hussein assumed the title and office of King of the Hejaz at the request of the Ulema, or body of Moslem doctors of the law who interpret the Koran, and the notables of Mecca and the unanimous vote of the people. The allied Governments recognized the King, who entered into close relations with other important chieftains, who approved the steps he had taken.

REPORT WAS RECEIVED BY THE COMMITTEE

Fuel Supply Discussed at Last Night's Meeting of the Fire, Water and Light Committee

Under the chairmanship of Alderman Dobbin, the Fire, Water and Light Committee met last night in the Board Foom. A report was received from Giles Stone who had been deputed to inspect wood limits for a supply of fuel for the city. He inspected some Crown lots in the northern part of the County and reports conditions unfavourable. Labour would have to be imported, and a new road cut into the forest. It would also involve a haulage of six miles to a railroad head. Another site 1½ miles from the railroad was suggested. No men would be imported, part of the transportation would be on a lake and a camp would not be necessary. The Committee recommended that Mr. Stone inspect the limits together with another one in the eastern part of the County.

No Action Taken.

A letter was received from Premier Sir William Hearst asking that a delegate be sent to a meeting which will be held at the Parliament Buildings, Toronto, on Friday, August 30, to form a league to see if the enormous fire losses of the province could not be lessened to some extent, and to educate hte people to safety first methods. The reply wil be sent to Geo. F. Lewis, the Deputy Fire Marshal. No action was taken.

Alderman Dobbin presented figures showing that it cost the city $21040 a month for the maintenance of the Fire Brigade, which will mean from $1,000 to $1,400 more than the estimates.

"That is a great deal less than I expected," commented Mr. Dobbin.

The bill of Giles Stone of $41.80 for inspecting wood lots was ordered to be paid.

Street Lights.

Lights were ordered to be installed on Romaine street, on the corner of Bethune and Aberdeen, on corner of Reid and Victoria street, and on the corner of Lansdowne and Stanley avenues.

WEEKLY AERIAL MAIL TORONTO TO OTTAWA.

Service Between the Two Cities Authorized.

TORONTO, Aug. 24.—Mail by air has become an actuality. The Postmaster-General has now given his authority for a weekly aerial return letter mail between Toronto and Ottawa, which will be carried out through the medium of the Royal Air Force. The service is to continue for two weeks.

The next aerial mail from Toronto to Ottawa will leave on Aug. 26, and the return mail will leave Ottawa on Tuesday, August 27.

All letters must have "By Aerial Mail" prominently written on the address side of the envelope, with the usual three-cent stamp affixed on address side of the letter. In addition the special stamp of the Aero Club of Canada must be on the back of the envelope.

This stamp costs 25 cents, and the proceeds are to go to the Royal Air Force Prisoners of War Fund.

LESS THAN 10,000 GO TO BALL GAMES.

NEW YORK, Aug. 24.—It is estimated that less than ten thousand people attended major league ball games Tuesday. This number is much less than used to attend a single game at the Polo Grounds on the same date a few years ago, provided the weather was as pleasant as it was Wednesday.

These figures prove more than anything else that interest in the game is practically dead.

True enough, there was only one game played in the American League, but that game was between the two warmest contenders of the American League pennant, and was one of the "crucial" games of the year. It alone drew nearly twice as many spectators as all the National League clubs, which means all the other games played combined.

Here are the estimated figures:

American League.

Cleveland at Boston, 6,300.

National League.

New York at Pittsburg,. 2,100.
Brooklyn at Cincinnati, 800.
Boston at Chicago, 350.
Philadelphia at St. Louis, 275.
Total attendance, 9,825.

WON'T AID ENGLAND.

Irishman Says He Will Face Any Fate Rather Than Aid Hated British.

NIAGARA-ON-THE-LAKE, Aug. 24. —"I have never at any time considered myself a soldier, and I would rather go through with the punishment than put on the uniform," was the declaration of John Edward Plant, of the 2nd Battalion, 2nd Central Ontario Regiment, before a general court-martial here yesterday. "In view of what my countrymen, 'Irish,' are suffering at the present time," Plant added, "I would face any punishment before I would take up arms against them and assist England by becoming a soldier."

The court asked Plant if he was willing to perform any kind of military service in Canada. "Absolutely none," he replied.

Plant originally came from Dublin, Ireland, and latterly has been living in Toronto.

RAILROAD MEN MADE ILL BY IMPURE WATER.

ST. THOMAS, Aug. 24.—Owing, it is believed, to the condition of the water used by the men on the railways passing through here, a number of men employed in the various trainmen's duties along the road have been taken ill with typhoid. Just where the infection is obtained no one apparently knows, but several local firemen and engineers have in the past few days been stricken with the malady.

The men themselves claim it is due to the water which they drink, it having become a rather common practice to take a drink whenever they feel like it from the engine tender. This water is not only unwholesome, but it is absolutely unhealthy, and owing to the extreme hot weather of the past few days the men have been using extra large quantities.

Fall Fashions for Peterboro According to Retail Buyers

In a recent issue of the Dry Goods Review," reference was made to the fall fashions and opinions regarding the most likely features of fall ready-to-wear millinery and dress fabrics as expressed by buyers and merchants. The Cressman Company and Richard Hall and Son of Peterboro expreas the following opinions regarding the features that will likely prevail this fall.

PATSY SEGUIN WAS KILLED IN ACTION

MONTREAL, Aug. 24.—News was received here that "Patsy" Segun, ong a well-known figure in amateur and semi-professional hockey in Eastern Canada, had been killed in action on August 8.

Seguin first came into prominence by his sensational play in the City Hockey League a few years ago. He was so good that Canadiens gave him a trial, but though fast and a good shot, he was too light for the big-time professional circuit, being only a midget in size.

He made good in the Maritime Professional League, however, playing fine hockey for one of the Halifax teams, and when that league disbanded he went to Boston, playing good hockey there with the Boston Arena Club. Seguin was also known as a lacrosse player.

DAVIES COMPANY SUFFERS PENALTY

DISREGARDED REGULATIONS.

Failed to Observe Rule Limiting Allowance on Bad Eggs.

Ottawa, August 2. — For violating the provisions in the regulations applying to produce dealers, which limits the allowance to be made for bad eggs by dealers to one per cent. on the total of each transaction, the Matthews-Blackwell Company, Limited of Montreal, and the William Davies Company, Limited, of Montreal, have been forbidden to buy or sell or otherwise deal in eggs for a period of 30 days. Eggs in transit to-day must be disposed of to other dealers.

This penalty follows upon the report of a Canada Food Board inspector, and is based upon Canada Food Board Order No 41, sub-section 16, in force since June 1st last.

By the provision in this order governing dealers in produce, every licensee putting eggs in cold storage is required to furnish to the operator of the warehouse a statement in writing certifying that such eggs have been candled and bad or unsound eggs have been removed. Licensees storing eggs in cold storage which they themselves own or control should keep a proper record of such candling.

Clause 16 stipulates that no licensee shall pay or demand payment for bad eggs in excess of an allowed margin of one per cent. on the total of such transaction. The object of this regulation was to prevent an undue quantity of bad eggs reaching the market, and by its enforcement it becomes unprofitable for a dealer to handle them and he is obliged to charge back again to the producer or the country merchant from whom he purchased the eggs the amount paid for them, over and above the allowance of one per cent, margin permitted by the board.

In the case of the two companies under suspension it was found that no attempt had been made to charge back for unsound eggs, although in some cases it was shown by the candling records that the percentage of bad eggs ran as high as 14.

GERMANY ACTIVE IN BIG PROGRAMME OF SHIPBUILDING

Begins Undertakings for Reconstruction of Merchant Marine to Replace War Losses.

WASHINGTON, D. C. Aug. 23.—Germany is engaging in a gigantic shipbuilding programme to replace her losses in the merchant marine and to recapture her commercial prestige after peace is declared. Details of this shipbuilding programme are reaching Washington. They indicate that Germany places sufficient importance in this programme to divert a great deal of industrial energy to it.

Among the vessels she is constructing are huge liners to replace those taken over by the United States. Among them are the Bismarck, of 56,000 tons, and others varying from 36,000 to 18,000 tons.

Although the vessels now building approximate 950,000 tons, shipping experts in Germany say this will not make up the losses Germany has sustained and may yet suffer. The Reichstag ras passed a law regarding the stag has passed a law regarding the chant marine.

Has Lost 800 Vessels.

German experts estimate that the country has lost about eight hundred vessels with a gross tonnage of 2,900,000. It is estimated the German merchant tonnage January 1, 1914, 5,459,296, so the losses aproximate fifty per cent.

Information concerning the German shipbuilding programme is contained in a pamphlet published in Hamburg by the Nordisches Kolonial Kentor (Northern Colonial Bureau, Ltd.). It is entitled "German Shipping Before, During and After the War." It says:—

"If ships in neutral harbers are counted as lost about two-thirds of entire German merchant marine would be done away with. In comparison with these losses the following table of new vessels ordered by German steamship companies during the war is of interest:—

"Of the leading companies, the Hamburg-American line is building at the Hamburg yards, the Bismarck of 56,000 tons; the turbine steamship Tirpitz, of 32,000 tons, and three other ships of 32,000 tons each. Near Bremen nine steamships have been built, of which four, with a cargo capacity of 18,000 tons each, will be the largest freighters in the world. The Flensburg Yard is building three large passenger and freight vessels while two steamships of 13,000 tons each are in order.

Other Lines Busy.

"Tecklenberg, Geestemunde, is building two cargo steamships of 17,000 tons each for the Panama Canal service. The Hamburg-South American Company is building four cargo steamships at various yards aside from the Cape Polonic, an improved sister ship of the Cape Trafalgar, 18,000 tons, new, sunk. The North German Lloyd is building two large liners, the Columbus and the Hindenburg, of 355,000 tons each, and two more ships of 12,000 tons each. The African line is building six vessels, the Nansa line twelve and the Kosmos line ten, ranging from 9,000 to 13,000 tons.

"Accordingly the leading lines are building about 950,000 tons altogether which is not nearly enough to replace losses of the German merchant marine during the war. It was therefore necessary to encourage new construction by government measures. This purpose is served by the law recently passed by the Reichstag."

MIMENSE SHORTAGE IN JAPANESE CROPS

Light Thown on Food Riots in Report of Trade Commissioner.

OTTAWA, Aug. 24.—A report received by the Department of Trade and Commerce from Mr. A. E. Bryan, Canadian Trade Commissioner at Yokahama, throws some light on the cause of the food riots in Japan. The report was mailed to Ottawa about July 1, but Mr. Bryan indicates then a big shortage in Japanese crops. He places the shortage of rice production in Japan at 15,000,000 bushels, and, allowing for supplies from Korea and Formosa, he estimates the shortage in rice at some nine million bushels.

Mr. Bryan states in his report that the domestic production of barley and rye can almost meet the home consumption, but in the case of wheat, imports to the extent of four million bushels will be necessary. He places the shortage of soya beans as foodstuffs at near ten million bushels. If imports of beans as a material in the manufacture of bean cakes is added, the total shortage will be over thirty million bushels.

VETERANS WILL PARADE TO-MORROW.

Their Band Will Make Its Initial Appearance.

The Great War Veterans will parade at two o'clock to-morrow at the Armouries, and, headed by the Association band, will march to Little Lake Cemetery, where the soldiers' graves will be decorated. All returned soldiers and members of the Great War Veterans' Association are invited to be present.

GERMANS BEGINNING TO FEAR AN INVASION OF THEIR COUNTRY

Bulk of Americans in France Have Not Yet Used—Talk of Putting Rhine Area in State of Defense Reveals Nervousness

THE KAISER'S FRANKNESS

NEW YORK, Aug. 24.—The belief at last is beginning to spread among the German people that an invasion of Germany is the inevitable outcome of America's unprecedented accomplishment in pouring soldiers by the million into Europe.

The German army passed to the defensive last month, when America's strength permitted Marshal Foch to wrest the initiative from Von Hindenburg. The German people are likewise passing to the defensive. Germany is realizing the Kaiser cannot win the war. Evidence is accumulating that Von Hindenburg's retreat before Marshal Foch's incessant assaults is becoming known among the German people for its true significance.

The German Government has taken to the defensive, also before its own people, by making known the fact that over a million and a quarter American soldiers are now in France. The Hohenzollerns dare no longer to keep up the deception that America doesn't count. The danger of the Rhine falling to the American armies is too grave.

Kaiser's Frankness is Despair.

The sudden frankness of the Kaiser is a policy of despair. The Rhine area must be put in a state of defence,' and the German people willy nilly, must be told that these activities mean that no longer is Von Hindenburg planning conquest. The German general staff is now planning how to fight a defensive campaign over German territory which is destined to taste like Belgium and France the horrors and desolation of modern warfare.

The terrible fact is now presented to the German people that though there are a million and a quarter of America's vanguard in France, they are not being used in the present fighting. Where are the Americans? For what purpose are they being held back? To these despairing questions there is but one answer possible for the German people. The Americans are assembling to carry the war into Germany. No modern first-class power has ever before been confronted by so desperate a situation as this fact signifies. Germany is beginning to know it. The Kaiser is the first to have heart trouble.

FOOD BOARD FLASHES

England's national kitchens have proved a success and new ones are being opened up from time to time as the popularity of the scheme grows. In London the well-known Hammersmith baths have been converted into huge public kitchens equipped with every modern convenience for cooking on a large scale. Food is purchased in quantity, prepared without waste and cooked scientifically, with the result that meals can be bought at a much lower rate than would be possible through individual purchase and home preparation.

All degrees of social life are represented daily at the food counter. Each customer brings her own utensils to carry the food away and purchases tickets for it beforehand.

MUNITIONS GRAFT EXPOSED IN GERMANY, $375,000 FINE LEVIED

Director of Big Concern Enjoyed Salary Raise From $1,500 Almost to Million Figure—Krupp Firm Under Suspicion of Part of the Press

HAD GOVERNMENT SUPPORT

AMSTERDAM—A fine of $375,000, one of the biggest ever imposed in a German court of law, and six months' imprisonment is the judgment in an extraordinary case just concluded at Elberfeld in Germany. It should make interesting reading for the Kaiser, as it will show him that the "heathen worship of money," which he recently declared only existed in England and America, flourishes abundantly in the Fatherland.

The villain of the piece is Herr Victor Karl Adels, Director of the Mannesmann Waffen und Munitions Fabriken at Remscheid. The Mannesmann concern has always been able to rely on Government support for its tremendous business plans. The Mannesmann interests in Morocco were largely those German intersets which the German Government supported to the extent of sending the Panther to Agadir and of nearly plunging Europe into war.

Herr Adels entered Mannesmann's service shortly before the present war at the modest annual salary of $1,500. His progress was meteoric, and it was hailed in some German newspapers as a unique and inspiring example of what could be done by German business energy. He secured the "Verdienstkreuz," a sort of civilian distinguished service order, for his work on behalf of a grateful Fatherland.

Grafted in Munitions.

But Adels was more concerned about himself than his country. His firm was engaged in providing vast quantities of munitions and military supplies for the army and navy, and by screwing up prices, by commissions, and by all sorts of trickery and fraud Adels was able to make colossal profits and send his income soaring rapidly on high like a rocket. Enjoying the full confidence of his employers, he was enabled to proceed on such lines that in the first three years of the war he earned personally no less than $1,375,000. Another Director was his accomplice, but that individual escaped justice by committing suicide.

Not alone in the ways mentioned was Adels endeavouring to cheat the State, for in the years 1915 and 1916 he only declared for purposes of income and war profit taxes one-fifteenth of his income, and in 1917 he became so bold that he reduced the fraction to one-twentieth. He was careful to send about $250,000 to Holland and Switzerland for safe keeping.

People Suspect Krupps.

A section of the press cries out loudly against the insufficient severity of the sentence, and expresses itself angrily regarding a state of affairs which, as the Dusseldorf Nachrichten puts it, "enables a man at the head of a great works producing military supplies to pule up wealth, while at the front millions bleed and die, and the whole people lead a life of semi-starvation."

"Is this the only case of its kind?" other papers ask, and they can only reply that it is not. Indeed, for some time in Germany the people have been wondering if the legal authorities will have the courage to tackle the house of Krupp on the same count. That tremendous business pays exactly $7,500,000 in income tax, while the Daimler Company, with much smaller profits, has to pay $250,000 more. So far, however, there is no sign that the authorities intend to bring the Kaiser's friend, Herr Krupp von Bohlen und Halsbach, who owes his matrimonial felicity and business position to his Imperial master, before a court of justice.

Mrs. (Dr.) Fairbank, of Cobourg, is the guest of Mrs. and Miss Danbury.

Private Bert McIlmoyle, who has been home for a month's leave at Apsley, returned to Kingston on Saturday.

Mrs. and Miss Danbury spent Thursday visiting friends at Auburn.

Miss Beatrice Johnson was in Peterborough on Saturday.

Miss Electa Preston was a Peterborough visitor on Saturday.

Miss Mayme Galvin has secured a school at Allanville.

Miss Eva Rose, of Peterborough, is the guest of Miss Ida Robson.

Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Charlton have returned home from their visit to Deer Bay.

Fire Protection.

In order to improve the fire protection of Lakefield, it is being suggested that we should go in for a waterworks system for Lakefield instead of purchasing a chemical fire engine as recommended by our Council at its last meeting. If a 12-inch main were run up Queen street from the power pumping station at Moore's planing mill to Concession street, with a 6-inch branch line at Reid street, with hydrants at all the street corners. Another 6-inch main from the high level bridge to the village boundary of South, which with the two thousand feet of hose owned by the village would cover almost the whole of the village, and if a sewer were laid down, with a Septic Tank when the work is being done, it would most likely prove a profitable investment.

Mr. E. W. Bailey, who has been spending a few days home with his family, returned to Belleville on Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Norman Davies, B.A., are at present visiting the former's parents, Rev. and Mrs. B. Davies. Mr. Davies, who has been science master in the Essex High School for the past three years, is now moving to Renfrew where he has been appointed to the staff of the Collegiate, and will have charge of the science department. They left on Saturday morning for their new home at Renfrew.

LIGHTNING FIRED GRAIN.

Had Been Stooked In a Field In North Dummer.

LAKEFIELD, Aug. 26.—The lightning struck a stook of grain on the farm of Mr. Joseph Matthews, in North Dummer, about 10 o'clock on Friday night. The glare from the fire attracted a number of farmers who thought a house or barn had been struck. Fortunately no further damage was done.

"When Can You Deliver?"

THAT'S the customer's first question, usually. How do you answer him?

Your goods may be superior, your clerks may be courteous, your store attractive, but, after all, unless your deliveries are prompt and dependable, your customers will be disappointed and trade elsewhere next time. Do you realize how many people judge a store by its deliveries?

Is your delivery system on a par with the rest of your business? Does it draw new trade or lose customers for you? Are your horses as suitable for you as they were at one time? If not, why do you persist in being a little behind the times, when a Ford One Ton Truck would be more in line with your other business standards?

Perhaps your deliveries cost you too much. If you are using motor trucks, they may be too heavy for your line of business and therefore too expensive. The Ford Truck uses less fuel when handling a full load than some trucks use running empty.

The Ford One Ton Truck is a money saver, so why not modernize this department of your business at once?

"The Girl Who Had No God"

By MARY ROBERTS RINEHART

Author of "The Man in Lower Ten," "The After House," Etc.

CHAPTER II

Once a year the association closed its books. During all of the June before old Hilary's sudden death Elinor had been busy arranging figures, collecting data in the cryptic shorthand she knew. Then on the first of July, Hilary gave his annual dinner.

The band, from twelve, was down to five. Boroday, the Russian, glancing around the table, shrugged his shoulders. It was the chance of the game they played, and percentages would be larger. Nevertheless there was a weight of depression over them all.

Elinor was at her father's right, simply dressed. The dinners were always a trial to her. She was palpitatingly anxious that the papers before old Hilary be in order and accurate. They were her work. The deeper significance of the meeting she was not so much ignorant of as profoundly indifferent to. If her father did a thing, it took on order, became law.

There were present Talbot and Lethbridge, the Englishmen; Boroday, whose rescue from Siberia had made him old Hilary's henchman; and young Huff. Huff was the mechanician. He had been trained in the Bleriot works; aeroplanes to wireless, automobiles to automatic pistols, he knew them—all makes, all grades. If old Hilary was the brains, Huff was the hands of the band.

He sat beside Elinor, and watched her with worshipping eyes. Perhaps it was as well that old Hilary was intent on his food and on the business in hand.

The routine of the annual dinner seldom varied. Five of them, then, that last dinner around the table, in evening clothes, well set up, spare, three of them young, all temperate, honorable about women—as polished as harmless in appearance, as deathdealing, as the gleaming projectile of a twelve-inch gun!

First old Hilary went over the books. It might have been the board meeting of some respectable bank. He stood at his end of the table, and the light from the chandelier fell full on him.

"I have to report, gentlemen," he would say, "a fairly successful year.' this is where it differed from a bank. The association had had no bad years. "While our expenses have been heavy, returns have been correspondingly so." And so on, careful lines of figures, outlays and returns, to the end. For old Hilary was secretary and treasurer as well as president.

This time, when he had reached the end of what was to be his last report, he paused and cleared his throat.

"Unfortunately, that is not all, gentlemen. 'Nothing can we call our own but death.' And it is my sad duty to report, this last year, the loss of three of our number. A calamitous year, gentlemen."

He might have been a trustee, lamenting the loss of valued supporters to a hospital!

Afterward, in the library, with Elinor embroidering by the fire, they cashed in. They dealt only in cash. Securities were dangerous. Once or twice Boroday had successfully negotiated with a fence in Paris, but always under old Hilary's protest.

The rountine never varied. Elinor unlocked the door to a winding staircase, which led to a basement room where the steel vault stood in its cement walls. The five went down, returning shortly with the cash-boxes. The money was divided on the library table. It went by percentages. Hilary drew twenty that last year, each of the others ten—a total of sixty per cent. The forty per cent. remaining was divided, or sent as a whole, according to the sense of the meeting. Berlin got it all one year, for instance, to Boroday's disgust. Russia generally received a large proportion. The Chinese revolution; the defense of Berkhardt, who killed Ecker, the pork-packer; a shipment of guns and ammunition to Central America—thus it went.

Although they preferred only money, now and then the loot included jewels. By common consent, such gems, stripped of their settings, were put aside for Elinor. They meant nothing to her. Had any one told her that for several years her share had been greater in actual value than all the money that had fallen to her father she would not have believed it. . . . .

Four days or so after the annual meeting, the rector of Saint Jude's was always asked to dinner. And although the reverend gentleman would under normal circumstances have been fishing in Canada, he never went until this function was over. For old Hilary, detesting his creed, respected the man. A certain percentage, then, of old Hilary's share went over the library-table, after the dinner, to the rector.

"Use it where it will do the most good," he would say.

"The church organ——'

"Not a cent to the church organ! Buy the youngsters a playground, or build a lying-in ward in the hospital."

Elinor's mother had died in childbirth.

The last check had been unusually generous. The rector, who had been smoking one of old Hilary's choice cigars, put it down and faced his host resolutely. It took courage.

"Mr. Kingston," he said, "the church needs men like you. Why be a Christian in the spirit and—avoid the letter?"

"Tut" Old Hilary rose and looked down at him. "I am like all gamblers. This annual check to your poor is the sop I throw to luck. That's all, sir."

And his tone closed the discussion. The word "gambler" worried the rector. He thought over it on his way down the hill to the rectory. But his poor were very poor. He cashed the cashed the check the next day.

Elinor was in the library that sunny August day when they brought old Hilary to her. She had never seen death before, except on the streets of Mexico, and for a good many years he had been all she had — since her last governess, in fact, had been discovered secreting the rosary and had been word-scourged from the house in tears. She fainted, and wrinkled Henriette laid her on a couch.

Buroday, the Russian, had brought the body home, and now he stood, looking down at Elinor and stroking his English-cut beard.

"He expected it, Henriette, he said, "He thought it would come sooner, in the Parker matter. I wonder——"

He glanced through the open door to the billiard-room, where old Hilary's body lay on the table. He was minded, was Boroday, to wonder many things—whether, after all, old Hilary's dauntless spirit had gone out like a lamp, or if——

This white and carven thing in the next room, with stiffening hands and the gray derby at its feet, surely there was no mystery about it. This was not old Hilary: that was all. But where then, was old Hilary? The Russian, who had been raised within the pale, and on an ancient faith, and who had now lost his best friend, felt all the bitterness of his unbelief.

Elinor stirred.

"He will have to be buried," said Henriette. "The news had gone through the town. The assistant rector of the church has telephoned, and is on his way here now. What am I to do?"

"Let them bury him as they will," said Boroday. "What does it matter? He would himself have seen the humor of it."

Hilary Kingston had been shot during the daylight robbery of the Agrarian Bank messenger. He was shot as an innocent bystander, and was referred to by the press as philanthropist and martyr. So much for years of caution and the annual gift of Saint Jude's.

As a matter of fact the Agrarian affair was calamitious in several ways. It bore too close a resemblance to a St. Louis matter of several years back, in which Boroday had come under suspicion.

On a Tuesday morning, the cash being more than the bank cared to have about, two hundred and ten thousand dollars was sent to the clearing-house. Two clerks from the banks accompanied the messenger, who went by taxicab.

There are two direct routes to the clearing-house: one along one of the great avenues, the other through the newspaper district. Here, at tenthirty in the morning, things are rather quiet, and except for vans delivering rolls of paper, there is little traffic.

The taxicab went by this latter route. Opposite the Record office, where the presses stood, silent monsters waiting to leap, old Hilary Kingston was standing, kidgloved and wearing the gray derby hat he affected. As the taxicab bore down toward him he hailed it.

"Taxi!" he called.

The taxicab slowed down. Old Hilary, seeing it occupied, waved it off with his stick. But it had come to a full stop. There was an alleyway beside the Record building, and now three men ran out from there and thrust revolvers through the open windows of the cab. After that it was hot work. Marshall of the bank went back with a bullet through his lung. The bank messenger fired point-blank, and missed his target; but old Hilary, gray derby and all, went down where he stood, twenty feet away. The uninjured clerk had an automatic gun, and swept a circle with it over the bag which lay at his feet. There was no getting inside that ring of death. The bandits retreated, firing as they ran, and climbed into an automobile up the street. When the reporters in the Record office wakened to the fact that there was a story under their windows, the street was clear. Only old Hilary lay dead on the pavement, with a bullet in his head.

The chauffeur of the taxicab drove madly to the hospital with Marshall, who was dying, and then to police quarters, where he gave himself up. He was released, of course. His name was Walter Huff. He was shown to be a new man, but sober and industrious, one of the best drivers in the employ of the taxicab company. It was also shown that Hilary Kingston had hailed him; Huff explained his stopping. Mr. Kingston was a regular patron; he had meant to tell him that in five minutes he would come back and pick him up.

Huff was under surveillance for three days. His conduct was impeccable.

The Sanctuary

By GEORGE ELMER COBB

"The mischief!" ejaculated Ross Darrell. He had placed a two-page legal document on the windowsill, some one opened a door and a draft did its work effectively.

Pouf! Aloft it went circling, spanning a court and disappeared over the top brick wall of the nearest building. The young lawyer put on his hat, half circled the block and entered the building upon the roof of which he hoped to find the runaway screed.

"I wish to get to the roof," he told the elevator conductor when the lift came to terminus, six flights up.

"You can't get there except with the permission of Miss Mayhew," was the statement made by the elevator man.

"Go up that little flight of stairs. If she isn't there you'll find her in the office of the building, where she is the public stenographer."

Darrell climbed the narrow stairway. Peering through an open doorway he noted three rooms pleasantly fitted up for housekeeping. Seated in the nearest room reading a newspaper was an old man. He looked up in a startled way as he observed Darrell, and hastily screened his face behind the newspaper. There he appeared to fumble about. Then he rose to his feet and Darrell stared, open-mouthed. The old man, smooth-faced before, now wore a bushy white beard.

"Pardon me," spoke Darrell. "A legal document blew from my window and landed on your roof. May I look for it?"

The old man acted troubled, but he led the way to a door beyond which was a spiral stairway. Darrell followed him to the roof. There he paused in new wonder. The brick walls extending above the cornice practically framed a little flower garden, and scattered about were hammocks, easy chairs, a table, all the paraphernalia of a dainty summer lounging place.

Darrell was curious and interested, but thanked the old man. As they came downstairs an added surprise materialized.

"Why, father!" spoke a musical voice, and then, challengingly—"a stranger!"

Its possessor was the most beautiful girl Darrell had ever met. Her lips fluttered as if in dread. The frank explanation of the intended, reassured her somewhat. Darrell left the place and regretted that somehow father and daughter seemed extraordinarily anxious for his departure.

He could not forget her. Many a time Darrell stood at his office window staring longingly at the roof barrier that hid from him the only woman to whom he had ever been attracted. He made inquiries, to learn that about three years previous the young lady, Miss Rose Mayhew, had induced the agent of the building to allow them to occupy the rooms near the roof. Mr. Mayhew, it seemed, was a sort of night guardian about the building and was given free rent. He was rarely seen in the daytime and had never been known to go out upon the public street.

One day Darrell appeared at the office of the building with some copy to be typewritten. That broke the ice. It was a day of days for him when he was invited to tea on the roof.

He had taken with him a law book to look over at home and forgot it when he left. He was glad of an excuse to see Miss Mayhew by going after it.

"I left a law book here," began Darrell.

"Yes, I know," replied Rose hurriedly, and led him into the next room. She pointed to a page where the book was open, covering the law upon criminal indictment.

"Is it true," she questioned, "that after arrest if an indictment is not found within a certain period, the accused is free?"

"You are quite right," said Darrell. "In such a case all future prosecution is nullified."

"Mr. Darrell," she said, "I wish to trust you with a knowledge of the trouble that has made my father a fugitive in hiding. Great hope has come to me through that book, and oh! I thank you."

It was a startling story that she told. Her father, as sales agent of a large concern, had assumed the right to expend money to advertise the business and employ solicitors to increase sales. The company demanded back this unauthorized expenditure. Mr. Mayhew was charged with embezzlement. Rose induced a friend to go on his bond. Then, her father broken down with his troubles, she removed him to another city, in hiding.

She had worked hard to return the amount claimed by the company and to reimburse the man on the bond, not disclosing her whereabouts. She had learned, however, that the company had never secured an indictment. It took Darrell a week to ascertain that the case had become a dead issue.

"And oh, father!" murmured Rose in rhapsody—"now you are free to go and come as you choose."

"I am content in this paradise spot," said Mr. Mayhew gratefully.

"Would I could share its beauty and peace with you!" spoke Darrell irrepressibly, and the tender glance of Rose told him that he might hope for that happy fruition.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

Found Wanting

By Horace Stanhope

"I say!"

Reeves Darlow, lolling against a tree trunk a few feet beyond a high stone wall, his sketching outfit lying neglected at his side, uttered the ejaculation sharply and sat up.

His hand sought a certain spot on his forehead, with which suddenly, unexpectedly some flying object had come in contact. The blow had been a sharp one, broke the skin and evidenced the possibility of a rising lump. He wondered what had struck him, and why. Then he recalled the sound of merry girlish voices beyond the wall.

"Something thrown—of course not purposely," he soliloquized. "Ah! there's the missile—a slipper."

As he arose he observed the object in question. It lay on the grass, white, small, high-heeled, dainty. He turned it over and over in his hand, somewhat admiringly. Then he roused at the echo of a rustling sound. Where a portion of the wall was gone and there was a breach like a gateway, a graceful feminine figure had appeared. One foot was slipperless. Here was the owner of the innocent missile.

About to advance and tender the slipper, Darlow was a good deal disappointed as its owner uttered a scream and, turning, flashed back out of view like a nimble sprite. A great hubbub arose beyond the wall.

"What scared you Norma—a bear?" cried out an animated voice.

"Worse than that."

"A horrid man?"

"A man, but not particularly horrid. Rather distinguished looking, I judge, from the fleeting glance I got. But oh! me limping on my stockinged foot! Quick, Melba, grab the ball and let us vanish."

There were mock exclamations of fright and dismay. Darlow reached the wall and waved the slipper over it, but, scurrying from the field, a group of half a dozen girls paid not the slightest attention, while with a shocked expression of face the denuded one, she who had lost the slipper, ran the fastest, her white silk-covered foot gleaming in and out of the grass entirely fascinating in its nimbleness and gracefulness of form.

"I'm!" observed Darlow, "she must have footgear galore to disdain the return of the slipper. I see, a bevy of girls playing at football, a wild kick, and hence the slipper. And my bump!" and Darlow ruefully rubbed the abraised spot. "As to the slipper, I'll keep it as a memento. It may suggest a romantic pencil sketch, or a story."

He threw the pretty satin-bowed trifle into his sketching case, closed it and pursued his way. Reeves Darlow's way just now was the way of an idle stroller off on a hit-or-miss jaunt. He forgot about the slipper by morning. Its owner ceased to fill his thoughts before the close of the day following.

Meantime, she of the lost slipper, Norma Edgeworth, and her breathless associates cleared the field and settled down to rational progress.

"It's a pity to leave that slipper behind, Norma," spoke one of her companions.

"Oh, you know I'm bound with the morning for an environment where satin slippers and the like will be a negligible quantity."

"Surely you have got that foolish scheme of yours out of your head, dear?"

"Never!" dissented Norma with vigor. "It isn't a scheme, it's a test."

"And you are bound to go through with it?"

"Barring the possibility of some of you chatterers betraying the fiction."

"Oh, we'll be true blue, Norma!" proclaimed an urgent chorus.

All this would have been Greek to the unadvised. All would have been mystery for that same class, had they seen Norma Edgeworth twenty-four hours later. Whereas, she had borne the presentment of a fashionably dressed young lady and surrounded by companions suggesting the same order, the next day Norma was installed in an old-fashioned farmhouse ten miles distant, as pretty as ever, though arrayed in calico, but engaging in active housework, and seeming to enjoy it.

It was lining a hedge that marked the farm limit on one side that Reeves Darlow found himself two days after the incident of the slipper. Was it fate, or merely natural and coincidental, that, glancing beyond it, he noted a graceful girlish figure hanging some handkerchiefs on a line to dry. A quizzical expression came into the face of this strolling artist as he discovered something else. The girl in view wore odd slippers. On one foot was a black slipper, and on the other one of white satin, the counterpart of the one resting within the sketching case he carried at that moment.

"I declare!" communed Reeves with himself, a token of rare interest in the intonation. "I've found the mate of my Cinderella acquisition."

There could be no doubt of it. He had caught only a momentary glimpse of Norma Edgeworth back at the town meadow. She was now in calico, whereas the maiden of the field had been arrayed in silk, but he was sure, despite the puzzling transition, that this girl was the one who had caused that discolored mark just over the left eyebrow.

"She is worth looking at," he declared. "I will supply the missing slipper and I hope to get better acquainted."

Honk! Honk! Reeves glanced at the roadway in front of the house to discern that a handsome automobile had just halted there. A rather foppishly dressed young man got out of the machine. The girl in calico observed the newcomer. She darted behind the kitchen of the house. She rumpled up her hair, she jerked her apron awry and picked up an old battered milk pail. Then she stepped again into the view of the road and exhibited, or rather feigned, vast surprise as the young man advanced toward her.

"Then it's true?" Reeves heard him say, but no more, for the girl joined him and they walked to a bench under a great spreading oak. The appearance of a possible lover somewhat dampened the former exuberance of Reeves. Still, he was very much puzzled. The newcomer acted uneasy and embarrassed. The twain conversed for some time then the girl arose. She removed a ring from her engagement finger. The young man accepted it, bowed profoundly and returned to his automobile.

Honk! Honk! It was off and gone. The girl turned toward the house, her face once more in full view of the hedge lurker. She was smiling, as if enjoying some great joke. Reeves groped in his mind vainly to find some solution to this extraordinary circumstance. He fancied the moment had come to reveal himself. He had taken the slipper from his case. He penetrated the hedge with the slipper in his hand.

"Pardon me," he said, "but I think this lost property is yours."

Norma Edgeworth came to a quick halt. She stared blankly at the intruder. Then her quick mind worked out the problems of the moment.

"Yes," she said, flushing slightly. "You are the gentleman who offered it to me once. Thanks, I will take it now."

"It struck me there," observed Reeves craftily, exposing the abrasion on his forehead. "It sort of scattered my wits for the moment, or I would have tried to find its owner."

She essayed a pitying look as he recounted his injury, she began to smile as he drolly dwelt upon the oddity of the incident, and then the ice was broken, and somehow he lingered for an hour, and again somehow he was a visitor to the farmhouse the next day.

A week went by. What could such harmonious companionship lead to but love—real, mutual love? Reeves affirmed it under that same broad spreading oak tree, and Norma did not seek to deny its existence.

"Suppose some day you should realize the vast distance between a poor farm girl and a successful artist?" she suggested artfully.

"I have money and love enough for both," he declared.

"I think I had better confess," said Norma. "The young man who visited me here was a suiter for my hand—and fortune! I suspected that, and saw to it that he heard of my loss of wealth. You know the result. I never cared for him, but I have no father and mother, only money, and I felt lonely and helpless, and my friends urged me to try and like him, but I couldn't. It seems there was only one person I could love."

"Only one?"

"Yes, dear—only you."

ANIMALS OF THE CAUCASUS

Inhabitants Have Preserved Much of the Original Character of Their Stone Age Ancestors.

The Caucasus lies on the road which links Europe to Asia and its high valleys offer a safe refuge to man and his herds. This explains both the mixed and archaic type of its domestic fauna, which shows some curious analogies with the human material of the curious living ethnographic museum of those regions, observes a writer.

In all probability not one of the domestic animals of the Caucasus is autochthonous. The earliest epoch of the importation is prehistoric; the latest is contemporary with our own generation. Even the samples belonging to the stone age have preserved a good deal of the original character of their ancestors, owing mainly to the preservative character of the mountain region.

Turkestan, the countries of the Cretan civilization, North Africa and America have each furnished their quota.

From Europe hail the bull and the dog. The so-called Tartar dog especially, a descendant of the wolf, had its ancestral home in the plains of Volga.

Houses Scarce In Germany.

Germany is said to lack 750,000 of having enough small dwellings. No empty houses are available in any of the large towns and rents have gone up 50 per cent. The dwelling house committee of the Reichstag recently recommended that the state advance 500,000 marks and construct family barracks and the committee's recommendations were unanimously adopted.—Pathfinder.

Beautiful things are everyday things now—

Look around you. See the large number of dainty silk blouses in beautiful tints that are being worn. And the quantities of dainty underwear the stores are showing—sheerest, most beautiful things you have ever seen. It was not so a few years ago. What has caused the difference?

Certainly and surely—one big factor has been Lux. Women would not buy these things right along unless there was a gentle, sure way of washing them—without discoloring, warping or fading.

There is—it's the Lux way. Won't turn silks yellow—won't hurt chiffons—won't shrink woollens. Lux won't hurt anything that pure water itself may touch.

The Grimshaw-Greene Secret

By LOUISE B. CUMMINGS

In one of the regiments that sailed from Florida for the Spanish American war were Privates Tom Grimshaw and Oliver Greene, who appeared to be intimate friends. Grimshaw was cut out for a soldier, but Greene was not, being of slight build and feminine in appearance. He gave his age at enlistment as eighteen, but it was doubted by his comrades if he were so old as that. Either his voice had not changed from that of a boy to manhood or it was naturally high pitched and squeaky.

During the early part of the term of service of the two friends they were very companionable. Whenever they were permitted to leave camp they went together and came back together. Their comrades wondered why Grimshaw chose a chum of such different makeup from himself, but some one suggested that most men's friendships were of that kind. When two persons come together permanently one should be yielding.

After awhile it was noticed that a soldier named Evans was added to the duo, making a trio. He was more like Grimshaw than Greene, being a larger man and stronger than either of the other two.

The trio friendship lasted but a few days, and it was noticed from the first that Grimshaw did not relish the advent of Evans into the companionship. Then the trio changed. Greene was alternately hobnobbing with Evans and with Grimshaw, while the two latter had nothing to do with each other.

Evans was made a sergeant, and this gave him some authority over Grimshaw and Greene. He never lost an opportunity to domineer over the former nor to make Greene's duties lighter. Greene was frequently seen arguing earnestly with Grimshaw, and although little or nothing was heard of what he was saying to his friend it was supposed that he was trying to keep the peace between his two friends. He seemed to incline to his first friend, Grimshaw, but the more he did so the more Evans seemed to be antagonized against both the other two.

During an interval in the fighting at Santiago Grimshaw and Evans were seen to go off by themselves, and after awhile Grimshaw returned with a black eye. When Evans came in a little later it was noticed that there was blood on his shirt. Since he gave no sign of a wound it was surmised that he had received a blow on the nose which had drawn the claret. Neither of the men would give any explanation as to what had happened, but it was evident that they had had a fist fight and this view was confirmed by their keeping apart thereafter.

For the next few days Greene seemed to be much troubled. He evidently sided with Grimshaw, for he had very little to say to Evans, who was glum, keeping much by himself except when performing military duties. Then the fighting increased, and the regiment was so incessantly engaged that this little play being enacted between three soldiers was dwarfed by more important matters.

Toward the close of the fighting at Santiago Greene was severely wounded. He was picked up and carried to the rear on a stretcher. A surgeon attended him, and he was placed in the hospital.

Wickersham, of his company, who was discharged from the hospital, reported that Greene had been taken from the ward in which he had been first placed and given a room by himself. This was considered remarkable, for it would not have likely happened unless the invalid had been dangerously wounded, which was not the case.

Then it became known that Grimshaw had visited his chum, but there was no evidence that Evans had done so. By this time the boys had begun to chaff Grimshaw and Evans about their rivalry for the friendship of Greene and asked Evans why he did not also visit his wounded friend. Evans turned on his heel and walked away without a reply.

Soon after this the war closed, and the troops were removed to Montauk Point, on Long Island. Grimshaw was one of the few who went home in good health. Evans was down with typhoid fever. Grimshaw was devoted to Greene, and as soon as he received his discharge he took his friend away from the camp, and this was the end of the matter of the trio friendship so far as the regiment knew anything about it.

One day Grimshaw met one of his war comrades on the street and asked him to dine with him, stating that he had been married and wished to introduce his companion in arms to his wife. When the guest met Mrs. Grimshaw he looked at her in a sort of bewilderment.

"Are you or are you not Oliver Greene?" he asked.

"I am Olivia Greene Grimshaw."

Then Tom Grimshaw explained.

He and Olivia Greene had been married before the Cuban war, and, either from a desire to be with her husband or a love of adventure, or both, she had enlisted in the same company with him. Evans had discovered her sex, but not that she was a wife. He had made love to her and, jealous of Grimshaw, had threatened to reveal her secret. That was all there was to the mystery. Mrs. Grimshaw's sex was discovered by the surgeon who attended her when wounded, and she was placed in a room by herself

FOUR DRIVES FAIL.

Germans Expected to Get Decision on West Front.

Drive on the Somme, March 21.
Base, 50 miles; advance, 35.
Defeated in 11 days.
Drive on the Lys, April 9.
Base, 20 miles; advance, 13.
Defeated in nine days.
Drive on the Aisne, May 27.
Base, 43 miles; advance, 30.
Defeated in seven days.
Drive on the Oise, June 9.
Base, 22 miles; advance, 12.
Defeated in six days.

Such is the record of the German spring campaign in the west. It is an admirable example of what economists call the law of diminishing returns, in accordance with which products of the soil decrease in amount in proportion to the increase of population, requiring additional labor and capital to augment the supply. Note the successive decrease in the duration of the drive, from 11 to nine, to seven, to six, showing that the enemy is more quickly exhausted now than he was three months ago.

Also it will be observed that his penetrating power is less. The latest drive was from a slightly longer line than that in Flanders, yet the depth of advance was a mile or so less. The entire campaign has added territory in the grip of the Germans, not very valuable if one excepts the Chemin-des-Dames and the line of the Aisne river, which are strategically of great importance; the rest matters little. On the other hand, not a single one of the Boche objectives has been reached.

Although the Allies have lost largely in prisoners and guns taken by the enemy, this is counter-balanced by the fact that the Germans have sacrificed in their vain efforts hundreds of thousands of men whom they could ill spare. Some estimates place their losses as high as 660,000 men, even more than in the slaughterhouse of Verdun. The German army is depleted and has been fought to a standstill, but it is believed that there are yet untouched reserves of men, together with those back from the hospitals, with whom the enemy will undoubtedly go on with the war.

The military coterie that is now the master of Germany cares nothing for the lives of her people so long as it can retain its supremacy. One may take for granted, therefore, that it will continue the struggle as long as it can find the men to fight for its interests. For the time being, however, the rulers have been defeated. Whatever their ultimate purpose, whether it was the capture of Paris or simply a preparation for a drive against the Channel ports, they have failed.

Rapid Divorce.

Mr. Justice Horridge in five days unmarried couples at the rate of between five and six an hour. He is the swiftest judge that ever sat in the British Divorce Division. He made up his mind to clear 125 undefended cases off the list in the five days, and he left the bench with the work accomplished, save for half-a-dozen that fell out from one cause and another. Once 15 or 20 cases was regarded as a tremendous burden of business for a single day; now 25 or 30 can be brushed aside in between four and five hours. To accomplish this Mr. Justice Horridge has scrapped some cherished traditions. He dispenses with counsel's "opening." A little time ago he startled barristers by suggesting that he might be credited with the intelligence to pick up the threads of an everyday domestic story from the witnesses in the box. In the three weeks of the term he has run through some 350 undefended cases, and it is his regret that he cannot settle the 500 odd in the present term's list. Another week would have meant a clean sweep of them, but there are the defended cases which also demand attention, and he is now very busy with that list. After pronouncing a decree in an undefended suit Mr. Justice Horridge, addressing Mr. Murphy, counsel for petitioner, said: "This petition was filed on Feb. 7 of this year and I am hearing the suit in April. I want to draw the attention of the Bar to the matter as it has been said in some newspapers that there are 2,000 divorce cases waiting to be tried. That is quite untrue. At the beginning of the term I had 505 cases in my undefended list and I have disposed of 355 up to now. It cannot be said that the list is in any way in arrear."

His Decision

By DWIGHT NORWOOD

The day that Martin Bradley came of age he lighted a cigar, emerged from his home and started to business. He had not gone a block when a man accosted him.

"Beg pardon; Mr. Fields of Sherwood & Fields, attorneys, desires to see you in his office."

"Where is Mr. Fields' office?" asked Bradley.

"I will show you."

The man started off, followed by Bradley, and, arriving at their destination, ushered him into a private office, where a benevolent looking man sat at a desk, then withdrew, closing the door behind him. Mr. Fields asked Bradley to take a chair beside him, then said:

"It has been one of my professional duties to keep track of you for twenty years. You are twenty-one years old today and a fortune of half a million is yours."

Bradley looked both surprised and incredulous.

"I have other information to give you that probably will balance what I have told you. You are not the son of your supposed parents. Your name is not Bradley; it is Stevens."

A cold shiver came over the young man. He was about to cry out a denial when the attorney went on:

"Pardon me, but I have an unpleasant duty to perform in giving you this part of the information I have for you, though the only really distressing thing about it is that you are not the person you suppose yourself to be. About twenty-two years ago your supposed mother, Mrs. Bradley, was in danger of losing her husband's love. They had been married ten years, and no children had come to them. This was a great disappointment to Mr. Bradley. There was a crisis in their affairs and the husband was about to leave his wife when she informed him that she was about to become a mother.

"From this moment the relationship between them that had existed during the first years of their married life was restored. In due time a child was presented to Mr. Bradley, but it was not his son. Mrs. Bradley, in order to hold him, had procured the child of other parents and led him to suppose that it was their offspring."

"That part of your life before you were given to the Bradleys is an old story, and for the present at least I need only give you an outline. The daughter of ambitious parents contracted a secret marriage with a poor young man. You were the fruit, the only fruit, of that marriage. Your father died before you were born; your mother in giving birth to you. Her marriage never having been divulged to your grandparents, she determined to send you to a friend, your supposed mother, and it was this offer that led Mrs. Bradley to present you as her own child. Before your mother's death she sent for me and told me of your whereabouts, asking me to look out for you and, if you ever needed help to help you, leaving it discretionary with me to inform you of the secret of your birth.

"Not long after your parents' death your grandfather made a lucky business stroke that gave him capital to work with and from that moment began to accumulate a fortune. His only child, your mother, being dead, he called on me to draw up a will leaving his property to charity. I then told him the story of his daughter's marriage and of your existence.

"He was desirous of claiming you from your foster parents, but, on my representation that such action would bring sorrow on a devoted couple, desisted. He made the will in your favor, instructing me, on your coming of age, to inform you of your true origin and that you were the possessor of a fortune. The will makes it optional with you to assume your own name and inherit the estate or to remain as you are, in which case it goes to charity. He died only a year ago. I have given you but an outline of the story, and it remains for you to decide whether you will become Arthur Stevens, with half a million, or remain Martin Bradley, without it."

It was some time before the young man spoke. He said:

"What I am to decide between is giving great pain to the dearest woman and the best man in the world and a splendid fortune. My decision is made. I relinquish the fortune."

"Had you not better think the matter over? You forget that, with this money, you might give them many comforts, much happiness."

"They don't need the comforts, and instead of happiness I should inflict a frightful blow."

"Then I am to regard your decision as final?"

"You are."

The lawyer took the young man's hand in his and said:

"I wish I had a son like you."

* * * * * * * *

Ten years later a widow lay dying. Her son, a man past thirty, knelt at her bedside.

"I have wronged you, my boy," she said. "I have deprived you of a fortune. It has been my selfishness. Had you known what I have done"—

"Mother, I have known your secret ever since the day I came of age. I gave up a fortune of my own free will that no break might come in our happy home, no trouble to you."

Happiness is often the price of being commonplace.

To do right is easy when sin ceases to be pleasure.

Love is a word of four letters except in a breach of promise suit.

Spy Served Two Masters

A REMARKABLE spying feat was executed by a Swiss citizen named Luginbuhl. He succeeded in getting paid from both sides, the French as well as the Germans, received profitable favors from both, and finally landed in the meshes of Swiss law.

Luginbuhl was one of 21 defendants in a celebrated espionage case just concluded in Berne. With one exception all were found guilty, including Luginbuhl. Sentence was deferred.

Luginbuhl was anxous to buy wool waste in France. He wanted to sell it in Germany, where he could get an immense price for it. To get the wool out of France Luginbuhl had to obtain permission from the French authorities. He got into touch with French agents and spies doing business in Switzerland, who afterward were his co-defendants in the trial, and upon his promise that he would make a trip into Germany, find out certain things the French spies were anxious to know and report back, he did obtain permission to take the wool out of France.

To sell the wool in Germany Luginbuhl made his trip into the Kaiser's domain, as promised, but he did more than he had promised. He told German officials all about the deal he had made with the French spies, whereupon the Germans were kind enough to write a report which Luginbuhl took back to Switzerland and handed over to his French friends, who paid him $860 for it. Luginbuhl at that time already had in his pocket the handsome profit he had made on the sale of French wool in Germany. What the Germans had paid him for double-crossing the French was not disclosed during the trial.

It took eight days to try the case. Mourgeot, a French officer, was the principal defendant in absentia. He had escaped before he could be arrested. The judge in pronouncing the verdict of guilty said Mourgeot had broken the word of honor given by an officer when he escaped from a hospital. He was found guilty of having organized the French spy system in Switzerland. He hired German deserters to tell him all they knew. All this was, however, only a minor offence, according to Swiss law.

His principal crime was treason committed against the Swiss republic. He observed the movement of Swiss troops near the French border and kept the French army command posted about them. He hired men to watch the transportation of cattle. He tried to poison cattle in railroad trains by putting poison in the cars. He organized a conspiracy to foment a strike in the aluminum works at Chippis, which were sending goods to Germany, and tried to destroy the electric plant at Waldshut.

Three of his tools were Frenchmen, who also succeeded in eluding the Swiss law. It was disclosed at the trial that these men made it their business to buy factories that were selling to Germany. They bought the factories with French money and made an immense profit for themselves by the transactions.

The most prominent of the Swiss defendants was Dr. Bruestlein, a lawyer. Revelations disclosing his activities created a sensation in all Switzerland. The court condemned him severely. Among the other defendants were a Swiss army sergeant and an army policeman. Both were found guilty of taking French money for furnishing information about army movements.

The whole of Switzerland seems to be a hotbed of spies. Espionage trials are going on almost continuously in many of the cities. Germans, Austrians and Italians are implicated as well as the Swiss themselves. The public is usually excluded from these trials because Switzerland wants to avoid as much as possible being drawn into the ramifications of spydom which might jeopardize the neutrality of the republic.

History at First-Hand.

Light travels at the rate of 186,000 miles per second. As everyone knows, we are now looking at some stars with lights that left them centuries ago. Suppose that you could be shot into space at a velocity greater than that of light. And suppose that you were armed with a telescope so powerful that you could see everything that happened on this earth. A time would come when history would unfold itself before your astonished eyes. You would see Napoleon losing the Battle of Waterloo; you would see the death of Julius Caesar, and then Mark Antony making love to Cleopatra on the Nile. If you like, you could juggle yourself back and forth so that you could see the same event over and over again and make a special study of it.—Popular Science Monthly.

BRANTFORD MAYOR WILL STAY, FUEL CONTROLLER.

Brantford, August 24. — Following action in the city of Peterboro, it has just been discovered here that the members of the city council appointed to act on the civic fuel commission are ineligible because of an amendment made to the municipal act this year. The commission will have to be reconstructed, and it is doubtful if the mayor can continue to act although the order in council issued at Ottawa provides, if necessary, for the mayor to act as the fuel controller.

It was stated here to-day that the order-in-council overrides the municipal act, and Mayor McBride's appointment as controller will not be interfered with.

OPERATION FOR APPENDICITIS.

Mrs. J. A. Ballantyne, Sturgeon Falls, Ont., writes: "My husband was treated for appendicitis and the doctors ordered an operation. But he would not consent to an operation and began the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. Since doing so he has had no need of an operation or even of a doctor as the trouble has completely left him. I cannot find words to speak our gratitude for his cure."

THE EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

LADY'S BLOUSE.

The graceful overblouse very accommodatingly fills many needs, for it can be used to 'camouflage' a simple lingerie dress from another season, or it can be slipped over a black satin skirt in the French way, besides other ways which will suggest themselves to the resourceful woman. The upper section of this good looking blouse, No. 8842, extends below the waistline and the line of joining is curved high at front and back. The two piece tunic has a straight lower edge and it is applied to the upper section with the slightest degree of fulness. A narrow fancy girdle is worn with the blouse.

The lady's blause pattern, No. 8842, is cut in four sizes—36 to 42 inches bust measure. The 36 inch size requires 2¾ yards 23 inch flouncing, and 1¼ yards 36 inch material, with 1½ yards ribbon for belt.

"Advertise NOW, and never let up."

WITT K. COCHRANE, the well-known Advertisement Agent, thus cleverly "sizes up" the advertising situation:—

"It is inconceivable that any merchant or manufacturer should cease—or even curtail—his advertising just when the country is on the threshold of a tremendous double harvest—the NATURAL harvest of our own unprecedented crops and the LOGICAL harvest consequent on the war in Europe.

"It is under such conditions as these that advertising reaches the zenith of its power. The man who listens to the yellow pessimist and sits back to 'wait for things to settle down,' is yielding his common sense and enterprise to the baleful influence of idle sentiment, and actually starving the goose that lays the golden egg.

"Keep the columns of the daily newspapers bristling with your announcements and thus open wide your doors for the flood of prosperity that is bound to rush in. Make hay while the sun shines. We won't have another chance like this in a hundred years."

"I have noticed with a feeling of profound disgust the conservatism and business cowardice that have set in in America since the Kaiser threw down the gauge of battle. We, the very people who will logically profit by the war abroad—and profit immeasurably—are acting as though we were at war ourselves. We are talking blue things, pinching the pennies cutting down our advertising and forcing prosperity to stand back.

"As a matter of fact this is the very hour when we should rush into print to a greater extent than ever before, because, unless the earth opens and swallows us up, there will be greater prosperity in America this fall than ever in the history of the Republic.

"We are not at war. We are not likely to be. The warring world looks to us for its supplies and we can't keep posperity down no matter how hard we try.

"If my advice is worth anything to you business men, it is here conveyed to you in six words:

"ADVERTISE NOW, AND NEVER LET UP."

20,000 Prisoners Taken By Haig's Men Since Thursday

British Have Advanced Close To The Hindenburg Line

BRITISH ON HINDENBURG LINE SOUTHEAST OF ARRAS

Attacked Along the Scarpe River This Morning at 3 o'clock on Four Mile Front—Quickly Occupied Monchy and Guemanph —Favreuil, Near Bapaume, Also Taken.

HAIG REPORTS GOOD PROGRESS

Special to The Examiner:

BRITISH CASUALTIES 23,502.

LONDON, Aug. 26.— The total casualties of the British Third and Fourth Armies, from Wednesday to Sunday, is estimated at about 23,502, it was learned to-day. In the same period about 20,000 prisoners have been taken.

LONDON, Aug. 26. —(2.15 p.m.) — The British, in their new attack along the Scarpe, have reached the old Hindenburg line, it was learned this afternoon. They arrived at the Wotan section of the line at Monchy Le Preux and Guemappe (five miles south-east of Arras, on the Cojeul river), capturing both of those villages.

The Third Army's attack this morning has progressed a depth two miles on a front of slightly more than four miles within a few hours, it was learned. The British are now reported to have made good progress east of Heninel (between Arras and Croiselles) and Mory (between Croiselles and Bapaume.)

Sudden Attack at 3 A.M.

LONDON, Aug. 26.—The British extended the drive farther northward into the Arras sector by suddenly attacking along the Scarpe river at three o'clock this morning. Field Marshal Haig reported "good progress."

The Scarpe flows through the northern outskirts of Arras.

The capture of Favreuil, two miles north and east of Bapaume, was announced.

20,000 PRISONERS TAKEN.

WITH BRITISH IN FRANCE, Aug. 26.— British troops are reported to have reached the outskirts of Suzanne, two miles east of Bray Sur Somme. The number of prisoners taken by the British since August 21 has reached 20,000. Since Aug. 8th nearly fifty German divisions have been in fighting against the British.

COUNTER ATTACKS REPULSED.

Canadian Press:

LONDON, Aug. 26.— (Official.) — British troops attacked this morning in the Scarpe, east of Arras, and good progress is being made. The British position south-east of Mory and west of Croiselles has been improved in spite of the heavy rain which is falling on that region. Strong German counter attacks north and south of Bapaume have been repulsed by the British.

Fresnoy Captured.

In the battle south of the Somme General DeBeney's French army has captured Fresnoy-Les-Roye, about three miles north of Roye, according to to-day's despatches. General Mangin's army has also made a slight advance between the Ailette and the Aisne. Four hundred prisoners were taken by this army yesterday.

Monchy-Le-Preux and Maricourt, a little less than five miles southeast of Arras, have been taken in to-day's attack. Further south the British have taken Mory and made progress to the southeast.

On Hindenburg Line.

The towns of Monchy-Le-Preux, Guemanph and Maricourt were on the Hindenburg line as it stood prior to the German drive on March 27. In this sector the Germans drove ahead slightly but were held up after the second day of fighting. After that they could not get to Arras. This morning's attack was aparently between Cojeul River and the Scarpe, and adds about four miles to the length of the battle front.

Officers and Men of One Unit That Drove the Huns From the Marne

(By Frank J. Taylor.)

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMIES IN FRANCE, Aug. 25.— One hundred and twenty-six officers and men of a certain American unit which distinguished itself in the Marne fighting were decorated this morning in an impressive ceremony, staged in a wood behind the Lorraine lines.

Sixty-six of the heroes were not present. Their was the supreme sacrifice. American, British and French officers, accompanied an American General, pinning the medals on the living men, while a band played the national airs of their countries. Infantry, artillery and machine gun contingents passed in review, the sun glinting on their helmets and rifles.

American planes scurried about, driving off inquisitive German aviators prowling overhead.

The citations included eight of the Legion of Honour, 16 of the French Military Medal, 29 of the French War Cross and 74 of the Distinguished Service Cross.

Miss Jean Harstone Is Home On Leave

Has Been Driving an Ambulance in France—Had Narrow Escapes

Miss Jean Harstone, known well to the Examiner readers as "Canadian Overseas" for the interesting articles she has contributed during the past two years, returned on Saturday to Peterborough on 2 months' leave from the front. During her absence in England and France she has done V.A.D. work and later driven a motor ambulance close to the firing line. A short time ago the ambulance she was driving, with nine wounded soldiers in it, was shelled, and Miss Harstone narrowly escaped with her life. She is at present at Stoney Lake.

Doctors' Attention Saved His Foot

Mrs. Monks, Orpington Road, has received word from the Red Cross, that her son who is in Winston Hospital, England, will not have to have his foot amputated as at first thought necessary. The letter follows:

August 2, 1918.

Dear Madam,—Since last writing we have asked the Officer Commanding about Pte. Monks' foot and he tells us that it is getting on extremely well now. Pte. Monks says that it is owing to his doctor's great attention that his foot has been saved from amputation. He has had four operations on it. Our Regular Visitor has called and seen him and tells us that there was some talk of moving Pte. Monks to a Canadian Hospital, but the doctor wished to go on with his treatment so that he is still at the above hospital.

Yours truly,

INITIATIVE OF A CENTRAL ONTARIO BATTALION SWEPT UP MACHINE GUNS

(By J. F. B. Livesay, Canadian Press Correspondent.)

WITH CANADIAN FORCES, Aug. 26.—Numerous stories are coming to hand of individual gallantry and initiative in the field during the recent fighting east of Amiens. A Central Ontario battalion did equally good work in front of Beaucourt on August 8. Cavalry had been held up here by converging machine gun fire from south of the Roye road and woods to the north and east. This battalion was similarly held up, but its commanding officer realized that the key to the position was a small wood to the north-east, which was alive with machine guns. Taking advantage of the smoke screen afforded by a burning tank, he led in a hastily-collected party and rushed the wood, capturing sixteen machine guns. The battalion then took the town with a dash, the enemy retiring routed.

SUGAR SCARCITY IN PETERBORO' MAY BECOME EXTREME

Wholesale Grocer Says Householders Have Paid No Heed to Advices of Economy—Outlook Not Bright

SALMON PACK SOLD

The local fruit growers report a good outlook for a heavy plum crop and already Canadian plums are on the market. These, however, are yet high ranging from $1.15 to $1.50 per basket. The peach outlook is bad with a small crop and very high prices in view. Small fruits are now a memory only.

Contrary to the general rule of present day prices, vegetables for picking have not risen this year.

SUGAR SCARCE.

While the fruit outlook is fair sugar is more scarce this week than at any previous time. Mr. Cameron, manager of the Perkins-Ince Company, this morning stated that unless there is a decided change in the present outlook Peterboro will be practically sugarless. This all comes, he said, of the absolute disregard the householders have had for warnings about the scarcity, and the need for economy.

DRIED FRUITS.

With the restrictions put upon dried fruits, the housekeepers will not be able to depend upon dried fruits. Under present laws all dried fruits are under license and Canada will get only what the United States government does not need. Prunes of the "90" or small quality, however, will probably be available for the Canadian maket.

SALMON EMBARGO.

Mr. Cameron heard this morning that all salmon is under embargo, and the railways have been instructed not to ship any from British Columbia. No panic need be caused by this, as what the government does not need will be put upon the market.

G.W.V.A. Appreciates Assistance Given On Decoration Day

August 26th, 1918.

Evening Examiner,

The executive officers of the Great War Veterans' Association desire to extend their thanks to all members of the branch for their loyal co-operation on their first Decoration Sunday, also to all members of the band and to the bandmaster, Comrade Hughes, who has worked so assiduously to make the band such a success. We also desire to thank Mr. Howell for so kindly loaning his car, and to all those kind friends who sent flowers. Our thanks are also due to Mr. Peck and Mr. James for their assistance in locating the graves; also to the public for the kind appreciation they have shown by turning out in such large numbers.

All comrades are reminded that next Sunday has been set aside for the decoration of the graves in St. Peter's Cemetery, when it is hoped that the same loyal response will be shown and, if possible, ensure an even greater success than yesterday.

S. Whatley, Secretary.

GILMOUR PICNIC.

Will Be Held at Chemong Lake on Thursday Afternoon.

The Gilmour Memorial Sunday School beg to announce a picnic on the lake shore at Mr. T. H. Graham's farm on Thursday, August 29th, in the afternoon. There will be a big programme of sports and a good time. All interested are invited to come, each bringing their own basket. No charge for admission.

CANNOT COLLECT FOR LOSS OF LIFE ON LUSITANIA

Suits Against the Cunard Steamship Company Have Been Dismissed

WAS ILLEGAL ACT

NEW YORK, Aug. 25.—The Cunard Steamship Company cannot be held liable for loss of life and property in the torpedoing of the Lusitania by a German submarine, according to a decision handed down in the Admiralty branch of the United States District Court by Judge Julius M. Mayer, and made public today.

"The cause of the sinking of the Lusitania was the illegal act of the Imperial German Government, acting through its instrument, the submarine Commander," declared Judge Mayer, who held that "the fault, therefore, must be laid upon those who are responsible for the sinking of the vessel in the legal as well as moral sense."

In dismissing suits against the Cunard Line aggregating nearly $4,000,000, brought by heirs of persons who perished with the Lusitania, on May 7, 1915, Judge Mayer asserted that "it is not to be doubted that the United States of America and her allies will well remember the rights of those affected by the sinking of the Lusitania and when the time shall come, will see to it that reparation shall be made for one of the most indefensible acts of modern times."

Alsatians Spoke Of Being Liberated

Were Very Happy When Captured by British Troops.

WITH THE BRITISH ARMY IN FRANCE, Aug. 25.—It seems certain that the Germans have brought up large formations of fresh troops, but it is believed that up to the present these reinforcements are still some distance in the rear. It is problematical whether the German high command intends to throw them into the battle now or to use them to hold the line to which the enemy is now being driven.

Among the prisoners taken in to-day's and last night's fighting, which progressed under the brilliant moon, are many Saxons. The officers among these, in comparison with the Prussians, who apparently care not for such things, as soon as they got to the cages, stripped themselves and asked for water with which to bathe from their upturned shrapnel helmets. Alsatians also appeared in the prisoners' cages. Happier men than these it would be hard to find anywhere. They fell on their captors embraced them and spoke in French of being "liberated."

Prisoners taken when Miraumont fell, after a brave resistance by its garrison, said they had been fighting for three days without food.

AMERICANS CLEANING UP

Systematic Work to Remove Objectionable Positions Held by the Enemy in the Fismes District

HAVE MADE AN ADVANCE

(United Press Despatch.

(By Fred Ferguson.)

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMIES IN FRANCE, Aug. 25.— (Night.) — American troops advanced their line five hundred metres (a third of a mile) on a front of two kilometers (a mile and a quarter), immediately east of Fismes to-day, driving the Germans from the railroad and capturing what had been an advantageous enemy position.

As this is cabled, sharp infantry fighting is keeping the whole Vesle front stirred up, but the Boche counters are fruitless.

The Americans, in the last few days have begun a systematic clean up of objectionable positions. The tannery was first taken. Then an attack on a more pretentious scale was launched this morning.

A stiff barrage was put down on the railway at five a.m., the infantry starting their advance simultaneously. Quckly they topped the highway and charged across the open space in the face of a terrific machine gun fire. The attack was so impetuous it sent the Boche running. A heavy enemy barrage was put down on the railway, but the Americans held on.

Only Seven Prisoners.

Only seven prisoners were taken. One of them, a banker and restaurand owner of the higher class, was forced to serve. He had been in the army a year. He said that all ablebodied men are now compelled to work in war factories or go to the front. He said that the soldiers everywhere now realize their efforts are merely a sacrifice.

One deserter who entered the American lines, revealed the straits to which the German High Command has been reduced regarding man power. The deserter had been previously wounded, but was taken from the hospital and returned to the front before he was fully recovered.

The Americans now hold the railway on both sides of Fismes. The Boches are extremely nervous and are constantly sending up rockets at night. American patrols are maintaining constant contact with the German lines, harrassing the enemy positions day and night.

Mrs. Albert Davis, 93 Conger street, has received word from Ottawa that Pte. Albert G. Davis, No. 195062 has been admitted to the Ausralian General Hospital at Rouen, France, on August 18, suffering from a gunshot wound in the wrist. Pte. Davis enlisted here with the 93rd Battalion, but was later transferred to the 19th Battalion.

Germans Strong On Oise Near Noyon

(United Press Despatch.)

(By Webb Miller.)

PARIS, Aug. 26.—While French artillery is smashing up the new German defence positions preparatory to a crossing of the Oise east of Noyon, General Mangin is pushing on methodically toward Goucy Le Chateau ,in the face of fierce resistance.

The Germans have fortified the north bank of the Oise from Noyon to Chauny. At some points the enemy is counter attacking.

COUNTY CONSTABLE FINED AT INGERSOLL

INGERSOLL, Aug. 22. — County Constable John Haycock, was fined $200 and costs by Magistrate Paterson to-day on a charge of having liquor in a place other than a private dwelling. The charge was the result of a visit Monday night by Chief of Police Holmes and Constable Gould to the gas works, where Haycock is employed as night watchman. The Chief carried a search warrant and a partly-filled whiskey bottle was found in Haycock's automobile. He pleaded guilty to the charge.

Fined $40 Each For Gambling

Five Men With a Nice Pot in Front of Them Surprised by Police on Sunday Afternoon

The maximum fine was imposed upon five Peterboro men who pleaded guilty to the charge of gambling on Sunday, when each man was relieved of $40 and costs, in all $43.75.

P. C. Lawrence and P. C. Boyd descended upon their little shelter on Sunday. It was in the bushes about 200 yards north of the Auburn Woollen Mills between the river and the track. Boards which were once part of a fence were used as seats and a "weeping" willow tree protected them from the hot rays of the sun. Seven dollars and eighty cents was on the "table" and the game was full steam ahead when the unwelcome visitors appeared on the scene.

Charged With Theft.

Another Peterboro man was charged with stealing a gold-filled watch chain and a razor strop. He elected to be tried by the magistrate and pleaded not guilty to the charge. A remand until Friday, Aug. 30 was granted by the magistrate until his record could be looked up. His finger prints and identification will be sent to Niagara Falls and Niagara-on-the-Lake.

Activity Along The Italian Front

ROME, Aug. 26.—Patrol encounters were reported from the battle fronts to-day in the War Office statement, which follows:

"There was considerable activity by reconnoitering parties along the whole front.

"On the Asiago Plateau, British and French parties carried out raids, bringing back prisoners. Other prisoners, with arms and other material were captured by patrols in reconnaisance in the Monte Grappa region and the islets of the Piave.

"North of Monte Tomba enemy detachments were driven back."

COAL INFORMATION DESIRED.

The bare statement that Canada's allotment of coal has been fixed by the United States Fuel Administration at 3,002,000 gross tons of anthracite is conclusive enough, but the fears of a general scarcity might be mitigated by an official survey of the prospects for the approaching winter. If the outlook is as serious as the reports indicate, then we should know positively, the Finance Post suggests, so that the necessary measures may be taken.

"Not only should householders be given a serious warning as to their position but manufacturers are entitled to some statement as to what supplies they may actually expect so that they may lay their plans accordingly.

"A call for a statement from Mr. McGrath at this time is intended as a reflection upon the fact that he is spending much of his time in the states rather than in Canada. We will not ask many questions as to how he gets a supply of coal so long as he gets it. Nor is it surprising that he should spend so much of his time on the other side of the line considering that that is where the fuel supply is located."

THE SUBMARINES ON OUR COAST

(Hon. W. S. Fielding, in the Journal of Commerce.)

The sinking of a number of vessels by German submarines very close to the shores of Nova Scotia and New Brunswick has, not unnaturally, created much anxiety and some alarm respecting the protection of our coast and shipping. The captain of one of the vessels destroyed reported that from the time he left a port in Massachusetts until his ship was torpedoed near a Nova Scotian port he saw no other vessel of any kind. It seemed that the extensive shipping movements of the region were at that particular time absolutely without any protection. That is not a pleasing fact, but as it is one that became well known to the German raiders, there is nothing to be gained by ignoring it. The absence of protection has been much commented on, not always in measured terms. It was well known that Canada had quite a fleet of small vessels engaged in patrol service. Where were these vessels? was a common inquiry. At Halifax and at Sydney, and perhaps at some other ports, there were a number of such craft. But it would be a grave mistake to suppose that such vessels, useful as they may be for some purposes, are of any value as a protection against the submarine's attacks. The German submarine of today is a vessel of considerable size, carrying guns of substantial calibre. Naval vessels of the destroyer class, or fast cruisers with heavy guns, are necessary to cope with the submarine with it. It was the policy of a Canadian government a few years ago to build a few of such vessels as the beginning of a Canadian navy, to be utilized in co-operation with imperial warships. Many things have occurred since the commencement of the war to make Canadians regret that that policy was not carried out. Ships of the class contemplated have rendered much good service in various seas, playing an important part in the brilliant achievements of the British navy. Ships of the Australian navy, under a system of organization precisely the same as was proposed in Canada, have on numerous occasions performed service of the highest value. In the absence of the protection which such Canadian vessels would give, we must not be surprised if the German submarines do some harm on our coasts. Nevertheless it is not well to magnify the damage that is being done, or the alarm that such attacks create. So far as the shore settlements are concerned there is not much ground for alarm. There is little probability that the German raiders will come within the range of the fortifications or of military operations on land. It is reasonable to believe that whatever is possible is being done by the authorities, British, Canadian and American, with the means at their command, to provide naval protection for shipping on the Atlantic coast, and that the conditions which favoured the submarine operations at the time referred to, no longer exist.

KEEP PACE WITH FOCH.

The Foch strategy of ceaseless activity, giving the enmy no rest, has filled the Allied armies at the front with a new confidence and elan. They strike the Hun on every side, and keep him always puzzled, anxious and depressed.

This is a good and valauble result. Marshal Foch requires another; he needs more energetic, devoted war service at home in every Allied country.

The people at home must feel the swing of this new activity in France, urging them on. In order to realize the full advantage, they must not lag behind, but keep pace.

Paris, constantly leaning up against the war, sees the stuff of victory in present military developments. Do we realize what they mean?

The Germany we have been fighting up to this moment has been a nation glutted with military triumph. She despised her enemies. Since the war began, she had forged ahead on every front. She had seen her nearest foe fallen prostrate. From day to day had come news of spectacular gains achieved under conditions which easily bred a tradition of personal genius, which took form in the Hindenburg myth. Hourly, the Gaiser issued bombastic bulletins of gratitude to heaven for the success of the Fatherland.

And now, at last, Germany knows what it is to taste bitter defeat. A whole Hun campaign has collapsed. With an ominous future before her she is condemned to a present of reverse and rout. Hindenburg is off the stage. The tradition of genius is beclouded. No voice can be raised to stimulate public confidence that is not mocked by promises broken and prophecies unfulfilled.

Never was the whole line of Hun defence so poorly prepared against attack. Never was the call so clear and insistent for Allied energy screwed up to the maximum.

The spirit required to-day is that of the familiar childhood game "keep the ball rolling," or "keep the pot boiling," which all can understand. This is the time for shutting the mind and heart to diversions and compromises and concentrating upon the one outstanding duty of keeping pace with Foch.

The Proposed Political Celebration

The "old line" Conservatives of Canada, according to an announcement made in Toronto, are to hold a party convention and celebration there on September 21st next, to commemorate the Conservative triumph in the federal election of 1911—the reciprocityy election. If such a plan is carried out it will be a rather peculiar performance at a time when Canada's thought and energy are devoted so thoroughly to the war, and to the many difficult problems it has thrust upon the country. As party fighting goes, the Conservative party scored a great victory in 1911, but thoughtful Conservatives looking back across the events of seven years, and remembering the nature of that campaign will not be quite sure about the wisdom of celebrating the results to-day. In all the provinces except Quebec, the Conservatives in 1911 tried to convince the electors that reciprocity would mean Canada's separation from the Empire, and American control of our government, our industries, and our future. We were to be ruined by the overflow, not only from American factories, but from American farms. We were to be impoverished by being flooded with cheap goods. The most reckless statements were made for the purpose of encouraging a hostile feeling toward the people across the border. A great many of these arguments made converts. There were many people who appeared to think that a growing trade with the United States was dangerous or unpatriotic. They did not stop to think that the people of Maine have not been destroyed commercially or industrially because there is no tariff wall between them and the other states. There was to be reciprocity only in natural products, not in manufactured goods.

Since 1911 our trade with the United States has increased enormously, and the very men who preached against any dealings with the "Yankees" have since been compelled to adopt several features which were included in the reciprocity program. We trade with the United States because it pays us to do so, because we have a great natural market there, as the Americans have a great natural market here. Growth of trade in that direction has not been an injury or a danger but a great benefit. The reciprocity program should have included an increase in the British preference, and such an increase should have followed the Conservative victory. They were not imperial enough for that, however. For years past, in fact, Canada should have been reducing the duties on imports from Great Britain, with the intention of admitting British goods duty free after a reasonable period.

Just what features of their victory relating to trade matters the Conservatives propose to celebrate is not very clear. They will hardly wish to celebrate the success of their 1911 policy in Quebec, for that was the time when they formed an alliance with Bourassa and the Nationalists, and aroused Quebec against the construction of a Canadian navy. Ever since the war it has been seen that a squadron of Canadian cruisers and destroyers would have been immensely useful to the cause of the Allies and the Empire. Events in Quebec since the war, both before and after the adoption of conscription, have shown how harmful have been the results flowing from the Conservative-Nationalist agitation in that province in 1911.

In fact it will be difficult for the Conservatives to set down in black and white just what it is they are celebrating. The celebration, presumably, is a part of some scheme of organization in view of political developments to come. What do the promoters of the Toronto celebration desire? Have they a new political policy to present to the people of Canada at this stage of the war? Are they opposed to Union government? Do they think this is a good time at which to advocate high protection? Are they still ready to say that trade with the United States—our ally in the war—is dangerous and unpatriotic? Perhaps events during the celebration will furnish a reply to some of these questions. If the "old line" Conservatives who are organizing the affair have any idea that Canada is ready to create a Conservative government the size of their mistake will not long be concealed.—St. John Telegraph.

Double Murder In New Jersey Hasn't Been Solved Yet

Police Report Case of Girl and Man Found Shot is Near Solution

NEW YORK, Aug. 25.—With the discovery of new clews in the double murder of August L. Kupfer and Miss Edith Janny on a lonely road near Rahway, N. J., early Wednesday morning, the police last night believed they were nearing a solution of the crime.

It was learned yesterday that on the night of the murder Kupfer took Miss Janny to the Highland Park Hotel, near New Brunswick, after he had taken Isaac Saxe and Miss Genevieve Hendrickson to their homes in Perth Amboy. All four had spent the evening at Seidler's Beach on Raritan Bay. It was some time after eleven o'clock when Saxe parted with Kupfer and Miss Janny, Saxe stating to the police that Kupfer told him he was going to take his companion home at once.

Visit Another Hotel.

It has now been learned by Chief of Police Frank Burke, of Perth Amboy, and Chief County Detective Frank Galatian that Kupfer did not take Miss Janny right home, but that they visited the Highland Park Hotel, spending more than an hour there in company with Rudolph Osterwald, the proprietor, and his wife.

They had several drinks and Osterwald has told the police that Kupfer asked him if they might put up there for the night as he was afraid to take the girl home at that hour.

Osterwald told Kupfer that he could not do this and at a quarter after one that morning the couple left.

The police have computed the time it would take to trave from that hotel to the place where the bodies were found and have decided that they could not have stopped on the way.

Early yesterday morning it was reported that a man had joined them at the Highland Park Hotel, but Mr. and Mrs. Osterwald deny this and state that they were alone, and that no one joined Kupfer and Miss Janny when they left in Kupfer's automobile.

Minor that have been discarded include the possible evidence of the powder puff found in the automobile and the hand mirror. It was at first thought that these might have belonged to another woman, but it is now known that the powder puff belonged to Miss Janny and that the hand mirror belonged to the automobile accessories.

Saw No Automobile.

Dr. Frank Moore, superintendent of the New Jersey State Reformatory, in front of whose residence, at No. 123 West Milton street Rahway, the body of Kupfer was found, stated to Chief Burke yesterday that he did not see any automobile in front of the house as has been said. He told the Chief that he did hear a scream but saw no automobile when he looked from his window. It was Dr. Moore who first notified the police of the murders.

The jealously motive is still the strongest theory the police are working on, and an employe in the cigar factory in Perth Amboy, of which Kupfer was manager, recalled an incident which may lead to an arrest in the case. This employe was riding with Kupfer in his automobile in Perth Amboy one day when suddenly Kupfer pointed to a man walking on the sidewalk and said:

"That fellow will get me some day. He's got it in for me. I'm not to blame, but he's got it in for me and he'll get me."

Soldier Under Suspicion.

Another possibility of a jealousy clew was brought to light yesterday by M. A. McCoy, a structural iron worker, of Perth Amboy, who told of overhearing an altercation between a man and Miss Janny in the dining room of the Madison Hotel, where she was employed as cashier. This man, according to the story, told Miss Janny that she "had thrown him down," and that he accused her of "thinking too much" of some rival because he had money. Whether the "rival" referred to was Kupfer is not yet known.

It was also reported that a soldier at Camp Dix, Wrightstown, N.J. was under suspicion, and the police were endeavoring to learn from the military authorities of that camp of he had been absent the night of the murder.

TOM SHARKEY JOINS UP.

Tom Sharkey, sailor, prize figh- er, saloon keeper, and a lot of oth er things, is going to war. Tom has joined the Y.M.C.A. training corps, and will help the Budddies get in shape. There is nothing striking in the fact that Tom wants to get into a fight, as he always relished "rough mixing," but the Y.M.C.A. connection is new.

However, he finds that the best thing any man can do is to get in- to the Big Game, and help, and he can help best in that way.

Tom has the right idea. Not ev- erybody can help in that way, but everybody can put some "pep" in- to war work of every kind.

A big job right at hand is to help the farmer harvest the 1918 crop. Every ounce of foodstuffs is wanted. Join the harvesters.

RIVERSIDES PRACTICE.

The players of the Riverside Base- ball team will hold a practice to-night at Riverside Park at 6.30 sharp. All members are requested to be on hand.

Even McGinnity Will Be in New Draft Age in the U. S.

Very Little Chance of Baseball Next Season Under Such Conditions.

How many active ball players would be left for use on the diamond if the new draft age provisions advo- cated by the War Department are ap- proved and put into effect, with the law reading that all men who have not reached their 46th birthday by a certain date (say September 5) shall register, be classified and either in- ducted into the army or placed at some essential war work? "Mighty few," would be the average fans' an- swer, and he probably would add: "I guess Bobby Wallace and Nap Lajoie and a few more like them would be exempt."

Wrong. If the figures of a baseball record keeper are correct as to ages of the athletes, there is absolutely not one player out of the hundreds who have taken part in active service on the diamond this season, in ma- jor or minor circles, who would be above the draft age. And not only baseball players, who could enough himself to know better, says, Norman Elberfeld would be the only "active" player ex- empt, but as a matter of fact the famous "Kid" was born in 1876, which makes him 42 years young.

Elberfeld Just Seems Old.

Elberfeld, from his length of service in baseball would seem to be on the shady side of 50 but the "Kid" start- ed playing when he was about 17 years old—and he still was playing, now and then, when the Southern League season closed in June.

Had the writer who picked Elber- feld as the only active player above the new draft age cared to dig a lit- tle into the dope he could have dis- covered that the oldest active player, in point of years as well as length of service, is right in the majors to-day. He is Bobby Wallace, who plays the infield and does it well, now and then, for the St. Louis Cardinals. Wallace was born in November of 1874, so that even he is of draft age under the new law that is expected to be in force before he reaches his 44th birthday. As for length of ser- vice, he was playing professional ball in 1893, when Elberfeld was still a semi-pro. on the lots of Cincinnati.

Honour Belongs to McGinnity.

Actually the oldest ball player who did any active service this season, so far as the records disclose, was Joe McGinnity, the veteran pitcher, who twirled a few games in the Pacific Coast International League. Joe was born in March of 1873, and is thus a year and a half older than Wallace, but even he is in the new draft age. McGinnity started his professional career the same year that Wallace broke in.

Going to the other extreme, the youngest player in the major leagues —there may have been a few younger in the minors—is Clifton Heathcote, outfielder on the same Cardinal team with which Wallace plays. Heathcote has passed his 19th birthday, so he is of draft age under the new regu- lations.

Thus Uncle Sam gets them coming and going, and it's no use to figure on baseball for next year if the new draft law is passed, as it undoubtedly will be.

VILLAGE CLUB DISPERSED.

One Result of the Closing of the Village Store at 7 O'clock.

Under war orders, the stores in rural villages close now at 7 o'clock in the evening.

Will somebody who knows tell us where the village club meets now to decide the fate of nations?

In other days the store was the vil- lage gathering place. Seated on boxes and barrels, with the few chairs re- served for magnates, the elders of the village solemnly revolved on mind and tongues the state of affairs in general, with the youngsters drink- ing it all in, but seldom venturing the presumption of participation.

Village affairs, county affairs, State affairs, national affairs, world affairs—nothing was too small, noth- ing too vast, to be debated and de- cided in this assemblage at the vil- lage store. Though doubtless the busy fiend Gossip occasionally ven- tured into this grave gathering, and bestirred it to the discussion of per- sonalities, usually the field was wider; for there was nothing small about the ambition of this local debating club. Daily except Sunday the affairs of the universe were duly chronicled, dis- cussed and decided. Local oracles held forth at length and with keen relish.

And now, in the time of war when there is so much to be discussed and decided, the Government steps in and orders the meeting place closed at sharp 7; and the place that knew the village debating club knows it no more. What are "the boys" do- ing these evenings in this tensest of all times in man's history? Where do they meet, and how do they manage to decide the affairs of State of this little neighbourhood called the world?

You may be tempted, Mr. City Man, to become facetious. You may be inclined to ask, with mighty sar- casm; how Wilson and Lloyd George and Clemenceau and Foch and Persh- ing and Hindenburg and Petain manage to get along without the advice and counsel of the evening village forums. Don't joke. It would be very cheap humour, and it would be unjust and foolish.

For there was very real value in these gatherings, and we wish city folks would gather in their neigh- bourhoods, as the village neighbour- hood gathered in the village store, to discuss the affairs of State. The test of logic, the matching of informa- tion and knowledge and debating powers, kept wits brightly sharpened. The hot discussions of candidates and issues were a very real aid to the intelligent determination of political questions in nation, State, county and community. The men who gathered nightly in the village store, around the fire in winter, on the sidewalk in summer, were better citizens and more intelligent voters because of their free exchange of though.

To-night the door is closed and locked at 7, and the nightly gathering is disbanded. Where do "the boys"— the quotation marks are because we know where the real boys are: they are at Wadsworth or Grant or Cody or Dodge or in France—where do "the boys" gather now? Or do they gather at all? If they don't, it is a real loss, and an interruption to a very useful institution, a forum very help- ful to our democracy.—Duluth Herald.

FEAST FOR ARIZONANS.

25,000 Pounds of Ostrich Meat to be Put on Their Tables.

"Please pass the ostrich."

This request may be heard soon in the public eating places and the din- ing rooms of the private homes of Washington. Stranger things than the serving of nice roast ostrich, with plenty of gravy and dressing, have happened during these war times.

The future popularity of this bird as an American dish depends to a large extent upon the success to be met in Arizona, where they are being intro- duced as a food now.

The Federal Food Administrator for Arizona has granted permission to the owner of one of the largest ostrich farms in America, situated near Phoe- nix, to slaughter 800 of his birds. This ostrich raiser reports that the birds are in excellent condition, and when killed will be dressed and placed on the market at an extremely low price —probably 15 cents a pound. The 800 birds will make about 25,000 pounds of dressed meat.

The war is responsible in two ways for this action on the part of the os- trich raiser. In the first place, the latter would never thing of slaughter- ing these valuable, if not overtender, birds, but for the fact that the war has put the ostrich plume more or less out of business. In the second place, the war shortage of meat is responsible for the issuance of the order permitting the slaughter and sale.

And thus it comes to pass that Ari- zona, or a part of her population, at least, is preparing to observe and cel- ebrate "Ostrich day." Meanwhile the rest of the nation is waiting to hear the verdict to be passed upon this bird as a nice, tasty, and tender food aside from its neck.

Officials of the Food Administration are rather optimistic about the future of the ostrich as a food. They point to the tremendous hit whale meat has made in various sections; even shark steaks have been passed upon and approved, and reindeer meat is making the hit of the year in the west.—Washington Star.

GREAT WAR VETERANS HELD THEIR FIRST DECORATION DAY

Impressive Ceremony at the Little Lake Cemetery on Sunday Afternoon—More Than 100 Returned Men Paraded.

BAND PLAYED WELL

Impressive was the ceremony which took place at Little Lake Cemetery yesterday afternoon. Headed by the Veterans' band, comprising thirty- six pieces, the members of the Great War Veterans' Association, number- ing over 100 men, marched to the cemetery to do honour to their com- rades who had given all they had, their life, for the cause of freedom, the Empire, and what their manhood stood for. Each veteran carried a bouquet of flowers, and in his turn deposited it on a grave.

Captain J. H. Burnham, M.P., spoke briefly at the cemetery in hon- our of the men who had fallen in battle. "There are many thousands of them gone, but we are undaunted as ever."

He told of the exemplary life led by the Empire's soldiers. How they lived and how they died. "And," said Mr. Burnham, "the Veterans at home are upholding the best tradi- tions of their comrades overseas."

Solemnly the Veterans divided into sections and laid five bouquets on each hero's grave with the Union Jack and Canada's emblem, which were crossed. The graves which were decorated were those of the follow- ing officercs and men:

Pte. H. Nicholls, 39th Battalion.
Corp. J. Lightfoot, Winnipeg.
Pte. R. Mahood, Calgary.
Pte. Van Norman, Canadian Grena- dier Guards.
Pte. Merton Adams, 8th Canadian Mounted Rifles.
Pte. J. Blake, 8th Canadian Mount- ed Rifles.
Sergt. H. Watson, 93rd Battalion.
Lieut. A. Ackerman, Trench Mor- tars.
Pte. W. Levoir, 2nd Battalion.
Pte. F. Sawyer, 93rd Battalion.
Pte. E. Peters, 93rd Battalion.
Pte. Metherall, 93rd Battalion.

Hundreds of people were at the cemetery, and many personally laid floral tributes on the soldiers' graves. At 4.30 the Veterans returned to the Armouries, in charge of President Staunton. Bandmaster Walter Hughes was in charge of the band.

It was the most impressive cere- mony the Veterans have held since their incorporation. The attendance was exceptionally large, and the occa- sion will not soon be forgotten. The Veterans' band, neatly uniformed, was more than satisfactory to its many friends in the city. Its numeri- cal strength was surprising, and its musical qualities gave promise of future excellence that was, in fact, not lacking in yesterday's selections. In the short time since its organization, Bandmaster Hughes has accomplished a great deal, and the future appear- ance of the band will be awaited with deep interest.

Further Imperial Decisions Coming

OTHER IMPORTANT CONCLUSIONS THIS YEAR ON WAR EF- FORT, SAYS SIR ROBERT.

REVIEWS WORK IN ENGLAND.

Greatest Efficiency Marks all Branch- of the Canadian Forces.

Ottawa, August 25.—"The Canadian representatives," declared Sir Robert Borden to-day, referring in the course of an interview to the work of the Imperial War Conference, "carried out a definite policy of preserving complete freedom of action to the Government and Parliament of Cana- da in the policy and methods to be adopted for co-operation with other parts of the Empire in any common purpose."

Conclusions of Great Moment.

"Nearly all the conclusions reach- ed in the Imperial War Cabinets were of a confidential or secret na- ture, and therefore cannot be made public. They had a very intimate re- lation to the conduct of the war in the various theatres. Unity of action, further preparation, co-operation in the utilization of resources, the most effective employment of striking pow- er, whether on land, at sea or in the air; these and many other related subjects were under most close and prolonged consideration from the first to last, with the assistance and ad- vice of the highest experts. Conclu- sions of great moment were reached, and before the close of the present year further important decisions must necessarily be taken. Several of these subjects were specially considered by a committee of the Imperial War Cabinet, consisting of the Prime Min- isters of the United Kingdom and of the Dominions, together with General Smuts, representing the Prime Minis- ter of South Africa. Lord Milner, as Secretary of State for War, was also a member. The deliberations of this committee continued up till the time of my departure and even then had not been absolutely concluded.

"Besides the work of the War Con- ference and the War Cabinet my col- leagues and I took up with many de- partments of the British Government questions which could not be effec- tively or thoroughly dealt with by cor- respondence. Among the departments with whom important subjects were discussed I may mention the War Of- fice, the Admiralty, the Ministry of Shipping, the Ministry of Food, the Ministry of National Service, the Ministry of the Air Force, the Minis- try of Munitions and the Board of Trade. The organization of the Can- adian Expeditionary Force, both in Great Britain and in France, and more effective co-operation with the Department of Militia and Defence, were also discussed at several confer- ences with Sir Edward Kemp. Very useful progress was made and valua- ble results attained. All of us were impressed with the thoroughness of the Canadian organization and with the earnestness and devotion of offi- cers and men in the discharge of their duties."

Australian M.P. Started Career As Coal Picker

The Hon. Hugh Donald McIntosh, M.L.C., "The" McIntosh who recent- ly passed through New York on his way from Australia to England to con- fer with the British war council, on Australian business, is the Lord Northcliffe of the Antipodes, only more so. At 41 he heads no less than thirty-two enterprises in which he has made thirty-two neat fortunes. Aus- tralia is ready to back him against all comers for speed and punch. And the answer is that it is better to be born with a muscular temperament than with a gold-spoon in your mouth.

The Hon. Hugh was appointed to the Australian Parliament two years ago, and the staid members have been trying to get used to him ever since, but even those who tremblingly pro- tested, "He's a bally waiter, dontcher- know, a spwating chap—wotinell does he know about lawmaking. I awek you?" will have to make the best of it, because he is there for life, and the list of his intended doings sounds like the program of the universe for the next half century.

In apeparance, Mr. McIntosh is ex- tremely agreeable, writes Loe Beckley in the New York Mail. In personali- ty he is a composite of Teddy Roose- velt, George M. Cohan, Marse Henry Watterson, Tex Rickard, John M. Baer, J. D. Rockefeller and Doug Fairbanks.

"ON HIS OWN" AT SEVEN.

The first of his fortunes was made at the age of seven, when he ran away to the silver mines several provinces removed from his home town of Sy- dney, and picked ore 'at thirty bob' a week.' Then he came home and drove a caterer's cart and got married. In a few years he was runnin the cater- a few years he was running the cater- and he sold out.

"It doesn't matter what you tac- kle," he says; "it's how much fore- sight and common sense you use that brings you out on top. The first big money I made was made on a fore- sight.

"It was in Roosevelt's presidency. The American fleet was coming to Syd- ney, and I figured there would be a big time. Says I 'Why not pull off a come to it—about twelve thousand of them.' We got up a bout between Tommy Burns and Bill Squires, but somehow the Americans did not fall for it. The fighters weren't big enough. But the Australians came, and we made about $60,000.

"Now, if they do that much for a bum fight, say I, why not have a real one? I'll get 'the nigger' from Paris, I says, and have a match between him and Tommy Burns. But every- body laughed and said that I couldn't run a fight. 'Wot's he know about a ring?' they said; 'Why's he's only a bloomin' waiter!' Now, if someone just says to me that I can't do a thing—that's when I do it!'

GOT JOHNSON-BURNS FIGHT.

"Anyhow, I got Jack Johnson over from Paris, agreeing to pay him $30,- 000. He demanded an extra $2500 for movie right, and I said, all right. Later on he was sore because he had not asked more, and went into the fight with a grouch on. Poor Tommy Burns, who was also to get $30,000, said that he would not take the chance unless I refereed the fight. So I had to do it."

"It was a hot event. Burns was plucky. He was a half a head shorter than Johnson and forty pounds light- er, but he stood the punishment for fourteen rounds. My words, he was in an awful mess afterwards! But he got his $30,000, and I cleaned up $185,000!"

McIntosh thought that he had found his life work in promoting prize fights. Sporting events held his in- terest for a while after that. But it takes an awful lot of things to keep him really busy. So he started some theatres. As before, folks said—

"Now, what does he know about theatricals? Why, he only a blinking boxer!" he promptly showed them by acquiring a string of five theatres, one in each state in Australia.

But still he wasn't busy enough so he started some newspapers, and the neighbours reiterated their little song.

PROUD OF HIS PAPERS.

"I'm really proud of my newspap- ers," admits "The" McIntosh. "The Sydney Times is the Government na- tional organ and has a reputation all over the country. The Sydney Sun- day Times has seven whole papers de- voted to women's interests—how's that?" he shot, but pluned on before I could pay my respectful compli- ments.

"We don't have lady reporters, you know, and—what do you call them, ah—feature writers—but we have wo- men who do the home stuff and art, dram and society. Women are terri- bly important in Australia, indeed, yes. Don't let anyone tell you that their enfranchisement has not helped the country, because it has. Politics, industry, everything, has been affect- ed for the better. I'm a great believer in women. I'm almost as keen about women as I am about things Amer- ican, and that's saying a lot!

"Why, my wife and I practically commute between Sydney and New York in peace times. She comes over to buy clothes and things and I come to pick up ideas and get acquainted with your business men. I've always felt that I should have made a big success if I had come out to Ameri- ca when I was a nipper. More money here, more opportunities; more speed, more everything!"

IMPORTED LABOUR WOULD PUT AN END TO COAL PROFITEERING

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Sir: No doubt "Common Sense" and the writer of the letter he quotes are in one sense right. We may take it as an axiom that every faddist has a measure of right somewhere in his theory. It is perfectly correct that if we have not enough labour willing to mine the coal at fair prices, and we can get Coolie labour that will and can, we ought as a war measure to get that labour; and Mr. Carvell shows good sense in proposing to do so. But his proposal is objected to because it would checkmate the corner that is being created in coal, not that the objectors particularly object to the coal corner (labour as well as Capital) being broken up, but because it is the thin edge of the wedge that would break up other "Corners."

Profiteers run rampant in the land to-day because everyone has a corner in something. Those who oppose Mr. Carvell are trying to scare the farmers into opposing him on the cry of "Cheap food," and the labouring classes "Cheap labour."

We have history to teach us something on the subject. Free Trade was brought into being by the rapacity of the food producers in Britain, who had it all their own way, but the Free Traders when they got the upper hand did not stop at food; they made all imports free, and not only farming, but many other industries, were ruined.

Those who are interested in keeping up prices naturally wish to exclude open competition. The consumer pay every time. The producer gets the pull. Mr. Carvell sees that the producers of coal have us by the throat. There are two remedies, and only two. The one is to take over the sources of production and work them for the Nation by forced labour; the other is to import willing labour that will produce at a fair price, and see that the Capitalists who own the sources of production supply the consumer at prices that give him no undue profit.

This same reasoning should apply equally to all other products. Confiscation or Competition are the alternatives. Each is drastic, but a strong disease requires a strong remedy. The consumer is being strangled. Those who can try to restore the equilibrium by strikes or otherwise making a "corner" for themselves in their particular department, and so as the value of the dollar declines by the cost of commodities increasing the various classes of the community try to breast the waves. But all the time the profiteer is the man that gets the best of the deal for the reason that he gets first bite.

There is no fear of our being reduced to the level of the Oriental by the importation for the period of the war of some less expensive auxiliary help, but there is a good chance that the harpies that are growing rich out of the blood that is being shed by our boys in this war, will be spoiled of their game.

If the coal miners and owners want to keep out cheaper labour, let them put their shoulders to the wheel themselves and supply the demand at reasonable rates, and we will hear no more of Oriental labour, and let the other producers take a lesson from what occurred in Engalnd, and not create the condition that produced free trade, and there will be no need of inviting competition to check their rapacity.

The proverb says the worm will turn, and the result of the present exorbitant prices of every necessary of life will surely be to encourage competition.

Yours,etc.,
Fair Play.

Voice of The People

Peterborough, Aug. 24th, 1918.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Dear Sir,—With regard to the letter in Saturday's issue of the Examiner, on the importation of Chinese labour, most people agree with "Common Sense" that all is not done, that might be done, by the Government at Ottawa, to assist in getting labour placed in the right quarter, to work the coal mines, etc. But the article published by the journal, "Saturday Night," seems to be nothing more than capitalist jargon. Unless people have taken the wrong meaning out of the article, where it states, "In respect to the importation of coolies to see us over the labour crisis." Does "Saturday Night" mean to place them at Ottawa, on account of the "pussy footing" of the members of the present Government? "Saturday Night" continues its optimistic tone, "However, there is still time to get these coolies on the job, and speed up production, where white labour has failed to do its duty."

Now as to white labour having failed to do its duty, "Saturday Night" is not consistent with the rest of the Canadian press, whose statistics on Canadian production and industry is not only a pleasant surprise to this country, but also to the Entente Allied countries. People will admit there has been a shortage of white labour at Ottawa, and serious crisis did crop up, and certain people were getting irritable and were willing to bring in coolies or anything else, to fill the vacant seats of the Canadian Ministers then in England, but even at that the most pessimistic would draw the line, as to those whites failing in their duty. Coolies being imported into England may be all right, but, understand, that all important industries and railways are under Government control, taken out of the hands of the exploitation of profiteers, which has proved to be the one and only solution, for the smooth working of all industries, and, as Mr. Burnham states in a letter to the electors, that if a system works out well in war time, why not after the war?

"Saturday Night" is surely conversant with the state of social unrest. Labour of Canada is doing its duty. Please don't antagonise smooth-running conditions. Canadian labour's loyalty compares well with the rest of the world, and remember that it is labour that is winning the war. The Government has registration cards to assist in distributing of labour. This done might save the country the expense of importing a condition that would tend to pull down our social structure instead of raising it. When doing evil that good may come, make sure that such affairs do not recoil and injure the country politically and economically.
—Yours,

Proletarian.

To the Mayor and Council of Peterborough.

Gentlemen,—As a rate payer, may I for my information and for my fellow citizens, ask, if the plans of the new viaduct are yet to the fore? And, if so, may a citizen call and see them? What is the proposed expenditure for the bridge and for the new viaduct complete?

May I further ask how much the C.P.R. and G.T.R. are contributing towards the proposed erection on Hunter street Is the Quaker Oats Company contributing anything? Or is the entire cost to be borne by the already overtaxed citizens?

The Street Railway is not owned by the City. It will want to use the viaduct, how much will it contribute? Before this great expenditure is incurred would it not be wise to settle these matters? If this is not done the City will have a poor show in negotiating for terms afterwards.

Awaiting an answer.

I am, Gentlemen, for myself and others,

Your obedient servant,
Civis.

Who Is Responsible For The Arrested Development Of Peterborough Water Power?

Mr. R. R. Hall Asserts That We Are Going Behind in Our Power Supply —Dam No. 5 Was Dismantled and Hydraulic Power Co. Will Require Their Entire Output—4,000 h. p. Available, If Developed, Worth $30,000 a Year at Very Least.

Public Utilities in other parts of Canada are being developed and extended. Why should Peterborough District mark time?

Who is to blame for the adoption of a "do nothing policy" respecting our water powers and the extension of the Peterborough Radial Railway to Youngs Point?

Sir Adam Beck is carrying on extensive development work in other parts of the Province. Why should electrical development in this district come to a standstill? It is worse than standing still. It is going behind.

The Plant at Dam No. 5 up the Otonabee River has been dismantled and upwards of 1,200 horse power has been withdrawn from public use and allowed to run to waste. It is currently reported that the Quaker Oats Company is about to use all the power developed at its dam which will mean the withdrawal from general public use of 1,500 horse power more.

Why should not the electric power commission start at once to develop dams numbers 4 and 5 on the Otonabee River under one head? The head of water at this point is about the same as the Quaker Oats dam is capable of developing upwards of 4,000 horse power. On a twenty-four hour service throughout the year 4,000 electrical horse power is of greater value than 30,000 tons of coal worth to-day over $300,000.

It is said that electrical development work is now very expensive and that such work should be postponed until after the war. But so is the price of coal very expensive and the price is going to still further advance. Moreover coal is becoming scarce and economic conditions indicate that it will become scarcer and that there will not be enough coal to go round.

Before the war it was estimated that dams numbers 4 and 5 could be completely developed for $210,000. It would cost more now but it is a good guess to say that its entire cost would not be more than the power development would be capable of saving in coal in one single year.

Coal bills have to be paid yearly but the electrical power development is permanent and the future saving is apparent.

When the Hydro is at it why not extend the Street Railway to Young's Point? It would give quick and easy access to the beautiful lakes to the north. It would give to thousands of our citizens in Peterborough much needed fresh air and recreation. It would attract tourists to our upper lakes and incidently benefit tained will be in exact proportion to the earnestness with which

There would be plenty of power at dams 4 and 5 to operate the Railway and at the same time leave a large surplus to help lessen coal bills in Peterborough.

How could these two enterprises be started? Certainly not by our City, County, Village and Township Councils letting matters drift. Every Council from Apsley to Peterborough should meet, organize, get together and make representations to Sir Adam Beck that these enterprises must go on. The degree of success that is attained will be in exact proportion to the sarnestness with which the representations are made.

Sir Adam Beck has it within his power to render to the people of this City and County, these two valuable public services.

The people were in earnest when they adopted public ownership in the use of water powers and prevented private owners from developing these utilities without any government aid.

These water powers at one time belonged to the North American Indian who made no use of them but allowed them to run to waste.

It is to be hoped that the Hydro's operation and development of these water powers will not be like the North American Indian's. The Indian did not know how to use them. We do. Our various councils must therefore earnestly make their representations to Sir Adam Beck; otherwise we may prove ourselves even more wasteful, slothful and incompetent than the North American Indian.

Canada's Effort To Provide Ships

Plants Will Turn Out 446,000 Tons This Year, Says Mr. Rowell.

MILLBROOK, Aug. 25.—Hon. N. W. Rowell addressed a meeting of his constituents here last night, and reviewed the work of the Union Government. Touching on the war effort, he said that since the Military Service Act came into force 79,010 men have volunteered or have been enrolled. Since January 1st last, 66,542 men had been sent overseas as reinforcements. Canada, he said, had supplied probably a third of the total number of pilots in the Royal Air Force.

Dealing with the shipbuilding programme, Mr. Rowell said: "The submarine menace has made the building of ships an imperative national duty. The Government has decided that a shipbuilding programme on a national scale should be carried on by the Government of Canada, and that programme is now under way, and just as soon as the shipbuilding yards which are building steel ships for the Imperial Munitions Board complete their contracts, new contracts are being awarded by the Government of Canada. It is estimated that there will be launched in Canada this year a grand total of ship tonnage, steel and wooden, both by the Imperial Munitions Board and the Canadian Government, of approximately 446,000 tons—about 40 per cent. of the total tonnage of the merchant ships completed in Great Britain last year. This is a remarkable record."

French Striving To Circle Noyon

(By John De Gandt.)

PARIS, Aug. 26.—(4 p.m.)—The battle was resumed on a large scale between the Oise and the Aisne to-day.

The French are pressing northward and eastward in the Ailette salient to force the defences east of Noyon and west of Coucy Le Chateau, preparatory to opening the way for a decisive drive toward the Somme in Ham-St. Simon region.

Pte. Fred Graham Probably in France

The Soldiers' News Club of Lakefield has received the following letter from Private Fred. Graham, formerly of the Peterborough Junior O.H.A. team:

To the Ladies of the Soldiers' News Club,—Received your parcel of maple sugar, and it was sure a treat to get some maple sugar, for we never see any over here and chocolates are very scarce, and a person sure appreciates some eats from home. The girls' names on the card are some of my school mates and I was certainly taken by surprise when I got it. We received it on the 15th of July, so it sure came in a hurry, and it was nice, and I certainly enjoyed it, as it is over seven months since I had some real Canadian maple sugar.

We go on our last leave next Tuesday before we go to France. Most of the boys that came over with me have already gone to France, so I guess it wont be long till we go over, and we will all be glad to go. We filled up on training. I was very sorry to hear the sad news about Roland Carter being killed and Vandal Simpson being gassed and shell-shocked. If I knew what hospital he was in I would try to go to see him. Now as news is very scarce and not very much to tell, thanking the ladies of the Soldiers' News Club once more, I remain a Lakefield boy,

ST. CATHARINES GAS PLANT LOST $8,000 PER YEAR

Some Discoveries Are Made by the Public Utility Commission

Serious Losses Are Suffered Through Leaks—Effort Now Being Made to Put Concern on a Better Basis.

That the gas plant at St. Catharines has been losing over $8,000 per year ever since the city took it over in 1912, was the rather startling statement made at a joint meeting of the Public Utility Commission and the city council last week. Thus as it was pointed out, despite the fact that the impression has been generally held by the citizens that the enterprise was either paying its way or just about to pay, they must be prepared to see some readjustments of the civic financing to meet the situation as indicated.

It now devolves upon the members of the council and of the commission to find ways and means of adjusting the civic finances to cover the loss indicated gradually, if possible, and with this object in view, a deputation was appointed to interview the Ontario Railway and Municipal Board.

Since the plan has been operated by the Commission efforts have been made to find out the facts of the whole financial situation and there were some very unsatisfactory revelations. It was found that the city had no accurate record of pipes and services, that leakages were exceedingly heavy and that considering the fixed charges of all kinds that have to be met, the cost of maintenance and operation, the office and other expenses, the latter of which has been considerably reduced, the annual cost of running the plant over and above the revenue received is more than $8,000 per year.

To Improve Service.

Discarding the idea of closing the plant altogether because the overhead charges of interest and sinking funds would have to be met just the same in addition to the payment of a watchman and other smaller items of expense, an effort is being made to conduct the concern upon sounder business lines. The service is being improved to the consumers and it is hoped that a material increase in the number of customers will result. From the first of the year to June the number of accounts grew from 500 to 535—in June of 1917, however, there was a total of 754.

The Question of Charges.

Explaining to the meeting the matter of leakages, Manager Yates stated that at the first of March it was estimated that a million and a half feet a month was being lost. This had been reduced to 670,000 feet per month, less than half, but the item of loss was still a heavy one.

The matter of the price being charged to the consumer was discussed. The rate is $1.00 per 1,000 cubic feet and it was pointed out that this was considerably below other places in the province such as Belleville, St. Thomas, Kitchener, Deseronto, Cobourg and Napanee.

Officer Wanted a Meal.

A Prussian officer in another cage drew attention on his arrival by first asking that his orderly be confined in the same cage, and then asking for steak and onions.

The prisoners included large numbers of the Third Marines, caught east of Miramount, where they were reinforcing the Bavarians, when Miramount was pinched off at noon Saturday.

One of the happiest of prisoners, judging from the expression on his face, was a German messenger dog, who was confined in one of the cages, although he apparently only reflected the feleings of the young Germans about him, and responded to advances no more willingly than did the men.

The total of prisoners taken by the British alone since Wednesday is now believed to be more than forty thousand.

LOSS OF $290,000,000 ON OPERATION OF ROADS

WASHINGTON, Aug. 25.—Owing largely to big back payments of wage increases, the railways under federal control in June reported an aggregate deficit of $58,959,000 in railway operating income as compared with positive earnings of $93,909,000 in June, 1917. This reduced the total operating income for the six months of Government operation ending with June to $173,194,000 as compared with $458,203,000 in the corresponding period of last year.

These figures, compiled by the Interstate Commerce Commission, and announced to-day, show that the Government has lost about $290,000,000 in operation of railroads during the first six months of this year.

Brennan Eats Three Big Every Day Since Taking Ta

"Besides myself I have several friends who are taking Tanlac and they all say it has done them a world of good, too," said William Brennan, a well known employee of the Crescent Concrete Company living at 224 Sorauren avenue, Toronto, recently.

"My stomach has been all out of order for several years," he continued, "and I have also suffered constantly from constipation. My appetite was so poor that I just had to force down what little I ate and many a day I have brought my lunch back home with me without ever touching a bite of it. I suffered terribly from indigestion and at times my food just seemed to lodge in my stomach and feel like a heavy lump there. I would often feel right weak from lack of nourishment and yet I had no appetite or relish for anything. I was continually taking something for constipation as well as for my stomach, but nothing seemed to do me any good. I would go off to my work in the mornings feeling tired and sluggish and could hardly muster up energy enough to do anything.

"I had read and heard a good deal about Tanlac, but I had no idea it was so fine until I tried it myself. My appetite picked up in just a few days and it wasn't long before I could eat three rousing meals a day without feeling a sign of indigestion. I have only taken two bottles so far by my stomach trouble seems to be a thing of the past. I'm not constipated, sluggish and tired any more and, in fact, I'm enjoying better health than I have in years. I consider Tanlac extra fine and will recommend it to anyone.

The Telephone at the Front

Indispensible in the Work of the Artillery---Permits Close Co-operation With the Infantry--Many Exchanges and Lines Must Be Kept in Repair

(By Major C. J. C. Street, R.G.A.)

The communications of a Heavy Artillery Group and its Batteries are apt to be somewhat complicated. Extremely rapid inter-communication between the various parts of the whole are essential if efficient fire is to be brought to bear upon any required target, and this involves a certain amount of duplication of lines between cardinal points. The group Orderly Officer is responsible for the maintenance and repair of these various lines.

In trench warfare, when the position of the armies is stationary, this intercommunication reaches a very high state of development. So far as the Heavy Artillery of a Corps is concerned, the system employed is similar to that of the telephone service of a Town. Exchanges are established at suitable points, and buried lines are laid from one to another. Units have merely to run a line to the nearest exchange. For instance, a Battery taking up a position runs out a line to one or more exchanges, and if it sets up a new observation post, it runs a line here to an exchange, instead of right back to the Battery.

These exchange lines are supplemented by various direct lines in case of emergency, for instance, the Groups usually have direct lines to their Batteries. Further, every unit, such as a Group or Battery, has a private exchange for purposes of its internal communications.

As a general statement, it may be said that permanent lines, such as those between exchanges, are laid by the Royal Engineers, while the connections to the exchanges are made by units themselves. The Group Orderly Officer is charged with the inspection of all lines that concern the group, and, as the representative of the Group Commander, instructs the batteries as to the connections they are to make. He calls upon the R.E. for repairs to the permanent lines, and relies upon his own linesmen, supplemented if necessary by others borrowed from the Batteries. He also arranges for the manning of the exchanges, which is done by reliefs from the Battery Telephonists in most cases.

The Orderly Officer's work begins at home. he must make certain that the Group Telephonists are in every way up to their work. There is nothing that hinders rapid communication more than incapacity on the part of the men who are working the system. Unless everything goes smoothly at Group Headquarters it is useless to perfect the most elaborate system outside. He must train every man to do his share of the work, whether as linesman or telephonist, and develop their faculties of common sense.

Careful Inspection.

The key to maintaining telephone lines in order is a careful and systematic inspection, which discovers incipient faults before the line breaks down rather than after that event. Accidents such as lines being cut by shell-fire cannot be foreseen, of course, but there are many others that can, and for these the Orderly Officer must be constantly on the look out.

The occupation of a new position by a Battery affords him plenty of work. He must devise the best way of laying its lines and communicate them to the Battery Commander, to whom the wiring system in this particular sector is of course unknown. It is most important that a Battery should be linked up with its group, and its observation post at the earliest possible moment, until this has been done it is not of much use as a fighting unit. But, on the other hand, it is no use laying a line anyhow. A carelessly laid line is bound to be cut at once, either by shell-fire or by passing traffic, and the work has to be done all over again. A certain amount of ingenuity and experience is necessary to devise the most suitable route for any required line, and when this has been done it is as well to devise an alternative route for a second line between the same two points, in case of accidents.

Part of his time the Orderly Officer spends wandering about in the open up by the observation posts, trying to find safe routes for his wires, always a most difficult matter in the forward areas. His days and often his nights are kept fairly busy, and he never knows when a report may come through of a failure that may mean many hours hard labour. To be Orderly Officer of a large Group engaged in active operations is by no means a sinecure.

Catholic Chaplain Commends "Y" Work

From the British Columbia Orphans' Friend, the Catholic Register of Toronto, recently reproduced a letter written by Rev. A. B. W. Wood, a Catholic chaplain with the Canadian Army, in which he highly commends the work of the Y.M.C.A. at the front in the following paragraph:

"I see there has been a good deal of discussion about the Y.M.C.A. at home. Well, I should like to say this: here at the front the Y.M.C.A. is doing a work which cannot be too highly appreciated. Its canteens and stations are established right up behind the front line, and it is always ready with refreshments and help whenever it is needed, day or night. I do not think one Catholic chaplain can complain that the Y.M.C.A. out here has ever been anything but a help in his work. Its tents and huts are always at our disposal; it never attempts to keep our men for its own services, but often brings Catholics to the notice of their own chaplain. Then, too, it does a very useful work in organizing sports which are of immense benefit to the men. Of course the official recognition granted the Y.M.C.A. by the Canadian Government gives it a great advantage in all its work, but on the whole I think that any unprejudiced observer will grant that it abuses none of its privileges, but puts them to really good use."

WHEN THE WAR WILL END.

Absolute knowledge I have none
But my Aunt's Washerwoman sister's son
Heard a policeman on his beat
Say to a labourer in the street
That he had a letter just last week
From a Chinese Coolie in Timbuctoo
Who said the negroes in Cuba knew
Of a coloured man in a Texas Town
Who got it straight from a circus clown
That a man in Klondike heard the news
From a gang of South American Jews
About somebody in Borneo
Who heard a man who claimed to know
Of a swell society female fake
Whose mother-in-law will undertake
To prove that her seventh Husband's Sister's niece
Had stated in a printed piece
That she has a son who has a friend
That knows when the war is going to end.

Further Subscriptions To The Exhibition Improvement Fund

Keen Interest Has Been Aroused in the Necessity of Ground Improvements

It is clearly proven by the subscriptions that have been made to the Exhibition Ground Improvement Fund that the merchants, manufacturers and public generally are behind every effort that will give Peterborough a proper Fair grounds for an industrial and agricultural Exhibition.

While over $4,000.00 has been spent on the grounds every dollar was necessary in order that the Fair might operate in a decent way. No money has been wasted and when you visit the Fair you will be surprised at the business like appearance it presents.

Peterborough should be the centre for the biggest and best Fair between Ottawa and Toronto, and it be really put up to the Directors by the support that is being given to them at the present time to make it such.

VANCOUVER'S RECORD OF DIVORCE CASE.

Had 42 Petitions in First Six Months This Year.

VANCOUVER, Aug. 24. — Vancouver is fast gaining an unenviable record for divorce cases. During the first six months of the present year, no less than 42 petitions for divorce were entered in the local registry. Twenty-six were instituted by husbands and sixteen by wives. Of the twenty-six husbands, eleven were returned soldiers. The marked increase in divorces here during the past few years has been frequently commented on by members of the Supreme Court bench who hear the cases, and by clergymen, several of whom attribute the great number of cases of marital infelicity to the war, and conditions caused by the war.

In the year 1852 the question of connecting the Bay of Quinte with the Georgian Bay by means of a railroad excited very considerable interest, not only among the people of these and the adjoining counties, but among those of Oswego. Judge Hall of New York, visited the country through which the road was to pass, and addressed public meetings on behalf of the enterprise. A company was formed under the name of the Grand Junction Railway Company, stock books were opened, and a large amount subscribed, among the rest £100,000 sterling by the United Counties of Peterboro and Victoria. In 1853, after the charter had been granted to the Grand Trunk Company, and the contract given to Messrs. Jackson, Peto, Braesey & Betts, the importance of the Grand Junction as a feeder to the Grand Trunk, forced itself upon the attention of the company controlling the latter, and after some time spent in negotiation, an amalgamation of the two lines was effected, the municipalities being released from the stock they had subscribed, and the Grand Trunk promising to refund the outlay made upon preliminary surveys. This amalgamation—made in good faith, and with a reasonable assurance that the work would be promoted by it, was a most unfortunate circumstance for the counties. The breaking out of the Russian War, and the extreme stringency of the money market in consequence, together with the sudden rise in the cost of all articles of food and of labour, so embarrassed the Grand Trunk Company, that they found great difficulty in completing the lines included within their original charter, and indeed could not have done so, had not the Parliament of Canada, rightly appreciating the importance of the work, and the advantage to the country of its early completion, come to their assistance. Notwithstanding that £400,000 was appropriated to the construction of the first section of the line, it remains untouched to this day; and although the company still profess their determination to build it, it is impossible to overlook the fact that the construction of other lines to the same point, and having the same object in view, lessens for the moment the chances of its being built. The importance of the work, the fine country it would open up, and the immense trade it would be sure to draw over its rails, justify the hope that it may not be altogether abandoned.

During the session of 1852-53, in addition to the Grand Junction charter, an act was obtained incorporating a company to construct a road from Cobourg to Peterboro, with subsequent amendments enabling the company to extend their line to Chemong Lake; another incorporating the Cataraqui and Peterboro Railway Company; and the Port Hope and Peterboro Railway charter of 1846 was amended, and power given to the company to build a branch from any point on the line to the western boundary of Mariposa. A very warm discussion arose in Peterboro as to the propriety of the town taking stock in the Port Hope and Peterboro Railway, which was finally decided in the negative. The company then turned their attention to Lindsay, and after an active canvas induced the Township of Ops to take £20,000 upon condition of the road being built to that point. The works were accordingly commenced, and during the last summer the locomotive was run into Lindsay. The road is not yet completely ballasted, but notwithstanding this it has done a very good business since it was opened.

Meanwhile the people of Cobourg pushed forward their line to Peterboro and in the fall of 1854 opened it for traffic. An impetus was at once given to every branch of trade in Peterboro, in consequence of this new connection. The lumber trade increased immensely, and where before the exports of lumber had not exceeded from three to four million feet per annum, it at once increased to about twenty millions, and has since gone up to about twenty-seven millions! The bridge across Rice Lake, however, a pile structure, and a monument of the folly of false economy, proved a serious drawback to the success of the line. During the winters of 1855 and 1857 it was literally squeezed out of its position by the action of the ice, and complete communication between Peterboro and the front cut off for months together, and rendered at all times uncertain. Steps have been taken to secure the permanency of the bridge by filling it in as a solid embankment. During the past summer the Grand Trunk Company instructed Mr. Walter Shanley to make an inspection of the structure, and an estimate of the cost of making it permanent. He estimated the cost at £50,000, and expressed his perfect confidence in the feasibility of filling it in as a solid embankment of gravel. The work has been progressing for some months; a very considerable portion has already been filled, sufficient to test fully the perfect success that must attend it, and the fact that Mr. Shanley's estimate is rather over than under the mark. When completed, the road will be an excellent one, and the beautiful scenery of Rice Lake will render a passage over it one of the pleasantest railway rides in the country.

In 1854, the power of the Cobourg Railway Company to extend their line to Chemong Lake, having expired by non-usage, a charter was obtained, incorporating a company under the name of the Peterboro and Chemong Lake Railway Company, having power to construct a tram or railroad from any point on either side of the Otonabee River at Peterboro to Chemong Lake. The charter was acted upon during the last summer, and a number of gentlemen in Cobourg subscribed the capital stock, £40,000. The road is now in course of construction. It proceeds from the terminus of the Cobourg road in Peterboro East, and running up the river side for about three miles, crosses over at Perry's Mill, whence it will run direct to Chemong Lake. The construction of this road is a work of very great importance to the town of Peterboro. A glance at the map will show the immense country watered by streams which empty themselves into Chemong Lake, which must by a judicious expenditure of our resources become tributary to the prosperity of the town. The completion of the locks at Bobcaygeon, and the settlement of the townships in rear of that place, likely to take place immediately, in consequence of the action of the government in opening up leading lines of road, and adopting the free grant system, will tend very rapidly to increase the prosperity, as well of the old as of the new townships in rear of us, and bring a trade down upon the town of the utmost importance to its prosperity.

Subject Austrians To Fight With the Allies

24,000 TRANSYLVANIA PRISONERS IN ITALY AND FRANCE WILL JOIN ALLIED ARMIES, ASSERTS DR. LUPU.

NEW YORK, Aug. 24.—A new body of 24,000 subjects of the Austrian Empire, in addition to the Czechoslovak army now fighting in Russia, will soon take part in the war against the Central Powers, when 18,000 Transylvanian prisoners in Italy and 6,000 in France are sent to the front, it was asserted yesterday by Dr. Nicolas Lupu, a member of the Roumanian Parliament, who has just arrived in this country from France and England to recruit a Transylvanian army in this country

Dr. Lupu will establish headquarters in Cleveland to recruit Transylvanians, who will later be sent to Europe to fight with the Allies for the redemption of Roumania and for the liberation of Roumanian peoples held by Austria-Hungary in Transylvania. The Roumanians and all other nationalities oppressed by the Central Powers have been filled with hope for liberty by the entrance of the United States into the war. Dr. Lupu said.

"The most popular figure in Europe is President Wilson. His magnificent speeches are for the democracies of Europe holy words of the Bible. Roumania, like the other martyred peoples is anxiously looking to America Roumania will never forget the military aid of France and England, and the service to her people done by the wonderful American Red Cross under the leadership of Lieut. Col. Anderson America in addition to all that she has done for us, can do more In Ohio and elsewhere in this country we have large colonies of Roumanians from Transylvania They have already begun here to organize a Transylvanian America of America. To aid in that movement here will be my firs taim. My mission here is to let the American people know the real case of Roumania and to make her weight felt once more on the battlefield."

Mangin's Army Makes Some Slight Gains

PARIS, Aug. 26.—Heavy bombarding in the region of Roye and between the Oise and the Ailette rivers are reported in official statements issued by the War Office today. The text of statements reads: "Very vigorous artillery fighting occurred during the night in the region of Roye and Beuvraignes (three miles to the south of Roye). The artillery fire was also heavy between the Ailette, the Oise and the Aisne rivers. Two German surprise attacks in the Vosges sector were without result, and we took prisoners. The night was calm on the rest of the French front."

Counter Attack Fails.

The Germans to-day attempted counter attacks on the large hill against the right wing of General Mangin's army in the region between Vailly and Soissons. The attack utterly failed. General Mangin's army repulsed the German onslaughts everywhere, and in some instances gained more ground. The French flung back the attacking troops even beyond their original points.

BRITISH OFFICIAL REVIEW OF DRIVE THIS MORNING

LONDON, Aug. 26.—(Official).—At three o'clock this morning our troops attacked in the Scarpe sector and were reported to have made good progress. On the southern portion of the battle front we have advanced our line slightly astride the Somme by successful operations carried out yesterday afternoon, and have made progress in the direction of Maricourt. Yesterday evening the enemy launched strong counter-attacks south and north of Bapaume, in the neighbourhood of Beaucourt Abbaye and Favreuil, and in both localities were repulsed. North of Favreuil our troops met the enemy with the bayonet and inflicted heavy casualties upon him, taking prisoners. Another counter attack attempted by the enemy later in the evening in this latter neighbourhood was also unsuccessful. Favreuil is in our hands, and we have made progress west of Bazentin-Le-Petit, Mametz and Carnoy, and then proceeded to the Somme, just north of Maricourt. These little changes east of the Somme show that the British line has been improved to extend to Chuignes.

Battle Now Flames To Flanders Border Is Afternoon Report

Special to Examiner.

With the British Forces in France, August 26. — It is reported that the line has been again extended from westward to northward in Flanders. Forces launched a new attack from the River Scarpe to what heretofore had been the left flank of the battle line. Everywhere the German line is reported to have been beaten in as the British troops push forward.

With the customary "crash" the British went over this morning, and seem to have made good progress.

There has also been considerable activity north of the River Scarpe, where the British artillery took some ground.

In the course of the night the Germans counterattacked and got a slight portion of their losses. In the south there was new activity. Below the Scarpe the British continued to push forward last night and to-day.

A vicious German counter-attack at Eaucourt was repulsed with heavy losses for the enemy. Additional prisoners were captured by the British.

RAILWAY OFFICIALS KIND TO SOLDIERS.

Special Care Given to Sick and Wounded at Quebec and Montreal.

TORONTO, Aug. 26.—Returning soldiers for Ontario and the West, who pass through Quebec and Montreal, speak in warm terms of the courtesy and attention paid to them by Canadian Pacific Railway officials. Men who are seriously ill say that everywhere the railway police, most of whom are returned soldiers, are constantly on the lookout to help these wounded and sick soldiers. Major R. G. Chamberlin, Chief of the Investigation Department of the C. P. R., and Chief of the Company's Police, is always on the platform at Montreal when the returning men arrive, and directs his staff in the care of the sick. The railway police are all trained in "first aid," and nurses and doctors with the soldiers gratefully acknowledge the fine work of Major Chamberlin's men. Many letters of thanks for help thus rendered reach the department in Montreal.

SUPPLY OF STEEL SHUT OFF FOR ALL CIVILIAN INDUSTRY

Government Takes Steps to Ensure Flow of Material for War Programme.

WASHINGTON, D.C.—Face to face with a serious interruption of war work, due to a shortage of labour and material, the War Industries Board has decided to shut off all supplies of steel to civilian industry.

This is the Government's answer to the shortage of one million unskilled labourers and the shortage of material.

Steel, the material about which all war production pivots, is the essential for civilian as well as for war industry. At present there is a shortage of approximately from thirty to thirty-five per cent. of steel required in the Government's requisitions for the next six months as compared with the production of the last six months. This shortage is more apparent than real, for production during the next six months will increase as compared with that of the last half year. But there still remains a shortage compared with Government requirements, which must be met by curtailment of industry and increase in production.

As a result of the decision all manufacturing enterprises which are not of an emergency character or which do not possess a war relationship will not receive material. They may go ahead with what material they possess but no further. This applies to the manufacture of automobiles.

In order that business enterprises may not be killed by the application of the rule a programme is being worked out by the War Industries Board to preserve the skeletons of business organizations which are not transformed into war concerns.

While this drastic rule applies to the next few months, until the production of steel catches up with its use in war work, a realization of the increased demands that will be made for material as the war programme extends promises a continuation of the policy.

The elimination of steel from civilian industry applies to practically every other material that enters into war industry, such as cotton, leather, wool, copper, etc.

The demand for steel among the war industries comes from the four war making bodies, which in order of the quantity used are transportation department, the Shipping Board, the War Department and the Navy. Illustrating the demands made for steel rails and locomotives, General Pershing has made requisition for an amount of steel for railway construction work as great as that made by the roalroads at home.

Another allocation of steel is made to America's Allies and still another to neutrals which have material to exchange which is essential to America's war programme.

In order to increase production a carefully worked out programme is being followed. It starts with the increase of the labour supply by cutting down non-essential peace industries, the increased use of steam coal in place of by-product coal wherever this is possible. Increased facilities in the steel mills and better methods are already having their effect in increasing the supply.

Still another addition to the steel output will be brought about by a lessening in the rigidity of inspection. At present the rejection of steel by Government inspectors is from six to ten per cent. more than that which exists in Allied nations.

Calves were steady and firm, but the run was rather light.

Supplies of Food From Allies Relieves Italy's Crisis

Huge Imports of Cereals, Meats and Fats Will Permit Relaxation of the Severe Sumptuary Laws That Have Been in Force.

PASSING OF PRIVATION

LONDON, Aug. 26.—A Daily Chronicle despatch from Milan states that Signor Crespi, the Italian Food Controller, has addressed a long encyclical letter of unusual importance to prefects and local administrations throughout the country, wherein he gives explicit assurance that the terrible privation in the prime necessities of life which Italian people in particular have had to endure will henceforth mark a downward curve, while stringent measures against hoarding and profiteering will reduce the present exorbitant cost of living, especially for the humbler class.

The Allied Governments, he says, are now in a position to guarantee regular and adequate provisioning of their respective peoples, no matter how long the war may last.

Taking into account the fact that peace would not lessen straightway the actual needs, the four Food Controllers responsible to the Grand Alliance have elaborated a two years' programme and have ascertained that the existing food stocks in North America will be amply sufficient to meet every deficit in the wants of the Allied nations of Europe. The restrictions that have been so sorely felt hitherto will have to be enforced only as regards tonnage, since for every ten tons of provisions economized a unit of war can be brought to the battlefields, and for every ton of flour saved the Allied Governments can now promise an hour less of war.

Definite arrangements have been made for importing 3,000,000 tons of cereals which Italy requires during the coming twelve months to supplement her home crops. The Allied fleets are strenuously engaged in more efficacious defence of navigation in the Mediterranean, and the Italian Government will thereby be able to distribute fresh and better quality of bread. Large consignments of condensed milk and an abundance of lard will compensate for the prevailing scarcity of milk and butter.

Over 750,000 cans of salmon and tunnyfish are being put on the market this month, and closer attention is being devoted to the development of the game preserves. Toward solving the meat problem, there has been realized lately an economy of about 100,000 head of cattle per month. This, together with the enormous weekly imports of frozen mutton and equally big supplies of preserved pork promised by the United States, will permit in winter relaxation of the three meatless days per week.

South America is sending over 50,000 tons of coffee, and before winter sets in, there is a good prospect of remedying the great dearth of sugar which at the present time limits the monthly allowance per head to 250 grams.

BE READY FOR EMERGENCIES.

The best way is to always keep a bottle of Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine in the house, ready for emergencies. Then when croup or colds come suddenly they can be promptly cured before they have time to reach an acute and dangerous stage. To meet this requirement we have put the syrup up in family size bottles which contain nearly three times as much as the 25-cent bottle and sell at 60 cents.

Paris Using Coal Cards.

A certain ghost, not unknown to Canadians last spring, is haunting a good many Parisians. It is the well known ghost of a winter season such as Paris experienced in 1917, and of which New York had tasted last winter. With a view of scaring him off all good Parisians are laying in as much of a supply of coal in their cellars as the Government will permit.

The other day the Paris Municipal Council approved arrangements for the distribution of coal during the summer months. The authorities will endeavor to maintain the arrival of the present quantities of coal during the warmer months so that the stocks for the winter will be ample. A new coal card, however, has put a damper on many an enthusiastic hoarder, for it entitles the holder to only a limited amount. Unnecessary encumbrance of cellars during the summer as a precaution against air raids is another argument advanced by the authorities against coal hoarding.

Portuguese Burial Customs.

Instead of headstones and monuments, the cemetery of Lisbon shows rows and rows of tiny chapels ranged in long avenues bordered by cypress trees. The Portuguese are reluctant to bury their dead out of sight, and these chapels serve as mortuaries for the coffins, which are placed on the shelves within. Through the iron grills the eye discerns small altars and flowers gleaming through the subdued light of the interiors.

The whole forms a valuable and concise book of dairy records that can be had free on application to the Publications Branch, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

Berlin Gets Extra Rations County Districts Incensed

Washington. — A diplomatic telegram from Berne to-days says:

Discussions of a bitter nature have broken out in Germany in consequence of a supplementary ration of meat of 250 grammes accorded to Berlin, which is in excess of the ration granted to the rest of the Empire. The Bavarian Minister of the Interior officially protested to the Secretary of State at the Imperial Food Supply Bureau against the favour to Berlin.

This act was the signal for a violent controversy between the Berlin and Bavarian newspapers. The Berlin Tageblatt declared that Bavaria appeared on the threshold of the fifth year of war like a fertile oasis and that it was unjust for the inhabitants of an oasis to be jealous of the inhabitants of a desert.

The reply from Munich was a telegram to the Frankfurter Zeitung giving an account of the women's rising recently in front of the Munich town hall when the women protested against the high cost of living and the scarcity of food.

The Vorwaertz says:

"This dispute, which is caused by a miserable 250 grammes of meat per week, has something shameful about it. It gives the impression that the suffering people of Germany are fighting to seize the few provisions that still remain in the country like dogs over bones. The Bavarian government in giving this exhibition to the world has not accomplished a patriotic work."

FOOD BOARD FLASHES

In Canada we scarcely realize how largely barley and rye bread figure among the contents of the world's bread basket. In Russia, in South-Eastern Europe, and in parts of Asia, barley and rye are the raw materials of the bread of the masses. Take these crops together and they would fill more than two million freight cars, enough to girdle the earth at the equator.

In Japan barley is the food of the poor and social distinction is drawn between the rice and the barley-eating natives. It is interesting to note that the famous goose pie of the Merrie England of long ago was made from barley.

And to bring the story up to date, barley is one of the substitutes that bakers and housekeepers are asked by the Canada Food Board to use in bread making.

Merchant Marine Men Make the Supreme Sacrifice

Germany and her dastardly submarine campaign never have prevented, and never will prevent, our brave seamen from "carrying on." Transports sail the seas unceasingly; merchant vessels carry the food vital to the success of our cause.

Many of our seamen have been on torpedoed ships, not once only, but several times. Death lurks in the way of every ship. The submarine and loathsome mine have claimed over 15,000 men of our Merchant Marine. They died for us!

What of their dependents—the widows and orphans? Governments make no provision for them because the Merchant Marine is not a recognized arm of the service, like the Army and Navy. That is why we hold

SAILORS' WEEK

That is why you are asked to give—and give liberally. The soldier goes into battle knowing his dependents are provided for and will be cared for if anything happens. Our 300,000 merchant seamen face peril just as great, in a service just as vital. A grateful public must look after their families, and keep their dependents from want.

Think of the crime of the Lusitania! Shall the dependents of her lost crew live in poverty? Think of Captain Erpett, "Murdered by Wilhelm the Damned," on July 30th, 1916! Think of the 176 merchant ships of which all trace has been lost, since war began!

NEW SALVATION ARMY HALL AT PARIS, ONT.

PARIS, Ont., Aug. 21.—Last evening the corner-stone of the new Salvation Army Hall was well and truly laid by Lieut.-Col. Chandler of Hamilton, assisted by Adjutant Raynor, of Galt. The building is of red brick with a Roman stone foundation, and is being erected upon the site of the old barracks. In June last year the Salvation Army Hall was totally destroyed by an explosion of natural gas, in which a lad was killed and several persons injured. Towards the new citadel nearly $3,000 was promised by subscriptions. The total cost will be around $4,500. The building will be opened early in October.

Ladies! Why Keep Corns?

Lift a corn or callus right off without one bit of pain.

Yes! You truly can lift off every hard corn, soft corn or corn between the toes, as well as hardened calluses on bottom of feet, without one bit of pain.

A genius in Cincinnati discovered freezone. It is an ether compound and tiny bottles of this magic fluid can now be had at any drug store for a few cents.

Apply several drops of this freezone upon a tender, aching corn or a callus. Instantly all soreness disappears and shortly you will find the corn or callus so shriveled and loose that you lift it off with the fingers. You feel no pain while applying Freezone or afterwards.

Just think! No more corns or calluses to torture you and they go with out causing one twinge of pain or soreness. Keep a tiny bottle on the dresser and never let a corn or callus ache twice.

"The Girl Who Had No God"

By MARY ROBERTS RINEHART
Author of "The Man in Lower Ten," The After House," Etc.

THE GIRL WHO HAD NO GOD

CHAPTER III

It was, after all, the assistant rector of Saint Jude's who came up the hill that hot August day. The news of old Hilary's death had come down from the city on an early train. The rector was away on his deferred fishing trip, where, having exchanged his clerical collar for none at all and having blistered the end of his ecclesiastical nose he was quite happy.

The assistant, Mr. Ward, whistled as he climbed the hill. As the hill was steep, this proved two things—his youth, and his lightness of heart. True, old Hilary Kingston was dead, and violently done to death. But to Mr. Ward death was but the gateway to a larger life; and only very sad in the young, who have not yet lived.

Mr. Ward was young, a broad-shouldered young man, with clear, rather deep-set eyes, and a firm mouth. The people of Saint Jude's prophesied that the world would hear of Mr. Ward. There was only one bar to his progress: he had too much humor. It seemed to the people of Saint Jude's that religion is a serious thing, forgetting that good cheer is one of the things it must bring, and it be religion.

So Mr. Ward climbed the hill, and whistled. One may think while whistling. He thought of the cricket club, and of the injustice of his arrest the day before for speeding his car. From that to old Hilary's French machine, and a wonder if it would be sold now—and so to Elinor. He was young and vigorous, and Elinor's face had been but a temporary obsession. Nevertheless, as he approached the house his heart beat a little faster. Boroday met him in the hall. Old Hilary was up-stairs by that time, lying in his great bed. All the doors and windows were open, and sunshine filled the rooms. Ward thought it an unusually sane house of mourning.

"I'm glad to see the sun," he said. So many people close things up."

"Miss Kingston wished things undisturbed."

"I came up to tell her—but I suppose she doesn't care to see any one—the rector is away on a holiday. I'll wire him, of course."

Boroday led the way into the library where the rector had so recently received his check. He turned and eyed Ward.

"Why bring the rector back?" he asked. "It is a little late for—the comforts of religion."

"Mr. Kingston gave lavishly to the church. Whatever the church can do—"

"I rather think," said Boroday politely, "that he gave, not to the church, but to the poor."

"'Inasmuch as ye give unto one of the least of these,'" Ward replied and returned Boroday's gaze.

Elinor had pulled herself together. By the one standard that had ruled her life she acted now—her father's wishes.

Ward, brought face to face with her, found her unapproachable, calm, almost cold. Found her very lovely, too, and let his ardent young eyes rest on her oftener than was wise. Her situation appealed to him. She seemed to be quite alone, save for the Russian with the beard.

"If I can do anything," he said, "wire to your relatives—anything of that sort——"

"I have no relatives. My mother died when I was born. I—I have a curious feeling that everything in the world has stopped—as though I'd reached the end of things.

It seemed to Mr. Ward that he should offer some of the comfort of his faith to this shrinking wild-eyed girl before him. But what? Rumors had come to him, of course.

"Death is only a tragedy when we think of it as an end and not as a beginning," he said. "It is always sad. I hope you understand that I know how terrible all this is to you. But to have lived one's life, active and well and useful to the end, and then to depart, in the fulness of days for new activities—somewhere else——"

Elinor shivered in the warm sunshine.

"You see," she said drearily, "I do not believe those things. I should like to just now." Then, almost defiantly: "He was useful. You will never know the things he did that were helpful. But perhaps we would not agree on that either."

The Russian was walking up and down the hall, impassive, watchful. Under his stoical indifference, he was suffering tortures. A bullet from the automatic had gone through his left arm grazing the bone. Luckily, the bullet was not in the wound. Henriette had bathed and cleansed it, but he was in agony. He was suffering pain, bereavement, defeat. His face expressed only decorous and conventional regret.

Now and then he glanced in at the library door, but generally he watched the road up the hill. As he had watched the Church ascending, so now at any time might come Law. He would be prepared.

He had grown a beard since the St. Louis matter. That would help. And he had waited to return and claim old Hilary's body, until the Record extra had announced his killing. Walking up and down the wide hall, his keen mind was going back, detail by detail, over the day. Talbot and Lethbridge in the car had kept on. They had had changes of clothing in the machine. By now they should be at the country club, and halfway around the links. The car, with its changed license plates, would be standing in the eminently respectable country club garage.

Ward had risen. He towered far above Elinor. Because of his heavy shoulders, he never looked his full height. Boroday, in the corridor, stole a moment from his anxieties to find the young clergyman every inch a man, and to throw him the grudging admiration of defeated middle-age for youth and vibrant life.

"Then I shall not send for the rector?"

"Please, no."

"Is there anything at all that I can do?"

Elinor looked out at the corridor, where Boroday's restless eyes were once more on the road.

"Do the—the police know about this?"

"Surely. I suppose you have been told what happened."

"They will tell me nothing."

There was a car coming up the hill. That would be it. Boroday eased his aching arm. He did not dare a swing, but the hand was thrust in the pocket of his coat. If only the hemorrhage did not start again He braced himself and watched.

"It was robbery, you know that," said Ward in the library. He picked his words carefully. "As I got the story, a taxicab on its way to the bank was held up near the Record office. Your father stepped to the curb to hail the taxi, and —it happened then, a—a stray bullet from one of the bandit's guns."

Boroday, eyes on the car, heard the statement, and, with the Chief coming up the steps from the road to the garden, took the time to repudiate it.

"Pardon!" he said. "It was not a weapon in the hands of the bandits. It was the revolver of the bank messenger."

Ward turned in surprise. Boroday's eyes were fixed on Elinor's, with reassurance in their depths. The assistant rector was not subtle, but he had a curious feeling of something behind all this. He was uncomfortable.

"I trust," he said earnestly, "that these various outrages will be at an end now. Surely the police——"

"Possibly." The anarchist's gaze wandered to the garden, where even then the Chief was making his way toward the house." Of course, these bandits are trained men of unusual intelligence. If the police were of intelligence to cope with them——"

"Yes?"

"They would not be on the force, at meager salaries and petty graft. They would be"—he shrugged his shoulders— "bandits themselves, very possibly."

Ward left after that— left with an uncomfortable feeling of having got nowhere. He was convinced of one thing, death, which for him was an open gateway, was for this girl a closed and fastened door. And he knew something else. No other woman had ever so profoundly impressed him as this girl who without hope in her grief met it with a high head and courageous eyes.

He found a certain comfort in one thing. Elinor had made a concession, and Hilary Kingston, lavish giver to the parish poor, was to buried from Saint Jude's.

The Chief met Mr. Ward on the terace and took off his hat, Boroday, in the dim hall, felt a certain sense of content. Nothing could have been more auspicious, could have set his stage better for his little drama, than the presence of the young clergyman. The whole scene gained tone, decorum.

The Chief's visit was short. They had followed the bandits' car and lost it, and finding himself in the neighborhood——.

"Be assured," he said to Elinor, in his best manner, "that we'll not rest until this thing is cleared up. The community"—he cleared his throat—"the community will not lose one of its best citizens without a violent protest."

With the coroner he went up the stairs and into old Hilary's room. The Chief glanced about while the hasty examination was being made.

"Nice room," he said. "But jolly lot of good it does the old gentleman now! Nice litle girl down-stairs, too. I've seen that chap in the hall somewhere."

The coroner drew the sheet up over old Hilary's peaceful face.

"The preacher? They all look alike. It's the vest and the collar."

"The other man, with the accent. German, I take it, or—Russian."

Boroday was waiting for them at the foot of the staircase. In the library was a tray, with drinks and sandwiches. The shades had been lowered.

The Chief ate and drank. And as often as he raised his glass he looked at the Russian over it. At last:

"Haven't we met somewhere, Mr. ——"

"Boroday. I rather think not.

"You remind me of some one—I'll place you, or the person you resemble, pretty soon. I have a slow mind. It's like an Airedale dog: it's a long time getting started, but when it begins it hangs on like the devil."

The drinks were cold, and the house cool: The prospect of starting out in the heat and dust did not allure the two men. Sitting there at his ease, the Chief ran over the points of the outrage.

"In several ways," he observed comfortably, the affair resembles one that happened in St. Louis several years ago. There's the same quality of audacity—and there are other things."

Quite suddenly a light came into his eyes.

"Ah!" he said, bending forward toward Boroday. "I told you I'd get it It was in St. Louis I saw you!"

Their glances clashed, the Chief's intent, the Russians cool, amused.

"The dog," said Boroday, "holds on well, but—to the wrong throat."

"You have never been in St. Louis?"

"Never."

GAS IN THE STOMACH IS DANGEROUS

Recommends the Daily Use of Magnesia To Overcome Trouble, Caused by Fermenting Food and Acid Indigestion.

Gas and wind in the stomach accompanied by that full bloated feeling after eating are almost certain evidences of the presence of excessive hydrochloric acid in the stomach, creating so-called "acid indigestion."

Acid stomachs are dangerous because too much acid irritates the delicate lining of the stomach often leading to gastritis accompanied by serious stomach ulcers. Food ferments and sours, creating the distressing gas which distends the stomach and hampers the normal functions of the vital internal organs, often affecting the heart.

It is the worst of folly to neglect such a serious condition or to treat with ordinary digestive aids which have no neutralising effect on the stomach acids. Instead, get from any druggist a few ounces of Bisurated Magnesia and take a teaspoonful in a quarter glass of water right after eating. This will drive the gas, wind and bloat right out of the body, sweeten the stomach, neutralise the excess acid and prevent its formation, and there is no sourness or pain. Bisurated Magnesia (in powder or tablet form—never liquid or milk) is harmless to the stomach, inexpensive to take and the best form of magnesia for stomach purposes. It is used by thousands of people who enjoy their meals with no more fear of indigestion

THE FIRST STEAMBOAT.

Other Inventors Before Fulton Tried to Build One.

As to whether John Fulton really did invent the steamboat there has been (and doubtless always will be) much dispute. He certainly made steam navigation practical, and that ought to be glory enough.

There is a story, curiously definite in detail, to the effect that in 1543 a steam vessel built by a Spaniard named Garay was floated and, on June 17 of that year, arrived at Barcelona from Colibre with a cargo of wheat. It was a "side-wheeler" of 209 tons burden and its engine was driven by "caldrons of boiling water" at a speed of three miles an hour, or nearby.

Unfortunately, the story lacks proof. The earliest extant account of this steamboat dates back only to 1826, quite a while after the problem of steam navigation was successfully solved by Fulton, and it may be what we would call in these days a "pure fake."

But undeniably there were steamboats before Fulton. In 1737 one was built by Jonathan Hull—deemed, needless to say, a "crank" and visionary in his day—that was used in an experimental way for towing sailing ships. An authentic drawing of it has been preserved. It was driven by a wheel at the stern.

The origin of the stern-wheel or side-wheel for driving steam vessels is obvious enough. It is simply a water-wheel, or mill-wheel, adapted for the purpose of propulsion.

Less than half a century later John Fitch, a watchmaker by trade, put a steam engine into a boat that was provided not with a wheel, but with twelve paddles (operated by the piston) to push it along. The craft made a measured mile, under test, at eight miles an hour, off the water-front of Philadelphia. Later on it covered eighty miles in a day. But as the boat was deemed no better than a freak money was lacking to carry on the experiments and Fitch, it is said, was driven by disappointment and poverty to suicide.

There were several other steamboats that antedated Fulton, whose first real success (though not his first boat, which was launched on the Seine near Paris) was a side-wheel steamer built in New York in 1804. It differed in no very essential respect from the Clermont of immortal fame, which made its initial voyage August 7, 1807, from New York to Albany, at a speed of five miles an hour—against the current of the river, be it observed.

While the boat was tied to the dock at Albany a man came aboard and paid his fare to New York (for the return trip)—one would like to know just how much it was. Fulton could have hugged him. As it was he took the money with tears in his eyes, saying that it was the "first encouragement he had received for all his labors."

The Clermont made trips back and forth between New York and Albany until, though patched and patched again, she was too decrepit to attempt another voyage.—Bene Bache in Philadelphia Public Ledger.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

Back-Door Methods

By Helen Gregg

"If you ever expect to make a go as society editor," said the city editor, looking over the top of his horn spectacles and not taking the trouble to take the cigarette from the place where it adhered to his lower lip, "you've got to learn the back-door method. Get the dramatic editor to give you tickets for bum shows that none of us want to see, and hand them out to the telephone operators in some of the swell hotels. In return, they will listen to conversations when the swell dames in their places call anyone up. Kid the ladies' maids in the dressing rooms when you go to charity balls, and get next to the hair-dressers and manicure girls that are employed by the society women who don't have their own maids. Of course, the big-bugs themselves won't take the trouble to talk to you," and there was an emphasis on the "you" that was very belittling to Clarice Daw, newly installed as society editor of the News World.

Sometimes, in spite of the city editor's judgment, the "big-bugs" did talk to Clarice. If they ever mentioned her at all to each other it was to speak of her as a "nice little thing." Very pretty though she was, she managed never to be striking when she attended society functions, and though more than one husband or son would gladly have talked to her instead of the more eligible women of their own set, Clarice knew too much to let them. She preferred the back-door method of getting news. If she were forced to consult the "big-bugs" at all, she had learned that the oldish women when approached with considerable but discreet flattery yielded up the facts she wanted to know better than anyone else. But Clarice had made the discovery that there is no one in the world that is so flattered by the attention of a young and pretty woman as an old woman, especially when that attention is accompanied by complete obliviousness of the existence of that aging one's husband or son.

On the occasion of the big war benefit bazaar that was to be given out at Colonel James Drew's country estate late in the autumn, Clarice was urged to "do her durndest" by the city editor. He promised to give the event the most conspicuous position on the front page, of course, provided there was not another revolution in Russia or a cabinet minister did not resign or something of that sort. "It's to be the biggest social event of the season," he told her, "and, besides, there is a very good reason why we want to have Drew think the News World is the best sheet in town."

"Well, I'm sure there is every reason why he should," protested Clarice whose loyalty to the paper for which she worked was complete.

Clarice circled hurriedly round the large drawing rooms where the various booths had been set up and then roamed through the protected gardens of the old estate and down linden lanes and through hemlock groves and in and out a Japanese garden, where the various money-extracting schemes were established. She noted on the tiny sheets of paper that she held inconspicuously in her hand the gowns of the various distinguished women whose faces had come to be very familiar to her. But, reflected Clarice, gowns wouldn't be enough for a first-page story. She wished that a fire might break out in a wing of the house or that someone would fall into the pool in the Japanese garden so that someone else might make a heroic rescue. But nothing like that happened. Then Clarice remembered the back-door method.

Sheltered in a grape arbor that ran at right angles from the hedge that bounded the kitchen yard was an elaborately set-up bar. Although, perforce, all the drinks there dispensed were of the soft variety. The bar was entirely attended by men, who stood smoking and shivering there in the arbor—apparently their sanctuary from too much femininity. Mayhap behind those bottles of ginger ale were some others not listed on the enormous, facetiously worded list of drinks that was fastened conspicuously over the impromptu bar. Clarice knew, of course, that interesting though such a revelation might be, it would never do to make the interest of her article depend on such information.

What did focus her attention was the presence of two hard-working men in white linen coats who mixed various concoctions with all the expertness of professionals. They were the only servants that Clarice had yet been able to discover. She knew that if she could get hold of one of the servants of the Drew household she could extract what information she wanted. She therefore sidled her way over towards the bar in the arbor taking care that none of the dowagers, whose patronage proved so valuable to her, should see her taking steps in the direction of the group where most every one's husband was standing.

She therefore approached the arbor from the kitchen side of the house and was not perceived. The younger of the two barkeeps saw her approach, and with the intuitive knowledge of her disinclination to draw any nearer to the group of men, slipped to the other side of the hedge.

"I know you are very busy," she said. She realized at once that the man knew who she was and guessed her errand. But then most servants of the large establishments did know her and—perhaps because of the "bum theater tickets"—rather liked her. She had never, that she remembered, had any direct transaction with this one. "Is there anything doing here? I'm looking for a scoop for the News World—you know, something that none of the other papers have. How have your drinks been selling?"

The barkeep smiled knowingly and said: "Yes, madam," and "I'll see, madam." Then, cogitating for a moment, "I don't believe as 'ow the colonel wanted it to be published but the men here patronizing this bar—all strictly soft drinks, mind you—have pledged two million dollars among them to build a big American hospital in France. It's rather interesting as 'ow it is 'appened at a dry bar with all such men as J. P. Astorbilt and Lancaster Stevens a standing out and shivering here over their lemon pop. It's almost pathetic, Miss, isn't it?

Clarice's eyes showed right away that she scented the germ for a sensational story. The amount of money alone was enough to put it on the first page—and then the grim humor of the chilly arbor and the lemon pop would add the touch of local color. "I could give you all the names of the men as are a-doin' it," suggested the barkeep gravely.

A shadow of doubt came over Margaret's face, and she fumbled the small sheets in the palm of her hand. "But if Colonel Drew isn't ready to have it announced?" she faltered. "I don't think I could use it unless he consented."

The barkeep watched her narrowly. "Perhaps as 'ow I could get 'is consent," he said. "I didn't think a reporter of the News World would hesitate just on account o' not getting consent. It's gratifyin' now and then to find a paper that has such consideration."

"The News World is that kind of paper," said Clarice solemnly.

So it was arranged between Clarice and the barkeep that she should return at the break-up of the bazaar and in the meantime he would see whether or not the colonel would consent to giving the news. She returned and received a favorable verdict which sent the color to her cheeks and the sparkle of success to her pretty eyes. She asked the barkeep whether she could have the big sign with the facetious list of drinks. She thought their artist could copy it for a cut to go with the story and because it was too unwieldy, the barkeep thought, for her to carry back to the office in the street car he arranged with one of the chauffeurs to let him take out one of the cars in which to motor her back to town. Yes, he, the barkeep—a butler in the house—knew how to manage a car, and when Clarice was quite sure that Colonel Drew wouldn't mind having him take the car she consented to go with him. To refuse might have hurt his feelings and after all why should she—poor, ill-paid society reporter that she was—be too proud to sit beside a butler of the establishment of Col. James Drew? She sincerely hoped that none of the approving dowagers would see her thus conducting herself.

The barkeep helped her out of the car and gave her the poster. And as he left her at the curbstone there was a look—an eager, wistful look as she thanked him for his kindness to her—that made her feel that after all social distinctions were an absurdity. After all, thought she, as she was trying to collect her ideas to write the article that was to scoop the other papers and make for herself a name on the News World—why shouldn't she like a butler—it was a dog's life being a reporter. She was sick of the noises of the office. She wondered whether butlers who had wives were permitted to have them live with them on the estate. Perhaps they had snug little cottages. She had heard that Colonel Drew was very generous. Of one thing she was quite sure and that was that the butler would not forget her—"

"So you got a good story, hey?" the city editor asked her. "I know by your expression. You look so happy about it. How d'ye do it?"

"Back-door method of course," retorted Clarice, as she arranged the paper in her typewriter.

It was two months later and there had been great excitement in the office of the News World. The paper had been bought by Col. James Drew—a consummation which had been devoutly wished by the editors for some time. A new society reporter had come and the city editor was giving her instructions.

"In general, I'd say the back-door method is the best," he said. "But I don't know. Our last society reporter went right to headquarters. That's how she met Colonel Drew and made him fall in love with her. She told me at the time a barkeep gave her her story of the big bazaar, but bless my heart it was the colonel himself and he even brought her all the way to the office that first day, driving his own car. But then Clarice was a different sort from the ordinary. I always told her to go to headquarters. Anybody would want to talk to a girl like that."

Not in His Diet.

"Your office girl takes two hours for lunch and you take only 30 minutes."

"Yes."

"Why is that?"

"I guess it is because I can get along without a movie for dessert."

SUMMER COMPLIANT CAUSES MANY DEATHS AMONG INFANTS

If every mother would keep on hand, during the hot season, a bottle of Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry, she would be saved a great deal of anxiety and her baby a great deal of pain.

Hundreds of infants are carried off annually through neglect of this simple precaution. There is no remedy so safe and effectual for the cramps and pains in the stomach, cholera infantum, the diarrhoea of teething children, and none which has saved so many babies' lives during the past seventy-two years it has been on the market.

Mrs. C. W. Cooper, Collingwood, Ont., writes: "When my little boy was four months old he had a very bad attack of summer complaint. Nothing seemed to do him any good that was prescribed by the doctor. He got steadily worse until we thought we would lose him. One day a friend, with children of his own, asked me if I had ever used Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry. I at once got a bottle, but with no hopes of it doing any good, as so much else had failed, but to my surprise and wonder, I soon saw a change in baby, much to my great relief, and we soon had him well again. I now keep it in the house all the time, and when the children show any signs of diarrhoea it never fails to check the attack."

There are many substitutes for "Dr. Fowler's" on the market. Don't accept any of them. Get the genuine put up by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont. Price, 35c.

Fish Affected by Cold.

It has been proved that sudden cold sometimes causes the death of thousands of fish in the shallow waters of the tropics and subtropics. Many species are so chilled as to become helpless, and are either killed directly by drowning or are washed ashore in a comatose state. The phenomenon is known locally as "freezing," although the temperature of the water may be several degrees above the freezing point. During very severe cold spells great numbers of fish are often killed along the Atlantic coast as far north as New England. Contact with cold air causes the water to cool rapidly, and the great expanse of shallow water around the Florida Keys and the many shallow bays that are little affected by tides afford favorable conditions for rapid cooling. — Family Herald.

Training the Croupiers.

There is at Monte Carlo a school of croupiers. It is held during the six summer months in the club-room of the Tiraux Pigeons and the Salle d'Escraine, in the Casino building. Here are tables similar to those in the Casino gaming room, and each pupil in turn takes the role of croupier, while others personate players and stake money over a table. At a given instant the croupier must calculate and pay out the winning stakes. There are usually between forty and fifty pupils in this school and a six months' course is generally sufficient to turn them into finished croupiers.

USE A HYDRAULIC RAM

Now Recognized As the Cheapest Power for Pumping.

When and How It Is Used—Complete Information Given — Tubercular Cows a Menace to Health—How Tubercular Test Is Made — Why It Pays Farmer to Test Cattle and to Discard Reactors.

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

WHERE conditions are suitable for an hydraulic ram it is without question the cheapest and most satisfactory method of pumping water. It has one drawback—it wastes far more water than it pumps to the buildings, and hence can only be installed where the supply is from five to twenty times as great as required at the buildings. The efficiency of the ram is from 65 to 90 per cent., i.e., it uses 65 to 90 per cent. of the energy of the falling water. Suppose the spring supplies 10 gallons per minute and the fall from the spring to the ram is five feet. Multiply these together and then take 65 per cent. of the product, and we have the energy available for driving water to the buildings.

Energy in this case 65-100 x 10 x 5 foot-gallons—32.5 foot-gallons. Now divide this by the height of the buildings above the ram and we have the number of gallons the ram will deliver per minute at the buildings. If, for example, the height is 32.5 feet then

Number of gallons per minute—32.5 divided by 32.5—1 gallon, which is 1-10 of the water supplied by the supposed spring.

Number of gallons per day—60 x 24 —1,400 gallons (about 29 barrels). Consequently with five feet of head and 32.5 feet of lift the ram will deliver at the buildings 1-10 of the water in the spring. The quantity that will be delivered with other heads, lifts and spring-flows may be calculated in a similar way.

Generally speaking it is found that for each 10 feet of lift there should be one foot of head, but there is a limit—it is seldom advisable to install rams where the head is less than say two feet, although they have been known to work with as little as 18 inches. The length of drive pipe should not be less than three-quarters of the vertical lift to the buildings, nor less than five times the fall from the spring to the ram. It may however, be longer, but seldom exceeds 50 feet, and 75 feet might be taken as an extreme length for sizes of ram suitable for farm conditions. If too long a drive pipe be used, the extra friction in it prevents the water from striking as heavily or as frequently as with a drive pipe just the right length.

The cost of installing a ram is not great. For the smallest size of ram it will run in the neighborhood of $25 to $35 and about $15 extra for each hundred feet between the spring and the ram. Thus if they were 100 feet apart the total cost would be from $40 to $50, but if 200 feet then from $55 to $65, and other distances in proportion. The largest size of standard ram can be installed at about $100 if the ram and pump are 100 feet apart, and $125 if 200 feet apart.—R. R. Graham, B.S.A., O. A. College, Guelph.

Tuberculosis In Cattle.

One reason why farmers should have their cattle tested for tuberculosis is the financial loss which they suffer by having tubercular animals in their herds. As the disease is at first slow in development and does not induce sudden death, like anthrax, black leg or hog cholera, the farmer does not realize the loss that he endures by having tuberculosis in his herd until one or more animals develop the disease in an advanced degree and die or are slaughtered, when they are at once seen to be rotten with the disease. Such animals will have had the disease a long time without it being suspected and will have been giving off in their milk, saliva and droppings, large numbers of tuberculosis bacilli. In this way the bacilli are spread around, the food, water and atmosphere in the stable get contaminated with them and other members of the herd contract the disease from these contaminated materials.

The tuberculin test will indicate whether or not an animal is tubercular long before any clinical symptoms are visible, thus enabling one to deal with such an animal before it becomes a dangerous spreader of the disease.

When an animal is shown to be tubercular it should not be allowed to mix with the rest of the herd. When cattle are purchased to add to the herd it should be only when subject to the tuberculin test, as cattle may have every visible indication of good health and yet be tubercular, the disease not yet having developed to an advanced degree.

It is therefore strongly recommended that farmers

1st. Have their herds tested for tuberculosis with the tuberculin test.

2nd. That they slaughter the animals that have the disease in an advanced degree.

3rd. That they separate the cattle that react to the test from those which do not react.

4th. That they remove the calves from tubercular mothers as soon as dropped, and feed them on milk from healthy cows or on their mother's milk after it has been properly pasteurized, i.e., after it has been heated to 145 deg. F. for half an hour.

5th. That they apply the tuberculin test to every new purchase of cattle that are to be placed in the clean herd.

6th. That the herd be tested with tuberculin annually.

Obtaining Tuberculin For the Test.

The manufacture and supply of tuberculin is kept under the Dominion Government control. It is required that a veterinarian be employed by the farmer to make the test.—Prof. Dan. H. Jones, Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph.

Metal girdles embroidered with colored silk or beads are used.

Occasionally a jacket is seen reaching almost to the knees.

Bianca

By EUNICE BLAKE

One day George Tibbitts was at an auction sale where a number of wax figures intended to show women's drapery were being sold, and, fancying the expression on the face of one of them, he bid a trifling amount on it just for fun, he said. To his surprise the figure was knocked down to him. He ordered it sent home and when it came carried it up to his room. His sister, Fredrica, stood looking on wonder struck.

"Permit me to introduce my wife," he said, with mock impressiveness "Let's dress her up to see how she looks."

Fredrica assented, and the figure was properly attired. There it stood in a corner, and every time George entered the room he was greeted with a smile.

"By Jove," he exclaimed, "I wonder if this isn't better than the real thing No scowl, no curtain lecture, no jealousy—all smiles."

One of Fredrica's former schoolmates came to visit her. George on being presented regretted that Mrs. Tibbitt was indisposed and not fit to make an appearance to welcome the new arrival.

"Why," said the guest to Fredrica "I didn't know your brother was married."

George gave his sister a look, and she turned the subject.

A few days later the guest, Miss Eleanor Trevor, asked George how his wife was getting on.

"Poorly," replied George. "The fruit is the day of your arrival a fire was built on the hearth, and it was to hot for her. She is disfigured. I fear forever." The last words were said lugubriously.

"What a pity! Was she badly burned?"

"Her nose is all gone." He wiped away what was supposed to be a tear

Notwithstanding this misfortune George at times was very cheerful His sister asked him what he was driving at with her friend, and George said that he wished to win her sympathy Just now it was on account of his wife's misfortune. By and by it would be on account of his being tied to a disfigured woman. He told Fredrica that if she would keep mum he would give her something pretty.

One day George came downstairs evidently much excited and reported to Fredrica and Eleanor that Bianca—that was the name he gave his wife—had fallen against the corner of a bureau and one of her eyes had been knocked out.

"Poor fellow!" exclaimed Eleanor. "I mean, poor woman!"

George looked at his sister, as much as to say, "Didn't I tell you so?"

The next day George came to Eleanor, looking almost heartbroken. She asked him what new trouble had come upon him.

"I've been cruelly deceived," he said.

"By whom?"

"Bianca. She never told me she had a glass eye. It was knocked out by her fall, and I found it on the floor."

"That's too bad," said the sympathetic girl. She was thinking what a sad case it was for George to be tied up to a woman whose nose had been disfigured and who wore a glass eye. But the worst of it all was that the poor boy had been deceived.

Eleanor was curious to see Mrs. Tibbitts, but George declared that she would see no one unless a new nose could be spliced on to her face, and since the accident she had not been able to wear her glass eye. He seemed inclined to console himself with Miss Trevor, and Miss Trevor had not the heart to refuse to console so unfortunate a man. Eleanor told Fredrica that she feared she would be blamed in the matter, but Fredrica assured her that she was perfectly right to do what she could to alleviate her brother's misfortunes.

George grew devoted to Eleanor in proportion as his wife met with new misfortunes. One day the poor woman eliminated one of her cheeks with a hot curling iron; the next she burned off a lot of her hair by getting too near a gas jet. Indeed, it seemed that presently the only pretty thing about her would be her name.

Then Bianca was stricken with smallpox, and the last agony in this series of misfortunes came one evening when George announced in a broken voice that Bianca's pure soul had gone to heaven. Eleanor did not stop to think that a woman who had deceived a lover with a glass eye could hardly be called a pure soul. She put her arms around the widower to comfort him, and somehow or other their cheeks grazed. Fredrica says their lips met.

"You may see her," said George. "Her disfigurements make no difference now."

With his arm around his comforter's waist, Fredrica behind stuffing her handkerchief into her mouth to keep from laughing aloud, the three went up to George's room. There on the bed lay Bianca staring up at the ceiling with her remaining eye, her face much melted away by too close contiguity to various fires. Eleanor disengaged herself from George with an angry look on her face, but Fredrica put her arms about her friend's neck and pacified her.

To tell the truth, pacification was not needed. Eleanor had suffered herself to become attached to one she supposed to be a married man, and the finding that he was free was a great relief. In a few minutes she was laughing with the others.

Natural Animal Camouflage.

If you would study camouflage by land go look at the wild animals, says a writer. See how the tawny lion and striped tiger are painted to resemble the tall, yellow bush grass of the jungle. The giraffe is painted with a quaint diamond pattern exactly like the flickering lights among the acacia trees on which he feeds. The leopard, the jaguar and all spotted cats, the spotted deer, and the dappled horse are painted to imitate light under a shady tree. The pig is patched pink and brown like the sunlight, and the shadow of the denser woods. The elephant is painted a hazy brown like the great trees of the deepest forest. So all the wild beasts are colored for concealment in their natural landscape, while many of them change their clothes with the seasons, wearing white for the snowy winters, brown for the torrid summer.

USED FOR SHAVING.

Many men are troubled, more particularly in the cold weather, with a sort of roughnes of the skin or eczema caused by shaving. The application of Dr. Chase's Ointment after the shave soon cures the trouble and by using it after each shave you keep the skin soft and prevent irritation and soreness. Because of its antiseptic qualities this ointment prevents and cures Barber's Itch.

Changes In Diet.

Illustrating the idea that dietary changes on a vast scale may take place as a result of the war, David Fairchild says in the National Geographic Magazine: "When King John of France was being taken to England after the battle of Poitiers and one of the principal items of his expenditure was for sugar (one of the kingly luxuries of his day), could he possibly have imagined that the time would come when a descendant of a West African slave, in a continent yet undiscovered, would remark in the language of his captors, 'It just seems like somebody was dead in the house to have no sugar!' These are consequences of food habits."

FRENCH TROOPS ADVANCE IN THE ROYE SECTOR

South of the Avre Fresh Attacks This Morning Result in the Gaining of Valuable Ground and the Capture of 1,100 Prisoners.

MANGIN'S NEW GAINS

PARIS, Aug. 27.— (Official.)— The French troops advanced this morning in the region of St. Mard, south-west of Roye, after having repulsed a number of enemy counter attacks in that sector. They have captured eleven hundred prisoners, including two battalion commanders. The statement says:

East of Bagneux, north of the Aisne, the French have advanced their line about three quarters of a mile. German counter attacks were repulsed in this region.

A later statement reads:

South of the Avre French troops accentuated their progress this morning in the region of St. Mard, after having taken more than 1,000 prisoners during these combats. Of these 36 are officers, two of whom are battalion commanders. Between the Oise and the Aisne German counter attacks west of Chavigny broke down last evening. Thirty prisoners remained in our hands. In the region east of Bagneux we have advanced over a line about 1,200 metres. During the night there were lively artillery duels between the Ailette and the Aisne.

MANGIN GAINS AGAIN.

Special to The Eaminer:

(By Webb Miller.)

PARIS, Aug. 27.—(10 a.m.)—General Mangin has won possession of the high ground south of Crecy Au Mont, from where the German positions north and east of Soissons are being heavily shelled. These positions are now subjected to a double fire, as they are also being shelled from the French line along the Aisne, east of Soissons.

Along the whole active front the French continue to secure "jumping off" places for future operations.

GROCERY BUSINESS CHANGES HANDS

Mr. John Allen, for many years with Grafton and Company, has purchased the grocery business of Mr. S. H. Mitchell, corner of Reid and Sherbrooke Streets, and is now in charge. Mr. Allen is widely and favourably known in the city, and his new business venture should receive a favourable reception.

Mr. A. M. See his advertisement in another column.

NOW FIGHTING FOR LIFE OR DEATH, SAYS COLOGNE PAPER.

Zurich, August 27. — "We are now fighting for life or death," declares The Cologne Volks Zeitung. "The war will determine the future existence of Germany. The question is to know whether our people can save political and economic freedom."

Pouring Shot Into Combles

Field Guns and Machine Guns Do Not Stay the British.

WITH THE BRITISH ARMY IN FRANCE, Aug. 26.— In many localities the retreating Germans have left strong posts of machine guns, supported by single field guns, in an effort to delay the advancing British. These field guns have had no effect.

Cappy, the little town just south of the Somme, was lined with machine guns when the Australians, in the middle of the night and during a driving rainstorm, attacked it. A lone field gun from the rear of the town threatened to do some damage until a daring group circled round and crept upon it from the rear and hurled themselves on the gunners, killing them. Then, with the assistance of tanks, Cappy was cleared of the live machine-gunners, and the Australians pressed on. About the same time Suzanne, almost across the river from Cappy fell in somewhat the same manner.

To the north British patrols are now operating with more freedom. Combles, an important position south of Bapaume, has been gradually encroached upon, and the town, through which pass many roads which the Germans must use, is under a hot fire.

Combles is also a logical point for the concentration of troops, and undoubtedly heavy damage has been inflicted upon men and material here.

It is an interesting featuer of the battle that the Hamets Wood, which has been taken and passed, was attacked and captured by the same units of Welsh troops which attacked the position in July, 1916.

PRESISTENT AIR RAIDS PLANNED BY THE ALLIES

Campaign is Designed to Cripple the Output of German War Munitions and so Affect the Morale of the German People.

HUNS ALREADY WHINE

(United Press.)

(By Carl D. Groat.)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27.— Persistent air raids against German industrial cities are manifestly planned by America and her Allies.

The recent outbreak of such activity, particularly as demonstrated by the dashes against Mannheim, Frankfort and Conflans is only part of the programme of carrying the war directly home to Germany.

That this programme of destruction within the enemy country is fully realized by Germany, is evident from news despatches of recent days, showing that the Boche is gathering a strong combatant air force and anti-aircraft guns to meet the new drive.

The American Allied plan of retribution for German air atrocities has been reached only after long and deliberate thought. Germany carried the war into the unarmed cities of France and England via the air. The Allies refused to strike back, though the civil population demanded that there be no fine observance of International law rules against such an enemy. Now vengeance is being taken.

The growing American air force, coupled with the increased production by the Allies, has made it possible to undertake this counter movement. Its purpose is to cripple, as much as possible, the output of important war munitions. For instance, the Mannheim raids, though made under difficulties, evidently accomplished the wrecking of some of the chemical works in that city.

Perhaps even more important, on the whole, is the psychological effect of the raids. Germany is whining over them. Germany is scared about them. She shows every sign of not liking her own medicine. American flyers just back from abroad, speak highly of the American planes already there.

Fruit Industry is Threatened by the New Sugar Edict

The marketing of the fall fruit crop is becoming a decided uncertainty, largely as a result of the new sugar restrictions. Dealers state that there is not the usual demand for preserving.

"Householders are permitted to buy only one and one-half pounds of sugar," said one dealer. "That is not enough for preserving. It seems strange that the Government advises the people to can fruits and thus save the crop from going to waste, and at the same time knows that preserving is the more general method. And for preserving, generous supplies of sugar are required. At the same time, you can buy all the candy you wish." There is no question, it seems, about the scarcity of sugar, but the authorities might use better judgment if it is really working toward the end of utilizing our fruit crops."

Yellow St. John peaches and Bartlett pears will reach the market next week. Plums are coming forward freely now, but the diminished demand is a disappointment to the trade, and may in the end seriously affect the growers.

Astonishing Success of the British Drive

In Four Days General Haig's Men Won More Territory From Germans Than Was Won in the Whole First Battle of the Somme.

AT SMALLER COST

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, Aug. 27. — Interesting comparisons between the results achieved on the British and French front in the Somme area with those of the first Somme, are made by a military expert here. He points out that in four months from July 1 to October 31, 1916, the British won forty-four square miles of ground. In the four days between August 21 and August 25, the British won 116 square miles, with casualties amounting to only 23,000. In other words, he says, between two and three times as much ground has been taken at an infinitely smaller cost. In the four days under discussion the British won more territory than both the British and French armies recovered in the whole first battle of the Somme.

Extremely Heavy Grain Traffic on G.T.R., Moving East

An illustration of the high cost of railroad construction under war conditions was pointed out this morning by Mr. A. McNab at the G.T.R. Station. A short stretch of track from the north end of the station platform to the Charlotte Street crossing is being rebuilt. Long heavy ties are used, and these, only a few all told, cost $275, and the labour will add $200 to that figure. This is a total of $475 for less than 75 feet of track.

Grain Traffic Heavy.

Sunday was the busiest day in the history of the G.T.R. yards. Double headers heavily laden with grain passed through town all day, coming from Midland to Belleville. This wheat is American grain, and owing to the extensive use of the American lines for the transportation of troops and war supplies, the grain is passing through Canada.

A freight train, under Conductor T. Ringland, had a spill at Uthoff on Sunday morning. The tracks have not yet been cleared, but crews have been despatched to the scene of the run-off. The three rear cars of the train ran off, damaging the cars somewhat and losing about twenty-five bushels of grain. The cause of the derailment is not yet known.

AMERICAN FLYERS AGAIN RAID CORFLARS

Special to the Examiner:

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMIES IN FRANCE, Aug. 26 (night).—(By Frank J. Taylor).—American patrols had the best of some encounters in the Toul and Woevre regions to-day.

HINDENBURG LINE IS REPORTED PENETRATED

British Line Broken Through at Heninel, According to Advices From the Front—Haig's Men Advance Both North and South of Somme in Desperate Fighting.

NEW GROUND GAINED

LONDON, Aug. 27. —Advices from the front to-day indicate that the Hindenburg line has been penetrated by British troops just west of Heninel.

Severe Fighting.

LONDON, Aug. 27.— (Official.) — The British forces in the great battle in Northern Picardy are making progress towards the village of Beugnatre, one and a half miles north-east of Bapaume. There is hard fighting around Croisilles, further north.

Since last Wednesday the British have taken 21,000 prisoners, the statement says.

North of the Scarpe river, Scottish troops renewed their attack against the Germans last night, and have advanced towards Plouvain, the statement says.

The British have pushed through the town of Montauban, three miles north of the Somme, and captured a wood near that place, and have reached Longueval. The Australian forces have made progress toward Dompierre, south of the Somme and east of Suzanne, north of the river. The statement says:

Severe fighting took place on the field of the old Somme battle ground between Maricourt and Bapaume, and also north of the latter town yesterday afternoon and evening. The enemy counter attacked repeatedly in strength, incurring great losses from the fire of our troops, but being unable to arrest our progress. English and Welsh troops pushed through Montauban and advanced along the crest of the ridge, Capturing Highwood and reaching Longueval. In the latter village we were heavily counter-attacked and forced back toward Bazent-in-Le-Grand and Highwood. On this line we broke the enemy's attack, and again advancing, established ourselves well to the east of Highwood. Early in the night a second enemy counter-attack was driven off by rifle fire before the Germans reached our position. North of Highwood the enemy twice counter-attacked in the neighbourhood of Ligny and Thilloy, pressing back our advanced troops some 400 or 500 yards. There his infantry was stopped and driven back.

Many Towns Taken.

TORONTO, Aug. 27.—The following towns were taken during the week end and to-day by the British:

St. Leger, Ervillees, Irles, Miraucourt, Gerandcourt, Thieppville, Suzanne, Cappy, Chugnes, St. Martin, Sur Cojeul, Senienell, Wancourt, Guemappe, Monch Le Preux, Montauban, Contalmaison, Fricourt, Mametz, Bazentin Le Petit, Bazentin le Grand, Pozieres, Courcellette, Le Sars, Pys, Warleancourt, Eavcourt, Grevillers, Bapaume, Avesnes, Bisucourt, De Sangnes MoMry, Seni Sur Conjeul, Favreuil, Le Barque, Saucourt, Baye Mortinpuich.

Berlin Never Loses.

BERLIN, Aug. 27.— A supplementary statement from the German General Headquarters reads:

The British attacks have extended north of the Scarpe. On both sides of Bapaume and north of the Somme there have been vigorous enemy attacks in which, however, they failed. In some places counter attacks are still in progress. Longueval and Montauban were temporarily lost but have been recaptured.

Allies Defeat Foe in Siberia

Bolsheviki Routed by Japanese on the Ussuri Front.

LONDON, Aug. 26. — Japanese troops are completing their concentration on the Ussuri front, according to despatches from Vladivostok. At Engeneuka sailors, supported by armoured cars, attacked the Bolshevik troops in the face of heavy artillery fire and routed them.

General Semenoff, in command of a force of Czecho-Slovaks numbering several thousand, has attacked and defeated a Magyar-Bolshevik force at Motsievskaia, Siberia. The town was taken and many prisoners including a large number of wounded were captured. The work of the Japanese in strengthening the Chinese frontier made the attack possible.

The strike at Vladivostok is terminating in a fiasco. Striking labourers have been paid off and Chinese have been substituted for them. At the arsenal shops a serious clash between strikers and non-strikers occurred, but allied patrols intervened. The despatch says thta the Bolshevik fever among various elements of workmen is subsiding.

It is reported that Americans have privately loaned the city of Vladivostok 3,500,000 roubles, taking the tramways as security.

General Semenoff's opponents in the Trans-Baikal region have withdrawn as a result of the arrival of Japanese troops at Manchuli, according to a Tientsen despatch to the Exchange Telegraph Company. Only 3,000 of the Bolshevik troops remain in that region.

The Bolsheviki now hold positions some distance from Kazan.

A Moscow telegram giving a statement issued on August 21, says that the Soviet troops had been forced to retire in the region of Trostiaka in the direction of Kadilsk, in the Pyshung district (south of Archangel), but had successes in the Kazan district.

247TH MEN ARE KILLED

Two Members of Second Peterboro County Battalion Give Up Their Lives—Other Casualties.

A number of casualties among Peterborough county soldiers is announced in the latest lists from Ottawa. Two members of the second Peterborough county battalion, the 247th, commanded by Lieut.-Col. C. H. Ackerman, are officially reported killed in action in the persons of Pte. H. E. Taylor, of Coe Hill, and Pte. C. A. Parcels, of Round Lake, both of whom enlisted with the 247th, and then went overseas with the 235th when the Peterborough county unit was amalgamated with Lieut.-Col. Scobell's battalion.

Mrs. Maud Trew, Bridgenorth, has received official word from Ottawa that Pte. Wellington Trew, formerly of the 93rd Battalion, has been admitted to No. 2 Convalescent Depot, Rouen, on August 18th, suffering from gunshot wounds in the right arm.

Pte. O. E. Carrington, who enlisted here in the 93rd Battalion early in 1916, and went overseas with Lieut.-Col. Johnston's unit, afterwards transferring to another Canadian battalion in France, is again reported wounded. He was injured last year, but returned to the firing line.

ANOTHER EMBARGO.

The announcement that there is every probability of the United States, owing to the paper shortage, placing an embargo on United States newspapers and magazines, preventing them from being sent into Canada, is another revelation of the way in which the world war is revolutionizing the usual conditions of life. The majority of magazines read by the Canadian people are published in the United States, and the magazine counters in the news stands will look as bare as the average German frau's cupboard if the embargo is put in force. Weeklies, such as the Saturday Evening Post and the Literary Digest, have an enormous circulation in Canada, and the thousands of readers of these and other publications from across the line will have the war brought home to them in a new way, if the embargo goes into effect, as seems altogether probable.

BOYCOTT THE HUN.

It is a strong case that Richard M. Hurd, at the head of the trade boycott campaign of the American Defence Society makes against the Hun. More than 300,000 signatures have been secured in the past few weeks, and the movement is gaining daily strength in the United States.

In reply to a statement by Alfred I. dun Pont that after the great war the people of the United States would do business as usual with the Germans, Mr. Hurd asks the following pertinent questions:

"Has Mr. du Pont forgotten that Germany brought about this war, which has already cost 7,000,000 lives and 30,000,000 casualties? Has he forgotten the rape of Belgium, the sinking of the Lusitania, the crucifixion of Canadian soldiers, the bombing of hospitals, the sinking of hospital ships, the murder, rape and torture practised by the German soldiers? Has he forgotten the system of Germany which penetrates every corner of the globe and is used in commerce as well as in war? Can it be possible that American business men are willing to grasp the blood-stained hands of the German business men who now form the German army and who are the identical men who are murdering, robbing, raping and pillaging?

"Does Mr. du Pont believe that 'Made in Germany' will help the sale of an article in the United States and that 'business as usual' will go on after the war between America and Germany?

"Such a beliefe is an insult to the

"Such a belief is an insult to the America may be free and an insult to those left behind who will never forget the crimes of Germany, who will never admit to their friendship the degenerate German beasts who have proved themselves a scourge to the world.

"Powerful movements are now on foot in England, France, Italy, Belgium, Portugal and the United States to exclude after the war all German goods. A recent editorial in a New York newspaper stated in referring to these boycott leagues, 'They will be effective and their influence upon governments must be taken into account. Furthermore, any action taken by the various governments will be backed up and intensified by the voluntary individual determination of millions of Americans, Englishmen, Italians, Belgians and Portuguese never to buy any goods made in Germany.

"If love of America, if appreciation of the sacrifices of the men dying for America, if detestation of the infamous crimes of Germany are not sufficient to prevent some importers from endeavouring to bring German goods to America, let them be warned now that millions of Americans will never buy such goods and that if they attempt to import them under a neutral trademark patriotic societies will make it their business to expose the shame, so that loyal Americans may know that they are 'made in Germany.'"

THE WONDERFUL BRITISH.

In five days the British third and fourth armies have made a greater advance north and south of the Somme than was made by General Haig's forces from July 1st, 1916, until March, 1917. This is one of the biggest features of the war situation. Over the ground that the Canadians know so well, Pozieres, where the Australians established a "jumping off place" for the Maple Leaf troops, Courcelette, where the Canadians especially distinguished themselves, and where a number of gallant Peterborough lads made the supreme sacrifice, Martinpuch, Thiepval, Grandcourt, the Butte of Warlencourt, each the scene of a bitter contest in the first battle of the Somme, Haig's wonderful soldiers, who, according to German calculations, were to have been practically wiped out of existence by August, have battered their invincible way, taking thousands of prisoners and inflicting terrible casualties upon the badly rattled enemy. Back to the Hindenburg line are the Huns east of Arras, and the events of the next few days will be awaited with breathless interest. Will Ludendorff be able to rally his sorely shaken legions and hold up the Allied advance along the line he left on his great offensive of March 21st, or will Foch's triumphal armies batter through the strongholds and sweep the enemy back to the Meuse River? The next few days may supply the answer to this question. And while British and French rain staggering blow after blow upon the reeling enemy, General Pershing's American army, concentrated in Lorraine, is preparing for the moment when the word is given for the advance to the Rhine, only twenty miles away.

President Clemenceau of France, whose invincible optimism during the dark days of last spring, when the German wedge pointing at Paris was being pushed far into the Allied line, sees in the victories of the past few weeks a definite decision for the Allies. The leader of the French people has never been far wrong in his diagnosis of the situation.

AN IMPROVED SPIRIT.

One of the good effects of the war has been the drawing together of the English-speaking races. Since the British and the people of the United States have become united in the struggle against barbarity and oppression, they have been given the opportunity of studying each other at close range, and the foibles that at one time served to estrange have been lost sight of as hitherto unsuspected traits of solid merit have been brought out by the joint fight for justice and liberty. Before the United States joined the Allies in the war, many of the publications across the border which were friendly to the Allies were almost as offensive, because of their exaggerated notions of the prowess of Uncle Sam, to a Canadian as the pro-German publications. They reflected the attitude of the American race track man who described the United States soldiers as "stake horses amongst a lot of selling platers." Even since the United States joined the Allies, it must be confessed that their publications still leave much to be desired in the matter of reform along the lines indicated, but it must be taken into account that in "playing up" the operations of United States, the newspapers are endeavouring to give their readers news of the part of the Allied force in which the readers are most interested, and the fact that their troops thus get a place in the war news, which without wishing to detract anything from the very real part they are taking, might strike the unbiased spectator as one of undue prominence, is incidental and not intentional. That many of the influential newspapers of the United States are seeking to combat that spirit is a hopeful sign. The Outlook of New York, under the heading "A Time for Self-Discipline" issues a caution to Americans not to place too much emphasis on what the U.S. troops are doing. Speaking of the present drive it says:

"What the U.S. troops have contributed to this phase of the Allied offensive has been their presence on the front as a reserve. We Americans have good cause for satisfaction in what our country has been able to contribute to Allied victories. It is well, however, for us to remember that we have been late in rendering this service, and slow in delivering our power after we came in. We shall serve best if we keep in mind facts that are sobering as well as facts that are reassuring."

Another indication of an improved spirit is also to be found in the many tributes to what Great Britain has done and is doing in the world-wide struggle. The Buffalo News, for example, in contrasting the devastating methods of the Germans in sacking Belgian and French territory with the British method, says:

It is pleasant to be able to turn aside from these scenes and view another where a healing flood of civilization and progress is following the wave of war.

Mesopotamia, so long under the misrule of the Turks, is being remade. The shadow of the crescent is lifted. Instead of oppression and brigandage, wretchedness and poverty, insanitary conditions and broken-down transportation facilities, there is now a new condition of things.

As the fighting forces of Great Britain have pushed up the valley of the Tigris they have been followed by another army — a force of constructiveness which has changed the face of the country and brought new hope into the heart of new and brighter looks upon the faces of the populace.

The same story might be told regarding Palestine. The contrast between these methods and the "Kultur" of the Hun could be thus further emphasized.
—Hamilton Herald.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The housewife who is inclined to be dismayed over the sugar shortage should be able to obtain some consolation from the fact that the Kaiser is unable to find anything sweet in the war situation.

The speed at which the Allies are advancing may make the Hindenburg line a poor stopping place for the harried Huns.

Our idea of inventive genius is exemplified in the German official reports.

According to Berlin the German retreat is all being done "according to plan." But Marshal Foch is never mentioned as the originator of the plan.

The Sammies are taking little part in the recent fighting. But the knowledge that hundreds of thousands are being quickly prepared to continue Foch's hammer blows cannot be very pleasant for the German General Staff.

WHAT OTHER EDITORS SAY

One Good Effect.

(New York Sun.)

The decline in the German birth rate from 1,839,000 to 1,103,000 will permit of a big saving in portraits of the Kaiser.

Advertising For Burglars.

(Kingston Whig.)

The town of Gananoque has decreased its police force to one, and instead of giving chase to culprits it apparently has adopted the advertising plan, for the town council is offering a reward of fifty dollars for information that will lead to the arrest of the person or persons who burglarized a drug store. It may pay even to advertise for missing burglars.

THE WORLD OF SPORT

Peterboro Quoit Club Will Restore Old Favourite Game

Organization Was Completed Last Night at a Meeting in the Metropolitan Insurance Office—Officers Elected and Ward Groups Formed.

GAME ON THURSDAY

The Peterborough Quoit Club was formed last night in the Metropolitan Insurance office in the Barrie Building. For a long time the need of suitable grounds, with Dominion regulations, has been felt by the citizens, and, as a result of last night's meeting, the quoit enthusiasts will no longer follow the crude methods they have necessarily substituted for the real game.

Officers Elected.

President—George Giroux.
Vice-President—Wm. Weatherston.
Secry.-Treas.—A. G. Roberts.
South-End Committee—J. H. Campbell and W. Simmons.
West-End—Ed. Hickey and J. Penrose.
Centre—L. W. Lebar and George Giroux.
North-End—Wm. Weatherston and J. Nelson.
West Centre—J. Barringer and G. H. Clarke.

Regulation beds will be made in the different points and Dominion rules will govern the quoit game in the city from this time forward.

First Game.

The first game is expected to be pitched in Riverside Park on Thursday evening, August 29, at 7 o'clock.

The newly organized club hopes presently to become associated with the Dominion Quoit Association.

EDDIE COLLINS IS REPUTED TO BE RICHEST PLAYER

Eddie Collins is reputed to be the wealthiest ball player in the profession. He began his major league career with the Athletics in 1908 and remained with them through the season of 1914. It is estimated that Collins drew nearly $45,000 in salary from the Athletics and his share of the world's series in 1910, 1911, 1913 and 1914 netted a total of almost $20,000.

He was sold to the White Sox after the 1914 campaign for $50,000, and Camiskey, after handing over a $10,000 bonus, signed him to a five years' contract at a salary of $15,000.

Collins shared in the world's series last fall to the extent of $4,500 while he also made considerable money writing for newspapers and magazines.

CONDUCTORETTES ON HOLIDAY OVER THE WINNING OF STRIKE.

London, August 27. — The conductors and conductorettes of tube trains observed to-day as a holiday, in celebration of the victory won in their strike. They will return to work. The strikers voted last night to resume their jobs with the understanding that men and women employees would receive equal pay.

ALL STARS TO MEET RIVERSIDES

Big Game Scheduled at Riverside Park To-morrow Night.

In preparation for their Ontario Baseball Association game with Oshawa here on Saturday afternoon, Manager Jake Solomon's champion Riversides will clash with an All-star team at the Riverside Park to-morrow — Wednesday—evening. The game will be called at 6.15 o'clock, and as the All-Stars will be selected from all the other four City League teams, an exciting battle may be looked forward to. The champions will be at full strength. Fans are asked to note that the game is called for 6.15 o'clock.

ARTHUR SHAFER IS NOT TOO BASHFUL TO CHASE THE HUN

Arthur Shafer was too bashful to put up with the thousand and one perfumed notes which, as a member of New York's greatest baseball team, he continually received.

But Arthur Shafer is not too bashful to chase the elusive Hun through air or water.

Out at the University of Washington naval training station Shafer is learning to drive a hydro-aeroplane.

As third baseman of the Giants he received close to $5,000 a year.

As one of Uncle Sam's sailors he receives $33 a month.

But it is for the "big cause," and Arthur "Fillie" Shafer is out to do his part in attaining that ideal world's peace.

MILITARY FOILED BY SPENCER BOYS

Left Train Carrying Body of Mother When Near Border

TORONTO, Aug. 27.—Art and Willie Spencer are known to be celebrated bicycle riders and hold many trophies as proof of their prowess on the wheel. They also are gifted with considerable foresight, as two Dominion police officers who tried vainly Saturday to provide them with free transportation tickets to the western front in France, will readily admit.

It happens that Art and Willie are eligible for military service under the Military Service Act, but since the enforcement of the law they have not been known to make any strenuous efforts to abandon the bicycle track in the United States for a khaki uniform. This has been kept in mind by the military authorities in Canada and so when the two boys left their home at Newark Friday night to bring the body of their mother to Toronto for burial the Dominion police were made aware of the fact. Without intimating their intention to Chief Capt. Tom Flanagan, two members of the force hied themselves to the Suspension Bridge at Niagara Falls Saturday morning to await the arrival of the train. But the Spencer boys were naturally apprehensive and anticipating action by the authorities when they reached Canadian soil, decided to abandon their trip to Toronto and bade farewell to the train when about 30 miles from the border. Willie's wife, whom he is said to have married since the Militay Service Act came into force, brought the body of their mother on to Toronto and it was interred yesterday afternoon.

It is a noteworthy fact that when the father of the Spencer boys died last year they withdrew from the six-day grind at New York for the purpose of attending the funeral in Toronto, but the never reached this city.

When questioned regarding the incident yesterday Capt. Tom Flanagan would not divulge any information.

Both boys were born in England but lived in Toronto practically all their lives.

BRITISH WANT THE TRUTH OF LOSSES

Frank Statement of Loss of Machines Caught Imagination.

LONDON, Aug. 26.—The British Independent Air Force operating on the West Front lost seven airplanes in the bombing of Mannheim last Thursday. The frank report of this loss has caught the public imagination here. The outstanding feature of the exploit was the heroic determination of the British squadrons. They were heavily attacked as they flew to their objectives; they knew that equally stern fighting would await them on their way back, but nothing daunted them.

"It takes more than the risk of danger to halt British airmen when they have made up their minds to reach an objective," says one newspaper.

It is pointed out that the Germans were in largely superior numbers and had only to think of fighting, whereas the British had both fighting and bombing to attend to. The odds were all on the German side, but the British aviators reached Mannheim and did their job.

Newspaper editorials point out that the bombing was well worth the risk, for Mannheim is the centre of the great chemical industry, and the raid is believed to have done damage which will compel the German armies, for a time at least, to do without supplies of war chemicals from that quarter.

The British aviators did not suffer without hitting back, the newspapers also point out, for three German fighting planes were beaten down.

Officially it is noted that the Germans are now making most determined efforts to protect their towns by concentrating large numbers of fighting machines and anti-aircraft guns. Commenting on the raid, a British air officer said to-day:

"We suffered losses, but we won a splendid victory. We set out to bomb Manheim, and no German efforts could frustrate our intention."

MASSACHUSETTS TO FIGHT ILLITERACY REVEALED BY WAR

Nearly 150,000 Men and Women of Bay State Unable to Write Name.

BOSTON, Mass.—Determined to reduce to the lowest possible degree in his own State the illiteracy which the war has revealed as existing in the United States, Dr. Payson Smith, Commissioner of Education for Massachusetts, will make it a paramount issue in educating in Massachusetts in the ensuing school year. The question, as he sees it, is that of compelling the education of illiterates over twenty-one years old. These are not now touched by the law, and there are 140,000 of them in Massachusetts. The immediate object is to instruct them so that they shall be able to read, write and speak English. Though narrow, the programme is an important one, as it is at the base of all Americanization work.

Not waiting for the law to oblige adult illiterates to learn English, Dr. Smith has already undertaken the task of persuading them to learn it. This is done in part in co-operation with the Bureau of Immigration. Leaders among their own people work among the illiterates to induce them to attend classes, and employers are interested to the same ends, so that many classes are being conducted in industrial plants.

Teaching the adult illiterate is a wholly different proposition from that of teaching the child, Dr. Smith says, and needs teachers who have been specially prepared for the work. The regular teacher should not be chosen for the task unless given special instruction. A group of prospective teachers is now being given a preparatory course at the summer normal school at Hyannis, on Cape Cod.

Reveries of an Art Needleworker

"I am sitting near a window in the parlor of my home. There is a light breeze coming this way. It is terribly hot out; yet I feel as cool as on a Spring or Autumn day. How, you ask me to tell you? By concentrating my mind on a stamped dress I am making for my little girl, by enjoying what I am doing. Embroidering is a wonderful relief while whiling away these hot afternoons."

The above is probably what YOU would say if you followed the advice given above—that is, to start art embroidery.

FACTORIES AND FARMS HELP WIN THE WAR

But Without the Mercantile Marine Canada's Efforts Would be in Vain.

Canada's farms and factories have played a most important part in the Allies' struggle. Our wheat, and beef and munitions have helped to save the day. They have been transported "over there" by thousands of tons, and the task has been a herculean one. With submarines and floating mines menacing every ocean route, it has taken stout-hearted men to man the ships. Of the 300,000 men who have carried out this desperate enterprise more than 15,000 has already perished. They left behind widows and families and many cases they are almost destitute. To-day distress stalks in their homes. The tragedy is that this splendid body of men has no official recognition by their governments; that for their dependents there is no separation allowance, no pension, no relief. They receive nothing to show a national appreciation of their deeds. The Navy League of Canada has the privilege of helping to care for these sorrowing families. "Sailors' Week" is a Dominion-wide campaign from September 1st to 7th to raise money for their relief. Ontario is pledged to contribute $1,000,000. Every dollar given will be used to the best advantage; every dollar will bring happiness into one of these sorrowing homes. Ontario has never yet failed to answer the plea of the suffering. Let us give generously. Let us show them that "they shall not want."

GIRLS WILL USHER THE CROWDS AT THE GRAND OPERA HOUSE

Many Improvements Have Been Made During the Summer Vacation—Ventilation System Improved—Decorations Tastefully Carried Out.

OPENS ON SATURDAY

Peterborough's Grand Opera House has taken on a new appearance, both inside and out, as an offering to the theatrical season which opens next Saturday. The exterior has been painted in two tones of brown, which heighten the impression of its bulk, and give a pleasing effect of brightness that harmonizes with the atmosphere of the place.

A number of striking innovations will greet the old crowds when they flock back. The vestibule has been repainted and decorated, and within the auditorium there is an appealing freshness that is characteristic of the maintenance of the house. Figured curtains drape the fire escapes, and also cut off the lower floor at the brass railing that borders the seats and upon which the S. R. O. crowd was wont to lean. Along the railing boxes of flowers have been extended across the theatre, and while they are not perennials or annuals, they are so lifelike that they may intrigue casual glances. They also fringe the boxes and, generally speaking, look like a festive occasion for the return of "springtime." New electrical fixtures have been installed, soft blue electric lights create a restful effect, and oscillating fans augment the new ventilating system, ensuring a comfortable and refreshing atmosphere for the Grand's patrons.

New appliances have also been added to the operating booth, ensuring the best projection possible. A new picture screen of the latest type has also been purchased. The theatre opens for the first time next Saturday, when "My Irish Cinderella," an Irish comedy, will be produced.

The vaudeville programmes and vaudeville will be under the direction of Mr. William Dineen, formerly of the Strand Theatre, Toronto, and will begin on September 2, Labour Day. Nine reels of pictures will be shown, besides the Augers, a vaudeville act from Buffalo. Their act includes singing, dancing, and novelty roller-skating. Mr. E. Graham, also of the Strand, Toronto, will be in charge of the operating booth.

Lady Ushers Too.

One of the novelties at the Grand will be lady ushers, which are introduced in this city for the first time, and will doubtless be appreciated as a desirable war measure. Every usher will be attired in white. The orchestra will, as usual, be under the able direction of Mr. Rupert Gliddon. Mr. E. Crowe will be stage carpenter, and Mr. Walter Noyes, master of properties.

New faces will also be seen in the ticket booth. Miss Kathleen McCarthy has been appointed treasurer, and Miss Gladys Pentland, assistant treasurer. The travelling road attractions will be under the immediate direction of Mr. Webber Turner. September's run of attractions includes the best of last season, and also Henry Savage's musical comedy, "Have a Heart," with 60 people:

August 31—"My Irish Cinderella."
Sept. 16—"A Daughter of the Sun."
Sept. 21—"Daddy Long Legs."
Sept. 25—Henry Savage's "Have a Heart."
Sept. 28—Henry Savage's "Everywomen."

LAST TEMPLE BAND CONCERT THIS EVENING

The last band concert to be rendered by the Temple Band will be given to-night at 8.15 in Victoria Park. Accordingly a varied programme has been arranged and a large crowd is anticipated.

REINSTATE HISTORY IN ENTRANCE "EXAMS"

BRITISH AND CANADIAN HISTORY TO BE GIVEN PROMINENCE.

New Course of Study.

Toronto, August 27. — British and Canadian history is to again become an important subject in the Junior High School Entrance Examination. In referring to the intention of the Department to reinstate the British and Canadian history in the examinations for 1919, Hon. Dr. Cody, Minister of Education, yesterday stated that arrangements had been made which it was believed would stimulate and direct the study of history in the schools.

"The value of the subject in promoting patriotism, in providing material for a clear grasp of Canadian civics, and in expounding Canada's Imperial relations and her place in the Empire, is generally recognized," said the Minister. "A circular will shortly be issued which will contain a definite outline of the course, both in British and Canadian history, with selected periods and topics, a minimum of chronology and a statement of the particular sections in the textbooks dealing with the topics and subtopics to be examined upon. The circular also contains a special list of books suitable for school libraries and for the teacher's use in preparing the lessons. In the introduction to the circular will be found a brief and instructive exposition of the method of teaching history. The course, as laid down, should prove to be easily within the compass of the teacher and fascinating to the pupils. As an illustration that the modified course is not too heaby it may be noted that while the present text book contains 587 pages of reading matter, a total of only 257 pages is assigned for study in Form IV."

The course in Grammar for Form IV of the Public and Separate Schools, added Dr. Cody, has been lightened and amended by omitting easy parsing and the paper set in the subject for the High School entrance examination will emphasize the application to composition of the principles of correct speech.

WERE GREAT ENGINEERS.

Ancient Japanese Built Canal Now Used by Modern Ships.

Ancient Japan excels the Japan of to-day in stupendous engineering feats. Every visitor to Osaka Castle is surprised at the use made of gigantic boulders in its construction by Toyotomi Hideyoshi, the famous Shogun. "Where did he find these mammoth stones, and how did he transport them to the place at which they are?" asks the Japan Times.

Kiyomori, founder of the Taira family, was better known for his tyrannical ways than as one of Japan's foremost statesmen and mathematicians. Ask any Japanese if he knows who cut the channel among the rocks in the Island Sea to allow ships of present day size to pass, doing away with many circuitous miles, and adding pleasure to the trip minus the dangers of the rough seas off the headlands of Tosa. Ask him who did the preliminary work to enable Kobe to become one of the finest ports of the east and the largest trading city in Japan with slight effort. All came from the brain of the despotic Kiyomori, who planned the harbour works of Fukuhara, the Kobe of to-day.

The moment fish, eggs, meat and milk are allowed to get warm they begin to spoil.

Codfish with potatoes, whole boiled onions and beets makes an entire meal and may be served on a single platter.

No More Hun Offensives Are Looked For

With the American Army on the Vesle, Sunday, Aug. 25. — German soldiers believe that Germany is not planning any more offensives because of the man-power shortage, according to one of a party of seven of a German patrol captured by the Americans early Sunday, east of Fismes. The soldier, who was a former bank employe and the owner of a Berlin restaurant, said the soldiers no longer had any enthusiasm for war. Most of those with whom he came in contact believed the war would end soon.

The prisoner had been fighting three years and declared he was thoroughly tired of it. He said the soldiers understood that the German losses during the recent allied offensives had been very great. These reports were credited by the soldiers and were having a demoralizing effect. He said he knew of one division of 15,000 which had been reduced to less than 1,000. He did not know what became of the men.

Plenty of Germans, he added, would desert and surrender if given the opportunity.

Many of them are constantly watching for a chance to give themselves up. Trouble had been threatening in the German munition plants and the army leaders were tightening conditions there. He said the rules governing munition workers were more strict now than ever before.

Germany, he said, has plenty of ammunition, but the man-power question and the actual entry of American troops into the fighting are worrying the military leaders.

SECRET OF SUCCESS OF MAE MARSH IS PLAIN MODESTY

Little Goldwyn Star Sees No Joy in Being High and Mighty.

Mae Marsh is as varied in her moods off the screen as she is on it. And always she is delightful appealing girl, beloved by her associates at the Goldwyn Studios and adored by her family, her friends and her servants. Success has not spoiled hed nor has she lost one whit of her girlish enthusiasm over appearance in motion pictures.

"Success in any other field of endeavor brings hardships," she said to a visitor at the studio the other day, "but with me everything is ideal. Life is glorious, and just the joy of living and being young and knowing that my efforts are appreciated—it is all too wonderful, I say to mother many times a day.

"All my life I have read biographies of actors, singers, artists and workers in various fields, and I learned—even before I dreamed of being an actress myself—that success is never achieved without sacrifice. Think of the writers, the scientists and the great figures in the world's history who have toiled for years without a tithe of the material success we young girls in motion pictures enjoy. Indeed, many a great genius has passed on with no reward at all. Not that I call myself a great genius, but I do enjoy the great reward."

Miss Marsh, when pressed, detailed some of those compensations which make a popular cinema star an envied mortal. She is a little queen in her own right, and at the Goldwyn Studios everyone accords her the defference due a sovereign without, however, any stiff formality. It is the allegiance of love which prompts her subjects to do everything in their power for her. And Mae Marsh wields her sceptre with engaging gentleness and imaprtiality. Quick to sense the thoughts of those around her, their problems and their secret desires, Mae Marsh insists on becoming their confidante and helper. It might be said with truth that the slim star is an important member of half a hundred families who's joys and woes she shares.

DELIVERY ELIMINATED

Mr. T. H. Hooper Adopts New System in His Business.

With the high cost of labour and the casual attitude of the delivery men as to whether the customers wanted bread or not, Mr. T. Hooper on Saturday last adopted a new system whereby all his customers must call for their bread. Delivery of any description, whether on an order amounting to five cents or five dollars, has been cancelled, not only for bread, but on any article bought from Hooper's. In this way, by cutting down expensive delivery, Mr. Hooper promises a better class of bread, and although he does not absolutely promise it, he hopes presently to cut down the price by one cent a loaf.

NEW PEACE OFFENSIVE BY HUNS LIKELY

(Special to The Examiner.)

Washington, August 27. — "Germany hopes to negotiate an early peace that will give her an opportunity to reorganize her reserves for another great war for world domination."

This statement was made to the United Press to-day by a high entente diplomatic authority. He said that reports of a coming German peace offensive are not idle rumours, but are rather a portion of a well laid scheme of the Prussian War Lords' attempts to bring a cessation of hostilities.

Argument in I.W.W. Cases

CHICAGO, Aug. 27.—Federal Judge Landis to-day heard the argument of counsel on the motion for a new trial and arrest of judgment in the case of 100 leaders of the I.W.W., recently found guilty of conspiracy in violating espionage law. The prisoners, who have been in jail for a week, were brought into the court room handcuffed in pairs, under a heavy armed guard. Attorney George F. Vanderveer, chief counsel for the defendants, in presenting the arguments on the motions, attacked the constitutionality of the indictment.

TEMPORARY SLOWING UP OF ADVANCE

WITH THE BRITISH ARMY IN FRANCE, Aug. 27.— British advance gives evidence of temporarily slowing up at various places along the front, but intervals of comparative slow movements must be expected during the course of a battle such as this, for the British have been engaged in hard and continuous open fighting without rest for a week. Many more prisoners and guns and another German battalion commander have been taken.

NOT PLUNDERERS.

For many weeks Amiens was emptied of its civilian population and was in charge of British trops. Shops and houses were suddenly deserted by the people when the enemy advanced. Now the people of Amiens are flockinhg home, they find their homes and places of business just as they were left. There had been absolutely no looting. The British soldier was on his honour.—Hamilton Herald.

700 Prisoners Taken by a French Poilu

Corporal in Tank Corps Find Huns Ambushed in Cave and Bags the Whole Lot, Including Fourteen Officers.

WINS DECORATION

(Special to The Examiner.)

With the French Army in France, August 27. — The capture of 700 Germans is the exploit of Pierre Cellier, aged 23, a corporal in a French tank corps. Among the prisoners were a Colonel and 14 other officers. Two field pieces also were taken. Cellier has been awarded the Cross of the Legion of Honour, a reward rarely given to anyone but a commissioned officer. Cellier was in command of a tank manned by 15 Americans in the recent fighting in the Marne salient. A shell struck the tank and rendered it useless. The men then advanced on foot. Cellier discovered the Germans ambushed in a cave. He kept guard at the entrance for an hour, when a German appeared with a white flag. Behind the first man came the rest of the 700, one by one. The Germans threw down their arms before Cellier and marched to the rear at his direction.

INFANT LIVES SAVED.

KINGSTON, Aug. 26.—Satisfaction is expressed over the decidedly low infant mortality in Kingston this summer. Not more than fifteen deaths of infants have been recorded since June, as compared with thirty a month during past summers. Improved housing and sanitary conditions, and also a good milk supply, are the reasons given.

COAL MOVING WEST LOCAL RECEIPTS ARE TEMPORARILY LIGHT

The bulk of the present coal shipments to Canada are being diverted to the Lake Superior ports, and local receipts have fallen off for the present, it was reported here to-day. Advantage is being taken of the lake [illegible] favorable for shipping. Local dealers are not booking orders ahead of receipts, and as deliveries to Peterboro will probably be curtailed for the next few weeks orders are not being accepted. The present basis of business is based on actual receipts, and consumers may expect to place their orders as soon as new supplies are received.

FIRM BOTTOM HAS BEEN REACHED IN PRINCESS ST. SEWER

The construction of the Princess Street sewer has been greatly accelerated during last week as a result of the escape from the difficulties quick sand and water that retarded progress near the Park Street end. The workmen are rapidly approaching George Street, it was reported this morning, and have discarded the iron sheeting and driving apparatus which were used in the water-soaked sections. Mr. Herb. Martin, the foreman, has taken every advantage of the easier conditions, and George Street should be reached in a few days.

The GRESSMAN Company Limited

Mr. J. H. Burnham Discusses the Fundamental of Trade

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Sir,—It is interesting to find that so many of your readers are deeply concerned regarding the future welfare of Canada in trade. It seems to me, however, that we cannot insist too strongly on a due regard being paid to the fundamental principles of trade. We can never go far astray if we do that. Free trade or fair exchange is based on simple arithmetic. The basis of all calculation is labour cost. Imagine a man coming down to the market some fine morning and saying, "Here I am ready and able to do any kind of work. My charge is $3.00 for a day of 8 hours." That is the labour cost unit. A farmer when he calculates the cost of his crop really says, "All the stuff produced on this farm cost (let us say) 1,000 days labour, that is $3,000. But the stuff which the farmer brought to the farm, such as seed, machinery, etc., cost (let us say) 500 days' labour, or $1,500. Now if the farmer sells his product for $5,000 he has gained more than the equivalent spent in the production by 500 labour days, or $1,500. Why did he get this profit? And how is it calculated? It is calculated by a common standard, viz.: Not sheep or lumber, but gold, that is money, just as we have calculated the cost in labou first and then afterwards in the money value of labour. It all comes to the same thing in the end, that is to say what each person will take in money value of his labour. Now if the Canadian farmer trades with the Canadian manufacturer he does so on a common basis of money or labour value. He gets his money's worth, or ought to. If he trades with the Chinese he must get his own values in Chinese goods. But how can he? If he should say to the Chinese, "You work 12 hours a day for 25 cents (as they do) you will have to give me the product of 12 times your day to make up for one of mine. The Chinese say, "Oh, no, we will not do that. We can get your trade for much less than that. We will give you the work of only one day extra." So the Canadian farmer begins to sell to the Chinese and gets beaten out of his boots in the trade. That is free trade. There is no restriction on it. It suits the consumer because he wants things for as little as he can get them for. But is spells disaster to the producer and to Labour. It is plain, therefore, why the home market is the best market for the producer. He gets his labour's worth. When Canadians try to compete with Chinese, Hindus and Russians, they must get down to the same level of labour cost or go under. Free trade (as between Canadian provinces) is of course the only sensible way of doing business where conditions are the same, but where different it is all in favour of cheap labour, that is of the Oriental, American and Canadian capital has been pouring into the east of late years with that view. Labour is too dear it says. If agricultural produce and manufactures can be turned out for one unit toil instead of 14 times as much as here, what will happen? What must happen if we pay 14 or even 12 for one? In past times the profit of foreign trade consisted in making the foreigner pay 5 or 6 for 1, but the spread of knowledge, and above all, of capital, has changed all that. Moral: We must keep our country for ourselves or for trade with those who live in the same high-class way (pay for our labour) and if they try to stead a march on us we must stop them at the gates. It would not matter to Canada if there was no other country in the world. Life consumes even under the most luxurious conditions only a certain quantity, and by means of production and exchange amongst ourselves we can have all that. Why put it in the hands of others? Those who make profit make a surplus in exchange. That is, strictly speaking, they exchange 1 day's labour for 2. They get rich and the other man gets poor. That is the basis of modern conditions. That is the cause of unrest. People get uneasy almost without knowing it when they see this unfair exchange going on. When we give up profit we will give up doing the other man out of his eranings. Fair exchange is not robbery, but the other kind is.

J. H. BURNHAM.

Scene in the New Song Play, "My Cinderella," at The Grand for the opening of the theatrical season next Saturday, August 31.

At The Grand Theatre next Saturday, August 31, will be seen a new comedy-drama, which is said to be quite different from anything seen here in some time. "My Irish Cinderella" is the title of the new four-act comedy-drama, with Miss Daisy Carleton as Peggy McNeil, the little Irish girl, who is taken from America to London, where she is placed in the home of a great Earl, and it is here that she becomes a very prominent figure in some very stirring scenes.

She meets a young American aviator, and the first time she sees him she thinks he is the greatest hero that ever lived. The play tells one of the prettiest and most wholesome love stories the stage has offered in many a day.

A BIG POTATO STALK.

Mr. R. F. Glover showed the Examiner a potato stalk that he thinks will take some beating. It was grown in his garden at 4 Dumble Avenue, and measures practically four feet. He has many others nearly as big and the potatoes are large and of good quality.

NEW COUNTER REVOLUTIONARY RIOT IN RUSSIA

AMSTERDAM, Aug. 27.—Serious counter revolutionary disorders have broken out near Moscow, according to a despatch from that city, dated Sunday, received via Berlin to-day.

A decision to support the counter revolution was reached at many labour meetings, the despatch said. Clashes resulted between workmen and Bolshevik troops, the latter setting fire to a number of villages near Moscow, where the counter revolutionists had taken refuge.

AMERICAN MAGAZINES AND PAPERS UNDER NEW EMBARGO

PORT ARTHUR, Aug. 26.— There was something like consternation in the city this morning, when the announcement was made that no more newspapers from the United States will be allowed to come into Canada, the U. S. government having sent out an order last night telling the Customs to hold the papers. This is on account of paper shortage in the United States. About noon, to-day, however, the order was rescinded for the present.

When the Buffalo papers did not arrive this morning, M. H. Buckley went over the river, and found out all about it.

Presumably, by this new order, magazines and all other periodicals and publications will be under embargo. People who have subscribed for magazines like the Saturday Evening Post, for instance, and paid in advance, will be either out part their subscription, or else some arrangement for refund will be made.

Whether the new U. S. order will be so strict as to stop a many carrying an American paper or magazine over the river into Canada, is yet uncertain.

The authorities over the river told Mr. Buckley that they had simply been notified by wire to stop exportation and that full particulars will be sent to them by mail later.

Just before noon the local newsdealers were notified that the papers would be allowed to come over until the formal notice arrived over the river, from Washington.

Return to Ottawa Over Trent Route

This Trip Required Four Weeks in Grand Chain of Lakes.

OTTAWA, Aug. 26.—Messrs. A. J. Fraser and A. H. Smith have returned from their cruise to Lake Couchiching, after a very pleasant trip. The tourists left Ottawa on Saturday, August 3, in Mr. Smith's launch "Corona," and going by way of the Rideau, Lake Ontario, Bay of Quinte, Trent Canal, Rice Lake, Clear Lake, Stoney Lake, Pigeon Lake, Sturgeon Lake, Balsam Lake, Lake Simcoe and Lake Couchiching, arrived at Orillia on Tuesday evening, Aug. 13, where they were well received, being tendered a dinner and motored around the town and district.

Mr. Smith and Mr. Fraser report the scenery along the route they took very pretty, but it does not by any means surpass that along the Rideau route between Rideau Ferry and Upper Brewers.

The "Corona" was the first Ottawa boat to go through the new Trent Canal, which was recently opened, and which is a wonderful piece of engineering skill, two locks being 27 feet of a lift each or a total drop of 54 feet at one place. The two lift locks at Peterborough and Kirkfield, which were passed through going and coming, are well known. It only took four and one-half minutes to go through the one at Peterborough, a lift of 65 feet.

The route is well buoyed and easily navigated, but any one wishing to make the trip from Ottawa should have about four weeks to do so.

WEDDING BELLS

HAMBLIN—STILLMAN.
The marriage took place on Wednesday, August 22nd, 1918, of Ethel, daughter of Mrs. Catharine Stillman, 458 Aylmer street, at Furman Methodist church, Syracuse, N.Y., to Mr. Edward Francis Hamblin, of that city.

SCULLY—GIRARD.
The wedding was quietly solemnized this morning at 6 o'clock in the Sacred Heart Church, of Noelia Girard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alphonse Girard, 111 Crescent street, and Victor Scully, son of Mr. and Mrs. Scully, 419 Downie street. Rev. Father Gorman performed the ceremony. The bride, who was given away by her uncle, Mr. Ozias de Laplante, looked lovely in a chic tailored travelling suit of navy serge, and taupe hat, and carried a bouquet of white roses. Miss Jeanne Girard, the bridesmaid, wore a charming gown of brown crepe de chine and taffeta, and small taupe poke bonnet, and carried a bouquet of red roses. The groom was supported by his brother, Mr. Lorne Scully.

After the ceremony, the wedding party returned to Mr. Girard's home, where wedding breakfast was served, after which Mr. and Mrs. Scully left on the 8.10 train, amid showers of confetti, for Toronto, where they will reside. An unusual number of beautiful wedding gifts testified to the popularity of the young couple.

THE DIRECTORS DIDN'T WANT TO DO IT, BUT BUILDINGS ARE DEAR

The one and only building at the exhibition grounds has taken wings unto itself, but alas no, it has not fled. A new position nearer the race track has been selected for it and Mr. Huffman with his men is at present dragging it there by means of the capstan and chain. It is very laborious moving the building from its old position. The posts had to be released from the floor as also the walls. A double track was constructed under the old building. A chain attached to the front, a horse hitched to the capstan and Peterboro's Noah's Ark began to groan, and parted very grudingly with its floor. To-night the building will be in its new position, facing the same way as formerly. A new floor will be put in it, new corner posts erected to anchor it firmly to the ground and two or three new "coats" of paint will be applied and all ready in time for the Exhibition on September 12.

The directors will breathe new life into the building and will make it presentable. They retain it for two reasons. One is the extreme cost of replacing it, and the other is need of general improvements to the grounds which are nearing completion with fine effect.

Food Board Flashes

A great deal has been said about fish that is cheap and fish that is dead, and a good many people like to imagine that it's always cheaper somewhere else than just where they live. Figures provide convincing testimony, however. Here are comparisons between prices for cod and haddock in American and Canadian cities:

	Cod.	Haddock
Halifax	8	8
Gloucester, Mass	16	18
	Cod.	Haddock.
Montreal	10	10
New York	23-27 (steaks) 16-18 (whole)
Ottawa	10 (market)	11
Washington	16 (steak)
Washington	18	12
Toronto	10-11	10-12
Buffalo	20-29	15-16

Thirty Broken Divisions Have Been Identified by British

Signs Indicate Increasing Confusion Behind German Lines—Airplanes and Tanks Busy—Prisoners Still Coming In PROGRESS IS STEADY

WITH THE BRITISH ARMY IN FRANCE, Aug. 26.—The extension of the British line north of the Scarpe has brought the attackers to within striking distance of a good part of the Hindenburg line, back of which is open country with the terrain and roads in excellent condition for the movement of tanks and horses.

The British made steady progress again to-day, especially on the new section of the front, around Bapaume and astride the Somme. German resistance again was stubborn. However, it is beginning to look as though the enemy is fighting rearguard actions with the hope of holding up the British until he can move his material to the rear.

No Fresh Units Identified.

No fresh German divisions have been identified in the recent fighting. The strategy of the German high command now is to leave battered divisions to fight rearguard actions, and, incidentally, to have a large part of the remnants of these formations chewed to pieces by the British fire.

Elements of nearly thirty German divisions many of which have been badly hit and crippled, are striving to hold off the British. There are signs of even greater confusion behind the German lines. Companies of various regiments have been thrown in almost any place. The strength of a large number of these companies has been whittled down until they contain hardly twenty-five men, according to prisoners, many more of whom have passed through the collecting cages.

Gen. Ludendorff perhaps has some plans to make a stand to the rear of the present line and is saving what men he can for that purpose. It would not be surprising if the enemy intended to put up a stiff defence somewhere on a line running generally north and south through Peronne.

Hard Fighting Around Bapaume.

There was hard fighting to-day around Bapaume. Favreuil, just north of Bapaume, has been taken and the streets run red with blood of Germans killed there. The enemy was prepared to launch a counter-attack here, but as his troops moved towards the town from the east they were caught under the fire of the British artillery. The British then stormed into the town and captured what remained of the enemys force—110 men and five officers. From Favreuil the British pushed east and south further encircling Bapaume.

There are unconfirmed rumours that British patrols have reconnoitred into Bapaume and have gone some distance without seeing any of the enemy. British shells have been raining down on Bapaume for many hours.

Many Prisoners Still Coming.

Large numbers of prisoners captured have not yet arrived at the cages, because they are some distance to the rear. This accounts for the fact that many captured Germans, perhaps the number runs well into the thousands, while well outside the zone of fire, in accordance with the rules of war, have not yet reached the base cages.

The new section of the battlefront just south of the Scarpe offers great possibilities. The attacking forces here are driving eastward astride the Arras-Cambrai road, and are now beyond Monchy-Le-Preux and Wancourt. These points virtually are on the Hindenburg line. The rain during the night did not interfere with the British advance, for the operations now are on hard ground. The rain put the Germans at a disadvantage, particularly those in crater holes with machine guns, as many of the holes were turned to puddles.

Airplanes and Tanks Busy.

As soon as the rain ceased scores of British planes took the air and continued their systematic attacks upon the enemy troops. Tanks again distinguishted themselves by overwhelming difficult points where the concentration of machine guns delayed the advancing infantry.

MUNICIPAL DELIVERY OF MILK PROPOSED.

Brantford Council Wants Vote of Ratepayers—Flood Damage Cases.

BRANTFORD, Aug. 28.—Brantford City Council adopted a resolution tonight, calling for the voting next January on the proposition of a central pasteurization plant and the municipal delivery of all milk in this city.

A delegation of Jubilee Avenue ratepayers pressed for settlement of claims for flooding of their premises last spring. The Council voted for a test case in the courts and the city will bear all expenses in connection with the same.

A contract was awarded to Johnson Bros. for the construction of local improvements, at a cost of $30,000, at Lansdowne Park. A resolution was also put through to take advantage of the Ontario Government's offer for the loan of moneys for the erection of workingmen's houses.

World Happenings

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27.—German artillery shelled a Red Cross station and other buildings in the rear of the Belgium lines yesterday, killing 23 persons and injuring 60, Red Cross cables to-day said. ff

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Aug. 27. —Declarations for war until "the madman of the world is disarmed," and urgent preparedness for the German peace bill by Senator Marren G. Harding, sounded the keynote for the Republican States convention here to-day.

TIRED ENEMY MESSENGER DOG GAINED SYMPATHY OF BRITISH

With the British Army in France, Aug. 26.—There is one prisoner among all this horde of disheartened men, however, that claimed and got instant sympathy from every British soldier. Our men stopped to speak words of encouragement to him and to make friendly gestures to him. He was only a dog—a tired German messenger. But he sat in one corner enduring captivity with a certain dignity. He gazed out on a new world with intelligent eyes. What a story he could tell of his part in this memorable defeat, if he could only talk

(By Lowell Mellett.)

WITH THE BRITISH ARMY IN FRANCE, Aug. 27— (Night.)— One more surprise attack to-day lengthened both the British and the French lines on the old Somme battle front. Some six miles were added to the battle line in his region. The German had evidently been expecting the attack. The surprise came when the men broke through the line above Orange Hill and the positions below Monchy-Le-Preux, revealing Canadian troops.

Passing through Arras to-day I saw a column of about a thousand prisoners headed by a dozen officers. Their general physique is a great contrast to the prisoners taken farther north.

Paris, August 27. — The last German defence before Roye was broken up by the Canadians this morning, and they are now within 1500 yards (less than a mile) of the town, which also was threatened from the north by the British.

Resumption of activity is reported in the Noyon sector. The French are also attacking along the Ailette line, and pushing northward toward Couchy-le-Chateau.

WATER SCARCE AT ST. THOMAS.

Drastic Measures May Be Necessary to Make People Conserve.

ST. THOMAS, Aug. 26.—The water supply in this city is daily becoming smaller, and the situation is anything but favourable. The railroads have been requested to conserve in their requirements as much as possible, to make use of their tanks in other places along the line whenever the opportunity occurs. Unless rain comes soon and in sufficiently large quantities to fill up the creek, which is nearly dry, drastic measures may have to be resorted to in order to make the people conserve more. It is reported that the consumption for Saturday and Sunday amounted to nearly 100 gallons per day for each person in the city.

CATTLE MARKET

Toronto, August 27. — Receipts at the Union Stock Yards to-day consisted of the following: 35 cars, with 519 cattle, 200 calves, 501 hogs and 380 sheep and lambs. This is a fair run for a Tuesday, considering the season of the year.

Trading was fairly quiet in all branches of the market. Prices were steady to firm in all lines. Hogs remained quiet at $19.50 although one lot of 11 medium hogs sold at $16.50, but this was an exception to the general tone of the market.

Sheep and lambs were also quiet, with a slight tendency toward higher prices. Calves were scarce, a few choice head being sold by Dunn and Levack at $17.70, a slight advance over the ruling price.

STATUE OF EMPEROR WILLIAM WAS SENT TO THE FOUNDRY.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, Aug. 26.—An indication of the lengths to which Germany is going for war materials is contained in a letter taken from a dead soldier. It was written by his wife, and informed him that the great bronze statue of Emperor William at Luneburg, Pomerania, had been torn down and sent to the foundry to be converted into ordnance, as had also the roofs of churches.

DESERTERS MUST NOW FACE COURTS

OTTAWA, Aug. 26.— Saturday was the last day for amnesty to defaulters under the Military Service Act, All men apprehended from now on will be treated as deserters and will come before General Courts-Martial, which have been established in every military district. These courts-martial have the power of life and death, and, as far as Ottawa is concerned, the law will be rigorously enforced. There is no intention to extend the amnesty.

Ottawa has as yet no official figures as to the numbers of deserters who have reported. It is expected that official figures will be received to-day. During the past few days there has been a rush to report, particularly in Montreal and Quebec. At Ottawa some 400 reported to the authorities. Saturday four deserters who have been hiding in the woods in the Gatineau district drove into the city in an automobile and gave themselves up.

There are 1,500 military police who have charge of rounding up deserters and they have been instructed to use every possible effort now to apprehend every defaulter. The General Courts-Martial have been particularly appointed to deal with the situation. Previously there were only district courts-martial, and the extreme penalty they could enforce was two years. The General Courts-martial can sentence a deserter to death.

It is not anticipated that any deserters will be ordered shot unless under extreme provocation, but without doubt lengthy terms, and possibly life penal sentences will be ordered. The courts-martial will have to take into consideration cases where men have not seen the proclamation, or where there are good reasons for failing to report. In the case of defaulters who express their willingness to don the uniform, the courts-martial will undoubtedly allow them to enlist on suspended sentence.

ONTARIO WHEAT PRICES.

Rules and Rates Decided Upon by Board of Grain Supervisors.

The following are the fixed prices of Ontario wheat and the rules governing the sale of the same as arrived at by the Board of Grain Supervisors at their meeting last week:

(1) That the price of Ontario wheat, No. 2 grade, shall be $2.26 per bushel, basis in store Montreal, and that the premium on No. 1 grade shall be three cents (3c.) and the discount on No. 3 grade shall be four cents (4c.) per bushel. These prices are effective from August 23, 1918, until June 30, 1919, inclusive.

(2) That for the purpose of preserving the identity of the small quantity of winter wheat in Ontario and of encouraging the production of winter wheat a premium of five cents (5c.) per bushel shall be paid over the above fixed prices.

(3) That the above prices have now legal authority, and any deviations from them will be regarded and treated as violations of the orders of the Board of Grain Supervisors for Canada.

Under the order the following regulations will apply:

(1) To arrive at the price a shipping point deduct (a) one cent (1c.) per bushed to cover the cost of putting the wheat into store Montreal, thus making the price $2.25 f.o.b. cars, Montreal; (b) the local freight charges, based on the total through mileage from shipping point to Montreal, regardless whether it passes over one or more roads in transit, plus whatever fraction of a cent per bushel may arise when deducting the freight rate per bushel from the fixed price per bushel.

(2) Eastern flour millers may pay a minimum of one cent (1c. per bushel in excess of the fixed price, but no other charges for brokerage, commission, salary or diversion shall be allowed.

Fishing Craft Sunk by Subs to be Replaced by Fabricated Ships.

Washington, Aug. 27.—Fishing craft destroyed by German submarines off the New England coast, will be replaced by the Emergency Fleet Corporation at the request of the Food Administration, with deep sea modern trawlers. Construction will be begun at once on 75 vessels to be in operation on the Atlantic and Pacific coasts and in the Gulf of Mexico, early in 1919. The Food Administration asked for the boats in order to increase the production of salt water fish.

Heavy increases in the annual production of haddock, small cod, flatfish and other salt water varieties are expected to result from the operation of the new trawlers and enable carloads to enter all the interior markets of the country every week in the year, stabilizing prices at low levels.

"The Girl Who Had No God"

By MARY ROBERTS RINEHART
Author of "The Man in Lower Ten," The After House," Etc.

CHAPTER IV

Elinor lived alone after the funeral Henriette, who had now a chance to practice her favorite vice of thrift, was for sending away the other servants.

I can manage," she said. "For all you eat——"

But Elinor protested.

"I shall want to keep up the Saturday dinners. Let thinks stay as they are for a time."

It had been old Hilary's custom to have such members of the band as were available dine with him of a Saturday.

Henriette raised her hands.

"Things are changed," she cried. "You are alone here now. To have those four men——"

"That is better than having one man, Henriette."

So Elinor had her way. The Saturday dinners were resumed early in September, Boroday coming with infinite caution from his cheap boarding-house in the South Side, Talbot and Lethbridge from the bachelor apartment they rented together. Walter Huff was late.

"I had to be careful," he told Boroday, aside. "They've got wind of something, I don't know what. My room was searched to-day."

Boroday swore through his beard.

"Then why did you come here?" he demanded. Young Huff laugher, glanced at Elinor, and back impudently at the Russian.

"You know why I came," he said, in high good humor. "But I was careful. It's all right."

Old Hilarys chair had been placed by Elinor's order. She had borne up well the last month, was rather more slender, certainly more appealing. The quality of wistfulness was more apparent than ever around her mouth. Huff, sitting across, hardly took his eyes from her. He was young and women had had no place until now in his active unscrupulous life. But Elinor held him in the palm of her small hand.

They missed old Hilary, his saturnine humor, his beetling gray brows. And inaction was telling on them. They were growing restive. Boroday, advising caution in view of what he knew, felt the disaffection among the younger men.

It was Lethbridge who, waiting until the servants had withdrawn, rose and glanced around the table.

"It seems to me," he began, "that we have a lot to decide tonight. I've been thinking about it ever since—for some time. The first thing, of course, is whether we are going to hang together or not."

Talbot had rather a weird sense of humor. He suggested that the word "hang" be changed to "remain."

"We've been doing well. We'll do all right again too, as soon as this thing blows over. It was unlucky, but we have been pretty fortunate. Now we can do one or two things. For Elinor's sake, I suggest the first."

"And that is—" Elinor's voice was unsteady.

"Send Boroday to Paris to dispose of your jewels. Then get a conservative lawyer to invest the money."

"And after that?"

"Forget you ever knew any of us."

Huff, across the table from her, went white but said nothing.

"You said there was an alternative?"

Elinor was white, too. The room was profoundly still.

"To keep on as we are at present with you, Elinor, acting in your father's stead, receiving and transmitting messages, and—keeping the vault in charge."

Boroday was on his feet in a moment, protesting. He would take the jewels and send them abroad. It was risky but it could be done. But this outrageous arrangement that had been suggested——

"What we are, we are by choice," he finished. "You have never had a choice and now it is given to you. For God's sake, child, go away now while you may."

Elinor's reply, when it came was unanswerable.

"Where could I go? I know in all the world only you four, and old Henriette, and a governess of mine, who has gone into a convent in France. I shall stay with you all."

So it was settled.

That was an eventful evening, with Elinor, misty-eyed, moving into her father's chair at the table, and the band swearing the simple oath of allegiance which held them together. And when they had moved from the dining room, Walter Huff, following Elinor out on to the terrace, told her he loved her.

The starlight above, and those nearer stars that outlined the streets below, threw a soft radiance over her. She was dressed in white; old Hilary had disliked mouring garments. Elinor was looking down into the village. The great spire of Saint Jude towered above the town. Huff, young and ardent, thrilled to the girl's presence close beside him.

"You are very aloof to-night," he said. She smiled up at him.

"Not that surely. I was only thinking."

"Of what?"

"Oh, of different things—of the people down there in their houses—their lives; the things they believe; we think they are narrow, but I wonder, after all, if you and I, who believe none of those things, are not the narrow ones."

Huff was not subtle. Possibly he would not have understood, had not the Saint Jude's chimes rung just then.

"Symbols like that seem to mean so much to them," said Elinor, and fell silent.

In the warm silence, Huff felt for, and found her hand.

"All this time, when I couldn't see you," he said unsteadily, "I've been thinking of you here alone, and in trouble. Sometimes I thought that I couldn't stand it, that I'd have to come out and see you, if only for five minutes."

"I've always been more or less lonely. Sometimes I think that if I had been sent away to school, had known other girls, it would have been better? I have never had any friends—except you and the others."

Huff released her hand and faced her.

"I don't want to be your friend, Elinor. I want to be much more."

She was rather shocked at first. She stood looking up at him, her lips slightly parted.

"I? You—you want——"

"I love you. I want you to marry me, dear!"

There was no doubt of the boy's sincerity. It rang true. He stood with his arms out, and after a moment she went into them. Except for the father who was gone this was the first love that had come into her life. She took it hurriedly. In the starlight she held up her lips like a child for the kiss.

The police were still active. So insistent was Boroday on caution that all of September went by without so much as a plan of campaign. Talbot played golf and established friendly relations that might be invaluable later. Huff, under protest, retained the taxicab work.

"It's a dog's life," he said. "They are not after me now. Give me something else to do or else let me take a vacation."

But they kept him at work.

Huff fell into the way of seeing Elinor once or twice a week. Talbot took him out, picking him on the edge of the town after dusk, on his way in his car to a dance or dinner at the country club, and taking him back the same way.

And the boy's infatuation for Elinor grew and thrived on those late Summer meetings. Her sweetness and elusiveness maddened him. Sometimes he thought her never so far from him as when she was in his arms.

"Do you love me?" he would demand hoarsely.

"I think so. I know that I want you to love me."

And he had to be content with this.

On the evenings when she was alone Elinor sat in her arbour and watched the road up the hill. Ward had called twice and each time she had been out on the long rambles she took almost daily. After his second visit she stayed in the house for days expecting him. But he did not come again.

She was not in love with Ward, just as she was not in love with Walter Huff. But the clergyman represented in her strange and lonely life, something new and different. He typified all that she had never known—he was the priest, rather than the man to her at first. The time was coming when he would be man only, and after that——

Late in September Boroday was arrested. The arrest came as a shock to the band. As a matter of fact the police could prove nothing, but the Chief had a long talk with the Russian. It was the Afrarian affair, of course. The Chief had recognized him. But so firmly had old Hilary's respectability been rooted in the public mind that the Chief connected Boroday only casually with him.

"You know that I can't prove this thing on you," he said, "but you also know perfectly well that I can fix you to the tune of about ten years."

"Perfectly correct in both instances," said Boroday. "You can not prove anything, and you can send me up. What is it you want?"

"I want the members of that band of yours," said the Chief. "And I want your headquarters. You people have been playing hell in this county long enough; the newspapers are laughing at us. Sooner or later we'll get you and get you all. Make it sooner and we'll let you off easy."

"How much time will you give me?"

The Chief offered twenty four hours and Boroday took it. At the end of that time he reported.

"I guess I'll take what's coming to me," he said. "You can fix it any way you like."

It was a bitter disappointment to the police.

GERMAN EMPRESS ILL.

Kaiser Leaves Headquarters to Visit Her at Wilhelmshohe.

AMSTERDAM—The German Empress is ill at Castle Wilhelmshohe, Hesse-Cassel, the Lokal-Anzeiger of Berlin says, owing to overstrain from her war relief work. Physicians in attendance promise her full recovery within a few weeks.

The Kaiser, who has been almost uninterruptedly in the field since the spring offensive, has left Main Headquarters for Wilhelmshohe, especially as "the Empress' sons are prevented by their service obligations from attending at their mother's bedside."

The Berlin Vossische Zeitung says that the Empress is suffering from nervous depression, due to her numerous visits to the hospitals and talks with the wounded from the most recent offensive.

MUST NOT FAIL SLAVS.

His Highness the Aga Khan Appeals to British.

His Highness the Aga Khan, the spiritual ruler of more than 50,000,000 Indian Mohammedans, has made the following statement to the Paris correspondent of the London Daily Express:

"The crisis from which Russia now suffers is by no means the first in her chequered history. Immediately after her liberation from the two centuries of Tartar rule there was a chaos much greater than that of today in those vast dominions, and disruption threatened the heritage of the Muscovite races. Great Britain was one of the causes that led to her regeneration, English and Scottish adventurers, the seekers after the Northwest Passage, and many little-known successors of the Elizabethan mariners visited Russia and played a great part in her development, which continued down to the time of Peter and Catherine.

"To-day the same problem is once more before us. What will happen to these vast dominions is the greatest question of the hour. Will the Central Powers play the part that Britain played in India after the break-up of the Mogul Empire? Will they bring about law and order, will they be the means that will hold together the races and nationalities that go to make Russia? If so, they will be the real victors in the world-war.

"Is England going to abandon all the wonderful commercial possibilities of Russia to the Central Powers? Now, I believe, is the time to send to Russia men of intense purpose, men with the necessary commercial knowledge and experience to develop trade with the millions of Russians who are so earnestly in need of so many articles. Will Great Britain, then, leave Russia in the lurch in her hour of trial and despair? I cannot believe it.

"Now is not the time to be disputing about diplomatic forms, for in a very real sense the white man's burden for the Englishman to-day is Russia. One reads daily of Englishmen leaving Russia and turning homewards. How I wish it were the other way round! It ought to be a stream of the descendants of the Elizabethan and Georgian adventurers turning eastward toward Russia, placing themselves at the head of every movement—scientific, cultural, economic and military—and reclaiming Russia for the culture of Western Europe!

"The Russian ideals need sympathy and every consideration, for, after all, they, with all their faults, hold up a torch of faith and hope to mankind, and their gospel is a repetition of the teachings of Christ and Mahomet. It requires a generous imagination to understand and deal with them.

"Will the compatriots of Clive and Drake and Shakespeare fail for want of imaginative sympathy?"

Hoeing is a severe strain on the back. It calls into play muscles not used much in lifting or in other kinds of farm work.

If you have a weak back you cannot stand much hoeing unless you use Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills to set the kidneys right and remove the cause of weakness and lameness of the back. Just try one pill a dose at bed time and see how much better you will feel.

Terrible Mortality Among Serbs.

Reuter's Agency has received from a Serbian source figures regarding the terrible losses sustained by the Serbian population of Bosnia.

In the three years, 1915, 1916 and 1917, there were 150,314 deaths, of which 65,042 were those of children under ten years of age. Of these 12,867 were infants under a year old, 31,039 from one to five years, 10,192 from five to ten.

Whereas before the war there were from 25,000 to 30,000 births annually, the birth-rate has been so considerably reduced that in 1915 there were 4,648 more deaths than births. In 1916 the excess of deaths over births amounted to 17,711, and in the first half of 1917 to 7,566

Want Too Much.

"The Germans," said a novelist, "growl because they possess no colonies. Well, the German empire is brand new, a very baby. It hasn't earned its colonies yet. It hasn't grown up to them. Germany, growling for colonies, reminds me of the little urchin who sat on the curbstone weeping bitterly. 'What's the matter, sonny? asked a passerby. 'All my brothers have got holidays,' the urchin bellowed, 'and I—boo, boo—I don't ever have none!' 'Why, that's too bad," said the kind stranger. 'What school do you go to?' 'Boo, hoo! Boo, hoo!' was the reply, 'I don't go to no school yet'."

TIRED AND DISCOURAGED

Mrs. Warren Randlee, Rothesay, Kings County, N.B., "I have three small children and had to stay in the house all winter. So when spring came I was all run down doing all my work and looking after the children. I felt all tired out, and looked on the gloomy side all the time. I decided to try Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and the results were most satisfactory. I feel fine now, and am recommending the Nerve Food to others."

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

The "Roaring Forties"

By GENEVIEVE ULMAR

Neither the Canadian government, nor the Moravian Brethren, nor the officials or fishermen of Labrador knew why the fisheries along the coastal shores of that desolate country had been almost abandoned by the salmon and quite deserted by the herring.

An international fisheries commission had employed Arnold Blake, a bright young scientist, to go over the ground and report conditions. He had penetrated the "roaring forties," as those latitudes were designated, which included Newfoundland and, at their northern limit, took in subpolar districts. Making his headquarters at Nain, Blake found that the netting of harbors, the wholesale trawling with hook lines miles in length, the natural migratory habits of the fish were responsible for driving away vast shoals periodically. He foresaw that the needs of the scattered communities could be provided for only by grouping fur hunters and cod fishermen around points where lumber mills and mining enterprises offered steady work. He was at Port Charles, on his way back to Nain, when a veteran seal hunter remarked:

"There's one man you ought to see, who can give you more pointers in a day than most of us could in a year."

"And who is that?" inquired Darrell.

"Old Quality Jim."

"Quality—peculiar name, isn't it?"

"Yes, but it fits, for they say that Jim Hudson was a high-up one in the States before he came here. He settled over near a nose of land running out into the ocean, where no one ever goes except the Eskimo, and sort of let it out in a mysterious way that he was after a fortune in one dab. He spent a year roving all over the district and picked up lots of information us common folks never dreamed of. A year ago he sent for his daughter, Eloise, I sledded her over to Point Walrus. There's her picture on the wall. She stayed here for a week and my wife took a great liking to her."

Blake studied the photograph. Peat and walrus oil smoke had blackened it, but the close cabin smudge could not rob that classical profile of its statuesque beauty, nor the fair lineaments of their cultured expressiveness. Perhaps more the wife, the lure, the far solitude of this filial being fascinated Blake than the utility of securing information appertaining to his direct mission. At all events he determined on visiting Point Walrus. Provided with sledge, dogs, supplies and a chart of the district, he started on his journey. Eight hours later landmarks told him that he was near his destination. Suddenly a great white bear burst from covert. In an instant the dogs made a dash for the enemy, upsetting the sledge and tipping Blake into the snow. They described a fatal scimeter curve and pounced upon the bear. A sullen roar sounded behind Blake. He received a blow from the ponderous paw of the mate of the bear. Half-stunned Blake tried to creep, to roll away from his swiftly advancing adversary.

Crack! A shot rang out. The animal, a bullet in its brain, fell across the prostrate Blake.

Blake found himself before a great log-piled fireplace an hour later. A girlish figure, arrayed in caribou, was flitting about the cabin. In a corner of the room were half a dozen Eskimo children.

"Miss Hudson," said Blake, recognizing the original of the photograph, "I have come to see your father. It was you who fired on the bear?"

What rich russet tinge to those skilled hands! How her face shone with ruddy health! How practical and straightforward was this fair princess of the northern wilds. Blake soon knew that her father had been dead for several weeks, that the natives in the vicinity had died off through pestilence and that this noble-hearted girl was sharing her home with the little orphan children.

"Our dogs were eaten by an onslaught of the starving wolves," narrated Eloise, "and we could not get to the trading post." Never had Blake known the charm of true womankind as now. It was arranged that Eloise should take her helpless charges to the settlement on his sledge. Then the dogs were to return to convey Blake and the contents of the cabin. He busied himself after their departure packing these possessions on the sledge belonging to the place. He found a cask in the attic. Eloise had not mentioned this, but Blake stowed it on the sledge.

At their destination the Eskimo charges were placed in care of the mission people. Most of the cabin belongings had been given away. The cask and some fine seal fur Blake decided to retain. It was at the first customs depot that an inspection of their freight was made. The duty charges on the cask amazed Blake.

"The contents must be valuable," he observed.

"Valuable? At least fifty thousand dollars," was the reply. "Why, man, it's ambergris! Whoever ran across that splendid spoil found a floating gold mine."

The precious substance was verified, and Eloise Hudson found herself an heiress. The Northern wilds had given her not only a loving, devoted husband, but a fortune.

What Is a Doughnut?

"What is a doughnut?" The question is not nearly so important as "where is a doughnut?" But few people now know how to make doughnuts. The genuine doughnut is a matter of substance, not shape. It is perfume, not persiflage. It must be golden brown; not from the deep lard; not sugared (sugar is a crime); smelling like home and mother and Thanksgiving perfumes like basting of turkeys, simmering of mince pies and browning of sugar cookies. A doughnut may be made like a little man and fried until he winks at little boys who eat them like cannibals, but the usual form of the doughnut is a rim of ecstacy around a hole of hope. The hole in a doughnut is not an accident. No doughnut may properly be fried to perfection unless around a hole, because the solid dough will not do as well unless it has room to grow beautiful in the cooking. There is always a reason in old-fashioned housekeeping. A doughnut is as near perfect as is mince pie. And mince pie is what the gods ate on Olympus and called ambrosial. There is another kind of doughnut called cruller. It is a corruption of the word crueller. Your digestion will tell you the difference between the two.

Lecturer's Novel Experiment.

Illustrating his statement that light passed through white skin more easily than through black, Mr. Leonard Hill, at the Royal Institution, says an English Exchange, passed an electric light bulb into his mouth, the room being in darkness, and afterwards into the mouth of a man of color. In the first instance a pale yellow glow was visible but in the second there was no change in the complete darkness of the lecture theatre.

Vibration of Chimneys.

A soundly-built chimney vibrates, or swings from side to side, as a whole, under sudden and violent shocks of wind, and is in reality safer when it does so than when it stands in sullen and unmoved resistance. The vibration indicates that the several constituent parts of the structure are firmly compacted into one coherent, continuous, and, as it were, homogeneous mass, which can sway from side to side like a steel rod or spring, without any tendency to dissolve its continuity and break asunder at some intermediate point. The absence of vibration, on the other hand, means that there is not this integrity of coherence, and that there are, so to speak, fissures of substantial continuity in the structure, at which disruptive strain is unavoidably developed. Sudden shocks of wind bursting upon lofty columns of brickwork in such circumstances tend to break them across at the joints where the interruption of continuity occurs. The movements of vibration are there absorbed, and converted into the less desirable condition of molecular strain.—Family Journal.

FEELS IT HER DUTY TO TELL ABOUT IT

Mrs. Campbell Was on Verge of Breakdown—Tanlac Restores Her.

"Since Tanlac has done so much for me I feel that I ought to tell others about it," said Mrs. Margaret Campbell, who resides on Barker avenue in East Toronto, recntly.

"There may be other medicines as good as Tanlac," she continued, "but I have never been able to find them and I have been trying for three years to get relief from stomach trouble and indigestion. I had no appetite at all and I suffered so from indigestion that I was actually afraid to eat. Gas would form on my stomach almost as soon as I had eaten and almost cut off my breath. There was an awful pressure and severe pains about my heart and sometimes I felt like I would smother. No matter what I would eat I suffered the same way and my nerves got in such a bad fix I could hardly get a good night's sleep. I was falling off in weight, was very sallow looking and if I walked any distance I would get so weak I could hardly stand up. I seemed to be right on the verge of a nervous break-down.

"Tanlac just seemed to be suited to my case exactly as I have been gradually improving ever since I began taking it. My appetite is simply fine now and I can eat good, hearty meals without suffering a particle from gas indigestion. And it certainly is a blessing to be able to eat without suffering afterwards. My nerves have improved until I can sleep splendidly, my color is better and I feel stronger and better in every way than I have since my troubles began. All my friends tell me I am looking much better and it must be so for I surely do feel a thousand times better."

Tanlac is sold in Peterboro by W. B. Warne Drug Co. Ltd., in Havelock by A. C. Denike, in Lakefield by Tanner Drug Co. Ltd., in Fowlers' Corners by W. A. Hunter, in Gelert by A. J. Scott, in Westwood by G. Pringle & Son.

SIBERIA FORCE OPEN TO ALL.

Even Men Ordered to Report May Enlist with this New Unit.

Toronto, August 27. — As the expected rush of recruits to join the Expeditionary Force scheduled for Siberia, has not materialized, the ranks of that unit are now open to all. All previous limitations, which were to the effect that only returned men and men outside of Class One, could volunteer, have been removed, and Ottawa has issued instructions that the unit must be brought up to strength without any further delay. To date only 37 men have been signed up for Siberia, and 26 have been rejected. It is further hinted that if the men do not volunteer fast enough that the troops will be drafted from the depot battalions.

OTTAWA RUMOURS THAT PREMIER IS TO STAY IN LONDON

Is Now Down to Work at the Capital With Most of the Cabinet Sitting In—Problems to be Dealt With.

OTTAWA, Aug. 26.—After a summer in England, devoted to war and Imperial affairs, Sir Robert Borden, who returned here Saturday, was at his office bright and early this morning, losing no time in getting down to work. Practically all of the Ministers are here and to-day the first full Cabinet Council for many months is being held. Mr. Rowell has been out in rural Ontario telling of what was doing in London this summer and enumerating, also the achievements of the Union Government in the period of its somewhat harassed existence. If the past has provided problems aplenty, equally impressive ones await solution now, and impatience for their adjustment has been the cause of criticism for the prolonged absence of the Prime Minister and several of his colleagues.

Arising out of the Imperial conference the decision to have a Canadian Minister residing permanently in London as a member of the War Cabinet causes considerable speculation and much rumour. The report has been circulated that the Prime Minister himself is not disinclined to take the position, handing over the reins to another. There may be nothing in the story now, but if Sir Robert should go, other with aspirations for the succession are not lacking.

Barkis is Willin'.

Mr. Rowell, for instance, like Barkis, is "willin'." There are grave misgivings, however, as to the fate of the Union Government were the Prime Minister to cut loose and leave the ship. It is being represented that if Sir Robert ever had the idea of quitting, he should abandon such a plan, otherwise the unity of cohesion of the Ministry would be imperilled. Sir Edward Kemp, Overseas Minister, is permanently in London, and his appointment to the duties of the newly created post may be a natural solution of the question. It is one of numerous matters awaiting consideration.

The labour situation, perhaps, more than anything else, has been before the Government this summer, calls for action for the unrest throughout the country is militant.

Threats of Strikes.

The creation of a labour court of appeal to review conciliation board decisions has somewhat bettered things, but strikes or threats of them, are still occurring. Mr. Carvell has visions of people shivering next winter for lack of coal production, while miners strike or work easy hours. His remedy would be coolie labour, segregated in certain industries and under indenture to go home when the war is over. Over that suggestion there is an obvious division of opinion in the Cabinet and, of course, united opposition by organized labour. Something, it is agreed, will have to be done.

Cabinet Reorganization.

Reorganization to some extent of the Cabinet may be anticipated during the fall. If the Liberal Unionists are to have the promised fifty-fifty divvy, they have two or three portfolios coming to them, and as the table is now full, it would be necessary that two or three get up and move out to make room for the newcomers. In any shift that takes place the Ministers affected will necessarily be those who came in from the Borden Cabinet, and there has always been more or less unity of speculation as who would be elected to go. The question of another French Minister in the Cabinet will also come up. Mr. Blondin now qualifies as a senator, but the Commons lacks any Minister of the French language or any member of that nationality supporting the Government.

Railway Situation.

The railway situation provides another problem to be tackled. Negotiations in London this summer, looking to the acquisition of the Grand Trunk, appear to have been quite abortive and things remain pretty much as they were. The Government would acquire the road as the crux of the nationalization scheme, while the company, objecting to sell out save for cash and at its own price, seeks either relief from its obligations to the Grand Trunk Pacific or assistance in meeting them.

Military Service Act.

The published results of the Military Service Act suggest a further tightening up in its enforcement, some 8,000 men secured in Quebec, being admittedly below the mark. The total of 100,000, however, is within hailing distance, but, even when it is reached, the interpretation now placed on the act that this limit refers to men actually sent overseas, changes the situation somewhat. Seemingly it won't be necessary either to have Parliament remove the limit or to do it by process of Order-in-Council, so long as not more than one hundred thousand men are actually sent across as reinforcements.

HENRI ST. YVES LOST ARM IN AIR COMBAT

Will Be Remembered As French Long-Distance Runner.

MONTREAL, Aug. 24.—Henri St. Yves, the French professional Marathon runner, who won the big race at the New York Polo Grounds and other contests eight years ago and raced on the M.A.A.A. grounds here, has lost an arm. Word comes from France that in a recent air combat St. Yves' right arm was riddled by machine gun fire and the member had to be amputated. The surgeons had an easy job, for there wasn't much to remove. In spite of his loss St. Yves is about again, says our informant, with a cheerful air.

St. Yves always was a happy go lucky fellow and the lucky possessor of a splendid physique and constitution. He was versatile in sport, for in addition to being one of the world's greatest distance runners he was a remarkable motorcycle rider, a fine follower of pace and a speedy bicycle racer. He also was a first class gas engine mechanic. When the war came he became a motor cycle courier and then he went into the aviation service. St. Yves' friends here will be sorry to hear of his loss, but glad to learn that he still is alive.

CHAULNES OCCUPIED BY THE FRENCH

THE ALLIES VICTORIOUS ADVANCE CONTINUES

THIRTY VILLAGES TAKEN IN NEW FRENCH DRIVE

Following Brilliant Capture of Roye by General Debeney's Army French Forces Are Continuing Their Progress Towards the Somme.

A SPLENDID VICTORY

PARIS, Aug. 28.— (Bulletin, 11.05 a.m.)—French troops captured Chaulnes, the great German defensive point on the Picardy front, last night, it was officially announced to-day.

Chaulnes has been occupied by French troops.

Progress toward the Somme was continued this morning by the French, the official statement says.

Since yesterday thirty villages have been taken by them.

The official statement says::

During the night the French maintained contact with the rear guards of the enemy and have continued their advance.

North and south of the Avre we have occupied Chaulnes, Omiecourt, Dalatre, Roiglise and Verpillieres.

Further south we have penetrated into the wood of Crapeaumesnil and have taken Dives.

This morning we have continued our advance toward the Somme and north of the Avre have reached the general line of Licourt, Botte and Mesnil-Le-Petit (just west of the Somme river) and Nesle.

Enemy in Full Retreat.

An earlier despatch from Webb Miller, United Press correspondent with the French forces, says:

PARIS, Aug. 28.— The French are fighting their way forward this morning on the whole Chaines-Noyon front, capturing rear guards. French troops last night were on the edges of Chaulnes (since captured) which is on the verge of falling. They are several miles past Roye, advancing down the road toward Noyon, and already have passed Roygliz (two miles south-east of Roye).

They are also passing along the roads toward the gerat railway centre of Nesle (six miles north-east of Roye) and Ercheu (six miles east of Roye) and are less than four miles from Nesle.

The Germans are in full retreat, but are fighting. Indications are they will try to turn at Nesle to cover the passage across the Somme. Hundreds of additional prisoners are being taken almost hourly.

VOLUNTARY CAMPAIGN IN IRELAND PROMISING

(Canadian Press Despatch from Reuter's Limited)

LONDON, England, August 28.—Prospects of Irish voluntary campaign is improving daily. The new machinery established under the direction of the Irish recruiting council promises to move smoothly and with good effect. There is reason to believe that as a result of the first fortnightly voluntary effort under the new regime the response will be more than equal to that made during the three months preceding the initiation of the scheme. The recruiting medium have had a good effect in Dublin and Belfast. The Waterford Correspondent of Reuter's Limited says "Recruiting is proceeding encouragingly from prominent local Sinn Feiner's have been enrolled.

HAIG'S MEN GAIN MORE GROUND NORTH AND SOUTH OF SOMME

South of the Scarpe Where Canadians are Fighting the British Positions Have Been Extended East of the Old Hindenburg Line—Greater Part of Trones Wood is Captured by British From the Prussian Guards—Another Advance in Flanders.

Canadian Press:

LONDON, Aug. 28.—British forces fighting east of Arras have reached the outskirts of Haucourt, Remy and Doiry Notre Dame, north of the Arras-Cambrai road.

The British line in the Flanders battle area has been advanced on a front of four miles astride the Neuf Berquin-Estaires road.

South of the Somme the British have taken Foucaucourt.

North of the Somme they have attacked and taken a great part of the Trones Wood. The text of the statement follows:

Our troops took Faucucourt, north of the Somme yesterday. The town has been strongly held by the enemy with machine guns.

North of the Somme we attacked and captured the greater part of Trones Wood, taking a number of prisoners from the Prussian Guard.

South of the Scarpe troops of the first army have improved their positions astride the Arras-Cambrai road and have reached the outskirts of Haucourt, Remy and Doiry Notre Dame.

North of the Scarpe strong counter attacks were launched yesterday afternoon along the line of the Arras-Douai railway, forcing our troops back a few hundred yards to the old German trenches on Greenland Hill, where the enemy attacks broke under our fire.

British troops carried out successful local operations yesterday astride the Neuf Berquin-Estaires road, advancing over the line on a front of about four miles and taking a number of prisoners.

Americans And Huns In Hot Scraps

By Fred. S. Ferguson—United Press.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, Aug. 27 (Night). — Americans and Germans engaged in suprise infantry fighting and artillery battles throughout to-day from the region of Bazoches to the Aisne, east of Fismes—a front of about five miles. Both Americans and Germans attacked and counter-attacked repeatedly.

A heavy fire poured into the Boche reinforcements, which were broken up with heavy fire before they reached the main line.

Meanwhile in the fighting area the Americans rushed and smashed several machine gun nests. Boche and Allied airplanes waged a vigorous fight immediately overhead, as the enemy airmen sought to elude their aerial opponents and attack the American infantry with machine guns from a low altitude.

At Fismette, the Boches tried to rush the Americans with a considerable force, supported on the flanks by flammen-workers. The flame throwers tried to work their way into the town, spraying liquid fire toward them, but with little success.

FIERCE FIGHT FOR CAPTURE OF CHERISY

BRITISH HEADQUARTERS, Aug. 28.—Cherisy was entered amidst fierce fighting. Some of the ground gained by the British has been in German hands since September, 1914.

The Semi-ready standard of excellence assures absolute service to the wearer. Old customers need not be urged to select a new fall style — they will do so anyway. But I urgently suggest that those who are not familiar with Semi-ready tailored suits—pay my shop a visit this season —secure a good suit and be well clothed. "Come to me."

THE MEXICAN FRONT QUIET

Special to the Examiner:

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28.—Additional Mexican troops are reported going into Nogales and American cavalry and machine guns have been ordered up to prepare for any repetition of last night's outbreak on the border, War Department reports showed to-day.

The Mexican casualties could not be ascertained, but indications were that close to 100 were dead and may be twice that number wounded.

In the meantime General Cabrel arrived from Douglas with American reinforcements. Other American troops arrived from Fort Hauchuaca. Mexican Federal troops were en route from the interior of Mexico to assist in restoring order.

During the fight Col. Herman, commanding the troops at Douglas, was severely wounded in the side. He went to the rear for first aid, returned to the field, and in a few moments directed his troops in the occupation of Nogales.

With the city occupied, the Mexicans offered to declare a truce under which hostilities were ended. This morning quiet reigned.

CANADIANS SMASH HINDENBURG LINE

ENEMY'S COUNTER ATTACKS GAIN FOE NOTHING

WITH BRITISH FORCES IN FRANCE, Aug. 28.—While intermittent fighting continues virtually everywhere along the British front, the battle begin to show signs of slowing up. Germans have delivered many counter attacks along the line, but none of them really have gained anything. In virtually every case the counter attacks have finally had disastrous results for the Germans, for when the British did retire at two or three places, it was only for a brief period. Where they attacked the Germans not only lost ground which they thought they had regained, but they also suffered many casualties.

In the region of the River Scarpe the British have gained a little ground.

LEONARD CON. CO. MAY TENDER FOR HUNTER ST. RIDGE

Have Complete Plant in Peterboro and Are Prepared to Undertake the Entire Work From the Plans Up.

DEPUTATION IN TORONTO

The city's preparations for the building of the Hunter street bridge, are gradually developing. A deputation from the council spent the last two days in Toronto and its vicinity, viewing the bridges that have been built by the two engineering companies with whom the council is at present negotiating. Both firms have supporters in the council and although it is unlikely that this matter will be disposed of at the regular meeting in September, it is due for a general discussion. A report will doubtless be presented from the deputation; and it is also understood that the Leonard Construction Company will be a competitor for both the engineering and construction branches of the work, including the plans. The company has a plant in Peterboro, and it has extensive experience in the building of concrete bridges, apart from general concrete work, impressive evidence of which is afforded in the immense factory of the Quaker Oats Company.

The Leonard Construction Company have won the confidence of the people of this city by the speed and thoroughness with which they have executed the contract, the completion of which has been followed with interest.

Whatever proposals are submitted to the council, this company will likely tender for the construction contract.

ENEMY'S STAFF CONFUSED BY BRITISH TACTICS

Boche is Kept Guessing and Often Guess Wrong—Canadians Reach St. Rohart, Furthest Point East on Cambria Road Since German Invasion.

DEFENCE STIFFENING

Special to The Examiner:

(By Lowell Mellett.)

WITH THE BRITISH ARMIES IN FRANCE, Aug. 28.—(Night.) —It is easy to understand why the German Staff is confused by the kaleidoscopic events in the changing Somme fighting line which to-day's new attack north of the Scarpe make a line fifty miles long

The British method of "hit and run" with modifications—that is to say, hit and run if the running is good; if not, to sit tight or drop back and hit somewhere else—is beginning to keep the Boche guessing. He often guesses wrong, while the steady forward movement of the line as a whole continues.

Canadians Advanced.

Reports of to-day's battle include the fact that the Canadians have reached the St. Rohart sugar factory, the farthest point eastward along the Cambrai road reached since the German invasion.

The German defence is stiffening in the region of Croisilles.

Our troops got into Vaulx Vraucourt (four miles south-west of Comsilles and the same distance northeas tof Bapaume) taking 78 prisoners — in other words their fangs have been pulled and its machine guns suppressed.

De Luil Wood (two miles north-west of Combles) was captured last night with a number of prisoners, was taken and then regained. Five enemy divisions were identified opposite the Wood and machine guns were discovered all over the place.

Battalions Wiped Out.

The Germans rushed up fresh divisions by train yesterday to the defence of Cherisy (two miles north and east of Croisilles.) Two regiments were put into action against the Canadians and were almost wiped out. Elements of five German divisions were found in Trones Wood (two miles west of Combles), while elements of 16 battalions were found on a three mile front elsewhere.

Bandsmen labourers and other miscellaneous troops were found in the front line.

It is rumoured that orders were found on members of the 87th division directing them to practice rear guard action.

I also heard a story that Germans were concertedly waving handkerchiefs and surrendering in the vicinity of St. Leger (a mile and a half south-west of Croisilles.

The Australians are reported to have peacefully penetrated a little nameless wood south of the Somme. Walshorn Farm near Ginchy (a mile and a half north-west of Combles, was taken and the capture of Maricourt (fou rmiles south-west of Combles) was easy.

Foucucourt (four miles north of Chaulnes) has not yet been taken, although it is reported to have been passed on both sides. (It is now officially reported captured.) Stories of great stores of German munitions captured at Miramont (on the Ancre) be-

General Currie's Men, Overcoming All Resistance of Enemy in His Old Front Line Positions, Capture Cherisy, Vis-en-Artois and Bois-du-Sart, Taking Ground Held by the Huns Since 1914.

OVER 2,000 PRISONERS

WITH THE BRITISH FORCES IN FRANCE, Aug. 28. — The Canadian troops in their advance astride the Scarpe yesterday captured more than 2,000 Germans.

LONDON, Aug. 27.—Canadian troops made notable advances south of the Scarpe River to-day, according to Field Marshal Haig's report, occupying Cherisy, Vis-en-Artois and the Bois du Sart, and taking many prisoners. Scottish battalions also made excellent progress.

The statement reads:

"This morning our troops, operating astride the Scarpe, again attacked. Overcoming the resistance of the enemy in his old front line defences held prior to his offensive of March 21, the Canadians penetrated deeply into the German positions between the Sensee and Scarpe rivers, and captured Cherisy, Vis-en-Artois and Bois du Sart, with many prisoners.

"On the right of the Canadians, Scottisch troops crossed the Sensee and seized Fontaine-les-Croisilles, establishing themselves on the slopes of the spur south of the village, and taking several hundred prisoners.

British Make Big Gains.

"North of the Scarpe other Scottish battalions carried Roeux, Greenland Hill and Gavrelle, and English battalions gained possession of Arleux-en-Gohelle and the other German line south of this.

"Between Croisilles and Bapaume, and to the south, English and New Zealanders, again in heavy fighting, repulsed numbers of determined counter-attacks delivered by German divisions recently brought up to reinforce the battlefront. Heavy losses were inflicted on these divisions in their unsuccessful attacks.

"Despite their efforts to prevent our advance, our troops stormed the village of Beaugnatre, and progressed at several points between Beaugnatre and Croisilles.

"South of Bapaume also English and Welsh troops gained ground in the face of strong opposition. We reached the western outskirts of Flers and have driven the enemy from Longuevai, Delville Wood and Bernafay Wood. Counter-attacks by the Prussian Guard in this area were repulsed.

"Astride the Somme Australian, English and Scottish battalions forced the enemy back on the whole front of our attack. Our troops gained the high ground east of Maricourt.

"Fontaine-les-Cappy and the woods between there and the Somme have been taken, with some hundreds of prisoners, and Vermandovillers is in our hands."

LAST HALF HOLIDAY.

Thursday Afternoon Will End the Summer Rest Days.

Peterborough's Thursday half holidays came to a close this week. Tomorrow afternoon will be the last one observed. It has proved an unmixed blessing to the clerks of the stores and others who, after toiling for a whole week, feel that some form of relaxation is necessary, especially in the hot weather. Almost every city and town observes a half holiday once a week now, and in British Columbia it is compulsory.

If you are dependent upon glasses for good vision, then you are as good as your glasses—no better. That being the case, importance attaches to the glasses you are wearing. See that they are right. Consult Dr. Lacey, 410 George street.

GOING TO PAINT OR PAPER THIS FALL?

Your home, whether in course of construction or renovation may need some new wallpaper, painting or other decorations, this fall. Before the rush season begins is a good time to have this work done. Mr. Walter Sidon, who is managing the business of Hughston Johnston at 416 Water street, is prepared to fill contracts for all kinds of this work. THE CANADIAN AGAIN.

The news of the Canadians' sudden appearance on the front southeast of Arras, forty-five miles north of the Roye sector, where they were last heard from two weeks ago, is more surprising than the announcement of their successful drive. The Canadians have made their reputation as shock troops, and their new success is, therefore not as astonishing as the fact that they have been suddenly shifted from a point south of the Somme to the new battle ground east of Arras, and almost as far north as the southerly limit of their old position at Vimy. The trek northward of such a large body of men and equipment is a testimony to the training of the Canadians, the work of their transport, and the efforts of their staff officers.

In their newest attack the Canadians have won new honours, in the taking of Wancourt and Monchy-Le-Preux, and General Haig, in his official description of their exploit, says they "attacked with great gallantry."

THE SUGAR SITUATION.

The average citizen is having difficulty in understanding the Canada Food Board's attitude towards the sugar question. Housewives are being asked by the Board to do as much canning and preserving as possible for winter use, thereby saving a vast quantity of perishable food that would otherwise be lost. This is a simple and wise precaution, but sugar is necessary to carry out the instructions, and under the recent ruling of the Board as to the quantity of sugar to be used monthly by each individual, little chance is being given the thrifty housewife who is anxious to see the pantry shelves lined with the home made preserves that would help to reduce the cost of living and to save food that should be sent overseas. Unless the necessary sugar is forthcoming, a large quantity of perishable food will be wasted, and its place will have to be filled by other foodstuffs, causing another advance in price and a diminution of the supply available for shipment overseas.

This is the situation at present, and yet vast quantities of sugar are being used in the manufacture of candies. The individual who is restricted to a pound and a half of sugar for his own use per month can walk into any candy store and buy any quantity of candy—which is largely composed of sugar—he pleases. There does not seem to be any pressing need for the use of candy on the present scale, especially if sugar that should be available for saving food supplies is being wasted in the manufacture of what is at best a luxury. Vigorous restrictions on the use of sugar in candy-making should be inaugurated at once.

HINTS FOR MOTORISTS.

With the constant growth in the number of motor cars in use in Peterborough and with the ever-increasing danger of accidents, there is need for the form of warning published in a New Haven paper, a copy of which has been given the Examiner by a local reader. These hints to motorists were printed in the form of a display advertisement, subscribed to and supported by many manufacturers and employers of labour, and are well worth the attention of local motor car drivers.

Under the heading, 'What to Do—What Not to Do,' the bulletin points out that the cause of automobile accidents may be divided as follows: Skidding, careless driving, careless pedestrians, miscellaneous carelessness and mechanical breakage.

The following suggestions are made:

Use chains whenever streets are wet and slippery. They are the only real dependable device to prevent skidding.

Use chains on all four wheels whenever the going is very bad. Keep brakes adjusted and equalized.

Don't apply your breakes so as to lock your wheels; you car will stop much quicker if your wheels do not slide.

Come to a full stop before passing trolley cars. Come to a full stop before crossing railroad tracks.

Always give a signal when preparing to turn, stop or back up.

Always signal so that the man in back will know what you are going to do. Don't stop suddenly.

Slow down and proceed with caution at intersecting streets, blind corners, school crossings and bridges.

Careless pedestrians are the constant worry of motorists everywhere. This form of danger is more or less beyond the control of the driver of an automobile. But it behooves the motorist to play safe—don't guess what the other fellow is going to do, because he won't do it.

Never try to make time in traffic. George Patten.

A PACIFIST GOES OUT.

If U. S. Senator James K. Vardaman, who has just been defeated for re-election in Mississippi, wasn't all the kinds of pacifist there are, the New York Times has overlooked the fact. From its description of him, it would seem that he was fairly well qualified for his profession. It pictures him thus:

As the duper and idol of the "hillbillies," the astute player on ignorance, passion and "poor white" prejudice, the "White Chief," the upholder of the "White South," the man who went to the Senate with his tongue in his cheek to get the Fourteenth and Fifteenth Amendments repealed; as a shrewd old Indian draped in a "Spanish cloak" or poncho; as the hero who was once drawn in triumph and a "chariot" through the streets of Meridian by eighty yoke of white oxen, James K. Vardaman was an amusing figure in political vaudeville-melodrama. When the war broke out he became a nuisance and a scandal.

Outside of that, perhaps, he was all right, except that he "voted against the armed Ship bill, the declaration of war, conscription," and "opposed practically every war measure."

Senator Vardaman is the man who said that the United States stabbed Germany in the back, while France and England held her down;" that "American youths are to be fed to the Moloch of war so the European people who prefer a King should be forced at American dictation, to take a Republican or Democratic President as their ruler;" that the cause of the war was the interference on the part of Germany with commerce between New York and London;" that the war was "purely a matter of pecuniary profit."

Senator Vardaman will be succeeded in the United States Congress after March 3rd next by an American.—London Advertiser.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The Canadians score again.

Monchy-Le-Preux and Wancourt are new names to be remembered in Canadian war annals.

Sailors' week is near at hand. Our debt to the navy can never be fully paid, but let Peterborough's response be an indication of the city's gratitude.

The Toronto Exhibition threatens to crowd the war off the front page of the Queen City's newspapers.

The Canadian casualty lists make sorrowful reading, but it must be remembered that General Currie's men have taken nearly as many German prisoners as the total Canadians killed, wounded and missing.

The enemy's counter attacks are gaining him nothing but a longer casualty list.

Two of the leading characters in the song play "MY IRISH CINDERELLA" which opens "The Grand" on Saturday next, with Matinee at 2.30.

There is something unique and quaint about "My Irish Cinderella" which gives the play of that name a certain distinction. Peggy McNeil is a little Irish girl, whose parents died when she was quite small, and when the play opens we find her in the poor house.

She is taken to London as the supposed granddaughter of Lord Lonsdale, and while here she meets Clifford Morgan, a young American aviator, in the service of the Allies. She falls in love with him at sight, but it would be robbing one of half the pleasure if the whole story were told here. There is enough comedy in the piece to afford a hearty laugh now and then, and in fact there is nothing missing that could make the show more effective than it is.

Miss Daisy Carleton in the role of Peggy presents a character drawing that is perfect. She is a remarkably clever dancer and during the action of the play has several real song hits.

Steel, Wood and an Embargo

Business men know something of the troubles that beset the path of those who need steel; but not all of them know that the situation is not getting easier.

The United States Government, for instance, has embargoed the use of steel for pulleys except upon war orders.

But an interesting development has come out of this embargo.

Men who previously were quite honest in their convictions regarding the great efficiency of a metal pulley have discovered that a Dodge Wood-Split Pulley will not only do all that a metal pulley ever did, but it will do it better and for a less cost.

They have discovered that the surface of a Dodge Wood-Split Pulley provides greater adhesion, hence there is less belt slippage, and a corresponding saving of power. They have found the Dodge Wood-Split Pulley lighter and better balanced; consequently, there is less weight friction. They have proved that the Dodge Wood-Split Pulley may be run at higher speeds than metal pulleys without danger of bursting.

And, most interesting of all, they have learned that they can get Dodge Wood-Split Pulleys when they order them. We carry large stocks at our factory and branches, and ship all sizes from 4-inch diameters up to 6-feet diameters on the day orders are received.

LABOR DAY BALL GAME PROPOSED BY THE LABOUR COUNCIL

The Trades and Labour Council appointed a committee last night to consider the advisability or arranging a baseball match here on Labor Day. The committee is composed of Messrs. Fred Brown, A. L. Bolwell, M. L. Campbell, J. A. Sharpe and A. Duggan. There was some suggestion that a parade be held from the Labour Hall to the Riverside Park, but the majority of the delegates decided that the proposal had been put forward too late.

Mr. Solomon met the committee last night and will work with them in trying to bring a team here for the holiday. An early announcement will be made. If the plans materialize, soldiers in uniform and veterans wearing their buttons will be admitted to the grounds free.

A Sunday Crowd

By CANADIAN OVERSEAS

The sun is bright and all nature fresh and happy. The day invites everyone to come out of doors.

It is Sunday, the hour before lunch, the hour of the church parade, and the people are commencing to stream into the park. Many are on their way from church, taking a few turns before going home. Others are making their first appearance, possibly on their way to lunch somewhere. Many come to watch the "church parade," others to be part of it.

The dominant not running through this throng is of cheer—but mayhap in this vast crowd there are some alien spirits; some who are without friends, still they enjoy it. They are alone in a crowd—it has its interests, but also its limitations—and let us hope they have become philosophers in this life, able to reason into subjection all sentimentality, otherwise their path is painful.

Children with their nurse pass by. They enjoy it, not knowing why—possibly just because they are here, and everything has a new interest.

A young officer and his family pass. Their pleasure is not so free from care. Their present happiness is somewhat marred by knowing and not knowing what the morrow may bring. A loving pride is their compensation and at the moment they are happy and glad to be here.

Two more pass. Fate has bestowed on them all that the material world has to give, but their faces tell not of happiness but of unsatisfied desires. They have wealth but it does not bring them what they expected; in fact they scarcely know what they want or why they walk in the park on Sunday morning. They just do it. And so their life runs on from day to day—they are mentally fossilized, finding no real happiness where they expect it and ignorant of the means of obtaining it.

There is a group of officers. They are not English, but wear the French and Italian uniforms. They, too, seem to feel that this city and its park life is theirs.

The Canadians, Australians, New Zealanders and Americans mix with the throng. Theirs is more the enjoyment of a new experience and a new people, a critical study, a companion, but they also feel the fascination of the English custom.

A family wanders by. They are in no hurry, neither are they talking—a workman and his family in the church parade, feeling and making it their own.

They are content and happy with their lot, and the part they play. Their knowledge and experience are limitence, but their pride in being English is all sufficient.

Wealth and Education have been denied them but they are a part of a great Empire of which England is the centre, and which is to them the only place upon which the gods look kindly.

Many, many thus pass along, in groups and singly. They are here to see and to be seen, and thus in their way they are satisfied.

An elderly well dressed lady comes slowly along leading two pet dogs. She has always walked in the church parade. Her life is all in the past. She has lived and now lives on its memories, compares the present, to its detriment, with the good old days. However, she is content and happy, with her dogs and her memories, content to keep up the old customs, and to live apart in an age which she regrets, for us, is no more.

Peterboro Has $15,000 Letter of Credit For Coal In Scranton

In Toronto yesterday Mayor Duncan searched in vain for coal officials, jobbers, independents, in fact any person connected with the trade, who might be useful to Peterborough. But they were all across the line, distributed between the Pennsylvania and Ohio mines.

The Mayor refuses to admit the thin edge of the wedge of pessimism into his hopes of obtaining sufficient supplies for this city. A letter of credit was recently deposited in a Scranton bank to be used by an agent of the city upon the first opportunity of securing coal. There are yet two months before the weather becomes chilly for healthy, red-blooded citizens, who in any event are determined not to touch the coal bin until December 1st.

"I'd like to get enough coal to give every home at least two tons to begin the winter with," he said this morning. "It would create a feeling of security for the first part of the winter, and the ordinary supplies coming later would help supply their remaining needs."

If the Mayor's expectations are fulfilled there will be sufficient coal for every house for the first part, at least, of the cold season. Three thousand tons have been ordered, and the city's fuel committee are doing their best to get that quantity.

MUCH INTEREST IN SATURDAY'S BIG GAME

The big game of the season in baseball circles is the Ontario League game at Riverside Park on Saturday between Oshawa and Manager J. J. Solomon's Riversides, champions of the Peterborough Twilight League. Riversides are in the pink of condition, and at the top of their form, after a successful season's campaign.

The double umpire system will be in vogue, with Umpire Alex. Kay working on the bases here and behind the bat in the return game. Oshawa are said to have a fast, well-balanced team and the game promises to be an old-time battle.

C.G.E. BOARD OF CONCILIATION FAVOURS INCREASE FOR EMPLOYEES

Award Was Made Public in Ottawa Yesterday—Agreement Between Company and Men Will Remain in Force for One Year From June 1st, 1918.

FIXES NINE HOUR DAY

BOARD OF CONCILIATION'S AWARD IN C.G.E. APPEAL

Minimum Wages—Toolmakers, 60c.; machinists, 55c.; specialists, 45c. per hour.

Classification is fixed for employees in tool room and machine shop.

Girl electrical workers get 20 per cent increase; some asked for only 15 per cent..

Electrical workers and punch press men get increases ranging from 10 to 20 per cent.

Apprentices limited to one for the shop and one for every five machinists.

Grievance committee for each dept. Overtime is defined.

Special to The Examiner:

OTTAWA, Ont., Aug. 28. — The Board of Conciliation and Investigation which inquired into the dispute between the Canadian General Electric Company at Peterborough and its employees, has filed a report with the Department of Labour. Judge Colin G. Snider, of Hamilton, and Fred Bancroft, of Toronto, the latter representing the men, agree upon the award, and J. C. Merrick, of Toronto, for the company, agrees except on three points. He opposes any increase in wages to the power house operator, does not agree with the limitation of apprentices to one for the shop and one for every five machinists and opposes the dating back of the award to June first, which means the increases in wages back to June first.

The Board recommends that the award continue in operation for a year from June 1, 1918. The rates of wages awarded by the Board are the minimum rates which were asked for by the representatives of the employees. The rate for tool makers is 60 cents per hour. Machinists 55 cents per hour, and specialists 45 cents per hour. Some of the machinists and tool makers are receiving as high as 75 cents per hour, many increases having been given since the men made their original demands in May.

Reduction is to take place for anyone getting more than minimum rates The men in machine shop and the tool making department have been classified, which was one of the main questions before the Board.

Girls Get 20 Per Cent. Increase.

Some of the employees in the C.G. E. are girls. They ask for 20 per cent. increase in wages, and the Board awarded them the 20 per cent. asked. They work on braiding machines, making tape for insulation, and assemble meters and do much of the light insulation work. Some of them work in the punch press department on automatic machinery, and while 15 per cent. was asked for those in the punch press department the Board gave them 20 per cent. increase.

Electrical Workers' Increases.

The electrical workers receive in the agregate slightly better wages than asked for in the schedule presented. Those receiving less than 20 cents per hour receive 20 per cent. increase, those receiving 20 and not over 25c(15 per cent. increase, over 35 cents per haur, 10 per cent. increase.

In the punch press department those receiving less than 20 cents get a 20 per cent. increase, between 20 and 30 cents, 15 per cent. increase, and over that, 12 per cent. increase.

Ratio For Overtime.

In the regulations a nine-hour day is provided for, time and a half for overtime after regular hours, from 5 p.m. until 10 p.m., and then double time. Saturday afternoon is to be paid at time and one-half, and after 3 p.m. on Saturday, double time. If an employee is sent for after working hours to come to work without being notified before he leaves the shop, not less than 3 hours' time is to be paid. Sundays and holidays are to be paid double time, and the apprentices are limited to one for the shop and one for every five machinists. A grievance committee from each department is arranged for to take up any grievances, and no stoppage of work is to occur until the highest representatives of both parties have failed to agree.

Ten hours is set as the length of a night shift, and after that, time and one-half is to be paid.

Power house operators receive 10 per cent. increase in wages.

Senator Jones Passes Away

Hun Socialist Speeches Are Now Censored

(Special to Examiner.)

London, August 28. — Members of the German Socialistic Society are now forced to submit copies of all speeches they intend to deliver to the military authorities.

Two speeches which were to have been delivered by Bernstein Haas recently were suppressed on the ground that they were calculated to show lack of unity in Germany during the present crisis.

Beland's Plea For Goodwill

SHERBROOKE, Que., Aug. 27.—Hon. Dr. H. S. Beland, who made three addresses at the Eastern Township's Exhibition to-day, made a fervent plea for goodwill in Canada in his discussion of the moral aspects of the war.

"This moral force, I think I am justified in saying, has not attained its full force because there has been a certain amount of misunderstanding and estrangement. Why, I cannot say. I am not here to justify or to condemn anyone. But I believe there has been too much extreme talk on the one side as well as on the other. That should cease altogether. Let all the elements of the nation bear with each other. The greatest virtue, the greatest public virtue, I say, is tolerance. What is tolerance? It is the sacrifice of one part of a man's extreme opinions for the common good. I may be just as confident that I am right and that you are wrong as you are confident you are right and I am wrong. Let each of us sacrifice a small portion of our extreme opinion and we are on common ground. We can work together in harmony, and with a single aim for the public good.

Message From Our Boys.

"I bring to the families and friends of our gallant boys a message which can be expressed in three words: courage, confidence, firmness. Our men are cheerful, our men are confident, our men are steadfast. That they are courageous needs no telling."

Fighting for Canada.

Turning then to discuss the responsibility for the war, which he unhesitatingly attributed to Germany, Dr. Beland asked his audience if it ever had entered their mind that Canada in entering the war was not fighting a just cause to allow at once such an idea to evaporate. If they had for a moment thought we were not fighting for Canada they were equally mistaken. Canada, he said, is not fighting for England, for France, or for Italy, but she is fighting for Canada. If at any time there had been any doubt under that head it should have been removed the moment the great democracy of the United States Republic decided to enter the conflict. Their purpose, and our purpose, was to bring about victory for the great principles of liberty, freedom, right, justice and tolerance in the world.

Colossus Begins to Crack.

Dr. Beland said he was in a position to know from the attitude of the German officers at the time the peace treaty was signed with Russia that it would then be a matter of only three months for Germany to win the war on the Western front. More than that time had now passed, and there were evidences that the great Hun colossus was beginning to crack.

He renewed his appeal for unison of effort among the people to bring about the desired victory and the right peace, to be followed, he hoped, by the establishment of a League of Nations, under which organization a repetition of war with all its terrors would not be possible.

Get Tickets Early For Lyceum Course During the Winter

Chautauqua week has come and gone, and many of us are promising ourselves to be better prepared next year, first, by buying a season ticket, and buying it early, at the reduced price, and, secondly, by arranging our affairs so as to be free to enjoy it all.

In order that the Chautauqua spirit may be kept up during the winter, a Winter Lyceum Course under the same Coit-Alber service at the Dominion Chautauqua just closed, has been arranged by the Local Council of Women.

Four splendid attractions are booked to appear at intervals of one month or so, during the winter. The course will open in October, or early in November, with a lecture by Mr. Irvin S. Cobb, followed by a musical evening by Miss Bertha Farner and her splendid company. Then will come John Kendrick Bangs in one of his famous lectures, and later another musical evening by the Welsh quartette.

The season tickets will be reasonably priced at $3.00, and as only a limited number will be sold at that price, it will be wise to secure them early.

An organized campaign for the sale of tickets will be begun after the Executive meeting of the L. C. W. early in September, but in the meantime, anyone wishing to be absolutely sure of tickets at the lowest price can sign subscription lists at McDermid & Jury's, Mr. J. Lynch's Drug Store, or Mr. Payne's Drug Store.

Already many names have been voluntarily handed in to members of the Executive.

Enemy's Staff Confused

ing turned against the German lines are now also true of British munitions which were captured by the Boches last spring. These were recovered at Pozieres. The Germans are still endeavouring to stiffen the defence about Bapaume, where the situation is continually growing worse.

Summed up, it is apparent that the Germans are fighting harder, although it still seems that they are only fighting for time.

RETREAT PRECIPITATE

PARIS (1:30 p.m.)—(By the Associated Press.)—The German retreat on the Somme battle front has become precipitate. The French first and third armies are at no point losing contact with the enemy. The French are inflicting heavy losses on the retreating Germans.

Gompers in London

President of American Federation of Labour on War Mission.

LONDON, Aug. 28.—Samuel Gompers, President of the American Federation of Labour, arrived in London to-day. It was announced days ago in New York that Gompers was going to Europe in an effort to unify European Labour and Socialistic elements behind President Wilson's war aims.

Mr. M. L. Campbell Also Resigns From Fuel Commission

With the resignation of Mr. Malcolm L. Campbell the city's Fuel Commission is wiped out. Mr. W. H. Bradburn and Mr. T. H. G. Denne had declined the responsibility shortly after their appointment. These resignations leave the office of commissioner vacant at the very time when the fuel shortage seems to be approaching a crisis, and at the next meeting of the council it will doubtless be one of the first acts to appoint one or more commissioners who will accept the office. To make the appointment attractive it is felt that the official should be paid, and that his duties should be minutely specified and perhaps amplified beyond the functions which limited the service of Ald. Edgar.

Mr. Campbell was selected by the Council because of his membership in the Trades and Labour Council, but the latter body had deputed to him the work of attending the City Council meetings, and objected to the fact that Labour had not been accorded the privilege of making its own appointment to the Fuel Commission.

In brief the Labour Council virtually took the position that Mr. Campbell had been appointed as a private citizen and that he was not their authorized representative on the Fuel Commission. Later his approval of Ald. Edgar's work did not favorably impress the Labor men, who formed the opinion that his ardor had cooled too suddenly and sweepingly.

At the next meeting of the Labour Council on Wednesday, September 4th, the fuel question will probably be brought up and a warm discussion may be expected.

CAVALRY IS HARRASING THE RETREATING FOE

PUBLIC MEETING TO DISCUSS THE COST OF MILK PRODUCTION

The public generally should be vitally interested in the meeting that is to be held in the Public Library on Tuesday, September 10th, to discuss the milk production question. The meeting is being held under the auspices of the Peterborough Branch of the United Farmers of Ontario, and the public is cordially invited. The following circular letter sets forth the objects of the meeting:

To the Milk Producers of the County of Peterborough.

It was suggested at one of the regular meetings of our Club (Peterborough Branch U.F.O. No. 519) that we call a Public Meeting for the purpose of discussing the question of the Production of Milk, and a Special Committee was appointed for the purpose of arranging this meeting.

It was felt on the one hand that those producing milk were doing so at a loss (whether they realized it or not), and on the other hand the Consumer is of the opinion that he is being held up by the Milk Producers.

In order that the facts of the case may be put forth and the Producer and Consumer may have an opportunity of publicly expressing themselves and coming to an amicable understanding of the matter it was thought better to arrange a meeting so that the matter might be publicly discussed.

It is acknowledged that farmers are the backbone of the Country, and if the backbone is not in a healthy and prosperous condition then the whole Country will be in the same condition.

We see every class of labour and industry is organizing, and if farmers do not organize for the purpose of looking after their own interests they will soon find that they will have to bear the lion's share of the burden that will have to be borne for many years to come.

The war has affected the Milk Producing Industry the same as it has affected other industries. The price of feed and labour have gone up out of all bounds, but the price of milk has not gone up in the same proportion.

Farmers should be able to live and be able to afford the same comforts as those engaged in the best of other industries, as it is the foundation industry of this Country, but how many dairy farmers are able to do so under present conditions?

The Government has gone to great expense in appointing a Commission to investigate the cost of producing milk and they have found from the evidence obtained that the mere cost (nothing added for any profit) of producing milk is much higher than farmers are receiving for their milk at the present time.

It is to discuss these matters that a Public Meeting has been called to be held in the Lecture Room of the Public Library, on Tuesday, September 10th, at eight o'clock (new time.)

Prominent speakers from a distance have signified their willingness to be present, notably Mr. Stonehouse, President of the Milk Producers' Association of Toronto, who is perhaps the best authority in Canada on the cost of Milk Production. It is also expected that Mr. Burnaby, President of the "United Farmers of Ontario," and others who can speak authoritatively, will be present and speak. Make a point of being present.

JOSEPH O'REILLY,
Chairman of Committee.
MARK BURNHAM,
Secretary.

FAMOUS AVIATRIX MAY GIVE FLIGHTS AT THE PETERBORO EXHIBITION

Mr. H. M. Eccles, manager for Kathrine Stinson, the world famous aviatrix, is in the city today registered at the Empress completing arrangements to bring Miss Stinson to Peterboro to make flights at the Industrial Exhibition. From Pacific to Atlantic Miss Stinson's name is on the lips of all interested in aviation by reason of the wonderful records she has made. Not only is she the champion aviatrix of the world but she also holds the world's record for driving a car, having driven her Fiat automobile at the rate of one minute and fifteen seconds a mile at the Edmonton Fair.

Flew at 12 Years

Born in San Antonio, Texas, in 1899 she had always been intensely interested in sport and mechanism and following up her love of the dangerous and exciting, she made her first flight at 12 years of age, pursuing her hobby at 18, she had gained such perfection that she left the aviation school she, her sister and brother had founded in Texas and offered her services to the British Government for war purposes. She however was refused as women have not yet been recognized by either the British or United States Government for active service. She has beaten Miss Ruth Law's record.

First Mail Service.

Miss Stinson holds the distinction of being the first to institute aerial mail service when she, flew from Calgary to Edmonton with the Government mail over a distance of 200 miles in 2 hours.

Toured the West.

She has completed a successful tour of the West where she has recieved considerable notoriety for her wonderful achievements in the air and is at present in Sherbrooke. When making her flights which she does alone in a Curtis military machine soaring to eight and ten thousand feet she wears civies and has not yet adopted a uniform.

Mr. Eccles expects to tour South America after completing the Canadian tour.

LETTER CARRIERS HELD MEETING LAST NIGHT

The Letter Carriers held their regular meeting last night, but had no special announcement. It is understood that a representative was selected to attend the convention of the Federated Letter Carriers of Canada in Hamilton next week. Many of the local unions have instructed their representatives to vote for a general strike at this convention, and certainly the government's recent advances will be fully discussed. At the same time there is the prospect that the men will renew their demands for higher wages with a general strike as a possibility.

OBITUARY

MRS. JOHN DUFF.

At the residence of her son-in-law, Mr. R. Butterill, 286 Wright avenue, Toronto, Mary Becket, beloved wife of John Duff, passed peacefully away early Friday morning, Aug. 23rd, after a few weeks illness.

Mrs. Duff was 74 years of age and was born in the township of Otonabee; her father, the late James Becket, being one of the first settlers in that township. In 1868 she married, and later moved to Indian River, where Mr. Duff was general merchant, grain buyer and postmaster for about twenty-five years. Mrs. Duff was very highly esteemed in and around Indian River, where her hospitality was unbounded. Mr. and Mrs. Duff had a family of four children, only one surviving, Mrs. R. Butterill, Toronto. She leaves to mourn her loss, besides her husband and daughter, her brother Rev. John Becket, Toronto, and sister, Mrs. Walker, Indian River. Had Mrs. Duff lived till January next they would have celebrated their golden wedding.

The funeral service was conducted at the house by the Rev. Mr. Cochrane, Toronto, and at the grave, Westwood cemetery, by the Rev. W. Hardy Andrews, Toronto. Mrs. Duff will be greatly missed by her family and friends, as she had a very cheerful disposition and a kind word for all she came in contact with. Her sentiments, which she expressed just before she passed away, are to be found in the good old hymn:

"I would leave this world without a tear,
Save for the friends I hold so dear."

Americans in Fight in Picardy

PARIS, Aug. 28 (4.50 p.m.). — American troops are reported to be participating in the great Picardy battle. General Mangin's army, with Americans co-operating, is attacking north-west of Soissons, between that city and Chavigny (three miles northward).

Dr. Amys, the Medical Health Officer, will then inspect the bake shop and grant a license or not, as he sees fit.

CHANGES IN SCHOOL STAFFS ARE REPORTED

There are rumours current that some important changes will be made in the personnel of the various Public schools. As to what extent or which teachers are involved, is not definitely known, as no official statement has been made. The next meeting of the Board of Education will be held early in September, when the atmosphere will be cleared up. Peterborough is now paying as high salaries to teachers as Toronto and other large centres.

FOE FALL BACK IN HASTE TO THE SOMME

Enormous Booty is Being Taken By the Victorious French Troops

Special to the Examiner:

(By John De Gandt).

PARIS, Aug. 28. (4.40 p.m.).—The German line is cracking along the whole frontier, from Lassigny to the north of Arras. The enemy is falling back hastily upon the Somme. The Allies are pursuing them so closely, it is doubtful if they can resuscitate the defence in these positions. Allied aeroplanes and artillery are bombing the Somme bridge, over which the Germans must cross to the east bank. The Allied infantry at some points is only two kilometres (a mile and a quarter) from the Somme. They have passed eight kilometres (five miles) east of Chaulnes. The capture of Dives (two miles east of Lassigny) shows the extension of the battle southward. French cavalry is now operating in the region of Nesle. The fiercest fighting is going on to the southward, where the French have thrown the enemy back to the Noyon-Nesle Road and the Canal. Enormous booty is being taken. One army corps has captured eighty additional guns.

WILL STICK TO HIS "PANTS."

(Hillsboro, Ohio, News-Herald.)

Some of our friends who are sticklers on always doing the proper thing criticize us for using the word "pants." They say it is "common," but then we do not know anything more common among the men than pants. So we have decided if it isn't good form it should be. And trousers don't describe what we wear half as well as pants.

NEW FUR STORE OPENS SATURDAY

Simmons Firm Begins Operations In Arcade Store.

One of the most important additions to Peterboro's retail business houses, is the Simmons Retail Fur Store, which opens on Saturday morning in the north store of the old market arcade.

Mr. Simmons, the manager, has arranged for a splendid showing of most exclusive styles, and on Saturday the public may view a $40,000 stock of coats and furs in every style and every trimming. The company has specialized in Hudson seal coats with such splendid collars and cuffs, as civet cat, Alaska sable, fox and coon; also in muskrat coats for the wholesale trade. The most wonderful collection of fur stoles will also be on exhibition. Amongst these are a silver fox stole, the first to be placed on the market in Peterboro, some coon and fox stoles which will be a surprise to the fur lover. To say, in fact, the exhibit covers every known fur of the high class grades, and every known up-to-date fashion, is no exaggeration. Mr. Simmons in his frequent trips to New York had used discrimination in choosing his raw fur that results necessarily in a high class retail article.

Will Carry Millinery.

A departure from furs will also be made in a wonderful exhibit of millinery representing the models from New York, Paris, and all the big centres. In this particular department a happy choice has been made in Miss Margaret Shevlin, who will conduct the millinery end of the business. A capable staff of trained furriers will be on hand to show the visitors the points in the fur exhibit. The public is cordially invited to see the stock as the clerks are pleased to educate their visitors to the real value of the high class furs, whether a sale is made or not.

SPRING GRAINS ARE BEST IN TEN YEARS

Excellent Results Secured From Threshing, Now Well Advanced.

Farmers in Victoria County declare that spring grains have been the best crops for ten years, and, according to the latest summary of reports made by agricultural representatives to the Ontario Department of Agriculture, the general experience in the Province is much akin to that statement.

Most of the grain fields have been harvested, threshing is well advanced, and is showing excellent results. More than usual of this work has been done in the fields owing to favourable weather and in order to save labour.

The farm situation continues well in hand. Helpers now needed are fruit pickers in orchards and men for the September general clean-up. Preparation is also being made for getting in fall wheat, as the ground has hitherto been too dry.

Corn is advancing in most localities, despite the drouth. Some early varieties are in the shock in Essex. Most ensilage corn is two weeks ahead of last year, thanks to the hot month.

Onions by Carload.

Clover and other grasses have been greatly helped by the recent rains, which were needed, and have also helped the potato and root fields materially. Reports vary greatly as to prospects for clover and alfalfa seed.

Onions, much earlier than usual, are being shipped by the carload from Essex. Some Warren tobacco has been harvested there. The leaf is small, because of the dry, hot August.

Live stock lack pasture, but are otherwise in good condition. Finished cattle are bringing as high as 14 cents per pound. Hogs remain at $19 to $19.50 per cwt. Young pigs are in demand, weanlings fetching $12 a pair.

Farmers of Essex, a leading fall wheat country, say they are content to put in only spring wheat if fall conditions are unfavourable, but the bonus of five cents a bushel on Ontario winter wheat by the Grain Commissioners may increase the acreage. There now appears to be plenty of seed.

INSURANCE COMPANIES SHOW GAIN IN NEW YORK BUSINESS.

Albany, N. Y. — An increase in the business of the thirty-eight life insurance companies authorized in New York State in 1917, over the previous year, was shown in a State Insurance Department report made public to-night. Admitted assets of the companies showed an increase of $32,975,960, and the number of "ordinary" policies written were 120,850 more than in 1916.

Canadian Casualties Light In the Sector East of Arras

Neuville-Vitassie Taken With Practically No Loss—Enemy is Dispirited and Unable to Stop Canadian Attacks.

NON-COMBATANT SERVICES GOOD

WITH THE CANADIAN FORCES, Aug. 27, — (By J. F. B. Livesay, Canadian Press Correspondent.)—Our casualties during the day of the battle of Arras were light, being less than the total number of our prisoners. This was specially so on our right, where the chief obstacle was overcome by a turning movement, Neuville Vitasse thus falling into our hands with practically no loss. On our left the valley of the Scarpe and the formidable position of Monchy-le-Preux took a heavier toll. Casualties on the opening day were light precisely because the whole was a complete surprise. Captured German documents indicate that an attack in this sector might be anticipated and then follow the usual warnings to commanders for vigilance and tenacity.

But the enemy has lost his keenness by successive blows. His intelligence service for the moment, at least seems to have broken down. It is likewise impossible to animate tired troops and thinned ranks with the spirit of die in the last ditch. On the other hand, every veteran of the Canadian force is possessed with the idea of its invincibility and glows with pride when he sees the beloved force is honoured by being employed as picked shock troops and thus, as he goes over the top, he is certain beforehand of success because he knows that the enemy cannot any longer put into the field units capable of resisting him.

Victory to Victory.

He pities even the stripling prisoners, untimely drawn from their gymnasiums. With sure feet he goes from victory to victory. All this makes for light casualties. Thereafter the enemy's resistance stiffens. He gathers his reserves and concentrates his artillery, though to do so he must expose himself on another part of a crumbling front.

Casualties among stretcher parties evacuating the wounded from our centre and right yesterday were disproportionately heavy because the enemy was able to bring to bear a heavier fire over the captured ground from this artillery position north of the Scarpe. The Canadian Ambulance carried on with compulete disregard to its own losses. The true soldier spirit animates these alleged non-combatant services. Take the Army Service Corps. The modern army fights on petrol, which means thousands and thousands of lorries to bring up ammunition rations and all the needs of the fighting line, and to each man a driver and a spare man to carry on if the driver becomes a casualty.

Muddy Battlefield.

It is not easy getting round a muddy battlefield. The too conspicuous motor car is taboo, but the lorries are everywhere. The fare is nothing and the transfer privilege unlimited. Stealing rides on this particular lorry were several men going eagerly forward to fill gaps in the ranks. Suddenly a shell burst to the left and another to the right. The Tommies tumbled off the lorry. The driver looked behind at them trudging along in the mud.

"This here lorry is loaded with ammunition, and when the shells began to fall those blokes got off in a hurry," he explained a trifle bitterly. "Maybe that lot was married men, and if their number was up they wanted the missus should get a bit more of them than a trouser button, which is about all they'd have to show if this old hooker went up."

Here is an incident illustrating the spirit of the Canadian force. When they came into this debateable sector, instead of issuing orders for the evacuation of the civilian population, the Canadian force issued orders for the disposition of the civilian population in the territories about to be recaptured.

MANITOULIN ISLAND, Aug. 28. — Ben. Bowman of Campbell Township, has been chosen by the United Farmers of Ontario to oppose the Conservative candidate, B. H. Turner, in the Provincial election here on October 24, to fill the vacancy caused by the death of the sitting Conservative member, R. R. Gamey.

The decision was reached at one of the largest conventions ever held here, when over 250 members of the U.F.O. and many women attended. Seven candidates were nominated as follows: Messrs. Geo. Cook, Silverwater; Elmsley, Silverwater; Larman, Campbell; McCollman, Campbell; Annette, Carnarvon; Hilliard, Kagawong. Mr. Bowman was chosen after a ballot.

Three Power Plants, All Developed, Are Idle at Lakefield

Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Baetz of Kitchener, who have been spending the last week at Viamede returned home on Tuesday.

Mrs. George Nicholls and Miss Emma, who have been visiting friends for the last two weeks returned to their home at Paisley this week.

Mrs. A. McNab and Miss McNab of Peterboro, were visiting Mrs. J. M. Bygott on Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Levi Payne, Mrs. Jacob White and Mrs. Rowley went up to Mr. Payne's cottage on Tuesday.

Misses Laura and Lottie Gillespie who have been visiting Mrs. Laura McIlmoyle for the past two weeks returned to their home at Lindsay on Monday.

Miss Josie and Frieda McIlmoyle are the guests of Miss Laura and Lottie Gillespie at Lindsay.

Mrs. Elliott and Mr. Braden Elliot of Norwood, are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Thompson Braden.

Idle Power Plants.

Now that the fall season is approaching, we begin to think of our fuel supply for the winter. It is said that electric heating is much better and cheaper than either coal or wood, but here we cannot get the electric heating, which seems very strange as there is in this vicitny three power plants thoroughly developed and practically lying idle.

If these power plants were put in operation for heating purposes alone it would relieve the fuel shortage to a very large extent.

Lakefield Houses to Spare.

It was thought at one time that a street Railway between Peterboro and Lakefield would be completed and in operation by this time, as a number of our prominent men had a charter for the building and running a street railway, but nothing has been heard about the project for some time. Why not let us make an effort and see if something in that direction cannot be done. There is a scarcity of dwellings in Peterboro, while in Lakefield we have a number of houses vacant that with a street railway line might be occupied and if the line were continued to Young's Point, it would make the now popular Kawartha Lakes more attraction for tourists and also for people taking an outing on the car line. A great many other resources might be advanced but one other might be brought forward. A few years ago the Ontario Government, through the Hydro Commission was to be the extension of street railways throughout the Province and as the Hydro own the Peterboro street railway, why not ask them to extend the street railway through Lake field to Young's Point.

If the Reeves of the Municipalities interested would get together, and arrange a public meeting, inviting the Hon. Sir Adam Beck of the Hydro Commission to speak and at the meeting lay the matter prominetly before him something might be done.

THE POLITICIAN'S WAR CRY.

(N. Battleford Optimist.)

The most common and at the same time the most incoherent political yelp in the west, is the two words "Big Interests." Those who delight to use them with monotonous regularity seldom bother to give them any direct application, they merely apply the epithet to every form of political difficulty, much in the same way as they ejaculate "damn" when under provocation.

Gen. Gouraud Communicated His Plans to Men Before Battle

Memorable Retreat at Rheims—Machine Gunners Fought to the End at Rheims But Paved the Way to Great Victory on the Marne.

AN ARMY OF GENERALS

PARIS, Aug. 27.—"The Germans will attack to-mororw at dawn," said General Gouraud, in command in Champagne, to his soldiers on the evening of July 14. "We shall retreat to certain positions in our rear, where we must hold at all costs."

General Gouraud enumerated the positions, and, when at daybreak the German onslaught was launched, every soldier in Gouraud's army knew fully as well as his chief what plan of battle had been decided upon. Each soldier understood that he would give ground all along the battle front for a dept varying from four to five kilometres, and then halt, hold and fight, perhaps die, but that he must retreat no further.

This is believed to be the first time in the history of the war that the commanding general thus took his soldiers into his confidence, elevating them to his own level by sharing with them the innermost secrets of the plan of battle.

It was an army of generals that faced the German Emperor's soldiers, when they started on what to them meant a jaunt to Paris, but, through the genius of Foch and the bravery of the allied soldiers, proved to be the first step of the return journey to Berlin.

Acting under explicit orders from the high command, General Gouraud established nests of machine guns across the whole of his battle line on the hills of Champagne. Every machine gun crew had been instructed to remain at their posts and fight until swallowed up by the oncoming waves of the enemy. They did remain. Few returned. Some are languishing in German prisons, while others sleep on the slopes of the hills where they fell. Those who survived staggered back to their own lines, and General Gouraud has recommended them for the Legion of Honour.

Germans Were Checked.

Ceding ground step by step, fighting bittenly every inch of the the way, under the protection of a hail of steel poured into the oncoming German hordes by the machine gunners out in front, General Gouraud's army began its retreat about 5 o'clock in the morning of July 15. Every yard of ground, which was grudgingly ovacuated, was made uninhabitable for the enemy. Every trench, every shell hole, every depression was filled with poison gases. In that strip of land about fifteen miles long by three deep no human being could breathe or live.

In the sweltering heat and amid gases that kill even vegetation, three German divisions advanced. It is said that 40,000 Germans found graves in that part of the Champagne. The supporting German divisions hesitated in their advance, then staggered and fled, horrified by the sight of their comrades dying in terrible pain. The German offensive was broken on its very first day.

Such was the battle and the heroic defence of Gouraud's army that made possible the brilliant counter-offensive of Mangin and DeGoutte on July 18, relieved Paris and transferred the initiative from Ludendorff to Foch.

"The Girl Who Had No God"

By MARY ROBERTS RINEHART
Author of "The Man in Lower Ten," The After House," Etc.

CHAPTER V.

Boroday had used his day's freedom to warn the band and to make plans for regaining his freedom. Of money he had none. What he had made under old Hilary's leadership had gone back to Russia dollar for dollar. He had financed part of the Kiev defence of the Jews, and saved Prince Ovarsky from Siberia. There were other things.

Money would save Boroday. And there was practically no money.

By unanimous consent they kept the news of his arrest from Elinor.

It was Talbot who planned the country club coup. The Russian was in jail then, on a trumped up charge. Old Hilary dead and Boroday in jail—there was no one to advise caution.

"Boroday ill!" Elinor exclaimed. They were accounting for his absence from her on Saturday-night dinner. "Why, then, he should be here, where he can be cared for."

"We told him that," Lethbridge was always readiest with his tongue. "But he's not sick enough to need much, and he's deucedly disagreeable when he's laid up."

Elinor was a little hurt.

In the harbour, after dinner, they planned the robbery. Where old Hilary would have taken a month to think and plan, they took minutes. There was a ball at the club that night, the last of the waning country club season. The entrance to the grounds was a mile from the club house—two iron gates standing open between pillars, and dense shrubbery all about. Talbot would wreck his car there, driving into one of the gates. That would require each departing car to slow down, probably to stop.

The arrangement was that Talbot walk up to the club, and establish an alibi and his innocence by telephoning to a city garage for help. The rest was left to Huff and Lethbridge. A quarter of a mile away across the golf links, they would have a car in which to make t eir getaway.

Lethbridge was only lukewarm.

"We'll get a lot of jewelry," he objected. "What we need is money."

But Talbot was sure that the loot would include money.

It was rather cleverly planned. From the vault Huff brought up a fine chain studded with spikes.

Stretched across the road outside the entrance, it meant that every car passing over it would limp along on flat tires. It meant time to the bandits.

Huff and Lethbridge, who had left their car in a thicket over the hill, went first. Talbot followed soon, in his gray car.

"Good luck, boys," said Elinor in echo of her father, from her garden, and went back into the house to watch the clock. At one, or a little sooner—the Summer dances were early ones—she was to be in her garden again. The loot would be thrown over the wall.

She was there much earlier, hands cold, lips shaking with nervousness. Always old Hilary had done these things. She was profoundly frightened.

Ward, walking rapidly home from the club, saw her there, a little after midnight. There was a young moon, and at first he thought he must be mistaken. Then, when he was sure of her, he ran up the shallow steps. The gladness that was over him rang out in his deep voice.

"So now I have your secret," he said gaily. "Like all the other fairies, you are only to be seen in the moonlight!"

"In the daylight," said Elinor, trying to smile. "I frequent the woodlands, and miss my most agreeable visitor—my only visitor." She corrected herself.

Her hand was ice in his.

"You are cold!"

"Really, no."

There was a minute's pause. They had no common ground between them. Ward who dreamed of her eyes and took long walks up the hill in the mere hope of seeing her in the garden, found himself dumb, now that he stood before her. He had meant to be most impersonal, to run in, say a cheery "good night" to her, and be off. But face to face, with the dark house looming over them he plunged into the thing nearest his heart.

"Are you still so—alone?"

"There are the servants."

"I—I think of you often. One of my windows faces this way and I can see a light burning very late."

"I read at night. I do not sleep well. But you—you are up late also."

"Ah!" He bent a little toward her in his eagerness. "You know that? You know my window?"

"Yes. I watch it very often."

It was well for Walter Huff, crouched in the shrubbery at the country club, eyes glittering, automatic revolver in hand, that he did not hear the thrill in Ward's voice that night in Elinor's garden, or her soft reply.

Many things cried for utterance in Ward: his pitiful sense of the girl's loneliness, a yearning desire to comfort her, to be near her—even more, that magic night, a mad longing to hold out his arms and coax her into them, as one might coax some shy creature of the woods.

But Elinor was suddenly aloof and distant again. At any time now a car would come wildly down the hill, and toss at her feet its defiance of law and ownership. What had she and this man before her in common? The thrill was in his voice now, but how quickly it would turn to loathing when he knew! She put out her cold hand, and he took it.

"I am going in now. Good night, and thank you for stopping."

Ward found himself dismissed, and rather dazed went down the steps to the road. But one thing he carried with him down the hill that night:

"I watch your window very often."

The Reverend Mr. Ward left his light on all of that night, so fearful was he that she might look for it and not find it.

And while it burned, under the very shadow of Saint Jude's once more the vault in the basement room at the Hall swung open to Elinor's practised fingers.

The village rang with the news of the outrage the next day. No one had been hurt, but jewels of large value had been taken.

To Huff and the others the raid had been practically a failure. There had been less than a thousand dollars in money—not enough to begin negotiations for Boroday's freedom. It began to look as though the dangerous business of selling some of Elinor's jewels would have to be resorted to. Lethbridge was willing to undertake it, trying London first, and then Paris.

Elinor offered all the jewels. If she must keep a part she would keep the pearls. Talbot sorted out the stones to be sold, but left them with her for safety. She had never cared for her jewels. They were not half so lovely as her flowers—and she parted from them without a pang. But there was one pink, pear-shaped pearl that had come in the night before, that she would have rather liked to wear.

On Monday afternoon Ward called on Elinor. The memory of that short meeting in the garden had been with him ever since. There was a new light in his eyes, but she greeted him demurely, although she flushed with pleasure.

"Not in a woodland, for once," she said. "And all my fairy-like attributes faded in the daylight!"

"Isn't it rather rash?" he asked gravely—"this risking the daylight?"

"I am here because I hoped you would come to see me." It was Ward's turn to flush.

"You said you were lonely I thought——"

"I am alone, but not as lonely as you think. There is plenty to do. I have my garden, and I make up little bouquets for the school children. You should see how they love them. Some days I have a dozen clamoring in the road under the arbor."

Ward was charmed. He had a quick vision of Elinor, eyes dancing and soft hair blowing, bending out of her arbour window and dropping her quaint sweet-williams and marguerites, mignotte and garden roses, down to the children.

She led the way to the terrace where Henrietta was setting the tea-table.

REVOLUTION IN AUSTRIA.

An Opportunity That the Allies Overlooked.

Under the headed "Wasted Opportunities," the New York Times recently published an editorial beginning with the queries: "Have the Allies been 'too late' with Austria? What would have been the effect on the battlefront in France to-day if they had begun at the earliest moment to encourage the aspirations for freedom of the subject peoples in the Austro-Hungarian monarchy? If Germany were to-day turning to meet an Austro-Hungarian revolution would she be on the Marne?"

Almost a year ago Wolf von Schierbrand, in his book "Austria-Hungary: The Polyglot Empire," lamented the wasted opportunities of the Allies, in the Dual Monarchy. He pointed out three diplomatic highways by which the Allied statesmen could have succeeded in introducing a wedge between Germany and her supporters. The first was by an appeal to the deep-seated hatred of Austrians and Hungarians for Prussia, and a guarantee of protection against Prussian conquest. The second was to have taken advantage, at the very beginning of the war, of the hesitancy of Hungary, who stood ready to break with Austria, so Mr. Mr. von Schierbrand asserts, and to fling in her resources on the side of the Allies, if they in turn, were willing to protect her from violation. Hungary's attitude was strengthened by her friendly feeling toward the United States. The third was an offer of autonomy to Austria-Hungary's numerous subject races. This plan would have included independence for Hungary, and the formation of a new South Slavic state, comprising Croatia, the Banat, Slavonia, Bosnia, Herzegovina, Istria, Dalmatia, etc.

Instead of pursuing any of these roads, which lead to disaster for Prussian dreams, the Allies busied themselves flirting with Russia, and making promises of territorial prizes for good conduct, all of which threatened Austro-Hungarian ambitions. It was this policy which united the fast disintegrating monarchy and lined her up on the side of Prussia. If it is not yet "too late" and the Allies have at last awakened to their wasted opportunities in the Dual Monarchy, this book furnishes the solid basis of fact in regard to the polyglot peoples which should underly any wise policy of handling them.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

Sammis, the Elevator Boy

By M. QUAD

Copyright, 1915, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

"I didn't stand in with the elevator boy," has been the wail of more than one tenant who has vacated his office for other than financial reasons.

The elevator boy—the elevator boy! If you have ever been a tenant of a skyscraper, then it is needless to tell you that he is the real boss of the shebang. It is good to meet a newcomer who knows it to be a fact, because it saves time and trouble to both parties. I was pleased when old Mr. Beerchamp took a room on the eighth floor and hung out a sign of "Commissions." He didn't lose a day in coming to an understanding with me. As soon as I was off duty he called me up and patted me on the head and said to me in a fatherly way:

"Sammis, I have been a tenant in several skyscrapers during the last ten years, and I know something of the power and influence of the elevator boy. Let us come to an understanding right at the start."

"Yes, sir."

"You are fatherless, Sammis?"

"I am."

"And you are making heroic efforts to pay off a mortgage and support your mother?"

"Yes, sir."

"Then permit me to be a father to you. That is, come to me for advice. Come to me when you want a quarter. Come to me when you are sad and the tears are ready to start. It pleases me known all over the United States that we have adopted each other, but our affections will be just as deep and profitable to each other. You look out for your adopted father—your adopted father looks out for you. Here's a dollar for the mortgage."

"I thank you, sir," I said.

"And now as to your understanding, Sammis. There is a Mrs. Beerchamp. She is a good hearted woman, but old fashioned in her ideas. She is also inclined to be jealous. She does not know the exact position of my office, and it will be just as well if she does not find it out. Not that I would deceive the good woman in any particular, but her presence would interrupt business."

"Yes, sir. I know. When a man's wife is sitting around the office he can't fix his mind on stocks and bonds and real estate. I've seen 'em try it, and they always fail."

"Exactly, my adopted Sammis, and here's 50 cents more on the mortgage. You have the head of a man on a boy's shoulders. Mrs. Beerchamp may call here some day."

"I understand, sir. Leave it to me to discourage her."

I thought there were tears in my adopted father's eyes as he put his arm around me and said that he had unbounded confidence in me. Everything went along as smooth as grease for a week, and then Mr. Beerchamp advertised for five typewriters. I don't know why he did it, as the kid in the office said business was very dull, but the elevator boy should not theorize when his adopted father's interests are at stake. He didn't put his name to the ad., but Mrs. Beerchamp dropped to it somehow and came down to see. There must have been at least fifteen good looking typewriters in Mr. Beerchamp's office when she struck the elevator at the first floor.

"Bub, I want to go up to the eighth floor," she said, as she shoved me aside and crowded into the elevator.

"What room do you want?"

"Never you mind the room. How many typewriters have answered that ad.?"

"You mean the subscription book agent's ad., ma'am? I think I have taken up three cross eyed girls this morning."

She made a cuff at my ear, but I dodged and started the elevator. Between the seventh and eighth floors I tried to bring about a "stick," but she grabbed me by the hair and said:

"No tricks, bubby, or there'll be a spanking match here."

I landed her at the eighth and saw her kick Mr. Beerchamp's door open. I had scarcely got down to the first floor again when the typewriters began coming down the stairs. It was about an hour before Mr. and Mrs. Beerchamp came downstairs. As they got into the elevator she said to him:

"The idea of an old jay like you acting in this way is a shame and a disgrace, and I tell you it has got to come to a stop. I wish I could have got hold of all of them. Oh, I'm on to your little rackets, and after this I either come down and sit in your office all day or you don't have an office."

Mr. Beerchamp, poor old man, sort of shrunk up into himself and hadn't a word to say in reply. He looked at me, however, and it was such a look of reproach and sorrow that I didn't sleep two hours that night. When he came down next morning Mrs. Beerchamp was with him, and I didn't get a chance till the afternoon to tell him that I had done my best to prevent the calamity.

"Yes, I believe you. You were loyal to your adopted father, but there are some things beyond us, Sammis—way beyond—and Mrs. Beerchamp is one of them."

Poor old Mr. Beerchamp! He is still with us, and so is his wife, but I can see that he is failing every day and cannot believe that he is long for this world. Some folks imagine that there is naught but hilarity around a skyscraper, but that there are also breaking hearts and shattered hopes you may take the word of Sammis.

Neighborly Borrowers.

All good neighbors like to borrow occasionally from each other, but what can one do with the neighbor who makes a practice of getting her supplies from you and never makes any return? "I once laughingly told my neighbor," she says, "who wanted to wear my new hat to town before I had worn it myself, that I would lend her anything but my clothes." This borrower took her good-natured victim at her word, and among the list of things she soon borrowed were coffee, meal, flour, oil, vinegar, soap and pencils — which last were regarded as too small even to bother about bringing back, while most of the other things were "forgotten."

A PIECE OF LUCK.

How Germans Were Captured by the Fijian Police.

The man who declares there is no such thing as luck had best not be too emphatic in proclaiming his belief when Captain Harold Tantram, late Deputy Chief of the Fijian Constabulary, is within ear range. The captain, who has been travelling through Canada, holds a directly contra opinion, and has apropos experience to cite in proof of the soundness of his position.

His story is that of the capture of Count von Luckner and seven of his compatriots, part of the crew of the infamous German raider Seeadler, which some months ago terrorized the southern seas. These, armed to the teeth, amply provisioned and munitioned, and mounting a first-class modern machine-gun on a strategic point on one of the smaller islands of the Fijian group, were not long ago made captive by the colony police, aided and abetted by undisguised and indisputable luck.

"Beware of the wooden horse," the Trojans once were told. A device even simpler, nothing more than a small drove of cattle accidentally lined up on the deck of a police boat, resulted in the taking of the eight Germans without bloodshed and without so much as a pretence of resistance on their part.

The others of the Seedaler's complement of officers and men have disappeared as completely as if the earth had opened to swallow them. Although many vessels have unprofitably hunted them through the hundred archipelagoes of the Southern Pacific, they may even yet survive in some coral-ringed islet up to date unexplored.

The first news of the presence of Count von Luckner and his companions among the islands received by the Fijians police reached them by word of mouth of a half-caste who came into Suva with the story of a strange party of men who wore some sort of uniform, and whose movements had quite mystified the native inhabitants of one of the islands quite off the track of even coasting craft.

An investigating police expedition eventually was ordered. Through some inexplicable folly the force went out unarmed, probably anticipating only a pleasant excursion—as they had investigated native reports many a time before, only to catalogue them later as fairy tales.

The bright idea struck someone shortly before the sailing hour that advantage might be taken of the opportunity to deliver a load of cattle to one of the neighbor islands, and so the animals were got on board and lined up on the deck.

In a little bay described by the half-caste news-bearer they located the German party, who promptly engaged in a parley, for the count spoke excellent English. Surrender was demanded, and the party capitulated.

It was later disclosed that the Germans were fully convinced the cattle masked a battery of machine guns. Had they not read all about such camouflage in the manual of arms. Thus, instead of being very promptly blown to pieces the police heroes returned to Suva with their prisoners. The Germans were found to be in possession of accurate maps, charts and photographs of the Islands. They were abundantly provisioned and well armed. They had selected an admirable position for either defensive or offensive movements, and might have held their ground for months but for the accidental location of their camp by the half-caste—and the accidental cooperation of luck and that drove of cattle.

Our Troops.

Since the outbreak of the war, Canadians have been constantly annoyed by American claims that half the force of Canada is composed of men born in the United States, and by English claims that more than half are British-born. A statement prepared by the Department of Militia and Defence classifies the 364,750 men of the C.E.F., who went overseas up to March 31st, 1918, according to country of birth, as follows:

Canada, of British descent	147,505
Canada, of French descent	16,268
England	121,5571
Scotland	37,496
Ireland	12,657
Wales	3,574
Other British possessions	3,648
United States	12,000
Other countries	10,931
Total	364,750

Some of the United States recruits gave Valcartier or other Canadian addresses on their attestation papers, but the number of these is comparatively insignificant. Many Americans were allowed to transfer to the United States army as soon as it was mobilized in France.

Tea in the Garden of Eden

A Tommy wrote to his mother from Mesopotamia:

"This may be the Garden of Eden, but the only thing that makes it endurable is our daily portion of Lipton's. In fact, Lipton's is the only thing hereabouts that I'm not 'fed up' on."

There is a universality about Lipton's that strikes home to English-speaking people wherever they may be.

To thoroughly enjoy Tea you must get Lipton's, and make it according to the directions on each package.

Pearls From Cocoanuts.

The cocoanuts of the Malay Peninsula sometimes produce pearls that are highly prized by the natives. The stones are not unlike the pearls of the molluscs, and are similar in composition to the oyster pearls, having calcium carbonate and a little organic matter. The mollusc pearl is said to come into existence by the efforts of the oyster pearl to dispose of irritating particles that have entered the shell; but the cocoanut could have no cause for producing these concretions, which, while they have great similarity to the pearl, are not pearls. These concretions form just beneath the stem, and a pure white pearl brings a high price, as it is supposed by the natives to possess some kind of a charm. Cases have been known where the cocoanut pearl has been sold as a mollusc product, but such instances are rare.

"Why do you call it that?"

"Because the worse it gits the more they want to charge furit."

CHANGE OF WATER CAUSED DIARRHOEA

People moving from one place to another are very much subject to diarrhoea on account of the change of water, change of climate, change of diet, etc., and what at first appears to be but a slight looseness of the bowels should never be neglected or some serious bowel complaint will be sure to follow.

The safest and quickest cure for diarrhoea dysentery, colic, cholera infantum, cholera morbus, pains in the stomach, sickness and all looseness of the bowels is Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry.

Mr. T. T. Allard, Parry Sound, Ont., writes: "In the fall of 1914 I was working on the new 'Chiclet Gum' factory, on Carlaw Ave., in Toronto, when I had a violent attack of diarrhoea, owing, I think to the change of water. One of the foremen advised me to get a bottle of Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry, which I did, with the result that I hadn't taken it all before I was completely cured."

Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry has been a national remedy for the past 72 years, and is sold by medicine dealers everywhere at 35c, a bottle. Don't let anyone palm off a substitute on you. When you pay your money for the genuine, you've a rght to get it. Put up only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

STAND IS TAKEN BY SOCIALISTS

Statements of War Aims Have Been Exchanged.

EVEN THE HUNS ANSWER

Arthur Henderson Makes Announcement That Views Have Been Exchanged Between the Allies and the Enemy, and He Says That the German Socialists Are Anxious to End the War.

ARTHUR HENDERSON, Labor leader and former member of the British War Cabinet, speaking recently at a Labor conference, said the British Labor party during the month of July had succeeded in getting its statement of war aims into the hands of the Socialists of enemy countries, and that five replies had been received.

"The first reply came from the Bulgarian Socialists, who accepted practically all the general points of our memorandum, reserving some unimportant points regarding Macedonia.

"The second reply came from the Hungarian workers, who have submitted to the Stockholm committee a statement of policy much on the lines of our memorandum.

"The third reply came from the Austrian Socialists, who accepted the principles of the Inter-Allied memorandum as a basis for discussion. They endorsed our conception of a federal system for Austria-Hungary and a similar system for the Balkan States.

ARTHUR HENDERSON.

"They declared they had always repudiated the Brest-Litovsk peace treaty, and they agreed that Alsace-Lorraine and Italian, Polish and colonial questions must be solved in accordance with the desires of the peoples concerned.

"The fourth reply came from the German minority Socialists, who submitted a statement to the Stockholm committee on the lines of the inter-Allied memorandum.

"The fifth, and the most significant, reply came from the German majority Socialists, who endeavored to send it by Troelstra, but the action of the Allies in refusing passports to Troelstra prevented the written document from reaching us. Nevertheless, we received a summary which shows that the German majority Socialists declared their willingness to take part in an international conversation on the basis of the proposals made by the neutral Socialists.

"It also seems clear that the German majority Socialists accept virtually all the principles of the Inter-Allied memorandum. They are ready to discuss even the question of the responsibility for the war, although they think that no good purpose would be served thereby. They are ready to discuss Belgium and Alsace-Lorraine, and believe that an amicable solution can be found. They agree to a complete restoration of Belgian independence. They urge that an international conference would be very useful at this time, and, finally, they declare themselves in favor of a league of nations to prevent aggression by one power upon another."

No Appeal to Race.

The absence of any appeal of race in Shakespeare is noted by a writer in the London Chronicle: "If the voluable Berowne was a Frenchman, Mercutio might have been so equally. If Hamlet was a Dane, why not 'sad Antonio' and the 'melancholy' Jaques?' If Falstaff was English, how did Sir Toby Belch get to Illyria? Macbeth is no more exclusively Scotch than Othello is exclusively Negroid." In the highest sense, then, Shakespeare's works are Britain's and America's "greatest literary heritage," and it is particularly good that the children, for whom the "world is being made safe for democracy," should be afforded an opportunity of recognizing it.

Bohemians Have Sense of Humor.

The peasants of Bohemia have not lost their grim humor in these times of scarcity. According to a Prague paper, the villagers of the neighborhood erected the customary maypole to celebrate the advent of spring, but its decorations, instead of the usual multi-colored ribbons, consisted of time-expired bread, meat and fat cards. A placard on it, recalling the paradisical state of man read:

"Of all the trees shall ye eat; only of this tree ye shall not eat."

If a bottle of milk happens to sour it can be used in making cornbread, hot cakes, or in many other ways.

Lemon Juice For Freckles

Girls! Make beauty lotion at home for a few cents. Try it!

Squeeze the juice of two lemons into a bottle containing three ounces of orchard white, shake well, and you have a quarter pint of the best freckle and tan lotion, and complexion beautifier, at very, very small cost.

Your grocer has the lemons and any drug store or toilet counter will supply three ounces of orchard white for a few cents. Massage this sweetly fragrant lotion into the face, neck, arms and hands each day and see how freckles and blemishes disappear and how clear, soft and white the skin becomes. Yes! It is harmless.

Pockets Quite Essential.

Pockets are among the most useful things ever invented.

What a small town hick would do for a place to put his hands had he no pockets is hard to imagine.

No man knows exactly how many pockets he has. If you don't believe it ask the first man you meet. He can't come within four of it.

Each suit of clothes is equipped with so many of these repositories that the average "he" can't think right off the reel how many he has got.

Give a man a suit of clothes without a single pocket and he would be lost. Just look what a man carries around in his pockets.

Half a dozen letters, a can of tobacco and a pipe, or two or three cigars (more often these are worn in his vest just over his heart), a fountain pen, a pencil or two, a photograph of a dizzy broiler he doesn't want wifey to see, a knife that won't cut anything, a key ring with fourteen keys on it, some stamps all stuck together, a few rubber bands, a memorandum book, a newspaper clipping or something the local paper said about him, a watch, a pocket chip, a card or two admitting him to his favorite club, a pocketbook with some money in it, a laundry ticket, a rabbit foot, a clasp of a silk garter, a few cigar store coupons, a deck of cards, a pistol, a recipe for curing a cold, a piece of court plaster, a dream book, a lock of hair, and ad infinitum.

CHILDREN MUST BE PROTECTED

The children must be safeguarded, for if they do survive the frequent coughs and colds, it is often with the lungs so weakened that they become chronic sufferers from bronchitis or consumption Being composed of simple ingredients of undoubted value, Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine is admirably suited as a treatment for children. It is pleasant to taste. So much so that children delight to take it on this account, as well as because of the quick relief it affords them.

During a campaign a Tammany leader, a self-made man and one not entirely completed yet in some respects, was addressing a mass meeting of Italian born voters on behalf of the democratic ticket.

"Gentlemen and fellow citizens,' he began, "I deem it an honor to be permitted to address you upon the issues of the day. I have always had a deep admiration for your native land I vinerate the mimory of that great noble Eyetalian who was the original and first discoverer of this here lands of ours.

"Why, gintlemen, at me mother's knee I was taught to sing that inspiring song, 'Columbus, the Jim of the Ocean!'"

Then there was loud applause.—Reheboth Sunday Herald.

NOYON IS OCCUPIED BY THE FRENCH

The Canadians Repulse The Enemy Counter-Attacks

FALL OF NOYON TO HUMBERT'S ARMY
A HEAVY BLOW TO ENEMY'S PLANS

Town Was to Have Been Used as Northern Pivot of Their Defensive Line, But French Were Not to be Denied, Capturing the Stronghold in Face of Heavy Machine Gun Fire.

MORLENCOURT TAKEN

Canadian Press:

WITH THE FRENCH ARMIES, Aug. 29.— Noyon was occupied this morning by the troops of General Humbert. General Mangin's men crossed the Oise river and took Morlincourt.

The French first army took Quesney Wood, just north of Canal Dinard. The wood was a strongly fortified position. It was from it the Germans endeavoured to check the French pursuit.

The fall of Noyon comes as a heavy blow to the Germans, who were thought during the early stages of the Picardy offensive, to be planning to hold Noyon as the southern pivot of their line which runs north-west along the old battle line of 1916.

Noyon is situated on the right bank of the Oise river at the confluence of that stream and the little river Vers. To the north-east a range of high hills juts out into the valley. One railroad runs through Noyon. Two small railroad lines run north and north-east to Nesle and the latter to Ham. It is a great highway centre and is a very ancient town, being known to the Romans.

Defended by Machine Guns.

(By Webb Miller.)

An earlier despatch by Webb Miller, United Press Correspondent, says:

PARIS, Aug. 29.—(10 a.m.)—French troops are fighting in Noyon, according to reports received from the battle front early to-day.

The town, which forms the apex of a sharp salient, is heavily defended by machine guns. It is already outflanked from the north-west.

In the Dry Canal east of Nesle the fighting was extremely heavy. A huge amount of material was captured in that region.

North of Soissons, the Germans are clinging to the dominating positions at Cuffien (a mile and a half north of the city), and Juvigny (where American troops are operating).

The Germans are reported to be greatly strengthening their positions in St. Gobain Forest (between the Oise and the Ailette), which are regarded as already among the best defences on the west front.

Noyon Outflanked.

LONDON, Aug. 29.— The Germans were strongly holding the southern and western outskirts of Noyon with machine gun concentration, according to front despatches received here to-day. The French have fully outflanked the town at Montagne De Porquerieourt (a mile and a half north-west.)

French troops have crossed the Roye-Noyon road near Sermaize (three miles north-west of Noyon) and Cantigny (two miles north of Sermaize.)

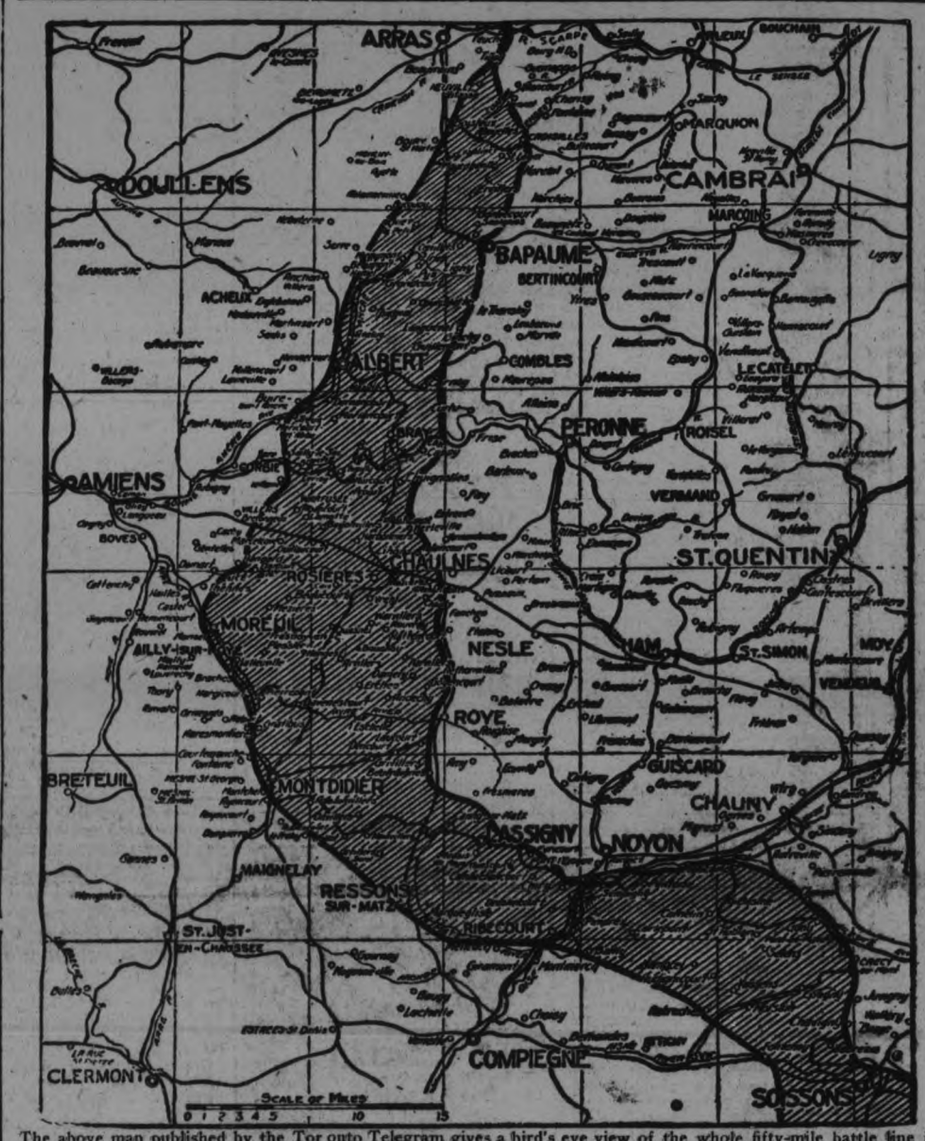
They have also reached the neighbourhood of Cachy and Painecourt (six miles south-east of Nesle.) The west bank of the Somme is in the hands of the French from Cizencourt to Rouy Le Petit (two miles north-east of Nesle.)

Violent Bombardments.

Canadian Press:

PARIS, Aug. 29.— There were violent bombardments during the night along the Somme front. German forces made many surprise attacks in the Lorraine sector without obtaining results.

The French made two incursions into the enemy lines in Champagne and took prisoners. The night was calm on the rest of the front.



The above map published by the Toronto Telegram gives a bird's eye view of the whole fifty-mile battle line in France. The line to the left shows the German advance in the spring. The shaded area shows only part of the Allied gains since their advance began. Guemappe and Wancourt, captured by Canadians, are to be seen in the upper centre of the map just right of Arras. The Allied pincers are closing on Peronne shown near the centre of the map, which also shows the operations around Noyon. Croissilles around which there has been fierce fighting, and which has been captured by the British, may be found at the centre of the upper part of the map.

LOTS TO EAT, PLENTY OF SOCKS, SAYS LOCAL BOY

Mrs. McCabe has received an interesting letter from her son, Pte. Sidney McCabe, who went overseas with the 93rd Battalion and has been in France for many months. Pte. McCabe says he gets lots to eat and has lots of sleep, and not even the Hune' bombing raids keep him awake. He adds that he has plenty of socks.

20 GERMAN PLANES DOWNED BY AMERICANS

(Special to The Examiner.)

PARIS, Aug. 29.—American aviators brought twenty German planes during the first two weeks of August, and probably accounted for eleven others, the Petit Parisien declared to-day.

A FORTUNE AT THE INCINERATOR

Scrap Tin Has Accumulated Ever Since the Building Was Opened.

The city has acquired a little fortune from the cans and tinware which has been taken from the garbage at the incinerator. Tin cans, stove pipes, tin pots and pans, old boilers and anything made from tin can be seen at this heap at the rear of the incinerator. The tinware resembles a railway embailement, and extends from the incinerator nearly to the railroad tracks. As scrap tin has risen enormously in value the city should be able to realize a handsome sum from its sale. The pile has accumulated since the incinerator was established, none of it having been removed. Before the refuse is dumped into the holes leading to the fire the tinware is picked from it and loaded on wheelbarrows and taken to the tin dump. The tin is all on city property, but it will soon extend into other property unless it is soon removed or is built pyramid-like above the incinerator building.

BANK CLEARINGS SHOW A CONTINUED INCREASE

The clearings for the week ending Aug. 29th, were $569,540.

Same week last month, $563,356.

Same week last year, $529,082.

Same week two years ago, $444,559.

IN AID OF THE SAILORS

Owing to the absence from the city of a number of members of the Navy League Committee, it has been decided to postpone the local campaign for "Sailor's Week" until September 9th-11th, devoting next week to organization purposes. It is expected that the entire city will be covered by the canvass and a generous response is looked for as the cause deserves.

RECOGNITION OF CZECHS HAS HAD GOOD RESULTS

(Special to The Examiner.)

Amsterdam, August. 29. — As a result of the British recognition of the Czechs, something like a general mobilization is proceeding in the Polish, Czech and Southern Slav ditricts, according to a Vienna despatch to the Weser Zeitung.

Hostilities between these people and the government are expected shortly. It is believed that British recognition made possible the co-ordination of these elements.

Farmers Ask For Accounting

Must Tell Ottawa Expenses and Sales, as Basis of War Income Tax

OTTAWA, Aug. 27.—Farmers throughout the country are being asked by the Finance Department to fill in forms which will give an accounting of their operations in 1917 for the purposes of the Income War Tax Act, The farmers are requested to state the quantity of their products in that year, the price at which those products were sold, the quantity consumed at home or exchanged for goods at shops, income from other sources, the cost of feed, labor machinery and an estimate of depreciation. Farmers are liable to taxation under the Income War Tax Act Inasmuch, however, as many do not keep books, it has been difficult to ascertain the amount of their incomes. From the information disclosed by the forms now being sent out the Finance Department will determine what individuals are liable to taxation and the amount of their taxes.

MORE THAN TWO-THIRDS OF THE LOST GROUND IS RECAPTURED

FIGHTING WITH THEIR BACKS TO THE SOMME

(Special to The Examiner.)

LONDON, August 29.—The Germans are now fighting with their backs to the Somme. In their advance yesterday, the French swept forward an additional six miles on a front of about twenty-five miles, capturing forty villages and reaching the new German defenses on the Somme from Aizencourt, five miles south of Peronne, to the vicinity of Noyon. Part of this line is formed by the Somme and the remainder by the North Canal.

Joining this operation on the north, the British made an appreciable advance on both sides of the Somme, where it flows in a westerly direction, capturing Curlu, north of the river, and reaching the line of Herbecourt, four miles west of Peronne and Fresnes, five miles south of Herbecourt, south of the river.

British troops also continued their progress between Bapaume and the Scarpe, capturing Croiselles and advancing to Vaulx Vraucourt, five miles northeast of Bapaume. More than ten miles of the Hindenburg line is now in British hands.

The French, operating along the Oise, captured Suzoy, Pont L'Eveque, Vanchelles and Porquericourt, approaching to within nearly a mile of Noyon on the west.

Between the Oise and the Aisne, American troops repulsed several counter attacks near Juvigny, four miles north of Soissons.

PELVES CAPTURED

Canadians in Dashing Advance Score New Victories in the Battle South of the Scarpe—Severe Fighting Lasted Through the Day.

ANOTHER TRIUMPH

LONDON, Aug. 28.—In heavy fighting, continued throughout the day, British forces made steady advances. Wet weather is reported on most of the battlefront. A Reuter's despatch from British Headquarters in France says:

"Canadian troops delivered another attack in the course of the morning on a fanlike front of about five miles, evenly flanking the Arras-Cambrai road. This fighting is carrying them right into the main artery of the Hindenburg line."

Sir Douglas Haig, in his official report to-night, says that Croisilles has been taken and the Canadians have captured important trench systems and ground and taken the villages of Boiry-Notre Dame and Pelves. An Associated Press despatch says the town of Croisilles, northeast of Bapaume, has been taken by the British. To the southeast patrols have entered Remy and Haucourt, while southwest of Peronne the British have taken Fay and Ablaincourt.

The Australians have reached the line of Fresnes-Herbecourt, but have met with much opposition in their efforts to reach the crossings of the Somme river at Brie and Peronne.

The greater part of the Trones Wood, north of the Somme, has been taken; unofficial reports say it is all in the hands of the British, who took prisoners from a Prussian Guard division there. Hostile counter-attacks north of the Scarpe have been beaten off, and north of Locon, in the Ypres sector, the British line has been advanced.

Australians Reach Somme.

Sir Douglas Haig's official statement to-night, reads:

"South of the Somme the Australians, pressing the enemy vigorously, have reached the general line of Fresnes-Herbecourt. The enemy is offering stubborn resistance in front of the passages of the river at Brie and Peronne.

"On the north bank of the Somme our troops captured Curlu and Hardecourt after hard fighting and are advancing in the direction of Maurepas.

"Between Bapaume and the Scarpe our attacks have been continued to-day, and progress has been made at all points.

Croisilles is Taken.

"The village of Croisilles, where the enemy maintained obstinate resistance, was gradually outflanked by London troops and is now in our hands. English troops fought their way forward towards Vracourt and south-east of Fontaine-les-Croisilles.

Canadians in Great Drive.

"After severe fighting lasting throughout the day, the Canadians have successfully driven the enemy from several strongly-defended localities and important trench systems and have captured the village of Boiry-Noter Dame and Pelves. A number of prisoners were taken in the course of these operations.

"We advanced our line during the day north of Locon (Ypres sector)."

HOLDING THE LINE

Strong Enemy Counter Attacks South of the Scarpe Fail to Shift the Canadians, Who Are in Possession of All Their Gains.

BRITISH ADVANCING

LONDON (Official), Aug. 29. — German counter attacks east and southeast of Vis-En-Artois, east of Boiry, and in the vicinity of Gavrelle, villages to the tast of Arras, have been repulsed.

South of the Somme the British forces are keeping up their pressure against the enemy and are advancing eastward.

Since August 21 the British have taken 26,000 prisoners and 100 guns.

The text of the statement reads: South of the Somme we maintained our pressure during the night and are advancing eastward.

North of the Somme as far as the neighbourhood of Fontainelez, Croisilles, the night passed quietly on the battle front.

In the British sector astride the Scarpe River the enemy delivered strong but unsuccessful counter attacks during the night, east and south east of Vis-En-Artenois, east of Boiry Notre Dame and in the vicinity of Gavrelle.

BATTLE ON WINGS

Canadian Press:

PARIS, Aug. 29.— The Allies now have won back more than two-thirds of the ground lost since the beginning of the German offensive in March.

It was wrung from them by an overwhelming effort of force and they have regained it by brilliant generalship of their leaders and the skillful manoeuvring of their troops.

The working out of Marshal Foch's strategy, according to opinion here, shows that every movement in each section of the long battle line has been carefully brought out, in its relation to the whole. Thus the British advance toward Peronne on Aug. 29 had its immediate effect on the sections further south, and for some time General Von Hutier was in danger of being caught in a trap if he hung on another instant. As a result he was obliged to abandon Roye and Nesle and retire behind the Somme with the French close at his heels.

An intense battle is in operation on the wings. General Mangin is fighting in the region of Juvigny and Chavigny. The territory is difficult because Juvigny is level with Laffaux, and the change does not necessarily add to the salient to the line of Vesle.

On the left the British east of Arras have overrun the powerful defences which have encircled that city and are going dangerously near the formidable positions prepared several days ago to protect Douai and Cambrai. These towns are important railway centres and vital to German positions, so that a fierce struggle may be looked for before the Allies reach them.

FRANK JENNE Says:

Fair-minded men are willing to pay what clothes are worth—if they know the "worth" is in them. They are also willing to pay for the best cloth that weavers can make.

Only the best cloth and best tailoring goes into a "Semi-ready" suit. There is none of the "few buttons common thread; shoddy cloth," idea about a Semi-ready suit. To prove it "Come to me."

OUR DEBT TO THE SAILORS.

There are many reasons why the Navy League Sailors' week campaign, should be liberally and enthusiastically supported. While no gift, however large, can pay the debt that we owe to the British navy and the British mercantile marine, yet a liberal response to the appeal that is being made will go a long way toward making the lot of the gallant sailors themselves, and of their dependents, more comfortable. While the members of the mercantile marine receive no pensions if they are injured, or no allowance is paid their dependents if they are killed, these brave sailors are daily facing death to aid the allied cause. No fewer than 15,000 merchant sailors have given their lives since the war began, and daily the toll increases. In addition there are four thousand of them prisoners in Germany, for whom no provision is made, except by their personal friends. It should be remembered that there is no patriotic fund for the merchantman, no separation allowance for his wife. He risks his life hourly, and if his ship is sent to the bottom by the German pirates, and his life is sacrificed, there is no Government assistance for the loved ones he leaves behind.

The Navy League Fund will help to take care of the 40,000 widows and orphans that already mourn the loss of husbands and fathers murdered by the Hun. New Zealand has contributed £90,000, and Canada must do her part.

Ontario, the banner province of the British Empire, is asked to give one million dollars. Peterboro must contribute her bit to the total. Our sons have been taken safely across the ocean, thanks to the British navy. The British and Canadian mercantile marine has bravely met the submarine danger, and carried our goods. All Canadians should realize the urgency of the need, and give accordingly.

PARLIAMENT SHOULD MEET.

The Veteran, the official organ of the Great War Veterans' Association, is not futch in favour of the system of government by order-in-council, and in a vigorous article in the current issue sets forth some powerful reasons why parliament should meet. As representing the views of Canada's returned soldiers who were almost a unit in voting for Union Government at the last election, the article should prove interesting reading.

Says the Veteran:

Disinterested citizens of Canada are unable to view some recent events in our Dominion without alarm and anxiety. We have had the recurring spectacle of a series of strikes and threatened industrial disputes. We have seen one department of the Government at open loggerheads with another, according to the stated evidence of a prominent official, and we have had the extraordinary scene at Calgary where a military officer fortified his quarters against the approach of officers of the law with a warrant for his arrest. We have also read with amazement, denunciation of judges and of the law in general by Government officials and prominent newspapers. We grant that the decision of the Alberta and Quebec courts against the validity of the exemptions cancelled by Order-in-Council was most exasperating to the Government and subversive of the declared national policy. But there cannot be any excessive sympathy for a Government which chooses to govern by autocratic Orders-in-Council instead of the Parliamentary vote of the elected representatives of the people. We doubt, however, if the torrent of denunciation upon the offending judges which has been poured out by certain newspapers is a judicious practice. Staunch exponents of conservative opinion ought to be the last people in the world to undermine the rule of law, for upon it depends the whole fabric of property and our existing social order. Is the law only to be attacked when it does not suit certain plans, or are dissatisfied veterans and industrial malcontents to be allowed to hold up its decisions to ridicule and abuse, when they conflict with their particular desires? The Veteran has been accused of revolutionary tendencies, but on this particular matter it is a staunch upholder of good conservative doctrine.

Had the Supreme Court upheld the decision of the lower courts an early session of Parliament would have been imminent, but in spite of their decision in favour of the Government, we believe in the immediate urgency of an early summons for a meeting of Parliament. During times like these the Parliament of the country should be in well nigh constant session. Since war broke out the British Parliament has enjoyed very brief intervals of vacation. The French Parliament has had almost uninterrupted sessions and the American Congress has enjoyed few hours of idleness. It is only in Germany and Austria that the authorities have been able to or dared to dispense with the advice of Parliament. We are well aware that certain members of the present Government have little liking for the symptoms of independence manifested during the last session, and were devoutely glad to see the members of Parliament scattered to the furthest ends of Canada. But we believe that the people of Canada do not want an autocratic Government, but a democratic Government which is responsive to checks and guidance from our elected representatives. Parliament is the link between the Government and the people, and it should be, as long as the war lasts, in almost continuous session. Moreover, it acts in no small degree as a safety valve for popular discontent and agitation. When people are disturbed in their hearts about Governmental tendencies and policies, they are less prone to embark on active agitation if they are aware that their members are on the spot of government, asking questions in the House and initiating debates. When, however, the Government is freed from the watchful presence of Parliament and its policies escape the light of open discussion, industrial outbreaks and popular discontent invariably increase. In short, the assembling of Parliament and its more or less constant sitting would seem to be an excellent buttress for our national morale, and would inevitably ease in a marked degree the difficulties of governing the Dominion.

The Government has no monopoly of the political and economic wisdom of the country, and it has been further handicapped by what seems the quite unnecessary absence of several minister in Europe. No British nor American Minister has been able to snatch more than a few days' holidays during his period of office, but almost one-third of ours can find time for prolonged excursions and lengthy absences across the Atlantic. The result is a complete lack of guidance in our national affairs and all the vicious results of drift and compromise. The Toronto World has pointed out all the evils of the present situation, and The Veteran now seconds its appeal for an early session of Parliament. A whole variety of problems requires to be dealt with immediately and the Government, which has protected itself from the perils of vigorous policies by the devices of commissions and colourless statements, as a lady veils herself from rough breezes, needs the stimulus of members who come fresh from contact with what is now an anxious and critical electorate.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

With the Canadian corps in the centre and the gallant Scots on each flank, it is no wonder the Hindenburg line could not withstand the British assault.

The Canadians started the fireworks on August 8th, which culminated in General Debeney's capture of Roye on Thursday. Now General Currie's men are supplying the driving power to the new British smash.

Wonder what Senator Chamberlain thinks of those "worn out" British and French troops now.

The Canadians have the honour of being the first allied troops to get beyond the Hindenburg line.

Hancourt and Remy captured by General Currie's men are four miles east of the Hindenburg line.

The Canadians may be Foch's pets but they are not very popular with Ludendorff.

WHAT OTHER EDITORS SAY

DR. CODY'S TASK.

(Toronto Globe.)

The new Minister of Education points out that there are 560,345 pupils on the school rolls of Ontario, while the average daily attendance is only 328,846. There is a problem which the new Minister of Education should tackle.

NO ISSUE ON WAR.

(London Daily Chronicle.)

A general election this year, probably in the first week in December, is now accepted as a certainty. What perplexes everybody is the issue on which it is to be fought.

CAUSE AND EFFECT.

(Kansas City Star.)

"Soviet troops," says an Amsterdam despatch, "have begun to evacuate Moscow. The gold reserves which have been in the basement of the Kremlin already have been removed to an unknown place."

POUNDING THE TRUTH IN.

(The New York Sun.)

That the Germans have been driven, fairly beaten, by better generalship, from below the Marne to above the Vesle is the fact, and the German masses will some day grasp it despite the military leaders' efforts to convince them that to sustain a sound thrashing is actually to achieve a great victory.

DO WE DESERVE SUCH PRAISE?

(Bermuda Colonist.)

We observe that at any rate in Canada the authorities are active in hunting out profiteers, food wasters or hoarders, and those other parasites whose interests in the food situation is solely how much they personally benefit by it. And when they are found out stern justice is meted out to them, the fines running into high figures.

REMARKABLE BUNGLING.

(Vancouver Sun.)

Some men who pretend to guide the destinies of other men in this city, have lately reminded us of the man whose cat's head got stuck into a pitcher. He cut off the cat's head to save the pitcher and then broke the pitcher to get the cat's head out.

MAKE IT A TRIO.

(Hamilton Spectator.)

The Globe refers to the Ottawa Journal-Press and the Toronto News, as "the Premier's faithful Boswells." Surely it would not exclude from such good company its own favourite son, Hon. Newton Wesley Rowell.

BELAND'S MESSAGE.

(Hamilton Herald.)

Hon. Dr. Beland, with his experience as a war prisoner in Germany fresh in mind, has this message for the people of Quebec: "We have got to win this war at whatever cost. We must win or die—there is no other alternative. If we wish to live we must fight it out to the limit of endurance." Belandism should prove a useful antidote to Bouraassaism.

PROBLEMS EASILY SOLVED.

(Kansas City Star.)

A hotelman objects to the work or fight order as applied to waiters, saying that "old waiters can not handle the heavy trays." So of course, the only remedy the hotelman sees is to lighten the portions again.

BEST SHOCK TROOPS.

Are Non-Professional Soldiers Under Civilian Commanders like Currie.

London, August 28. — The Daily Express, editorially discussing what it describes as the embargo on the non-professional soldier in the Imperial army, says the Canadians and Australians are among the best shock troops in the British forces. Their corps commanders, Currie and Monash, were civilians when the war began. There must be at least one Currie and one Monash in our army, and a dozen others capable of commanding divisions.

THE WORLD OF SPORT

BASEBALL COLLAPSE WAS DUE, WAR OR NO WAR

Game as Conducted Could Not Have Survived Much Longer.

War or no war, professional baseball was due for an early collapse unless reorganized and new principles put to the fore. Even if there had been no European war, professional baseball could not have survived man years without going to pieces of its own weakness. Commercailism, typified by the growth in size of the dollar sign, was supping the sporting foundations so fast that there would have been none of them left in another year or two at most.

The war began to affect the pastime benefically last year, and might have produced a big improvement in it this season if the club owners had not been too blind to see beyond the walls of their own parks. The sport prospered altogether too much in a financial sense for its own good and a hunch of adversity was needed to bring it back to a sounder sporting basis by bringing the promoters to their senses and teaching them the proper perspective.

Some Magnates Must Go

Out of what survives the war, or out of its wreckage it is possible to build a new structure that will be better than the old one if it is erected wisely. It may not be possible for some of the men now identified with baseball's promotion to build that way, but it is to be hoped that enough good sportsmen will be found in the game or will come into it to insure placing the sporting side of basball ahead of the commercial.

One of the principal things to be guarded against is the retention of a sport so highly specialized that it requires a small army of players to perform successfully. Only a dozen years ago 15 or 16 men were sufficient to win a world's championship, if properly handled. Back of that "in the days of real sport," 11 or 12 players were thought to be enough. But back there the performers were better all round players than now.

Pitchers were not taught to believe they could not learn to bat, but were expected to take their turns every time and drive in runs if any were in sight. Left-handed batsmen were not made to understand they couldn't touch southpaw pitching with a broom. Right-handed batsmen were not encouraged to turn around and hit the other way against north paw hurling.

The introduction of managerial strategy has been largely responsible for the increased number of specialists and the decreasing quantity of real ball players.

One of the first rules that ought to be changed is the one permitting the removal of a player from a game without cause.

Nine Men Should Make Team.

Baseball is supposed to be played by nine men on a side, not by 19 or 25, as was possible in the days of frenzied strategy. The sporting public always wants to know which is the best team of nine men, and the promoters should come as near to determining that as possible.

Of course, more than nine men are required by a team playing every day and sometimes twice per diem, because there are no pitchers like Radbourne or Rusie in these days, and they shortened their careers by pitching too often. But it is not sport to permit carrying a long string of pitchers or a lot of excess baggage on the bench to make up for the shortcomings of regular performers.

If a players has a weakness he should be made to correct it or his team should suffer for that weakness, in stead of being permitted to carry some one to throw into a game in an emergency to offset that handicap.

Probably no rule can be framed that the managers and players will not find a way to beat, but perhaps after the war the standard of sportsmanship will be high enough so that the public will frown on attempts to beat the rules, even by the home team. That will be close to the millennium, but you never can tell what this war will produce.

Only enough players to avoid working a pitcher oftener than every third day and to provide sufficient substitutes for ordinary accidents should be allowed each manager. And the number of substitutes permitted in a game should be restricted so low that he would not make changes unless necessary. In that way a premium would be placed on all around ability and the specialists would have to develop themselves or find other means of livelihood.

There will be a lot of all around players when the war is over, for it is defeloping them every day in the army camps and even right up to the trenches. And the ball player who wears a service stripe on his street raiment will be a lot bigger hero to baseball fans than the diamond idols of this decade have been.

Port Hope Team Here on Monday

The Trades and Labour Council have arranged for morning and afternoon ball games with Port Hope on Labour Day. In the morning a local All-Star team will likely pay the Lakeside team, and in the afternoon the Riversides will meet the visitors. These are the present plans of the committee who are working with Mr. Jake Solomon. Both games should be fast and interesting, and large attendances are expected.

DOGS OF WAR.

Washington Star. — "Some of these war devices of the Prussians have proved clumsy."

"Yes. They were the sort of thing to be expected from a nation that regarded a dachshund as an improvment on a regular dog."

TY COBB BIDS 10,000 N.Y. FANS GOODBYE

NEW YORK, Aug. 28. — Tyrus Cobb, the greatest player the national game has ever known, said goodbye to New York fandom Saturday afternoon at the Polo grounds. Cobb is planning to enlist in the naval aviation branch of the service at the close of the baseball season, and as he figures there may be a lapse of perhaps two or three years before the Kaiser is finally squelched he is preparing to write finis on his diamond career.

Cobb, it must be remembered, is old— not in years, but old as baseball measures age. He began playing professional ball in 1904 at Augusta, and the following year went to the Detroit Tigers, with which team he has served fourteen seasons. He will be thirty-two next December.

A Typical Farewell.

The farewell of Ty was typical of the man. "Let no sad funeral bells be ringing; let tinkling cymbals be your plan," was the spirit exuding from Cobb as he stepped to the plate in the ninth inning of the second game. Ty first turned and faced the 10,000 in the stands with his characteristic smile, and then shook hands with Bill Evans, the umpire.

The 10,000 arose, cheered and besought Ty to make at least a single on, this his farewell appearance with his old war club.

There were two men out, and the Tigers were trailing by a score of 2 to 0. Nothing would have pleased the Georgia Peach more than to have obeyed the pleas of the fans, but George Mogridge was a cold-souled pitcher, and he insisted on throwing such mean balls up to the batter that the best Ty could accomplish was a fly to centre, which Lamar caught after a short run.

But if Cobb failed when he made his final bow he was far from a failure in the first game of the double bill, which went to the Tigers by a score of 5 to 4. Of the five tallies registered by the visitors Cobb was responsible for four of them. In the third inning, with Vitt on base, Ty drove the ball into the lower right field stand for a home run. In the next frame, with the bases full, Tyrus singled to right, scoring two more of his mates.

In order to make it a perfect day Cobb climbed to the top of the Tiger dugout between the two games and delivered an appeal in behalf of the War Savings Stamp Fund. Ty hit close to 1,000 as an orator, and put sadly into the shade a similar effort on the part of Hughie Jennings, the Scranton pettifogger.

CANADA IS OPPOSED TO POWER PLAN

MONTREAL, Aug. 29.—Before the International Joint Waterways Commission, sitting in the court house here to-day, the Government of Canada, through Solicitor General Hon. Hugh Guthrie, and Frank H. Keefer, K.C., as counsel, is sternly opposing the approval of the plans submitted by the St. Lawrence Power Co. to construct a submerged wire across the south branch of the Long Sault near Massena, N. Y. The plans have been approved by the government of the United States as a war measure, but the Canadian authorities state that while in warmest sympathy with any measure aiming to increase the production of war material, they will not submit to a precedent that would be an invasion of treaty rights, as well as detrimental to Canadian interests.

GERMAN TRANSPORT FAILED

Lines Had to be Supplied With Ammunition and Food by Aeroplanes.

(Special to The Examiner.)

AMSTERDAM, Aug. 29.—During Monday's fighting, German airmen supplied their lines with ammunition and food, a semi-official despatch from Berlin stated to-day.

This may be accepted as an indication of the failure of the German transport system in some regions.

Fewer Sizes of Tins For Paint in Future

With the general scarcity of tin as a result of the large amount being used for overseas supplies, the paint output will probably be affected in the near future and paint and varnish be confined to gallon, quart and half pint cans in the local stores after January 1.

The Montreal paint and varnish makers have decided that there will be absolutely no sale of paint or varnish in pints or half-gallon tins after January 1. Many have been working towards this end and are altogether or nearly sold out of these sizes already, while some have small stock of odd colours still.

It is possibe that some may put on the market a substitute that will afford a container suitable for holding paint. In view of the large army of troops that must have foods that are packed in tin the situation will be watched with much interest as far as the paint trade is concerned. There is no indication of relief in sight.

C.G.E. ENPLOYEES ACCEPT THE AWARD OF THE BOARD OF ARBITRATION LAST NIGHT

Reject the Exceptions Made by Mr. Merrick, the Company's Representative—Vote Was Unanimous—Employees Highly Satisfied With the Award.

Following a thorough discussion of its clauses, the C.G.E. employees last night accepted by a unanimous vote the award of the Board of Arbitration, which was published yesterday. The Labour Hall was packed from the platform to the windows in the rear by men and girls from the electrical workers' department, machine shop, tool making and brass departments. The girls occupied benches on the platform, and were just as gratified and enthusiastic over the Board's decision as any of the men.

Mr. Peter McArthur, of the Machinists, was chairman, and around him were grouped the men who had attended the sessions of the Board, Mr. Harry Harper, the representative of the International Machinists' Association; Mr. John Noble, the representative of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, Alex. Murray and John Cairns, of the local machinists; Tom Ogilvey and J. E. Kenney, of the Electrical Workers.

Mr. Harper read the report and lead in the discussions. Many questions were asked by the employees, and the last details of the award were explained to them.

It was then that the vote of approval was taken, and every employee endorsed the Board's finding. That is, Mr. Cairns was instructed to notify the Department of Labour that the employees accepted the award, but dissented from the minority exceptions drawn by Mr. J. G. Merrick, the company's representative on the Board.

Addresses by Mr. Harper and Mr. Noble, and by the men who attended the meetings of the Board were warmly received. Their efforts were gratefully acknowledged, and especially appreciative were the greetings and expressions of appreciation to Mr. Harper and Mr. Noble.

In the report of the award yesterday, the omission of the word "no" from one sentence destroyed its meaning. It should have read as follows: "No reduction is to take place for any one getting more than the minimum rates."

TANKS UPROOTED ENTIRE VILLAGE

London, Aug. 28.—British tanks uprooted a whole French village to stop the fire of German machine guns from the houses in the latest allied offensive.

The French troops had been seriously hampered by the German machine guns in or on the tops of the houses. Tanks were in the vicinity, and a message was sent to them for asistance. These complied, but the German machine gun were too well protected to be knocked out by the fire from the tanks' guns. Accordingly the tank commanders conferred at the far end of the village and decided in a hurried impromptu war council to destroy the village by sheer weight of metal.

The tanks accordingly rammed down house after house, bringing down the machine guns, extricating themselves from the ruins of one house, then proceeding to the next. In this way the village was captured without a single British casualty, and at once was occupied by the French.

In another attack a tank was set on fire, the officer in command was killed and the first driver severely wounded, all within the German lines. The second driver extinguished the fire, assumed command, and later in the day drove back single handed, preceded by about 50 Germans, whom he captured unaided.

Another tank temporarily knocked out, constituted itself a strong point inside the German lines, and held out for five hours until the infantry arrived.

SIR ADAM BECK WAS OUT OF TORONTO WHEN MAYOR DUNCAN CALLED

Mayor Duncan's visit to the Hydro-Electric Commission's offices to meet Sir Adam Beck this week, met with disappointment, owing to the fact that the chairman of the commission was out of the city. One of the matters which the Mayor and the several Aldermen who accompanied him wished to discuss with Sir Adam Beck, was the power situation in this district, and the failure of this mission will require a return visit shortly. It is understood that a generator for the Healey Falls power house, ordered by the Commission, has been shipped from Sweden, and that this addition will considerably increase the power supply in this district. At the same time the council may urge the utilization of some of the powers close to Peterboro that are practically developed except the mounting of generating equipment. The power question is becoming a pressing one in Peterboro with the extension of industries, and a consequent increased demand for electricity.

A number of war slides will be shown together with the slides of the boys overseas. All are welcome.

Object to Clause Keeping Aldermen Off Civic Boards

TORONTO, Aug. 28.—"The war has laid heavy burdens on municipalities, and it devolves upon Councils to exercise great care in municipal affairs," cautioned S. H. Kent, City Clerk of Hamilton, and president of the Ontario Municipal Association, in his address at the opening session of the twentieth annual meeting at the City Hall to-day. "Extravgance should be avoided and only works of an urgent character carried out," he added. "Those municipalities that now conserve their finances most wisely will later on be able to meet their obligations without imposing heavy burdens on their ratepayers."

Mr. Kent declared it to be his opinion that in passing the regulation prohibiting members of municipal Councils from sitting on outside boards or commissions the Ontario Legislature had not considered the effect. "It prevents municipalities from having direct representation on boards and commissions directly affecting municipal affairs," he said, "and in my opinion this convention ought to send a request that the amendment to the Municipal Act be repealed at the next sitting of the Ontario Legislature."

Bianca Has Reached Port

Newfoundland Schooner Failed to Sink When Huns Exploded Bomb.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

A CANADIAN ATLANTIC PORT, Aug. 29.—The Newfoundland three-masted schooner Bianca, before reported captured and sunk by a German submarine off this coast, was toked into this port this morning. The Bianca, which was abandoned by her crew by order of the U-boat commander, was picked up adrift three days ago by a Bistin fishing schooner fitted with an auxiliary engine. This vessel took the Bianca in tow and arrived off the harbour last night. The Newfoundland schooner has been somewhat damaged. The Germans evidently set off a bomb in her hold, as a portion of the deck is raised and the vessel is leaking considerably, but the ship's stout frame held together despite the shock of the explosion, and her cargo of tobacco kept her afloat. The Bianca was bound from Bahia for this port. Her crew landed safely on this roast two days ago.

Food Board Flashes

Foremost among our wheat substitutes is corn in its various forms, for the simple reason that it happens to grow plentifully on the North American continent and does not have to be borne across an ocean to reach Canada.

It is estimated that Mexico's production of corn is worth more in normal times than her production of gold—and this is saying a good deal.

In 1909 the grist mills of the United States produced 27,000,000 bushels of corn meal and cornflour and 837,000,000 pounds of hominy and grist, while the factories canned 168,000,000 cans of corn. In fact, the United States produces two-thirds of the world's supply of corn.

Canadian mills are turning out more corn every day to meet the increased demand for substitutes and at present between 15,000 and 25,000 bushels a day are being handled throughout the Dominion.

TWO SPEEDERS ARE FINED

On Tuesday, August 27, Joseph Smith, the second hand dealer on Aylmer street, was speeding down Peterboorugh's main street with his motor truck. He will contribute $13.10 to the police court funds.

Clarence Fairbairn, 508 College street, was fined $10 and costs, in all $13.75, in the police court this morning. Last Monday he was seen by the police going down George street at a 40 mile an hour clip on a motor cycle, which was the cause of his downfall.

MANY PRISONERS HAVE BEEN TAKEN BY AUSTRIA

(Special to The Examiner.)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—Twenty thousand to twenty-five thousand German prisoners constitute America's portion of the great Allied haul of 112,000 captives since July 1st.

These figures are based on careful estimates of important War Department officials to-day.

The last official figures on American totals were 17,000 towards the end of the Soissons-Rheims struggle. After that time several sizable hauls were made. And the Americans have continued to take prisoners ever since the main fighting died down.

What ratio the prisoners bear to the dead and wounded is somewhat doubtful. One high officer estimated to the United Press that the Teuton dead and wounded certainly run more than three times the captured. On the whole there is an inclination to believe that the German casualties, including prisoners, run a half million or more since July 1st.

MUSIC IN THE HOME

THE OPENING DANCE AT COURT FESTIVITIES.

One of the minor ecects of the war has been to deepen our interest in Poland, that once large and important kingdom which has been divided, made dependent upon others, oppressed, and buffeted politically for years. But the Poles have retained their native tongue and continuous domination has been unable to destroy their passionate love of country and pride of race. These characteristics colour the Polish music which they have cherished. The two leading national forms are the Polonaise, the dance-rhythm of the court and if aristocracy and the Mazurka which is usually associated with the domestic simplicity and jolity of the rural population.

The Polonaise is supposed to have originated over three hundred years ago. About 1574, the new ruler of Poland held a great reception in Cracow. In that royal drawing room the stately nobles and their gorgeously dressed wives marched past the royal seat to the imposing music which received the name of Polonaise. After that whenever a new ruler came to the throne a similar ceremony was held and finally the Polonaise became decognized as the opening dance at court festivities. The modern Polonaise is inclined to be more serious music, more of a promenade than a dance, consisting of a procession for both young and old in dignified order. It is mostly written in 3-4 time with the accent on the second beat.

FROM COOK TO COURT MUSICIAN.

Once upon a time there lived a man, Lully, who contributed much to music in general and French opera in particular. At one time he was an under-scullion in the back kitchen of a French lady whose page he would have been only his ugly appearance disqualified him. But Lully was doomed to expulsion from the kitchen. Between playing the fiddle in the kitchen and by composing a song which gave offense to his mistress he was given his walking ticket.

In some way or other this fellow came to the attention of Louis XIV. who pitied him. The King could hardly put him in the Court band so he gave Lully a commission to form an orchestra of his own, which got the name "Les Petits violons du Roi." This organization of little fiddlers soon gave the big ones a go for first place. Ultimately Lully's men became the Court Band. This man who had climbed so quickly became a great favourite of the King with whom he conversed in a very democratic manner. It is recorded that on one occasion when the programme failed to commence on time, Louis XIV. sent a message to the conductor of the band to hurry up. "Tell the King he can wait," was Lully's off-hand reply.

PIANO STUDENTS WHO NEED THE METRONOME.

A mother who was having her little daughter commence piano lessons enquired of a teacher if she should provide a metronome for this beginner. "What pupils need one," she enquired. On looking over the various classes of piano students it is difficult to think of any one type who would not stand to profit by the use of this simple little wooden pyramid. Those who have a poor sense of rhythm certainly need it. Sometimes a pupil in her own mind thinks the teacher's criticism is inaccurate but the metronome is a strict and an exact instructor making no mistakes.

Slow pupils whose minds work too deliberately, who become confused when ideas are presented in rapid succession need the metronome's mental stimulation. Excitable children who need a training in self-control need the metronome. Ambitious ones who want to do everything at once and insist upon playing fast need it. Lazy ones who go to sleep over a lesson, who have ability to do well if they only will, need it. The unimaginative and self-satisfied ones, content with their present record and not realizing how much they could improve, need it. The talented ones, with a strong personality who should be restrained within reasonable bounds, need it. Those who constantly stop, hesitate and repeat need the habit cured in which the metronome can help materially.

Another class that needs the assistance of the metronome is the bright pupils whose minds think as quick as a flash, who grasp the piece as a whole at first sight and want to play it before they can read the notes. This type always makes hosts of mistakes because he does not really take time to examine details. He does not mean to be inaccurate, he is not intentionally careless but is not aware that he is trying to play too fast. By confining his practice to a slow speed with the metronome there can be secured a greater general correctness with fewer wrong notes to delay the ultimate mastering of the piece. Were there no mistakes to be unlearned and made right the progress would be all the faster. The metronome is to assist piano study, not piano playing. It helps to gain technical skill and to cultivate a correct feeling for rhythm.

Violent Fighting Continues on Vesle

Americans Take Prisoners and Stop Counter Attacks.

(Special to The Examiner.)

(By Fred S. Ferguson.)

With American Armies in France, August 29. — The series of local operations initiated by both sides on the famous Aisne battlefield, has resulted in violent fighting along the Vesle Line. More than a hundred Germans have been captured.

American artillery, working in the open, hurled shells toward the Boche last night, the flash of the guns illuminating the black, overcast sky.

A counter-attack against the Germans late yesterday afternoon broke down completely in the face of heavy artillery and machine gun fire.

NEGOTIATIONS ARE CONTINUING

Sinking of Spanish Steamer May Cause More Trouble.

(Special to The Examiner.)

Amsterdam, August 29. — Germany has not fully acquiesed in the Spanish proposals regarding submarine warfare, according to a semi-official despatch from Berlin to-day. It was stated further negotiations will be undertaken.

The Spanish steamer Carasa, of 2000 tons, is reported to have been torpedoed and six of its crew drowned.

GOT INFORMATION ON THE PLATOON SYSTEM FOR FIRE DEPARTMENT

At the first session of the Fire Chiefs' Convention, Alderman Dobbin presented the question of the platoon system for discussion, and from the opinions expressed by various delegates obtained information which will be useful in determining whether this plan shall be established in Peterborough. For some time Chief Grange has advocated its adoption, and the men have seconded his efforts. It would divide the brigade into two shifts of twelve hours each, and would permit the firement to give more time to their home duties. It would necessarily demand the increasing of the strength of the brigade, and would evidently entail a greater expenditure of money by the Fire, Water and Light Committee. Whatever may be the attitude of the Council toward this question, it will not be introduced this year, but may be offered as a suggestion to the 1919 Council.

Sugar Shortage Not Improved

Fruit Business is Being Affected by the Scarcity.

The shortage of sugar shows no sign of any improvement in the city and the wholesale houses are kept busy answering and refusing insistent demands from the retail stores. The dearth of sugar has had a material effect upon the wholesale fruit business and it was stated this morning at Okes wholesale fruit office that the orders coming in are very small. Householders who have sugar on hand and hope the shortage will react in bringing down fruit prices will be disappointed as the only benefactors will be the canning factories which buy up fruit at any price and charge their customers relatively high figures for the canned goods.

The wholesalers hope for a better situation during the latter part of September when it may not be too late to use the later fruits. At present they have practically none on hand.

If a man enjoys his wealth before he has it he never gets rich.

CAPTURE OF NOYON IS ALL IMPORTANT

Von Hindenburg's Southern Flank May be Severed From His Western Front.

The importance of the fall of Noyon is emphasided by the following article written by J. W. T. Mason, the war expert of the United Press and written before the capture of the stronghold by General Humbert's army was announced:

(By J. W. T. Mason.)

NEW YORK, Aug. 29.—Following yesterday's extensive retirement by the Germans toward the Somme, there is a natural pause for the time being along the west front, while conditions readjust themselves to the new alignment.

Marshal Foch will not press forward recklessly, but will resume his local drives after a careful selection of the weakest spots in the new line Von Hindenburg is now establishing. The front Von Hindenburg has secured by his hop backward toward the Somme, is almost geometrically straight from its nearest point to the Somme southward for twenty miles to Noyon.

The line is, therefore, capable of being held by a minimum number of men, but unfortunately for Von Hindenburg, it turns at right angles toward Noyon. The wedge thus created is by far the sharpest pocket into which Von Hindenburg has put his troops since his west front retirement began. If Marshal Foch were to succeed in cutting through the German angle at Noyon, he would definitely sever Von Hindenburg's southern flank from his western front.

It was for such a result as this that Von Hindenburg played and lost when at St. Quentin last spring he tried to separate the British and French armies. The intensity of the German resistance at Noyon is accounted for by the fact that Von Hindenburg is compelled to sacrifice his troops without regard to number, in order to prevent Noyon from becoming for the Germans a more fatal St. Quentin.

Marshal Foch, for his part, is maintaining strict accord with his basic strategy in declining to use his men for a reckless gamble at Noyon. The chances in the present war have consistently shown great odds against a break through. If Marshal Foch were to make a major attempt at Noyon and fail, after having paid the price of a hundred thousand casualties, the laurels would be Von Hindenburg's.

By confining the Noyon operations to a local scale, but remaining on the alert for any sudden weakness, Marshal Foch is adopting the wiser course. Noyon must be evacuated eventually by Von Hindenburg, and the whole German line moved back, but Von Hindenburg should be prevented from compelling the Allies to pay for this operation by a large casualty list.

GINCHY FALLS INTO HANDS OF HAIG'S TROOPS

SAYS STRIKE IS PRO-GERMAN

Canadian Press:

BUFFALO, N.Y., Aug. 29.— W. J. Conners, head of the Great Lakes Transit Corporation, said to-day that pro-German influences were back of the strike of freight handlers at the docks here. About 1,000 men are out. One vessel with 2,000 barrels of flour aboard was compelled to make the return trip to upper lake ports without discharging her cargo. A meeting of the men has been called for to-night. Union officials said the trouble was due to a misunderstanding and probably would be quickly settled.

"I want every man to lie on his back, put his legs in the air, and move them as if he were riding a bicycle," he explained. "Now commence."

BOWMANVILLE DOES NOT NEED CONSTABLE

Port Hope has dispensed with it day police constable, and Bolmanville is contemplating a similar economy In both towns, it seems, public morals have reached such a plane of perfection that the blue coat has become merely a reminder of the unregenerate days before the redeeming grace of prohibition removed the last blemish as from the municipal record. Now the lakeside towns are habitations of such rectitude and purity that a policeman is a reproach to the public conscience, and particularly a waste of the taxpayers' money.

Port Hope retains a night watchman, but largely as a matter of form and for fire protection. There are scarcely more visitors after dark than in daylight.

GERMANS SNUBBED BY ROUMANIAN KING

Wearing French War Cross, Gives Mission 20 Minutes, Speaking in French.

PARIS, Aug. 28. — The German mission to Roumania has been received by King Ferdinand, according to travellers who have reached here, but the reception was anything but warm. The King at first refused to see the Germans, but finally consented to grant a 20-minute interview in strict accordance with the protocol. Twenty minutes elapsed between the time the Germans entered the King's residence and the time when they were escorted out the gates.

Being German-born, King Ferdinand speaks German fluently. He addressed his visitors in his best French. On his breast there was but one decoration—the French War Cross.

The Germans have not attempted to make another call on the King.

Canadians Mop Up Ground Gained

(By Lowell Mellett.)
(United Press Despatch.)

WITH THE BRITISH ARMIES IN FRANCE, Aug. 29.— The Canadians are within about a mile of Bullecourt (a mile and one-half south-east of Croissulles) and Hendecourt (two miles east of Croisulles). They spent the night cleaning out a mass of dug-outs and pockets filled in by the Germans, including the famous 2,000 yard concrete tunnel running west from Bullecourt to the Sensee river.

At noon the Australians were about three miles from the brick bridge south of Peronne. The German dead west of Bullecourt probably outnumbered the prisoners taken in that vicinity.

The British advance has been so rapid that mopping up parties are kept busy cleaning out enemy nests with bombs and grenades.

WESTERN CROP DAMAGE REPORTS GREATLY MAGNIFIED

Want 10,000 Harvesters at Once.

Reports previously published regarding the damage by frost to the crops in Saskatchewan, were unduly pessimistic. requent showers and favorable weather have changed the outlook and it is apparent that the great Province of Saskatchewan will have a normal crop. This is evidenced by the western demands for Farm Laborers, as not less than 10,000 are required immediately for harvesting.

Every young man and those more mature, in every community in Ontario, including our own, should get away, and should make this a great opportunity to serve the country in a practical way, and at the same time be of invaluable benefit to himself. M. Drummond, Otonabee township, Peterborough county. The bride's twin sister, Miss Alma Cullum, was bridesmaid, and Mr. Robert Miller, best man. Miss Minnie Hutchinson, a cousin of the bride, very charmingly played the wedding marches. Mr. Ernest Cullum, of Condie, gave his sister away. The church was decorated with white asters and sweet peas, and fern. The bride wore navy blue silk and becoming hat. Her corsage bouquet was of white roses and she carried a white prayer book with dainty ribbon streamers and flower buds. Her sister wore grey mousseline de soie and pink roses. The guests accompanied the bridal pair to Mrs. Cullum's home for a buffet supper. White carnations were used with pretty effect in the rooms, and the uniced cake was adorned with tulle and tiny clusters of flowers. A shower of confetti fell as Mr. and Mrs. Drummond took their departure. Their home will be in Swift Current.

WANTS WORKERS EXAMINED.

Gompers Favors Medical Tests by Federal Labor Agencies

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28.—Samuel Gompers, as Chairman of the Committee on Labor of the Council of National Defense, has recommended to Secretary of Labor Wilson that medical examination of the workers be made one of the functions of the Government's labor recruiting agencies, as a measure which "will greatly augment and help to maintain the health of our industrial army."

Accompanying the recommendation is a proposed standard card to be used in making physical examinations. These standard examination cards deal with such subjects as laboratory diagnosis, previous occupations, general appearance relating to deformities, malnutrition and glands, diseases of eyes, ears, nose, mouth and throat, lungs, heart, nervous system, extremities, and such general matters as hernia, hemorrhoids, and evidence of actual blood disease.

"There can be no question as to the wonderful effects that such a movement as here proposed will bring about," says Mr. Gompers. "It is only a matter of education before employers throughout the country will come under this rule that people generally should be physically examined and that the examination should be standardized at least the minimum.

"We are thinking in such terms now as would have been impossible if we had not gotten into the war I feel that we are going through a baptism of fire that will make for quicker and better thinking and a better conception of life. The question of the centuries, 'Am I my brother's keeper?' is being answerd now and answered in the affirmative."

Emphasizing the importance of conducting physical examinations in a manner that will assure the confidence of the workers, Mr. Gompers' committee further recommends the establishment of a central examination board composed of representatives of the workers, employers, and the Government. It is believed by many in Washington that this opens the way to early adoption of social health insurance.

TO EXTEND WORK OF PURCHASING BOARD

Propose It Shall Supervise Reception And Inspection of Government Goods.

OTTAWA, Aug. 28.—The extension of the duties of the War Purchasing Commission to include the supervision of the reception and inspection of goods purchased by the Government is understood to be under consideration. The War Purchasing Commission was created to take charge of the buying of supplies for the Militia Department. Its functions were widened some months ago to give it control of purchasing for all the departments.. The commission upon requisition from a department advertises for tenders for goods and awards the contracts. So far, however, reception and inspection of the goods have been left to the several departments. The proposal now is to have goods received and inspected by the commission, which is composed of business men, and which will thus have full control of all buying for the Government.

OVER 10,000,000 BUSHELS.

Manitoba's Potato Crop Will Be Far the Largest Yet.

WINNIPEG, Aug. 28.—That the potato crop of Manitoba for 1918 will be over 10,000,000 bushels was the estimate made to-day by Prof. Bedford of the Department of Agriculture. This is by far the largest crop the Province has ever produced, and shows an increase of almost a million bushels over the bumper crop of 1916. In that year 62,581 acres produced 9,080,602 bushels of potatoes, as compared with 87,293,656 last year.

Manitoba's potato crop for 1918 is worth $8,000,000.

Mrs. Pankhurst Says British Women Will Support Premier

They Stand With Lloyd George and Against Pacifism--German Peace Offensive Already Manifested in Recent News Items Sent Out of Germany.

WHAT WOMEN HAVE DONE

NEW YORK, Aug. 29.—Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, the English suffragist leader, author and lecturer, has returned to New York, after a tour through the Eastern cities delivering addresses on women's work in the war and a visit to Washington.

After delivering a speech in New York on Labour Day in which at the request of Samuel Gompers, she will deal with the ruin of Russia by the Bolsheviki, Mrs. Pankhurst will go to Canada and then to England for the general election in October to fight for Lloyd George.

Mrs. Pankhurst said yesterday:

"It has been stated that our party was in favour of the Socialist Labour programme. That is the very one we have been fighting against. Lloyd George has not got a machine gun behind him in the coming general election like the 'Wait and See' Liberal leader, Asquith, but he has the women voters with him and we are fighters from the start.

"All the real English people who believe in the win-the-war policy will stand solid with Lloyd-George, and the only ones against him will be the pacifist 'Germany-is-not-so-bad' type and the backers of the Bolsheviki propaganda now being circulated in England.

"Asquith, with his delay, linger and wait-a-while policy will never get control of the Government again while the women have the power to prevent it."

Women's Accomplishments.

She pointed out that the Woman's Party had accomplished the following things since the beginning of the war.

Set an example of loyalty and unity, undertook a great patriotic campaign, supported military service and held recruiting meetings, pioneered and campaigned for the employment of women in munition works, which was the cause of increasing Britain's military strength; sent women speakers all over the world to uphold the Allies' cause at public meetings, carried war into the pacifists' camp and refuted their arguments; attacked the evil of German influence in England; waged war on the "wait and see" war policy of the late Asquith government; fought against every form of compromise peace; devoted every effort against strike agitation, and roused the industrial workers to greater efforts in the national cause.

'Ware the New Peace Offensive.

In speaking of the expected German peace campaign this Fall, Mrs. Pankhurst said:

"It has already commenced in England and France with the intriguing over the proposal to declare Bulgaria a republic and grant her a separate peace, which is being carried on by the pro-Bulgarian-Balkan sympathizers. This would be a great injustice to Serbia and Roumania and a violation of the Treaty of Bucharest which was signed some time before the war commenced in August, 1914.

"The German peace drive," Mrs. Pankhurst continued, "has already started in the United States by the dissemination of the reports that Germany is starving, her people are rioting and pulling down the Emperor's picture and that the army has lost its morale. Each time the Allies have driven the Huns back the same reports have been sent out via Switzerland or Holland, and these are followed by the various peace offers through neutral countries.

"I do not think for one minute that England would make peace now with the enemy, but there are men there and in France who will try to circulate the let-bygones-be-bygones humanitarian talk to try to influence the people. America has done a great work towardending the war by sending an army to Russia we must go on fighting the Bolsheviki until their power over the people has been eradicated for all time."

Pour boiling water over the new potatoes and they will scrape easily.

DRAFT HAS CRIPPLED RAILWAYS IN STATES

WASHHINGTON, Aug. 28.—Prospects of the crippling of railroad operations by the drafting of skilled employees have become so serious that the railroad administration took steps to call the situation sharply to the attention of President Wilson and Secretary of War Baker, with the idea of formulating some systematic plan for giving deferred classification to railroad men.

More than 200,000 employes of the railways already have entered the army.

Canadians Were the Spearhead of the Allies' Great Drive

Had the Hardest Task of the Whole Army, With the British on One Wing and the French on the Other — Covered Themselves With Glory.

JUSTIFIED LEADER'S CONFIDENCE

Ottawa, August 29. — Cables received from France by the government show that the Canadian forces have again covered themselves with glory, and have made another smashing blow against the Huns. Details of the battle are not yet available, but apparently the Canadians have been the spear head of the attack upon the Hindenburg line. This is the view of the Ottawa authorities.

Reports of the decisive attack of August 18 and 19 in which the allied armies made their big successful drive against the Huns show that the Canadians were chosen by General Foch as the pivot of the whole attack. The Canadians attacked in the centre with the British on the left wing and the French on the right. Everything depended upon General Currie's men. If the Canadians had failed the whole attack would have collapsed. But the Canadian offensive was so successful that they made the greatest penetration since trench warfare began—some fifteen miles. They were given the hardest task of the whole army and more than lived up to the expectations of General Foch and Sir Douglas Haig. As they were the spear head their casualties were naturally heavy although they were light considering the objects attained and the prisoners captured.

While there are as yet no details, it is thought likely the Canadians have been again given the place of honour along with some of the most tried British and Scottish troops in the smash to force the Hindenburg line.

"The Girl Who Had No God"

By MARY ROBERTS RINEHART
Author of "The Man in Lower Ten," The After House," Etc.

"Nevertheless," Ward said suddenly, "I am not at all sure that I like your living alone. It doesn't seem safe."

"Safe"

"Perhaps I am unwise to alarm you. But this outrage at the country club——"

"Ah!" said Elinor, and bent toward him.

"There is no longer any question that a band of desperadoes is terrorizing the country; an organized band of considerable intelligence. They get their information from the inside. This last outrage shows it. No one is safe."

"And this country club affair?" asked Elinor, watching Ward intently.

"An audacious piece of work. Half the women in this vicinity suffered. Most of them are my parishioners."

"Ah!" breathed Elinor, "I am sorry."

Ward shrugged his shoulders ruefully. "It means, I dare say, that the poor of the parish will get less than ever this year. Mrs. Bryant, for instance, who has always been generous, lost a pearl necklace and a wonderful pear-shaped pink pearl."

"Is she—a wealthy woman?"

"Very, I believe."

"Then is it such a terrible thing for her to lose the pearl? Perhaps these bandits, as you call them, they could use these things better than the people who owned them."

Ward smiled. "I daresay we all think we could use the other fellow's possessions better than he does."

Elinor persisted, frowning a little. "Things are so terribly mixed up," she said. "If you could know the things that I know"— Ward looked faintly amused— "the people who are fighting for a principle, and have nothing to fight with, fighting for life sometimes! A good half of the world, you know, just struggles along, and the other half is so smug, so satisfied; it's—it's horrible."

Mr. Ward stared at her.

"How in the world do you come by such thoughts?" he demanded.

"I've never known anything else; I was brought up on the injustice of things. You have your poor here in the parish, but you see I was brought up with the poor of all the world. I am afraid I'm always for the under dog."

Rather startled was the Reverend Mr. Ward that Summer afternoon on the terrace at the Hall, startled and puzzled.

"Down in our hearts," he said, "perhaps we are all of us for the under dog. But how does that excuse my bandits?"

"This Mrs. Bryant—how much do you suppose you are going to lose for your poor by her loss?"

"Not so much, but enough. She has promised a lot of things. She called up this morning to say that it was all off." He started to say that all bets were off, but decided that it was unclerical and changed it. "But I didn't come here to worry you about myself or the parish. I think you should not be here alone."

Elinor looked down over the village.

"Then perhaps after all it would be better if I married at once."

"Ah! You are to be married?"

"Now that my father is gone," said Elinor wistfully, "it seems the best thing. And I should like children. I have no friends, except perhaps you."

Ward strove to keep his voice steady, and matter-of-fact.

"Marriage is so serious—so vital a thing." He was trying to be calm and judical. But his voice sounded far off; his heart pounded in his ears "To marry because one is alone, or needs friends—is a flimsy foundation to build on."

Once again Elinor surprised him.

"There have been few really great passions in the world," she said. "I could almost count them on my fingers. The rest of us seem to get along without."

"Perhaps there are more than we hear about. Every now and then, in my work, I come across something so much greater than I had expected, self-sacrifice, love, charity, as to justify my faith in mankind."

"Your faith!" Elinor said softly. "That is what I envy you—your faith. Not only your faith in your kind, but —the other sort."

Faith, hope and charity—and the greatest of these is faith. Alas for old Hilary, who had not kept his!

"I had a governess once who had that sort of faith; it was a great comfort to her. But I sit here on my hillside, and it seems to me that spread out at my feet is all the injustice and cruelty and hatred in the world. And your God allows it all. My father tried to believe—tried hard, but he said that when he asked for bread they gave him a stone."

"Do you know who said that?"

"My father," said Elinor.

Rather surprised, he let it go at that.

CHAPTER VI

So great had the urgency of Boroday's position become that the band met at the Hall on Thursday of the week after the country-club affair.

Lethbridge was to get his instructions; Talbot wished to discuss his prospect.

After dinner, the night being warm, they had their coffee on the terrace.

A Summer storm had come up. All at once a flash threatened Saint Jude's.

Huff leaped to his feet.

"I've got it!" he said. "What is it they call the big building back of the church?"

None of the men knew. It was, as a matter of fact, the parish house. Lethbridge, however, knew its function.

"Fine prospect that! he drawled. "That's where the Sunday School is held, and where they keep the plated knives and forks for the church suppers."

"It's a darned fine building," said Huff. "What would they do if it burned down?"

They were too familiar with church affairs to hazard a guess. Elinor, who had been sitting silent, suddenly voiced an objection to Huff's unspoken plan.

"There must be some other way," she said. "The children—they have sewing-classes and entertainments for the children there. It's the parish house.'

"If lightning struck the parish house to-night—" Huff said eagerly "This is Thursday. By Sunday morning they would be taking up a whacking big collection to rebuild it."

The idea had taken hold of his imagination. Even the suggestion that a large part of the offertory might be in checks mattered not. But Elinor was obdurate.

"You can do it some place else," she said. "Not here. They struggled very hard to build the church and they need money now. Mr. Ward told me——"

Huff turned on her jealously.

"Ward—that's the preacher chap?"

"He is the assistant rector," Elinor replied with dignity.

"He's been coming here, then?"

"Twice. Once when father died, and once to warn me against all of you." Not that she had forgotten that few minutes in the garden, under the moon; but that had been an accident—hardly a call.

Talbot chuckled. But Huff was thinking hard. Elinor had been different lately, a little softer. Ward represented all that the men Elinor knew were not—law to their violence, order to their disorder. There was almost a snarl in his voice.

"He'd better stay down in his valley with his old women," he said, "and leave you alone. You don't need him."

"Im not so sure of that," Elinor replied quietly, and left him staring.

. . . . .

Huff burned the parish house the next night. He did it himself, without the assistance of the band. Into it he put only the devilish ingenuity of long experience, but his new hatred of Ward.

Church property is always easy of access. It was the work of five minutes to crawl through a basement window and of half an hour to make his preparations.

He looked at his watch when he had finished. It as just midnight. In two hours or before the fire began, he would be back in the city, establishing his alibi.

The fire whistles in the village wakened Elinor at something after three o'clock. All of her room was filled with the red glare of the burning parish house. Old Henriette knocked at her door.

"The church is burning down in the valley," she called. "It's a grand sight."

Elinor was throwing on her clothing.

She must see Ward. She would sell her pearls. She would build a new parish house. She said this over and over to herself as she struggled down the hill.

A new parish house, better than the old, with plenty of room for the children to play in! At least it was night, and the children safe in their beds: thank God for that! She was too disturbed to notice that she had thanked the God in whom she did not believe.

The fire had gained too much headway to be checked. All the efforts of the volunteer department and the small engine were directed toward saving the church. For a time it seemed as if Saint Jude's must go.

Elinor watched the destruction. It seemed as though a band had fastened itself around her chest. Then she saw Ward. He was on the ridge-pole of the church roof with a hatcher. The ridge-pole was burning slowly. She could see him chopping.

MRS. DOOLEY'S ADVICE TO WORKING GIRLS

Milwaukee, Wis.—"I wish all girls who work and suffer from functional disorders would profit by my advice and take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Before I was married, when I came home from work at night, I would be just worn out with pains which dragged me down. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it made me feel like a new woman. I can work from morning until night and it does not bother me, and I wish all girls who suffer as I did would try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. H. Dooley, 1135 25th Street, Milwaukee, Wis.

Working girls everywhere should profit by Mrs. Dooley's experience, and instead of dragging along from day to day with life a burden, give this famous root and herb remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial. It has overcome just such conditions for thousands of others, and why not for you? For special advice, write Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass. The result of their 40 years experience is at your service.

IN LONDON TOWN.

Some Activities In Which the Canadians Are Interested.

The Canadians in London are busy at the work which comes to hand and there seems an ever-increasing demand to minister to the needs of the troops.

The latest appeal comes from Lt.-Col. T. E. Perrett of Regina, whose sight has been impaired during this war, and who is an inmate of the St. Dunstan's Hostel for men blinded during the war.

There are a number of Canadians who have suffered this sad affliction and who are learning to do many things in this wonderful school founded by Sir Arthur Pearson to alleviate the sufferings of men who must live in total darkness, for King and Empire's sake. Col. Perrett says that the Canadians wish to keep in touch with all Canadian matters, with home folk and home news, and asks the Canadians in London to visit them regularly and by talking with them, keep them in touch with what is happening at home.

They miss the newspapers which, of course, they are unable to read. A number of people will take turns visiting them, and helping them to pass the time.

Some English ladies have organized themselves and have given little dances and musicals for the officers of St. Dunstan's and I am told they enjoy them very much.

One is filled with amazement to see the St. Dunstan men walking about in Regent's Park. They are taught to walk without fear and have very little of the appearance of being blind.

When Sir Arthur Pearson lost his sight the literary world was filled with sorrow that so brilliant a man had been laid by, but there has not been a greater work performed for the men who have suffered in this fight for freedom than that which he has done for the blind. It is worthy of the greatest support that can be given to it and the Canadians in London have from the first taken a keen interest in its working.

The Canadian nurses are very comfortable in the lovely nurses' club, which has been provided for them at Lancaster Gate through the I.O.D.E. It was formally opened by her Royal Highness, Princess Patricia, and in its well furnished and spacious rooms the women whose professional work has received so much favorable comment will find a beauty and quietude which will be so much needed after their trying work on active service and the exacting demands which hospitals filled to the utmost must make upon them. Lady Perley and Mrs. George McL. Brown looked very happy as they left the building after the opening. These untiring workers must share with the Countess of Minto and the National Chapter I.O.D.E. through Mrs. Albert Gooderham of Toronto, their regent, the credit for bringing such a splendid home into existence for the nurses of the Land of the Maple whose pretty uniforms add such a pleasing touch of color to the crowness of old London Town.

Happy are the miseries that end in joy.—German Proverb.

AUTO MANUACTURING IN STATES CURTAILED.

Washington, Aug. 28. — Passenger automobiles are to be limited in production to 25 per cent. of the 1917 output for the remainder of the calendar year 1918, after which no more cars are to be made. This was in effect the announcement by the War Industries Board to-day, Bernard N. Baruch, the chairman of the Board, and representatives of various divisions of the Board, reaching a satisfactory conclusion on their negotiations with representatives of the automobile industry concerning the curtailment to be effected in the production of passenger cars.

In effect the agreement provides that no manufacturer of passenger automobiles shall produce in the second half of this year more than 25 per cent. of the number of cars produced by him in the entire year 1917.

LONDON, Aug. 28.—The Board of Agriculture states that the arable area in England and Wales amounts to 12,400,000 acres, an increase of 1,152,000 compared with 1917, and a record for twenty years. The wheat acreage has increased by 638,000 acres and is a record since 1884. Oats have increased by 23 per cent., corn and pulse 24 per cent., and potatoes by 25 per cent., all records.

REMEMBER BY GIVING!

EW of us thoroughly appreciate the part that is being played by the Merchant Marine in the winning of the war. The ships that carry our soldiers across, through the perils of the Atlantic, are manned by the men of the Merchant Marine.

The submarine cannot claim to have taken the life of one Canadian soldier going to France!

The ships that carry munitions, supplies and FOOD "over there" are merchant vessels, and it was, and is, the main object of the submarine to frighten the men of the Merchant Marine off the seas.

15,000 men of this service have paid the price but still 300,000 "carry on," regardless of the peril. We are proud to take care of the widows, orphans and dependents of these brave men.

The Government makes no provision for them. Right or wrong, this is the fact: It leaves us with a duty and a privilege---to provide for the dependents of the men of the Merchant Marine, who are nobly dying in the cause.

HIGHER INSURANCE ON SECOND HAND AUTOS

Pension to Be Cut Off.

A day or so ago Mr. S. J. Rodger, of Kingston, acting for the Netherlands Government, paid to Karl Kessler, a convict in the Portsmouth Penitentiary, the equivalent of about $300, being his pension from the German army, of which he had been a member for many years. Accompanying the pension was the intimation from the German authorities that this would probably be the last instalment which Kessler would receive for some time owing to the fact that money was becoming short in Germany. Kessler was among the Germans interned in Fort Henry early in the war, and he gave considerable trouble to the guards over there, finally assaulting one of them so severely that he was landed behind the bars at Portsmouth for his offence. He has still some time to serve.

Art of Weaving.

The arts of weaving and rope and net-making are practiced by some of the lower forms of life, notably among caterpillars and spiders. The weaver birds of Africa and India, which are a species of finch, construct wonderful nests out of leaves by sewing them together.

Brave Barnardo Boys.

Six thousand Barnardo boys have enlisted for overseas service in the Canadian forces. Of these about 350 have paid the supreme sacrifice. Accounts of the boys are most encouraging and they are proving themselves a splendid type of soldier.

Hit by Tombstone.

While playing in the old cemetery of St. Peter's Road Church, near Montreal, recently twelve-year-old Jimmy Manderson was seriously injured by an ancient headstone falling upon him. Medical attendants predict a recovery.

GLADIATORS IN WARTIME.

A Contrast That Must Interest People of Canada.

Wellington's dictum that the Battle of Waterloo was won on the playing fields of Eton is an epigramatic way of expressing the general knowledge that a training in athletic sports is calculated to fit a man for the dangers and hardships of war. British casualty lists are gemmed and studded with the names of fallen officers who in time of peace distinguished themselves in the football field, the cricket crease, on the river and at polo, and in a dozen other outdoor sports. It may be that the deep-chested athlete has shown no greater bravery than the puny clerk, but he has at any rate lived up to the best traditions of British sportsmanship and manhood and has played the great game as gallantly and as modestly as he played his boyish games before the war. What is true of British sportsmen and athletes has been equally true of Canadian and Australian athletes. Here in Canada, the great national game, lacrosse, has almost ceased to exist on account of the war. The casualty lists have contained the names of many well known lacrosse players, both amateurs and professionals, and the figures presented at lacrosse conventions indicate that the majority of the active players have long since been in khaki. A great many American athletes from all branches of amateur sport have already gone to France, and it is because of the striking contrast to what English-speaking athletes in general have done that attention is directed to the part played by professional baseball players in the United States.

Those of them who have been conscripted have no option but to go, but those who fear they may yet have to enlist are taking precautions that do more credit to their ingenuity than to their patriotism. Many of them have found a haven in shipbuilding. If engaged as shipbuilders they will be exempt from the next draft, or so, at any rate, they believe, and they are as busy as so many Noahs in seeking employment as shipbuilders. The job does not pay as well as baseball, but better than soldiering, and is much safer. When the war is over these heroes of the diamond expect to return to the ball parks with whole hides and once more prance and pose before the American public. In this they probably miscalculate. They will find that there is no longer a desire on the part of the American people to contribute to the support of athletes who in time of peace were considered the very gladiators of the country, but who, when war broke out, showed nothing but a determination not to expose themselves to danger.

A Champion of Women.

Evidences of the high esteem of the fair sex should descend upon John Farrell, of Forest, in a plenteous shower. Mr. Farrell has just publicly declared that in preference to seeing women working in the fields of Canada he would take a lantern and do the work by night.

"HOW'S FISH?"

The Fishermen Do Their Part In Winning the War.

Men greet each other on the street in Eastern Canada with the question, "How's fish?" Vessels hail each other at sea with the same salutation. Whatever road you take through maritime Canada it is a highway of fish. Eastern fishing does not have its "on and off" years like the salmon fishing of the west, and stability of the catch—never falling below, but frequently exceeding the average—is what, the "governments" and "people" counting on the work that fish can do in "loosening up" the food markets of the "allies," must be assured of.

One way and another by "stabilizing the catch" east and west and by judicious disposition of the overplus here and there, Canada throughout is this year more than measuring up to standard in her output of fish.

Gloucester schooners laying "off and on" the little outports of Nova Scotia, Cape Breton and Quebec are able to buy up their cargoes of "green fish" for American market as usual. Their decks awash, these daredevil, fleet-winged schooners are beating into port, all sails adrawing, on the minute, with the "freight" seven days out from Vancouver to Boston, chock-a-block with its boxes of frozen halibut. This is the first time in the history of railroads that the express is side-tracked to let the freight pass, and this is the first time since codfish practically saved the life of the early New England colonies that fish has downed all other competitors in the food line, and come into its own, waltzing on to the menus of our large and most exclusive hotels and landing on the smallest home table in the land.

This time, of course, was bound to come, for fish is a fundamental. But at the same time fish could not have done the work it is doing to-day, in going to the trenches itself and in springing to the assistance of the home table, freeing the tons of beef it has freed, had it not been for Canada.

The old local slogan of the hook-and line regions, "Fish against beef," has now come into a world-wide significance — a significance that has come to stay, but one that never could have come about had it not been for "King Cod" and those "Vikings of the North," the Canadian fishermen.

Woman Wrote the King.

Sent home from the army by the King's personal command, issued through his mother's entreaty, Gilbert Steward is now in Sault Ste. Marie. As Steward was but 16 when he enlisted with the 227th Battalion, and as he had two brothers overseas the mother persistently tried with the Canadian authorities to secure his release without avail. Undaunted she wrote to King George and waited. Her first letter miscarried and she wrote again. His Majesty heard the appeal and gave orders that the boy be returned. The 227th was then in England. Steward was ready to embark for France when he received the order, but did not know how his discharge came about until he returned home.

PLANNING A GREAT BATTLE.

Every Detail Prearranged — Nothing Left to Chance.

In planning for the offensive battle the first question to be decided is the location of the sector where the offensive is to take place. This decision will be made by the general in command of the army. It is not as easy a question as would appear at first, for many considerations must enter into the choice of the sector, which must be one that will allow all branches of the service to participate in the battle, that is to say, the configuration of the ground should be favorable, so as to permit of the deployment of great masses of men. Some sectors, such as the Aisonne, being very hilly and very abrupt, are not favorable ones for an attack. The sector must be one which is of importance to the enemy, so that its loss would place him in an awkward position. Often this sector will be chosen because it is a great centre of communication and thus forms a vital part of the enemy's lines.

The offensive sector having been chosen, the work of the staff will then begin and its task will be a very long and difficult one, for the most careful consideration must be given to the many details which are of the gravest importance. This war is a war of details. The side which has planned most accurately, without omitting anything, will have great chances of being victorious. The staff must also draw to the greatest extent on the imagination, in order to visualize what is likely to happen and to be able to realize what certain means will produce under certain circumstances. It must be able to realize what is humanely possible, and it must not count on superhuman achievements which, although sometimes accomplished by gallant troops, should not be reckoned with as a probability. — Capt. Jacques Rouvier, of the French Military Mission to the United States, in Scribner.

A LOVER OF MEN.

An Anecdote of the Famous John Muir.

In my intimate companionship with Muir in Alaska, I saw many instances of his warm human sympathy. One occurred when in 1879 we were visiting the tribe of Chilcats. These Chilcats, recognized as the most war-like and arrogant of the Thlinget tribes, were nevertheless so interested in the Gospel message I had to bring them, that they crowded the house where we lodged, filling it full, and prying off planks from its side so that those without could hear, and some even scrambled upon the roof to listen through the smokehole.

The first night we spent in the village, after an all-day's palaver, we were about to retire to our blankets, when a woman brought a baby to us which was almost a skeleton from lack of nourishment, and whose feeble cry was most pitiful to hear. The woman explained that the baby's mother had died, and that they had no food for the child—none of the other women being in condition to nurse it. At once Muir and I set about preparing condensed milk for the baby. We diluted it with warm water until we thought it of the proper consistency, and fed it to the starving baby. The child was almost too weak to take this nourishment, and it required the utmost patience and care to feed it. Muir worked with that little papoose almost all night, rocking it in his arms and soothing its cries, and when at last it rested in a healthful, refreshing sleep, he carefully showed the woman how to prepare its food. The natives voluntarily told me when we were about to leave that if the baby lived it belonged to me, and they would bring it down to me. I thought little of their promise, knowing how easily people forget such things; but five years after this occurrence I was surprised to have some Chilcat natives bring a sturdy and healthy little boy, and formally give him to me, saying that this was the baby whose life we had saved, and he therefore belonged to us. The child was taken into our mission at Wrangel, and I baptized him with the name of "John," after my friend. — S. Hall Young, in World's Outlook.

An Energetic Canadian.

Among various Canadian women who have received recognition for splendid war services Madame Chase Casgrain, of Ottawa, has been awarded a gold medal from Marquis de Vogue, vice-president of the Society of Agriculture in France. The medal, which is an unusually handsome one, bears the following inscription: "Services eminent rendus aux agriculteurs Francais victimes de a Guerre, 1918."

Madame Casgrain was the first woman in Canada appealed to to work for the relief of devastated regions in France. Through the Madeline de Vescheres Chapter of the I.O.D.E. in Ottawa, of which she is regent, Madame Casgrain has been enabled to send over $15,000 for this work.

She recently returned from a trip to the coast, covering some 9,000 miles, lecturing at various centres where she told them of the deplorable conditions in France. "If the east responds like the west we have prospects of a wonderful fund," said Madame Casgrain. "We are looking forward to at least one million francs." Madame Casgrain has gone to France, where she will conduct a canteen under the French Military Red Cross, where President Marquis de Noailles has established a hut to feed the people from the devastated regions.

Friction Between Services.

Friction in Canada between the chaplain service and the Y.M.C.A. is indicated in the relations between these two services in France. The chaplains are indignant at the claim of the Y.M.C.A. to have organized the Vimy Ridge University. This excellent educational course originated with Revs. Clarence McKinnon, of Halifax, and Dr. Oliver, Saskatchewan University. Both the chaplains and the Y.M.C.A. are doing good work in France, and both services are required. It is true the Y.M.C.A. gains considerable funds by sales at a large profit, but they also aid the men with free entertainments, etc. The work of the chaplains of the army is unequalled for sacrifice and for sympathetic aid for the men. The chaplains' work at Passchendaele called forth generous praise from the higher command as well as the rank and file. The quarrel between the two services is deeply regretted for if a settlement is not reached the work of both will be handicapped with serious loss to the men. All last winter, before Lens, the chaplains were continually in the front trenches, looking after the comforts of the men. Funds for the chaplains' work are inadequate, and there should be an equal division of contributions for the work of the chaplains and the Y.M.C.A. in France.

Whale Steak.

An interesting experiment was recently inaugurated at Vancouver, where two thousand pounds of whale steak were offered in the leading fish and meat markets at the price of fivepence a pound. Many citizens took home a sample, but reports are not yet to hand as to the reception accorded the sea dainty by the families. Although it is in the nature of an experiment in Vancouver, it is stated that whale has already become a more or less standard fish in San Francisco, Seattle, Victoria and other Pacific coast cities. The Japanese have long used the lean part of the whale for food. It looks like beefsteak, and tastes something like beef. It is more tender than the average beefsteak, and is said to compare favorably with the more common meats in nutritive value. Each whale, it is estimated, is good for between two and three tons of meat, and, as there are no bones or other waste, a season's whaling catch might go a long way toward feeding the people in these days of food restriction.—Family Herald.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

Spug for a Day

By James Osborn

Clarice Wardham and Nancy Smith had gone through high school together and their friendship was of the sort that could not be altered, even when Nancy went to business school and later took a stenographer's position in a business office, and Clarice, through her father's acquired fortune, became one of the most sought after young women in what chose to be called, and was called Society, with a capital S. Clarice did not give Nancy her old dresses, nor did she try to persuade her to attend the parties she gave, to which only folk with very much more money to spend than Nancy had were invited. When she asked Nancy to her house it was either to enjoy her alone or with a few of the old friends with whom Nancy could be most at her ease. Thus Nancy was never made conscious of the fact that fortune had dealt less kindly with her than it had with Clarice, if indeed it really had.

When Clarice first met Robert Harrow and somehow unwittingly charmed and then captivated that inveterate man of business, she did not tell him that Nancy Smith, his private secretary, was one of her best friends. It was not in the least because she was ashamed of her association, but because she liked the idea of having a means of seeing Mr. Harrow from another angle than that of society and country club activities without his knowing it. Clarice, truth to say, was drawn to Harrow almost as soon as he was to her, for there was something about this rather rough strange mixture of a man that charmed women quite as much as if he had been most courteous and courtly. Sometimes he seemed the broadest of men in his large grasp of events that Clarice discussed with him, and sometimes the narrowest in his point of view, that seemed to see only his own business interests. Sometimes he seemed the most generous and unselfish, and then the least generous and most selfish. Drawn though Clarice was to this much discussed and almost eccentric young man, she planned to surrender, if she surrendered at all, with deliberation. She had planned not to lose a single trick in the love game she was about to play with this man, who had become accustomed to having things generally his own way in the other games of life.

It has been said that a man's stenographer has an opportunity to know him even better than his own wife, for she sees him more hours of the day usually, and can study him without personal prejudice of any sort. Nancy Smith surely knew Robert Harrow better than he knew himself, and it was perhaps not strange that she suspected he was in love before he was willing to admit that fact to himself, much less to Clarice. She had heard from Clarice of the friendship that had sprung up between her and Mr. Harrow, and with infinite care sounded her regarding him and so found out how the ground lay.

Once Clarice, with an attempt at seeming casual, asked Nancy what sort of a husband she thought Mr. Harrow would make.

"I could be his stenographer all my life and enjoy it," explained Nancy, "but I could never endure him as a husband. But with a girl like you, it would be different. You would collect all the little feminine witcheries to fall back on you, or a girl like you, I should say, might find him a perfect husband."

"One thing Mr. Harrow's wife would have to remember, though," added Nancy, "and that is that she should never once let him take her for granted. It would be like taming a lion—once the beast knows his power, the tamer is lost. Some women are cut out for just that sort of thing, you know, and never in a lifetime let their husbands know what meek, tame hearts they have."

Nancy and Clarice thus discussed Mr. Harrow over the chocolate cups one day at luncheon, late in December, when Clarice had gone downtown for Christmas shopping.

That afternoon Harrow gave the switchboard operator gruff orders to the effect that he was "too busy to be disturbed," and then sat at his desk, with no one but Nancy sharing his solitude, looking blankly into space for a full hour, his head bent and his arms akimbo. He started to his feet when he roused himself and paced the floor impatiently.

"Take this," he threw at Nancy. "Memo for the cashier's office—'Owing to war conditions and necessity to curtail every possible expense, we shall give no gold pieces at Christmas.'"

Nancy took the words down in dots, curves and dashes, and recalled as she did so that in the firm of which Harrow was president "war conditions" had meant 25 per cent greater profit than usual.

"Take this," he threw out again. "It is for my housekeeper, Mrs. Hawkins. Owing to war conditions, I have found it inadvisable to dispense with any additional money in the wages to the servants this year.' And when you

Puzzles About Bible Animals.

When the huge German liner Vaterland was confiscated by the United States Government (since which time she has carried great numbers of troops and immense quantities of supplies to France), she was appropriately renamed Leviathan.

At all events, the new name seemed appropriate, for it is popularly understood that leviathan means "whale." The truth is, however, that it means nothing of the kind. The leviathan of the Bible was the crocodile.

For proof of this let the searcher of the Scriptures turn to the book of Job, where he will find the leviathan described as having scales that are "shut up together as with a close seal," which "cannot be sundered," and which neither sword, spear nor arrow can penetrate.

Job (who lived about 700 B.C.) seems to have been much interested in natural history. His zoological observations were remarkably accurate, and, being the possessor of great wealth, he doubtless travelled and enjoyed opportunities of seeing plenty of crocodiles.

The books of the New Testament were originally in Greek; those of the Old Testament, of course, in Hebrew. When the first "authorized version of the Bible was framed early in the seventeenth century, the scholars who undertook the work of translation were puzzled to identify some of the scriptural beasts. The crocodile was unknown in Europe at that period, and, not having even heard of the hippopotamus, they let the Hebrew word "behemoth" stand.

The unicorn (which to-day appears on the British coat-of-arms) is generally regarded as a fabulous animal—a creature somewhat resembling a horse, with a single spike-like horn. But the Bible mentions it; and, as a matter of fact, there are plenty of unicorns alive to-day and roaming wild in the deserts of northern Africa. The beast in question is the "addax" antelope, and is represented on many an ancient Egyptian monument. It is, however, shown in profile, so that its two horns appear as one—a circumstance that gave rise to the notion of the single horn.

Ezekiel speaks of huge scaly reptiles that lie out in rivers watching for prey. Again in this case it was crocodiles that were meant. But the Bible translators, being ignorant of the existence of such monster saurians, called them, in the authorized version, "dragons."

A Man's Birthday.

We do not know whence a man comes nor whither he goes, yet we choose his birth or death day to celebrate his recurring century. We should choose his day of achievement.—London Saturday Review.

Isn't This True?

When you "feel mean" — dull, tired, nervous, bad digestion, no appetite—

Don't you find out, afterwards, that your bowels were not acting freely and naturally?

Due, of course, to a liver gone on a strike.

Take two or three pills—once. After that, only one, until your're all right.

SOME FIRSTS IN WAR.

Saul Had First Standing Army—Sword Came From Egypt.

The first standing army was formed by Saul, 1093 B.C.

The catapult was invented by Dionysius 399 B.C.

The sword came from ancient Egypt and was used throughout Palestine, Syria and Asia Minor, India and throughout the western world. It was in Egypt that the three shapes of the sword blade originated, these being the straight, the curved and the half curved. The Roman sword was larger than that of the Greeks, and in the days of the Empire many of the sheaths were so covered with precious stones as to be veritable art treasures. Among the Moslems the highest title given to a warrior of renown is "the sword of Allah." The Chinese made swords of iron as early as 1879 B.C.

Bullets of stone were used in 1514, while bombs came into general use in 1634. Bomb vessels had their origin in France in 1681. Fireships first appeared in the early part of the sixteenth century.

The use of cannon dates back to the year 1338. Artillery constructed of brass first appeared in 1635. Among the curiosities of artillery odd inventions have a great place Cannon have been made of the most unlikely materials. Leather was used as early as Henry VIII.'s day, at the siege of Boulogne. The Scotch used leather guns in 1640 to batter Lord Conway's fortifications at Newbourne. Artillery was first used in war by the Moors at Algeciras Spain, in 1341. Cannon were first used by the English, by direction of the Governor of Calais, in 1383.

Iron bullets were first mentioned in the Foedera in 1550. Muskets were first used in 1414, during the siege of Arras, while chain shot was a device of a Dutch admiral, De Witt, in 1666.

The bayonet was invented in Bayonne, France, in 1670.

Pistols were first employed by the British cavalry in 1544. The revolving chambered breech of the pistol was patented by Colt in 1835.

Muskets supplanted the bow and arrow among the British soldiery in 1521. Spain was the first nation to equip foot soldiers with muskets.

Leaden bullets came into use shortly before the end of the sixteenth century.

The Minie rifle was invented about 1833 by M. Minie, of Vincennes. The battering ram had its beginning with Artemones, 441 B.C. while the first army arranged in regular line of battle was that of Palamedes of Argos.

Palamedes is credited with devising the idea of placing sentinels with pickets around a camp. The watch word as used by sentinels is supposed to have been his conception also.

A Patriotic Jap.

A Japanese resident of Vancouver recently enlisted in a British Columbia battalion, and, before going to the front, wished to sell a small marine engine. He wrote to a possible purchaser, as reported in the Vancouver World, the following letter. Its English may be unidiomatic, but it makes his meaning clear and his spirit infectious: "I was educated in a most excellent high school in Japan and in high hope of my condition bettering made my resolution and embarked for this nation. But this do not find themselves thus. By time eventuated. I have signal honor to fight for this land and am contributing my property before I depart to encounter common foe, dam Hun, excuse me I beseech you in colloquial phraseology. Price $5 dollars. Ask for K—— T——."

"Live in a Worry"

invites death in a hurry." Worry wastes nerve force at a tremendous rate. The more exhausted the greater the tendency to worry.

Then how is one to get out of this vicious circle? By building up the nervous system with the aid of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

As the nerves are strengthened you forget to worry and find yourself resting and sleeping naturally.

ROBERT GORMAN'S THIRD SON KILLED

OTTAWA, Aug. 28.—Within the past five months three of the four sons of Robert Gorman, formerly of Ottawa, but now of Los Angeles, have paid the supreme sacrifice while serving in England and France with the Canadian forces. This morning word was received that Lieut. Geo. L. Gorman, Mr. Gorman's third son, had been instantly killed in action by a shell on August 17. It is only three weeks since word was received in Ottawa of the death in England of Flight-Lieut. Emmett Gorman, second son of Robert Gorman, as the result of an airplane accident, and a few months previous Lieut. T. Clarence Gorman, of the Engineers, was killed in action in France.

An Irishman who had listened to a sermon on the judgment day stepped up to the pastor and said: "Father, I want to ask you a few questions touching on what you preached about to-day. Do you really think that on the judgment day everybody will be there?" The priest said: "That is my understanding." "Will Cain and Abel be there?" "Undoubtedly," "And David and Goliath—will they both be there?" "That is m information and belief." 'And Brian Boru and Oliver Cromwell will be there?" "Assuredly they will be present." "And the A.O.H.'s and A.P. A.'s?" "I am quite positive they will al be there together." "Father," said the parishioner, there'll be little judgin' done the first day."

Language on the Prairies.

In charging the twenty-eighth Synod of the Church of England in the diocese of Qu'Appelle, the Bishop of Qu'Appelle spoke strongly on the question of language and religious education in the public schools, as follows: "Canadians, we shall ever take a deep interest in our common school. What our schools are to-day our people will be to-morrow. The importance of insisting upon every child being taught to speak the English language cannot be exaggerated. In an immense country like ours, where it is so easy for a foreign community to preserve its identity and language and for children to grow up in ignorance of British institutions and customs, it is nothing less than criminal in the light of passing events to be indifferent to the education of the children of those who, of their own free will and accord, have sought and accepted the privileges and responsibilities of British citizenship, and to allow them to continue in ignorance of the English language. Without this knowledge it is quite possible for the children of foreigners to dwell in our midst and yet live through life in thought and allegiance to a foreign land."

His Discovery.

A professor of history met one of his class who had returned from fighting on the western front, and asked him if he had learned any particular lesson from the war.

"I have discovered," replied the young man, "that it is a great deal easier studying history than it is making it."

Christian Giving. Luke 6:30-38; 21: 1-4.

Golden Text: Remember the words of the Lord Jesus that he himself said: It is more blessed to give than to receive. Acts 20:35.

1. Verse 30. Must we literally give to all who ask, and let all who will steal our goods, or does Christ mean that we must be willing to do that or any ordinarily unreasonable thing if God, or the law of love so requires?

2. Verses 31-33. Wherin ought a Christian to be better than a sinner in his treatment of his fellows?

3. Is it easy or difficult for a truly good man, and why, to literally treat others as he would like to be treated?

4 Verse 34. When Christians loan money does Jesus mean that they should not require proper security, or does he simply mean that in taking security they are not entitled to any more merit than a sinner would under similar circumstances?

5. Verse 35. Which is generally the better way, and why, to help those in need—to loan them money without security, or to give it to them?

6. What is the reward or profit for loaning money without security to the needy with the sole object of helping them?

7. Verse 36. What is implied in being merciful as God is?

8. Verse 37. What does Jesus mean by judge not, condemn not, and forgive?

9. Verse 38. What evidence have we for believing that if we give liberally of our money to the needy, that God will cause our fellows to give with superabundance to us?

10. What proportion of our income would you consider to be very liberal giving?

11. Verse 38. Is liberal giving optional or obligatory for a Christian and why?

12. Chap. 21:1. What reward do the wicked rich get, for liberal giving?

13. What proportion of his income should a rich Christian man give to religion and benevolence during his life time?

14. Verse 1. When or under what circumstances, would you consider a man to be rich?

15. If after paying all his personal and family expenses, and paid to the Lord 10 per cent. of his income, a man has an average of $500 a year surplus, what, if the man were a Christian, would he do with it?

(This is one of the questions which may be answered in writing by the members of the club.)

16. Verses 2, 3. A great many people have to spend all they earn to live, how much does God expect such people to give to religion and benevolence and why?

17. Verses 2, 3. If a poor widow today only has two cents and gives them to the Church, and if a business man only has two thousand dollars, and gives the whole amount to the Church, would their gifts be equally wise and well pleasing to God, or not, and why?

18. Verse 4. On what does God base his approval in the giving of different persons, on the amount given or on the motive that prompts the gift?

19. It is generally conceded that God expects us to give to his cause at least ten per cent. of our earnings, would you say or not, and why, that this requirement applies to the poor?

Trouble Ahead for Germany.

"The Russians are in a stage of transition, and are, therefore, unstable, mentally unsettled. They are completely dissatisfied at Germany's interpretation of the peace terms," says the World's Work. "They see themselves being starved that Germany may fatten on their granaries. They are reaching the point where organized resistance is the only answer of which the situation is capable. Steps have already been taken to form a new national army, to offer organized resistance to further encroachments. There are also large elements which have never accepted the unconditional surrender and which never will. At any moment in that land of instability, the fires which have been kindled by German bad faith and duplicity may break into a conflagration. There is no danger at the present time — there is danger that before the year is out public dissatisfaction and unrest may crystallize and Germany be faced with the most colossal guerilla war the world has seen; and while warfare of this kind cannot defeat Germany, it can neutralize many divisions of German troops and pin them down to the eastern front while the Allies make the finishing stroke in the west. This situation, out of which anything can grow, makes it strongly advisable that Germany should act before the crystalization can take place."

Gulls Detect Submarines.

Seagulls are very useful for betraying the whereabouts of submarines. Either because they mistake the boats, travelling just below the surface, for whales, or because they are on the lookout for fish stirred up by their passage through the water, or possibly out of mere curiosity, they will follow one of these hidden terrors of the deep for miles, circling round and uttering shrill cries all the while.

The Idea!

"Well, of all the impudence!" exclaimed Mrs. Newriche.

"What is it, Agnes?" asked her husband.

"Those poor first cousins of yours are telling people that they got the same identical ancestors that you've got."

FINDS HER PLAN WORKS WELL

Lucinda Has Saved Money Since Abandoning Her System of Buying Things on Impulse.

"There are so many things I want to buy," said Lucinda, "and I am so impulsive. I see something that pleases my fancy and straightway I buy it; only to find a little later that really I didn't want it and that now I don't care for it at all.

"At least that is the way I did do; but now I do differently. Now when I see something that once I would have bought on sight I say to myself: 'Do I really want that?' and then I say to myself, 'I will wait a week and see.'

"At first it was very hard for me to do this; but then I got myself under control and came to manage very well.

"Often on the second or third day when I have seen that thing still on sale, I have found that I no longer fancied it and then, of course, I was glad I hadn't bought it; but then sometimes when I found the thing gone, why, then naturally I imagined I did want it; but on the whole I find this plan to work beautifully and now I stick to it faithfully, and certainly it has saved me from buying a whole lot of things I didn't want; things such as I used to buy, that Brother Claude, in a brusque way, called junk."

Ancient Advertisements.

Writers of advertisements for department stores, who were fond of endless detail in spreading their store news before the public, might gather a lesson from the Baltimore American's recent reprint of its first issue, dated August 20, 1773. This contains an advertisement of a Baltimore jeweller. 'After enumerating part of his stock, he concludes: "Silver & steel top'd thimbles, pincushion hoops and chains, with sundry other articles, too tedious to mention. Another advertisement in the pre-Revolutionary paper above quoted runs as follows:

Baltimore, August 18, 1773.

Many people in this Town and Fell's Point having hitherto neglected to pay their public Dues this year, my deputy has my orders to execute every person that has not paid, without distinction, as I am to leave the office in November, and all accounts must be settled with

J. R. HOLLIDAY,
Sheriff of Baltimore County.

No doubt the exasperated sheriff here uses the word "execute" in the legal sense of enforcing a judgment or writ of execution to sell the offender's property, and does not mean to threaten him with sudden death if he fails to pay.

ALL RIVALRIES ARE DANGEROUS

Dr. Manning Started Campaign Against Comparisons.

THEY CAUSE BAD FEELING

This Wise Action of Leading Men In the United States Should Interest Thoughtful Persons In Canada Who Do Not Want to Create Jealousy Between Armies.

THE habit of comparing the fighting ability of the different nationalities among the Allies is an extremely bad one, and many persons recognize that it may lead to jealousy and bad feeling. In the United States, a campaign has been started against that sort of thing, and thoughtful men here in Canada see the wisdom of frowning on odious comparisons. Rev. Dr. Manning, the rector of Trinity Church, New York, the wealthiest and most influential church in the United States, recently made the matter the text of a sermon that has been quoted far and wide. Dr. Manning gave a most timely warning when he told his congregation to beware either of making themselves, or of allowing, without instant protest, others to make, adverse comparisons between the courage and the fighting efficiency of the several national armies that are allied in the conflict with Germany and her vassals. He was quite right in saying that to do either of these things—and one of them deserves reprehension as much as the other—is to assist in a most insidious and vicious form of German propaganda.

The purpose of those who start this sort of talk, and its effect, for it is not ineffectual, is to substitute distrust for confidence among the forces that have combined to save the world from the horrors of Teutonic domination. It is to revive ancient animosities and jealousies, and it is only a new variant of a plan that for a while worked only too well in Germany's interest—that of whispering in credulous ears the charge that the troops of one or another racial strain were systematically put in the most dangerous places and sacrificed to save the lives of favored companions in arms. That nefarious accusation has been rarely heard of late, and nobody took it seriously when what probably was the last attempt to excite dissatisfaction in this way among our negroes promptly ended in a declaration by the colored soldiers themselves that they were honored, not wronged, when they were trusted to hold important sectors at the front.

That, of course, is the feeling of every real man who goes to war, and appreciation of the fact is now so nearly general that it has been necessary for the secret propagandists to devise a new method of creating discord among the Allies. They try to do it by praising this or that army at the expense of another. The answer to it is obvious—it is written on every battlefield and in all the casualty lists. No men can do more than fight till they die, and there is not one race engaged in the war that has not done that again and again. Of noble rivalry there is much among the allied forces; of ignoble jealousy and base recrimination at home or in the field there comes none except from enemies and their dupes.

THE FRENCH REPORT.

PARIS, Aug. 31.—(Official.)—Heavy artillery fighting near Noyon and below the Ailette and the Aisne rivers is reported to-day. The text of the statement reads:

During the night there was heavy artillery fighting in the region of the Canal Du Nord, north of Noyon and the Ailette and the Aisne rivers. German raids in the Champagne were unsuccessful.

LANDSCAPE UNCHANGED BY RECENT FIGHTING

(Special to the Examiner.)
(United Press Despatch)
(By Lowell Mellett)

WITH THE BRITISH ARMIES IN FRANCE, Aug. 31.—The ground over which the British are now fighting shows little new devastation since it was last occupied by them. The havoc wrought by the Huns in their previous retirement was so complete there is little left to destroy. It is even doubtful could the war last another four years, that these barren fields could be made a more complete waste than they are now.

As a matter of fact, however, the rapidity of the British advance is testified to by the fact that there are few signs of the recent fighting. The chief landmarks are the same rusty wrecks of tanks and the same enormous mine craters of a year ago.

A huge black wooden cross, a monument to the men lost by the Australian divisions at Poseires ridge, still stand not far from a new German cemetery. The cross is not harmed except for a few shrapnel splinters in spots. Posieres itself like Courcellets and other villages, featured daily in American newspapers, is a barren of houses as a new western boom townsite.

ENEMY POSITIONS ARE BECOMING MORE AND MORE DIFFICULT

Steady and Vigorous Artillery Battering of German Line in Chavigny—Livigny Region, Coupled With Brilliant Work of French Infantry, Are Having Their Effect.

(United Press.)
(By Fred S. Ferguson.)

Special to the Examiner:

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMIES IN FRANCE, Aug. 31.— Steady and vigorous artillery battering of the German line in the Chavigny-Juvigny region, coupled with the brilliant work of the French infantry, has rendered the enemy positions more difficult.

The harassing and desructive fire lasted all day yesterday in the American sector. Meanwhile the infantry kept to the shelter of the hastily dug holes, while patrols were maintaining contact with the Boche.

Juvigny has become most uncomfortable for the Germans and it is believed they have practically withdrawn from the village, leaving only strong machine gun neste to block the way.

The French in the Chavigny region, on the American right, progressed so rapidly that for a time the infantry fighting spread to the American lines. American light artillery, fired on the Boche from the heights opposite Juvigny with direct, open sight fire..

The heaviest work in to-day's fighting fell to a French division. The Boches were cleared from an important wood and the line was generally shoved forward in the right flank area.

All prisoners taken by the Americans indicated that propaganda is still vigorously working in Germany to satisfy everyone of the justice of Germany's cause. This has been principally effective among the Prussians, who fail to show any of the lost confidence or low morale displayed by prisoners taken in the fighting along the Marne and the Vesle.

MUCH LAWLESSNESS

Canadian Press:

LONDON, Aug. 31.—Considerable lawlessness marked the first night passed by London without police protection.

During the earlier hours of the morning there were some harmless demonstrations, but later on these became active, and found a number of windows of jewellers' shops and other places of business broken and considerable property stolen, and there was trouble particularly in such centres as the Strand, Aldgate, and other busy streets, which are usually so well guarded that shopkeepers leave their goods on view during the night.

Twenty-two thousand policemen are now on strike, including the City police, who went out last night.

LIEUT. JACKSON ALIVE AND WELL BUT A PRISONER

Peterboro Member of the Royal Air Force Who Has Been Missing Since August 10th is Located in Karlsruhe, Germany.

PRISONER-OF-WAR

The many friends of Lieut. Wm. Jackson, of the Royal Air Force, and son of Mr. James Jackson, 232 Perry Street, who has been missing since August 10th last, will be glad to learn that he is alive and, as far as is known, well, although a prisoner of war in Germany. The good news of Lieut. Jackson's safety was received by Mr. T. F. Matthews, of the Matthews-Blackwell Company, in a cable from London, which stated that the missing aviator was a prisoner in Germany.

Lieut. Jackson, after training in Canada and at the Royal Flying Corps camp in Texas last winter, went overseas in February last, and after further training in England, was sent to France on duty. His relatives received official word several weeks ago that he had been missing since August 10th. The message which came yesterday stated that he is in Karlsruhe.

Lieut. Jackson is the second Peterborough flying man to fall into German hands, the other being Lieut. Geo. Logan, of the Royal Air Force. It is hoped that Lieut. Lorne McIntyre, also reported missing,, may turn up in Germany as his fellow-flyers from this city have done.

Marley Sherris, the Canadian Baritone, of the Toronto Conservatory of Music, will visit Peterboro weekly, and will be identified with the vocal department of the Peterboro Conservatory of Music.

A singer of splendid attainments, he has built up an enviable reputation both in United States and Canada as a concert and oratoria artist, and this enables him to impart to his pupils a finish which none by a successful singer can give. Pupils will not only be prepared for the Toronto Conservatory examinations, but also for church and concert work, and those desirous of studying with him, should make application for time at once.

THE GRAVES OF DEAD SOLDIERS TO BE DECORATED

Great War Veterans Association Will Honour Memory of Comrades Who Are Buried in St. Peter's Cemetery.

BAND FOR COBOURG

There are several important events for the Peterborough branch of the Great War Veterans' Association in the near future.

Last Sunday the graves of Protestant soldiers who have died since the war began were decorated. To-morrow afternoon there will be a similar ceremony in connection with the graves of Roman Catholic comrades who have passed away. The Veterans will fall in at the armouries at 2 o'clock to-morrow afternoon, and the parade will be headed by the G.W.V.A. band. A very large turnout of members is expected.

On Tuesday night the regular monthly meeting of the Association will be held. Monday is the regular meeting night, but on account of the holiday the meeting has been postponed until the following evening.

The Great War Veterans' band will visit Cobourg a week from to-day and will give a concert for the soldiers at the Cobourg Military Hospital. On the Sunday the band will take part in the Decoration Day ceremonies which will be held under the auspices of the Oddfellows and the Cobourg branch of the G.W.V.A.

Vast Damage Done by Raid On Mannheim

Special to The Examiner:

LONDON, Aug. 31. — Despatches from Holland and Switzerland confirm the United Press interview with a British officer concerning the effectiveness of the aerial raid on Mannheim.

Enormous damage was done in some sections, according to despatches. Whole streets were devastated. The terror-stricken population seemed to be hypnotized and sought no cover, which is declared to be responsible for the large number of casualties.

BIG ADVANCE FOR BRITISH IN FLANDERS

LONDON, Aug. 31. — The official statement to-day says:

PROPOSED THREE INSTALMENTS FOR CITIZEN'S TAXES

Ald. Edgar's Suggestion Will be Considered by Finance Committee—Wood Choppers Went on Strike.

NAVY LEAGUE'S REQUEST

The fuel question was the main feature of last night's meeting of the Finance committee. Those present were Ald. Taylor (chairman), Ald. Dobbin, Ald. Edgar, Ald. Saunders, the Mayor and Ald. Weir.

Mr. Chase of Chase's Corners, offered about three hundred cords of hardwood at $11 a cord. Soft wood was offered at $8 a cord, consisting mostly of elm and poplar.

"Snap it up quick," said Ald. Saunders.

It was decided to accept Mr. Chase's offer, subject to inspection.

Mr. Chalk, of Port Hope, has a wood lot about two miles from Bewdley, consisting of pine. Mayor Duncan moved that a letter be written him asking his price cut and delivered.—Carried.

His Men Struck.

Alexander Emery, of Dummer, whose proposition for wood has been accepted, asked for $1.00 a cord more on the hardwood, because his men had struck for higher wages. Ald. Dobbin was authorized to write to Mr. Emery and inform him that the former agreement would be accepted or none at all.

$500 to Exhibition.

A letter was received from Mr. Fred Hall, secretary of the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition, asking that the yearly grant of $500 be paid now to the Exhibition instead of at Fair time. The committee recommended to the Council that this request be granted.

Ald. Edgar's Proposal.

Ald. Edgar made the suggestion that the taxes be paid by the citizens in three instalments instead of two as at present: June 1st, Sept. 1st and Dec. 1st, were the dates suggested. He thought that it would be easier for the people to pay it, and also would diminish a big overdraft and a great deal of interest at the bank. The Mayor thought that the people would be fully occupied in paying for their coal on December 1st without bothering with taxes. Ald. Taylor thought that it would be an added burden on Tax Collector Green and that extra help would have to be engaged.

Ald. Taylor was authorized to report on the advisability of the scheme at the next meeting of the committee.

Ask Grant to Navy League.

Mr. W. R. Morris and Mr. W. H. Dunsford waited on the committee in the interests of the Navy League.

"Peterborough's objective is $12,000," said Mr. Morris, "and we ask that the city grant us a portion of this."

Mr. Dunsford explained that they were gently preparing the members of the Finance committee. A delegation will wait on the City Council on Tuesday evening next. Toronto City Council is giving $100,000 in Sailors' Week, and Ald. Weir, with his pencil and paper, figured that Peterborough's City Council should give $2,500 at the same ratio as Toronto.

Want Council to Defer Building of New Bridge

Petition is Being Circulated Among the Citizens to this Effect.

A petition is being circulated, asking the Council to defer the construction of the overhead bridge over the Otonabee at Hunter Street until after the war. The petition sets forth as reasons for this course, the abnormal cost of material and labour, and the difficulty of securing steel and other necessary material as chief reasons for deferring this work until conditions have re-adjusted themselves. The petition will likely be presented to the City Council at its meeting on Tuesday night.

...adian people may be pard-
...elling proud of what the Can-
...ps has accomplished. The Allied High Command has given a striking testimony to the valour of the Dominion's fighters by using them first with the British 4th army in the attack on August 8th and then surprising the Germans by suddenly shifting them back to General Horne's 1st army and giving them the place of honour in the fighting between the Scarpe and the Sensee.

The Canadians' exploits of the past month have shown them to be shock troops par excellence.

PAPERS NOT TO BLAME.

On every occasion when the Canadians have distinguished themselves in the fighting on the western front, there have been protests from a number of people that too much credit has been claimed for what the Canadians have accomplished. The newspapers of Canada are blamed for neglecting to praise what other allied troops have done. However, the fact remains that the glowing reports of Canadian prowess, to which some readers object, are not written by Canadian newspaper correspondents. The majority of such descriptions are from the pen of such famous English war correspondents as Philip Gibbs, Perry Robinson, W. Beach Thomas and other English war experts, or from Simms and other American correspondents. The only Canadian newspaper correspondent on duty in France is J. B. Livesay, the representative of the Canadian Press, so that it can readily be seen that if too much is said about what the Canadians are doing, the blame must be laid at the doors of English war correspondents, whose reports as a matter of fact are published in the big English newspapers simultaneously with their appearance in the Canadian dailies.

Canadian papers may grow a little egotistical over the feats of the Dominion troops, but in view of their achievements of the past month, and the fact that they have been used as shock troops with two different British armies, on two widely separated sectors, show there is considerable justification for the pride that is being shown throughout the Dominion.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

General Foch may break up the reunion that the Germans are planning to hold on the Hindenburg line.

The Belgians, away up on the sea coast, have reminded the enemy that they are still on the job by making a dashing raid.

It is to be hoped that in view of the high price of pork the taking of Ham will not be a costly victory for the allies.

"Our retreat is a failure," wails a German newspaper. And it might have added, "there's worse coming."

When the Men Come Home, What?

Things look as if this problem will present itself before many moons are past. Many fine fellows are sleeping in graves where the soldiers have laid them, they will be mourned but there will be a silver lining to the cloud of mourning, and the family history will be ennobled by the record that this one or that sleeps in France, or Belgium or Flanders, where he gave his life in defence of liberties that God gave as a birth-right to the sons of men. Our Canadian history will have a new starting point and dates will count from the time when the sons of Britain in all quarters of the world felt an irrestible impulse to gather under that flag which had waved over free men for a thousand years and was now being endangered by a people who from earliest history had not feared God nor regarded men and who would drive from the lands and seas men and ships which had defended the right and builded a Nation which stood for liberty and justice and truth.

We will mourn our dead but with pride we will point to the records of wars and victories of men who fought not to enrich themselves but to defend men in the struggle to maintain their national life against oppression of might and unscrupulous selfishness, "that liberty might not die from the world."

And now our men are coming home maimed, broken and whole, the light and pride of victory on their faces. Coming home to the fathers, mothers, children and kinsmen from whose side they slipped away to battle for their flag, their homes, their proud national place in the world and their loved ones All honor to them!

And now what can we do for them? A grateful country cannot forget the sacrifice they made. What more could they have done? They offered to sacrifice all that made their world, home, health, prospects, parents, wives and children.

We will honor them. Our country has not changed. The same broad lands are here, the same blue sky, the church bells ring, and the schools are open and happy children wait for the father who left them when babes and have been awaiting the return of the soldier boys, their fathers who sadly broke the bonds of love that they might obey the irrestible call that summoned them to defend rights and liberties without which they could not live, and which they determined should be inherited by their children. Now, to be practical, the thousands, who come home to us must have employment. To think that they have done all life's duties would be a great mistake. Four or five years in the stress of battle is not all of life. A new life begins. He has saved his nation, his home, his honor and now, to enjoy the new days in the dignity of labor and manly effort, all the better fitted because of the labors for his King and Country he is now disciplined to do well his duty to new home and in the new conditions. He has learned to obey, he has borne labor and hardship, he knows now that to shirk toil and effort is to be untrue to duty. He wants, encouragement, a chance to win. It is with himself—work is life's greatest duty, life's greatest blessing. Since he went away Canada is a better land for him and for his children, and now the loyalty that made him a good soldier should make him a good citizen, but he must not be content to sit in his club, smoking and rehearsing his soldier life over again, that gets stale. Duty calls him to meet the new emergency. Take hold, something will offer, take hold and work out a better life and destiny. He owes it to himself, his family, his country. These are victories to be won in peace as in war, but the peace victories are the nobler, by them you make your life, your country, your home better and you do a man's work and win a crown nobler than the Victoria Cross.

In my next paper I will point out practical steps and suggestions of an old man to help you in making a home for yourself and your loved ones in our beloved Canada.

WESTERN CROP DAMAGE REPORTS GREATLY MAGNIFIED

Want 10,000 Harvesters at Once.

Reports previously published regarding the damage by frost to the crops in Saskatchewan, were unduly pessimistic. requent showers and favorable weather have changed the outlook and it is apparent that the great Province of Saskatchewan will have a normal crop. This is evidenced by the western demands for Farm Laborers, as not less than 10,000 are required immediately for harvesting.

Every young man and those more mature, in every community in Ontario, including our own, should get away, and should make this a great opportunity to serve the country in a practical way, and at the same time be of invaluable benefit to himself. It means an interesting, long distance journey at low fares, and a chance to see and study the immense new country served by the Canadian Northern —the People's Road.

Final excursions by CanadianNorthern trains leaving Toronto 10 p.m., on Aug. 28th, 30th, September 4th and 11th. Harvesters from outside points to use connecting trains to Toronto

Dayreak is Zero Hour for Duck Hunters on Labour Day

Holiday Coincides With the Opening of the Shooting Season and Sportsmen Are Eagerly Looking Forward to the Thrills of Rice Lake and Other Resorts of the Birds.

BONNYCASTLE DALE'S STORY

When Labour Day synchronizes with the opening of the duck shooting season it becomes for the sportsman a holiday extraordinary. Every other attraction is obscured by the visions of flocks of feeding in sheltered bays, in arms of the river, and on the fringes of the rice beds in the lake. It is an insistent call to many Peterboro men, some of whom have been practicing at clay birds on the shooting grounds south of the Henry Hope factory during the past two weeks.

The season opens on September 1st, but most of the duck hunters will be deterred by the Sabbath restrictions. Monday morning at daybreak, before the "jocund sun stands tiptoe on the misty mountain tops' the fusilade begins as soon as the first sights are made. Usually, the hunters reach the feeding beds on the previous night, especially if an adjacent shore offers a screen, and are all set for the first light of dawn. From that moment the morning passes with varying results, largely dependent upon luck. Some times the ducks, routed by the gunfire from one bay will fly to some other familar spot, and may repeat this several times. Eventually however they seek the open lake where the intervening is just sinking, a tremendous globe of red in the west, when Laddie, Jr., hisses into my ear

"See those three?"—"Swish! swish! Swish! We can hear those great white-lined silky wings sing as they sweep by overhead. With only one small circle they settle down into the bed and their contented guttural "quacks" tell of spatter dock, and lily sprout, rare celery and wee, as yet, wapato, torn up last night by a roving muskrat. "Peet'" "peet!" "pett'" sounds clearly in the gloaming and two wood ducks, last year's bachelors, swoop and curve into the wild rice. More "peets," and a wood duck and her brood sweep swiftly in and settle without that watchful overhead searching curve we both expect.

"I'll bet they don't drop in like that on the First night" sight Laddie, Jr.

"Now look at that," he continues, as a whole family of blacks, the duck and some ten young ones drift by and splash in. None save the mother have ever heard the "ping" of the smokeless.

"How do you know it's the mother?" asked the lad.

"Too noisy for the male and the ten followed her every motion." Until the dear little wildfowl that nightly gather on Migration Point to sing their buzzing melody—at least, Laddie, Jr., says they are as big as ducks—drove us into the incomplete mansion, the flight continued. Fully a hundred ducks were using this strip of wild rice and we had high hopes for the first, and the first only, for one rally, if they were unfortunately all in, would drive them out for the entire fall, as a body. Oh, the beauty of those moonlit nights, when the were awful, nevertheless. Along came a glorious young wood-drake. Ping! I centered him again and down. Ping! I centred him again and down he splashed — dead. My wr'thful young guide gave me a kindly word and I bucked up and we made the string five black and the one wood-drake before the sun set that night. You have often seen the title "My First Duck," well look at him coming up through the flags with his first bluebill in late September, but let me tell you how I got mine this year.

We had been photographing the early scaup (the big bluebills in this case). The swimming flock was many times within the fifty yard line and we snapped them a dozen times, all undiscovered ourselves, although our beating hearts sounded like pumping engines to us. Then we had pictured the active swift beauties as they flew to their feeding grounds. But the best picture we got was of two birds, a male and a female that came swimming along the shore and obligingly stopped to drink right in front of our inquisitive camera. But as to how I got that first bluebill this year.

It was one of the hottest days in September, not a ripple showed on the oily surface of the lake. Even in under the basswood trees, the heat was most oppressive. We had sought the shade and were lolling like dogs in its meagre comfort, when "Splash!" went something into the lake. I crept to the bushes and searched with the binoculars and there —a full hundred yards outside the outer rice bed sat a "little bluebill" drake as stiff as though carved there. Satisfied, finally that all was well, it dived and brought up a celery sprout and swallowed it, again it went down and I timed it— thirty seconds — again, a bit longer this time.

"Guess I can get it," I whispered to Laddie Jr. The bird was two hundred and fifty odd yards away (we have all this ground measured for results).

"How?" he questioned. It did look a pretty slim chance to get it.

"Come and see" and I beckoned him down to the canoe which was water affords security. This applies particularly to Rice Lake.

Peterboro is practically in the centre of a duck feeding district with well stocked and extensive grounds in the lower Otonabee and Rice Lake on the south, and Pigeon creek and other waters to the north.

Bonnycastle Dale's Story.

The following story from this month's issue of Rod and Gun has its setting in Rice Lake. It is by Mr. Bonnycastle Dale, and offers special interest in its timely reminiscence of duck shooting.

The True Sportsman.

Now, before I have the pleasure of telling you of our observations of the migration and shooting I want to say that I have noted with deep regret that writers who have conservation in their hearts have, in many cases, only abuse upon their lips. This will not, in my opinion, win the man we are after, the one who selfishly breaks our good laws and takes too many of the web-footed ones. It has been my great privilege to shoot and hunt in many Provinces and States and I tell you most decidedly, the fair average sportsman is a good law observer. In all the clubs and shooting grounds I have visited the greedy hunter hunts alone and is a rare animal. The chief cause of certain of our Eastern shooting grounds being depleted of birds is the ever north-western trek of the settlers and the consequent alteration of the migration of the wild fowl. From the Great Lakes to the Atlantic was the regular route but it is now down all the rivers that empty into the Pacific and down along the Pacific coast. The next main cause of the decrease in numbers, counting the gunner as number one, is, number two, the gathering of wild fowl eggs on the breeding grounds and the consequent lowering of the clutch in the last laying to as few as four eggs, whereas the first one numbered over a dozen. The native Indians are the chief culprits here. I am strongly in favour of a hundred bag limit per season, a dozen bag a day, a small fee, numbered license for every gunner, a strict observance of the full and excellent game laws we have now, and a stiff fine for all peevish writers who call the other chap "a game hog." There were more ducks on Rice Lake last year than I have seen in several years. In fact there were as many as I can remember seeing in any one season in the last six years and hunters tell me there were more than were seen in the previous six years while I was away at the coast. So fellow hunters, ignore the selfish gunner as well as the selfish writer, keep the law and we will all have fair sport.

Now comes the most delightful, if slightly provoking, time of the year. It is the last week in August. Not a hunter or fisherman is to be seen in the wild rice beds. The lunge are biting up near the Otonabee, not here, and none of the Indians ever creep out and take a duck before season. We seem to possess it all. The sun rail and plover and duck made the wild bay echo with their calls.

"Do you want to come out with me this morning?" I asked a very sleepy lad about two p.m. on the morning of the first.

"You just bet!" he peeped before his eyes were open.

An Early Start.

All the ducks were in the rice, as we could hear them splashing like a lot of boys in bathing, so we darkened our windows and worked silently with the breakfast. Then we crept down. Remember the nearest birds were even then within a long shot of our point, lifted the canoe clear up in the air, turned her with a rattle, and loaded her. I entered the bow, Laddie, gunless, too young to shoot, yet, crept into the stern. I taught him over the decoys later in the fall. I consider that it is very unwise to let a youngster ramble about with a death dealing shotgun, until he is able to care for the business end of it. We flared the birds that were near the rice straw covered hide we had hastily thrown up. Silently I dropped the six black duck decoys out in front and silently we took our place.

Several times before it was light enough to clearly distinguish them, I made out the dark blurred lines of black ducks winging past over the decoys and plainly heard them settle in the rice bed. Now came the faint brightening of the horizon line into a lighter grey then——"Ping!" No! the Rice Lake fool was not dead. There he was firing before one could see the bird or the end of the gun. This shot was fired about 4.20, so he was fully an hour late this year. Strange what a big family this Fool family is, I have heard relatives of his in every hunting ground firing long before daylight.

"That one was in shot," whispered Laddie, Jr., in a blood-curdling manner. He coolly counted this "one missed bird" and lapsed into silence. I had not seen it.

"They're all dropping in above us!" he hissed complainly. Too true, we had "jumped" this end of the bed and the ducks were all decoying to the other end, where the undisturbed ones sat.

"Best let me paddle you up the bed?" he queried.

As there was not another hunter in this bed I agreed and off we started, so silently. With a nerve-racking "quack" a big black duck leaped right up beside me and started off to the right. Curving back I did as near the "rubber man's' act as my body would let me and fired clean behind. The lad did not say anything but I could fairly feel his thoughts.

"You missed that one clean, shot under it!" he exclaimed, as I failed to connect with the next right quartering, back curving duck, the hardest shot of any flying bird for me. Then to prove just how consistent a shot I am, a left quaterer got up and I hit it with both barrels in just the same place that I struck the other two. Laddie's silence could now be felt.

I was using Laddie Sr's. gun, at his written request but my misses hidden from the duck by the bushes. We entered that canoe with never a sound, pushed her out, slid her along the shore by grasping the short rushes and waited hidden there until it dived.

"Now" I ordered, and off we paddled across the first open place while I was counting twenty.

"Down" I hissed, and both our heads sank below the gunwale and the canoe bow on to the duck forged silently ahead, the very scrawny, thin fringe of rice just disguising its knife-like bow and silent ripple. Out of the corner of one eye I saw the trim, beautifully marked drake emerge at about one hundred and twenty-five yards, swallow his morsel and dip under for more. Twenty second this time took us into a bit of fairly good rice and we lay there and caught up with our breath. Up he came!—down he went!

"Now! Hard!" I yelled, and straight out into that calm hot scene our long canoe darted. Half-way across I slid my paddle in and seized my gun. Laddie Jr. now redoubled his efforts—and still that unruffled, calm, unmarked glaring lake lay before us—then the surface seemed to split apart—up instantly lifted that small, fat body, out flew those pointed brown wings, in splashed those two velvety grey feet and off sped our dinner. All this time it was within thirty yards, and, although I wanted to give it a long fair chance my heart was pounding so I could not have shot before. It was soon over, one tiny pressure on the trigger and the straight tailing shot fell before the spattering hail of number six, and the day's shoot was over.

We used our "hut"—yes we have chosen that undignified name, you see "palace" is so common place nowa-days, until November storms drove us home. We shot some ninety days, or wee parts of days, killed a little over a duck a day on the average and when on November twenty-fourth the good old lake finally sealed over, we had a few fat birds "hanging up," or "winter froze," as our good friend the Ojibway hunter says.

More little ones dies during the summer months than at any other time of the year. Diarrhoea, dysentry, cholera infantum and stomach disorders, come without warning and when a medicine is not at hand to give promptly the short delay too frequently means that the child has passed beyond aid. An occasional dose of the Tablets will prevent stomach and bowel troubles or if the trouble comes suddenly the prompt use of the Tablets will cure the baby. Mrs. Chas. Anderson, Minda, Alta., says:—"Baby's Own Tablets are the best medicine for little ones who are suhering from stomach troubles. They cured my baby and have made her a fine healthy girl." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Call for Barb-wire Affected by the Allies' Offensive

There seems to be small chance for Canadian business talking of expansion, if such expansion depends in the first place upon their chances of going into the steel markets for increased supplies. The fact is that there is no chance of increased steel supplies coming to Canada. Taking that as the starting point, the only thing is to make the available supplies go to the points where the most essential work is being carried on from the viewpoint of the war officials. It has been a hard matter for the Canadian allotment of steel to be sustained week by week. In fact there have been times when there has been a falling off.

Conferences have been held between jobbers and the War Trade Board and in many staple lines prices are now recognized as standard, but there are a few lines that are not settled, the authorities holding that the warehousemen were doing business at too high a figure. The latter base their contention, in part at least, on the fact that their export trade is largely gone for the present, and that with this revenue cut off their overhead charges have not decreased at all.

The big problem for dealers in machine tools just now is not the securing of new business, but the filling of orders they already have on their books, and partial delivery of which has been made in a good many cases.

The situation in this regard is not all that could be desired by any means. This is not common to this country, but practically all over the United States the same story is heard. There are going to be some delays in deliveries on new shell contracts. Contractors do not favour the plan of going ahead and working on one or two operations in a shell plant, waiting for the rest of the work to be done when the machines arrive. The shop gets clogged at this one stage. The only way is to get a steady flow through the shop on all operations, and the non-delivery of certain machines is delaying this.

An interesting little sidelight is brought to notice in a despatch from one of the big steel centres of the United States. It announces that the call for barb-wirer for defensive purposes is falling off tremendously among the Allied forces since Marshal Foch took the offensive on the West. Mills that were working on this are getting instructions to turn more to other war lines.—Canadian Machinery.

GOVERNMENT TO GET 2,500 CARS FOR CROP.

OTTAWA, Aug. 29.—Deliveries of rolling stock under the large orders placed by the Dominion Government will be made at the rate of 40 cars a day throughout September. This rate will be increased to 50 cars a day in October. In the two months, thus, some 2,500 cars will be delivered to the Canadian Government Railways and will be available for use during the movement of the western wheat crop. The Government's orders are for some 8,000 cars, mostly box cars. This rolling stock will be paid for out of the $50,000,000 appropriation voted at the last session of Parliament for the purchase of rails, rolling stock and equipment.

NEW AND MODERN QUARTERS FOR THE LOCAL BUSINESS COLLEGE

A Progressive Educational Institution which Keeps Pace with Peterborough's Growth---One of Finest Schools in Ontario.

On Tuesday, September 3rd, the Peterborough Business College will open the doors of its handsome and commodious new home in the reconstructed Dominion Bank Building, southeast corner of George and Simcoe streets.

Since the inception of this business education institution, and especially so under present administration, its growth has kept apace with that of Peterborough city, until last term Principal J. A. McKone was faced with the necessity of either securing larger premises or rejecting students. Fortunately in his dilemma, Mr. McKone was offered the rental of the top flat of the Dominion Bank Building, to be reconstructed to suit his requirements, and he immediately accepted the opportunity thus afforded of leasing these new and larger quarters for a term of years.

BRIGHT AND CHEERFUL ROOM.

This new home of Peterborough Business College is centrally located, right in the heart of the city, within a minute's walk of the post office, and street cars, for and from all points stop at its doors. The premises have three exposures to light and air, with lofty windows and plenty of them. Its several rooms are finished in white kalsomine relieved with dark oak, the floors are of hard wood and the ceilings 12 feet high, all of which, together with glass and oak partitions, and doors present a bright, roomy, chereful and refreshing appearance, quite stimulating to the earnest student.

ONE OF THE FINEST.

The total 80 x 50 feet of floor has been arranged under Mr. McKone's personal supervision to meet the requirements of what can be truthfully characterized as one of the Province's foremost and most modern business colleges, and of which Peterborough is pardonably proud. The Principal's sanctum and general office are at the head of the stairs, and in immedate touch with a typewritng room, speed room, main class room and theory room, all completely furnished with up-to-the-minute educational equipment. The main class room is 58 x 39 feet in dimension, and has no less than 15 tall windows, facing north and west. The blackboard in this room is 50 feet in length.

All the rooms are practically sound-proof, the whole premises are heated with hot water, and the last word in sanitation and ventilation prevails. Admirably appointed cloakrooms and lavatories are features of convenience upon which due attention has been paid; those for the young men are downstairs and the others for young women on the class room flat. The stairs are of hardwood, flanked by pure white walls with burlap base, and brightly illuminated from huge sky-lights above.

Without question Principal McKone offers students in his new quarters rooms unusually adapted for college work, and the fullest measure of those pleasing conditions which make for health, convenience, comfort and industry.

ESTABLISHED 33 YEARS.

The Peterborough Business College was established in 1885. Mr. J. A. McKone assumed the principalship in 1908, and continued in active control for three and a half years, after which he accepted a call to Toronto, where he conducted the Central Business College with marked success. In 1914, Mr. McKone again took hold of the Peterborough Business College, since which time he has experienced a gratifying period of appreciation and progress. The term closing June, 1917, showed an increase of 100 per cent. in the number of students on roll, and another 50 per cent. growth last year taxed the capacity of the old quarters, Bank of Commerce Building, to such an extent that the present new and more commodious and modern premises were imperative if Peterborough's widely known business college was to continue meeting the insistent calls from city, county and even far away localities, for accommodation.

ENCOURAGING RESULTS.

Ninteen-seventeen-eighteen proved a year of phenomenal encouragement to both principal and students. Nine candidates presented themselves at the June examinations, five passed with honours, two within three and five marks respectively of honours, while the remaining two failed only by but very few marks. This in itself is evidence of the commendable interest taken in students, and of the efficiency and aggresively applied teaching talent of Principal McKone, and his capable assistants.

POSITIONS AWAIT STUDENTS.

The Peterborough Business College offers opportunities, the importance of which is not realized by many parents. In a very short time it fits young men and young women for commercial and business positions, and good openings await them these days of scarcity of help. With six to ten months of business training, students holding only an entrance certificate go out into the world and earn salaries that equal and often exceed those paid the average public school teacher. Graduates from this college with a thorough knowledge of shorthand and typewriting readily secure positions at an initial salary of $600 per year with quick advancement.

Last year Principal McKone himself found openings for a large number of his students, whose letters of appreciation now on file refer to the surprising salaries that they are now drawing, and to the very bright prospects ahead of them. Girls with one, two or three years in high school and a diploma from the Peterborough Business College are especially in demand in banks, business, commercial and industrial offices. There are great opportunities in commercial business for young men, especially stenographers, and the Peterboro Business College boys have met with fine success after graduating.

Each year students from all over Ontario are found in the Peterborough Business College, and graduates therefrom have been placed in remunerative positions at Peterborough, Ottawa, Toronto, Oshawa and Port Hope; Toledo, Ohio; and in other Canadian and American towns.

The foregoing facts impel one to appreciate the importance of a business college; and the extraordinary demand for "trained help" should induce young people to give the benefits of a "business training" earnest consideration.

Courses of Instruction.

The Peterborough Business College is kept up to the highest state of efficiency to meet the present day conditions. Its courses consist of commercial or business, shorthand and typewriting, and stenographers' Civil Service course. It also offers a special business course for the farmer to fit him for contact with shrewd men who might otherwise take advantage of him in business deals. In the farm, as in other walks of life, business training is a valuable asset.

Six months is the average time required to complete either course of studies, while a satisfatcory shorthand and bookkeeping course can be completed in ten months.

Out of Town Students.

Principal McKone may be said to take a fatherly interest in out-of-town students, whom he cheerfully assists in securing desirable boarding accommodation. He is of a geneial and approachable nature, and students find no difference in consulting with him in the many perplexing issues that frequently arise for young people in a strange town, and out of immediate touch with parental advice. He invites all out-of-town students on arriving in the city to leave their baggage at the station and make directly for the Peterborough Business College, corner of Simcoe and George streets, where they will be cordially welcomed and directed until comfortably located."

Most Crops Heavy in London District

Even Bees Have Gone in for Greater Production and Crop is a Record One.

LONDON, Ont., Aug. 30.—Farmers in this district report exceptional yields in all crops excepting Fall wheat, sections of which were frozen out during the spring. There is a magnificent crop of oats, the yield being from 50 to 75 bushels to the care. Corn is also abundant, August rains having proved most advantageous.

The late potatoes also are making an August growth which promises good quality and quantity. Many growers report a very good crop of early potatoes in spite of the leaf blight, which appeared early in the season. Fruit and honey have come in abundance this year. Early apples are bending the branches. The honey crop is said to be the best in years. One beekeeper in the suburbs of London is reported to have obtained two and a half tons of the nectar from 38 hives.

THE SALVATION ARMY HONOUR ROLL UNVEILED

A more fitting time for unveiling an honour roll could not have been chosen than last evening at the Salvation Barracks when the tablet bearing the names of their boys who have gone overseas, was unveiled on the eve of the departure of the beloved leader, Commandant McElhiney who has labored so tirelessly in encouraging his men to go overseas to fight for the liberty of their country.

Preceding the unveiling of the tablet some splendid views varying from scenes in the Holyland to France and Belgium and photos of departed heroes, were shown on the screen. As photo after photo of men overseas thrown on the screen the audience cheered enthusiastically but loudest was the enthusiasm as Commandant and Mrs. McElhiney's photos appeared.

Brigadier Morehen, who unveiled the handsome black and gold tablet containing the names of 103 men spoke of the splendid record the Salvation Army men have made in upholding the principles of right and freedom so dearly bought by their ancestors and of the pride those who are at home feel for them. CANADA'S HUGE FIRE LOSS TOLD AT PREVENTION MEETING

Ontario's Annual Bill Aggregated $12,000,000 and is Increasing—Homes of 35,000 People Destroyed Every Year.

MUST EDUCATE PEOPLE

TORONTO, Aug. 30.—"In these days of food shortage the loss by fire in Ontario during the last six months is well nigh alarming," said Premier Hearst this morning, in opening a Fire Preventive Convention, which 300 delegates attended, at the Parliament Buildings. "The quantities of food-stuffs destroyed by fires is a significant feature of the situation which must impress its seriousness in the mind of every thoughtful student of public affairs." The Premier said that since Confederation the direct fire losses in Canada had reached $350,000,000, and in that time $150,000,000 had been spent in maintaining fire protective services. In that time $197,000,000 over and above the sums returned for losses had been paid. Each year 200 persons are burned to death and 500 seriously injured. Canada's annual per capita loss is $2.73, as compared with $2.25 in the United States, 64 cents in England, 28 cents in Germany and 13 cents in Switzerland.

Heavy Provincial Losses.

"In the Province of Ontario our losses lately have annually aggregated approximately $12,000,000, and we are greater concerned over the fact that this is increasing," continued the Premier. "Seven thousand dwellings are destroyed annually at a time when the housing of the people is one of the most serious problems we have to meet. Take it at five persons to a home, it means that the homes of 35,000 of our people are destroyed annually.

"There were 444 lightning fires during six months, with a loss of $220,878, and of this total 442 occurred in buildings not rodded. There was a loss of $536,820 during the period due to defective electric wiring and subsidiary causes. An analysis of the six months' report shows that there is only one cause to which practically all the fires must be attributed, and that is carelessness.

Government Sees the Waste.

"The Government of this province realizes the waste of the resources of this Dominion, and hopes the Fire Preventive League will be formed to foster and promote in every way the prevention of fire wastage.

"The assurance of support we have received from the people of the province has been most encouraging, and we hope the league will be instrumental in securing the reduction of wastage by fire and the reduction of the cost of insurance."

Go Slow, Says Lucas.

"Go slow about drastic legislation," was the advice tendered by Hon. I. B. Lucas, Attorney-General. "For obvious reasons we do not like to travel too fast. We do not like to swing the big club. We cannot go ahead of public opinion. It is not a case of going out from the Legislature compelling municipalities and individuals to do things. It should be more along the lines of legislation permitting municipalities to enforce fire prevention laws locally."

"The solution of the problem of the prevention of reckless and impoverishing fire waste that confronts the people of this province is education, carefulness and cleanliness, and the means of attainment is by action, co-operation and legislation," said Deputy Fire Marshal George F. Lewis. He said that of 5,396 fires during the first six months of 1918, no fewer than 537 were caused by the careless use of matches. In Europe the average fire waste is 33 cents per capita. In Ontario the fire waste for 1916 was approximately $6 per capita, and in 1917 $4 per capita.

During the first six months of this year 5,396 fires burned up over $7,000,000 worth of property in Ontario. Of these 3,456 occurred in the homes of the people, costing $1,063,598. There were 330 farm barns destroyed, entailing a loss of $369,328, and 601 mercantile stores burned with a loss of $1,754,374. To these must be added 261 fires classified as manufacturing and special hazards, amounting to $2,487,513.

Hon. T. Alfred Fleming, State Fire Marshal of Ohio, who is a Toronto University graduate, said that in North America reported fires were burning up $500 every minute. To this must be added the cost of maintaining fire brigades, and the damage done by unreported fires, so that the total cost of fire in North America is about $1,400 every minute of the day and night. He spoke at great length on the havoc wrought by the enemy agents who set fire to buildings throughout the United States in munition plants, airplane factories and important works.

Although the discussions during the winter of 1852-53, resulted adversely to the views of those who held that the Town of Peterboro ought to become stockholders in the Port Hope and Peterboro Railway Company, yet the idea of a railway connection with Port Hope had never been abandoned. In 1857 the agitation was resumed, and several public meetings were held to discuss the propriety of taking stock in the company with a view to constructing a branch road from the village of Millbrook to the town of Peterboro. The difficulty in the way was the unwillingness of the people to become stockholders in a company already so embarrassed as the Port Hope, Lindsay and Beaverton Railway Company was reported to be. Several proposals were made with a view to getting rid of this difficulty, and putitng the town in the position of preferential stockholders; but it was not until the month of October that a bylaw authorizing a subscription of stock to the extent of £30,000 currency, received the sanction of the ratepayers. The arrangement under which the stock was subscribed, it was believed, would relieve the town from any very serious burdens. Under it the company leased the right of way to Messrs. Tate and Fowler, the contractors, for a nominal rental of $5 per annum. The lessees were upon condition of Peterboro subscribing £30,000, and Port Hope the sum of £10,000, to supply the other £10,000 themselves, build the branch, and lease it on a perpetual lease of 6 per cent. of the stock subscribed, the rental to be paid to the municipalities. The work was at once proceeded with, and although the construction of this road has not proved an exception to others in the province in the delays, annoyances and difficulties that have arisen, yet the opening has taken place at as early a day as could reasonably have been expected. On the 20th of May, the first train passed over the line with the Government Inspecting Engineers. On the 21st a party composed of the Railway Board and the Town Council of Port Hope, came into Peterboro. On the 24th the contractor placed a train at the disposal of the people of Port Hope for a free excursion over the road, of which some 3000 availed themselves, and on the 31st a return excursion by people of Peterboro to Port Hope was made. The road has been fairly opened for traffic, and it is generally admitted will secure a very large proportion of the carrying trade of Peterboro and the vicinity. Its completion by giving the town the advantage of a double outlet, is expected to prove of very considerable advantage to its prosperity.

It will thus be seen that the Counties of Peterboro and Victoria, in point of railway facility, are not behind other counties in the province. The road from Port Hope to Lindsay affords an outlet for the produce and lumber of Ops, Mariposa and Fenelon. The station at Omemee takes in the produce and lumber of the greater part of Emily, while the roads from Port Hope and Cobourg furnish outlets for the rising trade of the town of Peterboro and its adjoining townships. With these facilities and others which are already projected, and may e'er long be carried out, the continued advancement of the counties is by no means doubtful. In the past we have doubled our population in 10 years; in the future we may reasonably hope of doing quite as well. The towns of Peterboro and Lindsay, the principal towns of the counties, are rapidly rising in importance. The positions of both are eminently calculated to place them in the foremost ranks of Canadian inland towns; and there can be no question that the advancement of the past will find its repetition in the progress of the future.

THE TOWN OF PETERBOROUGH.

The Town of Peterborough is situated at the north east corner of the township of Monaghan. As already stated it was first located in the year 1818, and the survey was completed in 1825, so that it may be said to be but little over a quarter of a century old. It is built on a beautiful spot, the ground gently sloping from the west to the Otonabee River. Near the centre of the town stands the knoll, upon which is erected the Court House. In front of the building is a reservation of six acres, which is appropriated as a public park for the use of the town. The River Otonabee bounds the town on the east, and is crossed by a substantial bridge which was erected by the government in 1846. The river is very broad in front of the town and is picturesquely studded with islets covered with beautiful trees. Immediately above the bridge are numerous dams and timber slides, erected for the mills on each side of the river; and the scenic effect of these artificial waterfalls is very fine. Below the town the river widens, and forms what is called the "Little Lake," uopn a corner of the main land opposite the town, jetting into which, stands the Little Lake Cemetery.

In the year 1852, when the last census was taken, the town of Peterborough had a population of only 1800. This has steadily increased since, until by a special census taken this year the population is found to be 3500. This however gives an inadequate idea of the actual population of the place. The limits of the town are unfortunately very circumscribed and a large portion of the population of what to the stranger would be regarded as the town of Peterborough, resides without its limits, and are, therefore not reckoned in the census Taking in the mills belonging to Messrs. Herst and Denny to the north the park lots to the west and south, and the "Scotch Village" to the east, all of which it is expected will before long be included within the limits of the town, the population cannot be much under 5,000!

The great feature about Peterborough, that upon which the hopes of its inhabitants for its future prosperity depend, is the immense water power furnished by the Otonabee River. From the town up the river for about ten miles, there is a fall of not less than 280 feet, furnishing upwards of 84,000 horse power. A statement in detail of the mills and their capacity will be found elsewhere. In the immediate vicinity of the town there are sawmills capable of cutting 325,000 feet of lumber a day. There are four excellent flour mills, capable of manufacturing 370 barrels of flour a day. Two extensive axe and tool factories. Two large foundries and machine shops, and a number of smaller ones. One large wagon shop, fitted up with all the labour saving appliances, and a number of lesser ones. Shingle factories, planing mills cabinet shops, sash, blind and door factories—in a word all the requisites of a large manufacturing town.

The general appearance of Peterborough is highly attractive. During the last few years a number of very fine buildings have been erected; and a number are now in course of erection. Among them is a school house estimated to cost when completed $16,000; a new brick Presbyterian church, to cost $14,000. The Montreal Bank have just opened, upon their property on Water street, facing the market square, a very handsome brick building, for an agency, at a cost of $12,000. A new town hall is to be erected, estimated to cost $20,000, the bylaw authorizing the erection having been passed by the council, last fall. A large first class hotel, erected by E. Burnham, Esq., is in course of erection, and is expected to be opened this autumn. There are six churches in the town, belonging to the Episcopal, the Church of Scotland, the Wesleyan, the Baptist, the Bible Christian, and the Roman Catholic denominations. The Episcopal and Roman Catholic churches are very substantial buildings, the first erected upon the knoll before alluded to, near the Court House, and commanding a beautiful view of the Otonabee River, and the latter upon rising ground in rear of the town.

PRIVATE TO BRIG-GENERAL

Welsh Mine Foreman Once Considered By the Mine Officials With Whom He Worked As Lacking in Ability.

LONDON, Aug. 28.—Godfrey Jones a Welsh mine foreman, who enlisted early in the war as a private, and who yesterday was nominated to be a Brigadier-General, was once considered by the mine officials, with whom he was connected for years, as lacking the ability to lead men.

According to the Daily Mail, Jones who is thirty-six years old, attended night school as a boy and finally obtained his diploma. He was appointed foreman in a mine, but did not make good and was reduced to the ranks of a digger. Given another chance he succeeded.

Shortly after the war broke out Jones joined the Cardiff "Pals" Battalion of the South Wales Borderers. He speedily was made corporal, and rapidly rose to the rank of sergeant-major. Later he received a commission.

Jones went to France in the autumn of 1915 and soon afterwards was transferred to Saloniki, where he won the Distinguished Service Order and promotion to a lieutenant-colonelcy. Three weeks ago he obtained leave to come home and marry a war hospital worker. The directors of the mining company with which he was formerly employed have decided to create a special position for him on his return to civil life.

YOUNG GIRL DROWNED

COBOURG, Aug 29.—A sad drowning accident took place here, whereby Bessie Isabel Heastie, the bright attractive young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Heastie, lost her life. The young girl was in bathing near the shore with some companions, and was about to come out of the water. She was an expert swimmer, and called to the others that she would wait for the big wave coming and ride in on it. The water had become quite rough, and the wave broke over her with great force, filling her mouth and lungs with water, and she was unable to make the shore. The alarm was given speedily, and efforts were made to recover the body. A friend of the family watched by the water all night, and early in the morning found the body had washed in close to the shore. Mr. Heastie had gone to British Columbia, and his family had packed up preparatory to going West to join him. Besides her parents, she leaves an elder sister, Margaret. The young girl was sixteen years old.

The funeral took place here. Eight Girl Guides acted as pallbearers, and the Guides also furnished an honorary escort. Rev. W. L. Armitage, formerly of Parkdale, who is spending holidays in Cobourg, conducted the services, which were most impressive.

EVERY WOMAN'S RIGHT

To every woman belongs the right to enjoy a healthy, active, happy life, yet nine out of every ten suffer years of agony, usually from some form of bloodlessness. That is why one sees on every side pale thin cheeks, dull eyes and drooping figures—sure signs of headaches, weak backs, aching limbs and uncertain health. All weak, suffering women should win the right to be well by refreshing their weary bodies with the new, rich, red blood that promptly transforms them into healthy attractive women. This new, rich, red blood is supplied in abundance by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills which reaches every organ and every nerve in the body.

Through the use of these pills thousands of women have found a prompt cure when suffering from anaemia, indigestion, heart palpitation, rheumatism, general weakness, and those ailments from which women alone suffer. There is no part of this broad Dominion in which you will not find some former sufferer who has regained health and strength through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and this is the reason why these pills have been a favourite household remedy for more than a generation. If you are ailing and will give the pills a fair trial you will find renewed health and happiness in their use.

You can get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills through any medicine dealer, or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

PETERBORO'S BEST LAWNS AND GARDENS ANNOUNCED BY THE JUDGE IN ANNUAL COMPETITION

Mr. Fred W. Adams, of Toronto, the judge of this year's lawn and garden competition, held under the auspices of the Peterboro Horticultural Society, has forwarded to Secretary Cecil Williamson, his criticism of the displays, together with the names of the successful contestants:

He says:

Dear Sir: I beg to give you herewith a summary of the awards in your recent competitions which I trust will meet with your approval. There is one outstanding feature in connection with some of the displays this year, which I think, if pointed out, will be of special benefit to your members. I refer particularly to some of your older exhibitors not putting up as good a show as formerly, due not to any slackening on their part, but rather to them persistently, year after year, taking more out of the soil than they put into it, or, more correctly speaking, trying to.

Use of Fertilizers.

While the use of fertilizers helps very materially to balance the soil, it does not completely do so with the result that each succeeding year's growth becomes more unsatisfactory. A remedy for this is new soil, ploughed about six inches deep, containing lots of fibre, and procured if possible from some pasture field. This year, no doubt, has been a very trying one on floriculturists, and that, too, has worked against many honest efforts. However, the work done by your various members is very commendable, and if I may be permitted to say so, there is also an unusually large amount of splendid effort put up by residents upon which I was not asked to pass an opinion. These I presume are not members of your society. If they are, why do they not compete?

The winner in Class A is Mr. A. W. Cressman, who scored 9 points out of a possible 10 on his flowers, and 9 on his lawn. While this lawn is far from clean, allowance had to be made on account of it being the first year. The grading is as fine a job as the writer has seen and there is no feature that helps a good piece of grass more than a proper grade. Mr. McKee, of Water Street, who is second, scored 9 on his lawn and 8 for flowers. Mr. Stocker gets third, with 9 for lawn and 7 for flowers. A little more floral display on the exhibitor's part would have put him nearer the top. Miss Dickson comes fourth, with a total of 15 points, Mr. Matthews sixth with 14 points, while Mr. Kennedy is in the fifth place. The order of the last two names are reversed.

Class B Winners.

The winner of Class B is Mr. J. Howland, Burnham Street. He has the best score of any class, viz.: 9½ for flowers and 9 for grass, out of a total of 20 points. The grass on his lawn needs only a vigorous raking to put it in perfect condition. The general appearance of his premises is a great credit both to himself and the locality. Mrs. W. Wood comes 2nd, scoring 7½ on flowers and 8 for lawn. Weeds and an odd bare spot on this lawn pulled down the score. Mr. J. T. Burke, Smith Street, scored 8½ on his lawn and only 6 on flowers, giving him third position. Mr. F. R. Ivy, 5 Wolesley Street, gets 4th with a total score of 14.

Class C Winners.

In Class C all four exhibitors scored high. Their war time gardens were all good, indicating much work and skilful attention on their part. Mrs. Wright, of Weller Street, and Mrs. Leal tied for points, each getting 18½ of a possible 20, divided 10 and 10 for varieties and cultivation. As Mrs. Leal sells considerable of her products I would recommend her for a special prize, as she would be considered a semi-professional gardener. If Mrs. Leal's entry is accepted in Class C I fail to see where the line could be drawn in the case of a professional market gardener desiring to enter. Mrs. White scored 16½, as did also Mrs. Boddison of Patterson Street. The former received 8 points on varieties and 8½ on cultivation, and the latter 8½ on varieties and 8 on cultivation. As better cultivation is to be preferred than better or more variety, Mrs. White gets third and Mrs. Boddison fourth place.

Class D Winners.

Class D provided stiff competition, though selecting their order of merit was comparatively easy. Vases and window boxes cannot very well be filled with too many plants of an annual nature if lasting qualities are desired. Resort must be made to the professional florist for propagated plants such as geraniums, coleus, vincas, honeysuckle, arizine, fuschias, etc. Strive for a riot of colour. Use as few green coloured plants as possible and don't forget that the addition of a little pulverized bone to the soil is absolutely necessary to sustain the plants in the later part of the season. The following scores are out of a possible of 10 points:

Mr. J. J. Turner gets 9 points, Mrs. Briegal, of Gilmour Street, 8½; Mr. C. G. Graham, Gilmour Street, 8; E. Burnham, Weller Street, 8; and Mr. Coons, 7.

The Peterborough Conservatory of Music resumes its classes in all departments on Tuesday, September 3. At no time in the history of the institution has its efficiency equalled the standard now obtained. WHY SUGAR IS NOT PLENTIFUL HERE.

Large deliveries of sugar at Canada's seaports would be very welcome. Sugar is in great demand, not as one of the extras of the table, but as one of the necessaries of war. Sugar is as important for the conserving of food supplies as is salt. Without salt it would be impossible to have a great output of bacon as a source of supply to the men at the front. Without sugar it is next to impossible to save the fine fruits that are coming on the market. If for want of sugar these fruits are not preserved there will be a great loss of food and loss of money. Our defenders need the food and our producers need the money. Great as will be the loss and inconvenience on that account, it would, however, be negligible by comparison with any failure at the front. There is reason to believe that we might now have had all the sugar we require if Governments had not faithfully attended to their first duty of pushing operations against the enemy. There is plenty of sugar in the countries of sugar production, and a few months ago there seemed to be a prospect that ships might be spared for the transportation to our shores of enough of it to satisfy our most urgent needs. But the Germans began their offensive on March 21. The British Government, as Mr. Lloyd George has stated, at once made a special appeal to President Wilson to send men over even if they were not formed into divisions, so that they could be brizaded into British and French formations. President Wilson responded at once saying the troops would be sent if Britain would do her part in the work of transporting them. The British Government undertook to do so. "It was true," said Mr. Lloyd George, "that we had no ships to spare, but we impressed upon the Shipping Controller the enormous importance of getting every American soldier over, and we pulled ships out of trades which were quite essential. Do not let anyone imagine that we had ships to spare. In order to carry over American troops we have had to sustain a loss of 200,000 tons per month in essential cargoes, which means 2,500,000 tons per annum. But it has been justified by the result. Eight hundred thousand or nine hundred thousand troops have been brought over since the date of the battle (March 21), mostly in British ships." Bad as it would be for Canada to have to do without sugar, her people would a hundred times rather bear the consequent loss and inconvenience than have the Germans still hammering their way towards Paris instead of being hammered back as they are, towards their own country. —Toronto Mail and Empire.

SASKATCHEWAN NEEDS HELP

Former Estimates of the Total Yield Being Much Enlarged.

REGINA, Sask., Aug. 27.—The crop situation in Saskatchewan during the past two weeks, due to ideal weather conditions, has greatly improved and the former estimates of the total yield will probably have to be increased it was stated to-day by Hon. W. R. Motherwell, Minister of Agriculture. The improved conditions are responsible for a serious shortage of labor, and the local Government employment offices are now swamped with thousands of applications from farmers for men to assist them in harvesting their grain for wages of $4.50 per day.

Ohio Man Is Modern Wizard

Discovers magic ether compound which loosens a corn so it lifts right out

Good news spreads rapidly and druggists here are kept busy dispensing freezone, the ether discovery of a Cincinnati genius, which is said to loosen any corn so it lifts out with the fingers.

Ask at any pharmacy for a quarter ounce of freezone, which will cost very little, but is said to be sufficient to rid one's feet of every hard or soft corn or callus.

You apply just a few drops on the tender, aching corn and instantly the soreness is relieved, and soon the corn is so shriveled that it lifts out without a particle of pain. It is a sticky substance which dries when applied and never inflames or even irritates the adjoining tissue.

This discovery will prevent thousands of deaths annually from lockjaw and infection heretofore resulting from the suicidal habit of cutting corns.

TWO BALL GAMES HERE ON MONDAY

Local fans have a chance to see two games of baseball on Monday, when the Port Hope team will visit Peterboro and will be seen in action twice, at the Riverside Park. In the morning game at 10 o'clock they will clash with an All Star team selected from the City League, and in the afternoon at 3 they will do battle with Manager Solomon's champion Riversides. Two good games should be the result. The Port Hopers are well fortified in battery men and expect to win both engagements.

Further List of Peterboro Girls Who Are Rendering Notable Service in the War

One Met Her Death, Several Have Been Appointed in Charge of Hospitals—All Are Eager and Untiring, and Have Already Had Wonderful Experience.

WOMEN'S WONDERFUL CHAPTER

Peterboro's daughters have scattered far and wide in the war zone, doing practically every branch of Red Cross work possible. In last Saturday's Examine rthe names of 17 graduates of the Nicholls Hospital, now overseas, appeared. A number of other Peterboro girls who have taken their diplomas in out of town hospitals, enlisted. Others are serving with the ambulance corps.

MATRON AT ALDERSHOT.

Matron Katherine McCarney, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. McCarney, 21 Bethune street, has won for herself many laurels in her overseas work. She enlisted in the early months of the war and went to France under very adverse conditions, her final landing being made after eight unsuccessful trials when the boat was driven back by submarines. At present Miss McCarney has assumed the title of Matron McCarney, having been placed in charge of the Aldershot Hospital of 1200 beds. She has had one home leave this spring since enlistment, after which she took her present position.

TWICE DECORATED.

At Orpington Hospital three Peterboro girls are on duty, one of these, Nursing Sister Beatrice I. Blewett, daugther of Mrs. J. G. Blewett, Toronto, a graduate of Grace Hospital, of Toronto, joined the service in 1914. She has since nursed in practically all the fronts, numbering amongst thees Salonika, Mesopotamia, France, and Egypt. For conspicuous service she wears the Mons Ribbon and the Royal Red Cross Ribbon. Recently she was given short Canadian leave, and on returning after nursing for weeks on board ship, returned to England to join the Orpington Hospital staff.

HAS HOSPITAL AT SALONIKA.

Nursing Sister Anna Doig, daughter of the late David Doig, of this city, graduated in 1913 from St. Michael's Hospital in Toronto. In 1914, shortly after the outbreak of the war, she crossed to England, and after service in France and Italy, finally reached Salonika, where she is at present. She has figured like a number of other Peterboro nursing sisters, in bombing raids on Red Cros Hospitals, and had some narrow escapes from death. Last Christmas (1917) she was placed in charge of a base hospital in Salonika.

FROM MOUNT SINAI.

Two of Peterboro's daughters went over in 1917 with the Mount Sinai unit. Nursing Sisters May and Marion Overend, daughters of the late Mr. W. J. Overend, of this city. Nursing Sister Marion Overend, who had been at Number 3 Base Hospital in France made the supreme sacrifice on June 16, 1918, when she was killed in an aeroplane accident. Nursing Sister May Overend graduated in 1911, from Mount Sinai Hospital, six years before her sister, and is attached to Base Hospital 3. At present she is at number 1 Military Hospital, near Paris.

RETURNED ON LEAVE.

Peterboro recently welcomed home Miss Jean Harstone, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Harstone, Water St. She went overseas in the early stages of the war to serve in any capacity, and release men for active service. After an interesting time spent in England she went to France to drive a motor ambulance. After some marvellous escapes made while fulfilling her duty, she was granted a two months' leave in her home in Canada.

WITH MOTOR CORPS.

A variation from the Nursing Sisters who are overseas, comes in the work done in the United States by one of Peterboro's daughters, Mrs. (Capt.) Varley, formerly Miss Agnes Heaslip, Gilmour street. Mrs. Varley was in New York at the time of the United States joining the Allies. Tiring of work not actually connected with active war service, she joined the New York Women's Motor Ambulance Corps of America, which is a unit recognized by the American Government. Recently Mrs. Varley visited the city and created great interest amongst her old friends by her uniform, which is identical with the regular military uniforms. Her husband, Captain W. H. Varley, is overseas with the Ordinance Department, Tanks Corps, American Expeditionary Force.

DOING V.A.D. WORK.

Recently Miss Margaret Eastwood and Miss Margery Hatton left for Toronto, to take a course in V. A. D., in readiness to take their places to aid wounded soldiers.

AT MASSEY-HARRIS HOSPITAL.

Nursing Sister Dorothy Harstone, daughter of Mrs. William Harstone, graduated in 1918 from the General Hospital in Toronto. She left for overseas a few months ago to join the Massey-Harris Hospital, in England.

Arrived Overseas.

Nursing Sister Helen Denne, daughter of the late Henry Denne, of Peterborough, graduated in 1917 from the Presbyterian Hospital in Chicago, after completing her Arts course at Queen's University. Early this year she enlisted for overseas and left two weeks ago for the front. Word was received on Saturday of her safe arrival in England, but her destination is not known yet. Her sister, Mrs. Bell, graduated from Kingston General Hospital and enlisted for overseas in 1915. After service in France, Salonika and Lemnos, she returned to Canada to take a position in the Military Hospital at Kingston. She is at present on leave visiting her sisters in the city.

From Toronto General.

Nursing Sister Pearl Eastwood, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. I. Eastwood, 305 George street, graduated from the General Hospital in Toronto in 1916, and went overseas last fall.

Called to Halifax.

Nursing Sister Cathrine O'Brien 524 Bolivar street, is at present in the Whitby Convalscent Hospital. At the time of the Halifax disaster last winter she was sent to help in the hospitals, where she served for some weeks.

With Pension Fund.

Mrs. Russell Widdifield, daughter of Mr. Henry Denne, graduated from St. Hilda's College. When her husband, Captain Widdifield, went overseas with the 93rd Battalion, she wished to help with war work and took her present position with the Pensions Board in Toronto.

Colonel Machin Tells of the Number of Recruits Obtained.

QUEBEC, Aug. 28.—Colonel Machin, director of military service, testified here to-day in the Practice Court in the pending proceedings in connection with the habeas corpus writs issued on behalf of a number of draftees. He stated that yesterday, just as he was leaving for Quebec, he received instructions from the Minister of Justice at Ottawa, to make no statement whatever as to the number of draftees obtained through the Military Service Act. He stated, however, that the 100,000 men authorized by the Military Service Act have not, so far, been enlisted.

However, he stated that to date the number of draftees enlisted under the Military Service Act is 42,396. He was asked if the 100,000 would be enlisted if the number of men on leave, of absentees and deserters was taken in, and he said no. Justice Drouin, presiding, asked Col. Machin if the deserters were included in the number of men called under the act, and if they would have given the required 100,000 men. Col. Machin answered that he believed not.

MAY MAKE CIDER IF NOT OVER 2½ P.C.

ST. THOMAS, Aug. 29.—Apple growers in this vicinity have been soliciting the advice of County Police Magistrate Hunt regarding the law's stand in the matter of making hard cider this fall. His Worship informed the men that, providing their product did not trespass beyond the 2½ per cent. quality, they would be permitted to make their cider and to dispose of it, but he warned them against disposing of a stronger drink.

The new spring colors frequently have natural names—ruby, garnet, copper, emerald and so on.

SEWER FINISHED TO-DAY.

Prince Street Work Completed, Romaine Mystery Next.

The last pipe in the Prince Street sewer was expected to be laid this afternoon, and with the refilling of the trench early next week this work will be completed. City Engineer Parsons stated this morning that the men would then move to Romaine Street to make the repairs that have been urged by Ald. Saunders. The Princess Street sewer will then be begun from Park Street.

Cotton voiles and cotton crepes will be among the most favored of summer materials.

SEES TROUBLE AFTER THE WAR.

Cunard Line Chairman Takes a Pessimistic View of Future.

LIVERPOOL, Aug. 30.—Stormy days after the war were predicted today by Sir Alfred Booth, presiding at the annual meeting of the Cunard Line. The principal dangers he foresaw where:

Difficulty of deflating currency and credit without destroying confidence.

The tendency to maintain government control, which he said, would produce a deadening effect on enterprise.

International attempt to divide up the raw materials of the world among competing industries, making politics instead of price, the determining factor of distribution. "The international jealousies engendered by such a system," said Sir Alfred, "would be sufficient to kill any league of nations which we might have to form."

Labor unrest due to false hopes of a new heaven and a new earth.

LINDSAY HUNTERS WILL NOT SHOOT ON SUNDAY

"No person shall on the Lord's day hunt, take, kill or destroy any game, or use any gun or other engine for that purpose."

The Warder has been requested to state that the majority of sports have agreed verbally that they will not do any shooting on Sunday next. In fact according to law as quoted above) it is illegal to do so. However, as the first day for shooting commences on the first of September there might be some who would take advantage of the day, there being no work. Let it be remembered that Monday is also a holiday when shooting can be indulged in without interruption.

It is hoped that all sports will govern themselves acordingly—Lindsay Warder.

French Slow to Shout Victory Enemy Still Full of Fight

Abnormal Methods Employed to Extricate Himself From Disastrous Retreat — Situation for the Allies More Brilliant Than Ever.

HUNS NO MORE AT NOYON

PARIS, Aug. 30.—"The Germans are no more at Noyon," exclaim the newspapers of Paris in triumphant heavy type this morning.

While all are exultant and all believe that the situation for the allies is more brilliant than ever, yet previous experiences make Frenchmen slow to shout victory. It is realized that the Germans, although beaten, are still full of fight, but they are undoubtedly in an awkward predicament.

Operations during the past week have left their front running north and south instead of northwest and southeast, as it should be to permit an orderly retreat to the Hindenburg line, where they hope to spend the winter, keeping the allies on the barren and desolate ground to the west of that famous position. The enemy is now some dozen miles from that line, and the Bapaume-Peronne road is being cut. Unless he can mark time for a while on the Tortille River, he will not be able to hold the Peronne-Ham road, which is particularly valuable as it runs along the Somme. Water is the only thing that can stop tanks.

Once across the Somme there is nothing behind the enemy but a wide plain cut only by the Ohignon river, which is useless to him, since it runs perpendicular to the front. At the same time he will be obliged to hold back General Mangin south of the Oise, where the French army forms a dangerous, aggressive hook in the German flank.

Henri Bidou, military critic of the Journal des Pa Debats, in a despatch from the battle front, clearly sets forth the plight in which the Germans are placed.

Accentuated.

"The German retreat is being accentuated along the same lines as during the past few days," M. Bidou says. "That is to say, the Germans are pivoting on their right flank, which is formed by the centre and right flank of Gen. von Below's army in the Arras region. They were obliged to make this retreat because Gen. von Hutier's position in the Roye salient had become extremely dangerous. This necessitated placing the basis for the whole movement in the north. Attacks by Gen. Byng and Gen. Horne were intended to break this pivot.

"This manoeuvre was attempted in 1917 at the time of the first German retreat. The German danger was most grave and the enemy escaped at that time only by sacrificing a great number of divisions. So it is at present. One has the paradoxical sight of a retreating army increasing its forces at the front. This is absolutely abnormal in retreat and adds to the confusion and losses. It shows from what difficulties the enemy had to extricate himself.

"On Aug. 25, at Contalmaison, north of the Somme, Gen. von der Marquitz had fifteen divisions in line, two of which had just arrived. The next day the French on Marwitz's left entered Roye, and he fell back on the Somme to avoid being outflanked. The confusion in this mass of infantry under such circumstances can be imagined. In a word the enemy was so closely pressed in his retreat that he was obliged to leave his divisions in line, and even reinforce them. This is contrary to what a commander usually seeks to do in case of a retreat."

GOING TO PAINT OR PAPER THIS FALL?

Your home, whether in course of construction or renovation may need some new wallpaper, painting or other decorations, this fall. Before the rush season begins is a good time to have this work done. Mr. Walter Sidon, who is managing the business of Hughston Johnston at 416 Water street, is prepared to fill contracts for all kinds of this work. Mr. Sidon is a practical painter and decorator, having gained his principal experience in some of the largest American cities. He will be glad to show the New Fall Novelties in Wallpapers to all who call on him, and for the next two weeks will put on any wallpaper bought at his store for 15c per roll. 4d-49

CATTLE MARKET

TORONTO, Aug. 30.—The feature of this week's cattle market was the collapse of the spring lamb market on Thursday, and by noon the real choice stock was bringing only $16.50 per cwt. Monday showed a decline of $1.00 during the day's trading. With the exception of calves a fair run of all meats were received but the sales were comparatively quiet. Hogs still stood at last week's price of $19.50 per cwt., fed and watered, and this price remained unchanged in the general trading throughout the week, although a few choice loads brought as high as $19.75, but this did not reflect the real tone of the market. Tuesday saw the market quiet with a little better run of cattle, but prices remained steady to firm in all lines with the exception of lambs which showed a slight tendency toward higher prices.

It is expected that now the Canadian National Exhibition is in full swing that trade should begin to look a little better.

THE GERMAN PRISONERS

NEW YORK, Aug. 30.—The chaos reigning throughout Siberia, a territory greater in extent of mileage than the United States, but peopled by less than 6,000,000 Russians, is such that a very small allied army can take control and organize the country for the benefit of the people. On the other hand, if the Allies fail to act decisively and speedily, control can be accomplished by 40,000 Germans, who need not be first line troops.

These are the opinions of a man who has spent a year in the revolutions and counter-revolutions that have wrecked the cities and towns that stud the Trans-Siberian and the newly completed Amur River Railway. The traveller quoted has just arrived in New York, but prefers not to be identified because of the nature of the enterprise upon which he was engaged and may again have to undertake.

"There are three definite and distinct factors among the released prisoners, and then there is a fourth, formed of loyal Russians.

"When the Bolsheviki threw open the doors of the prison camps and offered arms to the German and Austro-Hungarian soldiers they found the Czechoslovaks already partly organized and partly equipped, ready to assist their fellow Slavs, the Russians, to fight against the Central Powers. They found a second group of prisoners who, morally wrecked, were anxious to join them in murder, rape and plunder. This second group was he criminal element of the Germanic armies, but the Bolsheviki also attracted many other Germans because their outlawry offered liberation from the confinement, monotony and severity of prison life in Siberia.

"It was the spirit of Bolshevism to proclaim the international social order, and the Germans and Austro-Hungarians took up the cry of internationalism and declared their intention to carry the creed back to Austria-Hungary and Germany. But few are going back. Some have married Russian women. Most, however, are mere freebooters.

"The third element among the prisoners, a very large number, are those who are still loyal to the Central Powers, and these men form a definite class who hope for eventual repatriation or the coming of the Germans.

"The condition is such that if the Allied and American troops would enter quickly, even the Bolshevist elements would, I have no doubt, rally to their cause and serve under them. They are soldiers of fortune.

"Where Are the Allies?"

"The people as a whole have been asking for many months, 'When are the Allies coming?' Finally they began to ask why the Japanese did not come alone.

"There is no intense race prejudice among the Russians such as exists in the United States against people of other colours. The Siberian people would welcome any invaders from the Allies' side who would restore law and order. To them the present condition is intolerable. The life of man, woman and child is unprotected.

"The Czechoslovaks did not at first clash with the Bolshevist-Teuton detachments, but the conflict had to come, for the former are fighting for nationalism, hoping to deliver their people from the oppression of Austria-Hungary, knowing that if the Central Powers win the plight of their race will be more serious than it has ever been before, and that their own lives are doomed if they do not escape the clutches of Teuton armies.

"The Czechoslovaks in Siberia are divided into two forces by a vast stretch of territory, a six days' journey by rail apart. A group of some 15,000 is more or less safe with its base at Vladivostok, with Allied contingents supporting it and Allied warships behind. But those who are cut off in West Siberia and scattered along the railway from Lake Baikal to the Ural Mountains, having a limited supply of ammunition, may be in a very sad plight and may never escape.

"They may cross the desert of Gobi, traversing Mongolia and proceeding down into China, but this is a long journey, perilous because of the lack of supplies; or they may fight their way through the Bolshevist-Teuton forces and form a junction with the old loyalist Russian leader, Semenoff, whose rear is protected by the Japanese forces in Western Manchuria.

"Their position is precarious in any event. They have better organization than their immediate enemies, but they are probably outnumbered."

TORTURING, ITCHING ECZEMA

Mrs. J. B. Horth, Pasmebiac, Bonaventure Co., Que., writes:—"Thanks to Dr. Chase's Ointment I have been completely cured of that horrible disease eczema. I was held as if in prison from going among other people, for I was ashamed of the raw, flaming sores. Doctors could do nothing for me and I was almost desperate with suffering when I began to use Dr. Chase's Ointment. In one month I was completely cured and think that this was little short of a miracle."

PRIVATE GUY EMPEY ARRIVES AT FORT SLOCUM FOR DUTY

NEW ROCHELLE, N.Y. — Arthur Guy Empey, author and war lecturer, arrived at Fort Slocum at ten o'clock this morning by automobile from New York to begin his life of a private in the army. He enlisted a few days ago. It was his second trip to Fort Slocum on the same mission, he said, having enlisted through there in the regular army nine years ago.

The first person he met was Sergeant John Maynard, whom he also met nine years ago, but had not seen since. There was a joyous re-union. Private Empey will lecture on the war next Thursday night in the Young Mens Christian Association hut.

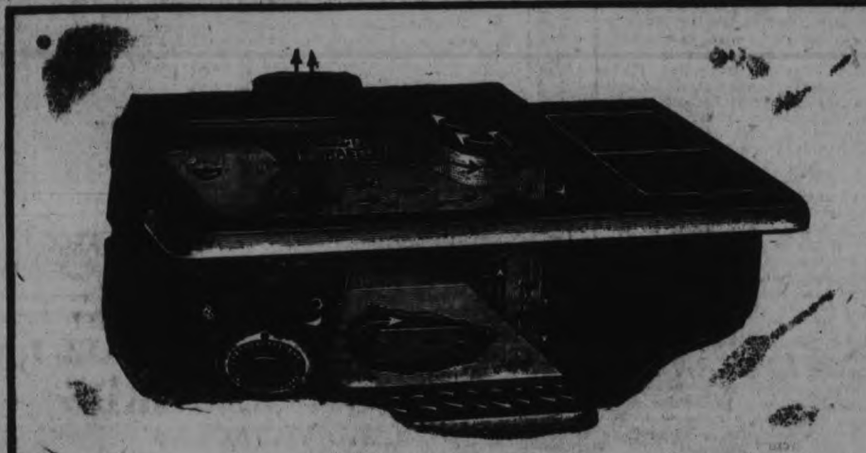
END DAYLIGHT PLAN OCT. 31ST.

Shortening Days will Remind us That Old Scheme will soon Return.

Now that the days are getting shorter many good citizens are finding it hard to fulfill the old maxim of "early to bed and early to rise." Habits will tell and nature will help them to tell, and that's the principal reason why many people are wondering when the clock will be turned back, daylight saving cease, and the good old order of things continue as of yore.

All of which leads up to the fact that daylight saving comes to an end at two o'clock in the morning on Thursday, October 31st.

Canada, although extending farther north than any other Anglo-Saxon country, is the last to forsake the economy of time, the closing limit in the United States being the last Sunday in October, which comes on October 27th, and the time expiring in the United Kingdom being September 29th.



Secret of the Pandora Magic

NO other range has a flue system just like that of the Pandora.

The flue system of the Pandora Range makes the almost magical efficiency of the Pandora oven—conserves the heat in the range to do its maximum of work under the covers, in the oven, in the reservoir and in the warming closet.

The Pandora flue system is the secret of the Pandora baking efficiency, the Pandora fuel economy and the complete control which makes baking and cooking a pleasure and lightens all the other kitchen work.

Note how the Pandora flue system carries the heat to every part of the range, surrounding the oven in walls of heat under perfect control.

See how the heat passes the length and depth of the hot water reservoir.

Note how it passes under the six-hole top in a current which gives the Pandora five "boiling" holes.

"The Girl Who Had No God"

By MARY ROBERTS RINEHART
Author of "The Man in Lower Ten," "The After House," Etc.

From that time she never took her eyes away from him. Other men were there. She did not see them. She saw only Ward battling on the ridge-pole, and high above on the steeple the sturdy cross of his faith.

Once the men on the street below turned the full force of the hose on him. She saw him reel, saw him recover himself by a miracle.

The fire glare died into the dawn. Saint Jude's was saved. Behind it in its park the charred skeleton of the parish house showed how thoroughly young Huff had done his work. Not until Ward had descended safely to the street did Elinor relax.

Ward found her sitting in one of the chairs along the pavement, her hair still in its long braid, her feet thrust into slippers, her eyes red from long staring.

The fire engine as being dragged away. The crowd had dispersed.

Ward, blackened and depressed, was surveying the ruins with a heavy heart. He turned and saw the girl.

Just at first he was not sure of her. He was always seeing her, mentally. Then he went toward her, his hand out.

"You see," he said, "what an hour may bring forth!" And then, "You reckless child, here in slippers!"

"I saw you on the roof," said Elinor, barely able to articulate. "Once I thought you had fallen."

"They nearly got me. It's rather sad, isn't it?" He stood, bareheaded in the cool dawn, and surveyed the ruin.

People meet great crises simply. She tried to find some word of sympathy to say, but what was there, poor child? She knew the true inwardness of that disastrous night. So, with pathetic eyes, she turned away.

"I'll go home now," she said. "I saw the glare —I—" Quite suddenly her lips trembled. "I should like to help you with the new building."

"Fine!" said Ward heartily. "We'll get to that before long.'

"If you had fallen——"

He was not listening. It came to her then how far apart they were. To her his falling would have been an end of all things to him, it would have meant the beginning of a useful eternity.

"If you wait a little, I'll run around and get my car and take you up."

She sat down again, obediently. She was glad to be with him a little longer.

Until recently, the work of the band had always seemed a vague abstraction. Now one of its results lay before her. And there were other things fresh in her mind—old Hilary, dead of his revolt against law, and lying in state before an altar erected to a God he had not recognized. And Ward, watching her windows and thinking her the embodiment of what a woman should be.

Over her bitterness rose a hot wave of anger against Walter Huff. She had forbidden this thing and he had done it.

CHAPTER VII

Ward brought her a cup of coffee, and stood by with satisfaction while she drank it. In his eyes there was a mixture of depression and joy. The parish-house was gone, and this girl before him was to marry another man. But they would build another parish-house, and who knew——

He drove her up the hill in his small car. At the top of a rise he stopped the car and looked back. The night's devastation showed clearly, a black wound in the smiling heart of the valley.

Elinor watched him.

"It means a great deal to you, doesn't it?"

"It's rather a facer—Of course we will build again, but there are things that could not be replaced. That isn't what troubles me. The fact is, I am afraid I'm responsible.

"I was there last night, alone. I have a bad habit, when I have a mental problem to worry out, of walking up and down a room and lighting one cigarette after another. I am reckless with matches."

Then perhaps, after all, Walter had not done it!

The car climbed slowly. Ward kept his eyes straight ahead Elinor cast little shy glances at his profile.

"You said you had something to worry out?"

He drew a long breath.

"I have had an offer to go to New York to a big church. It's rather a wonderful opportunity."

Elinor made no sign except to clutch her hands as they lay ungloved in her lap.

"Then you will be leaving—us?

"No," he said. "I shall not be leaving you."

"You like it here?"

Very much." He turned and looked down at her. It was unwise. He realized that at once. So frail she looked, so softly, tenderly feminine! And, because he knew that, after the night, he had not yet got control over himself, the merest hand-clasp as she got out of the machine was all he dared. But at the top of the steps Elinor turned.

"You will never know just how sorry I am," she said, and went through her garden to the house.

From that Friday morning until the evening of the following day Elinor was quite alone.

Hour after hour she spent pacing the terrace looking down into the valley. On Friday night, unable to sleep, she threw a negligee over her shoulders and went into the garden. The village slept quietly, but there was a light in Ward's small window near the church. She remained on the terrace until the light was extinguished.

At dinner that Saturday Boroday's empty place cast a gloom over the meal. Walter Huff came a little late. Under the ease of his greeting there was a touch of uneasiness as he met Elinor's eyes. When the servants left the room, Talbot leaned forward to Walter.

"Now tell us about it," he said.

Huff was frankly triumphant, but he still avoided Elinor's eyes.

"It's working out exactly as I knew it would," he explained. "Having once had a parish-house they can not do without it. The vestry carried only about a third enough insurance. And there's another point in our favor—the rector's away. He's got rheumatism. They are going to take up an additional purse to send him to Baden-Baden."

"When?"

To-morrow morning. And to-morrow being Sunday, the assistant rector, Elinor's friend, will have it in charge until Monday morning.'

"I shall warn him." said Elinor suddenly.

There was silence for a moment. Talbot smiled. Lethbridge looked astounded. Huff, bending forward with his arms out before him on the table, confronted Elinor squarely.

"That's it, is it?" he said.

"I asked you not to do—what you have done. The children used it all the time. They played basket-ball there. Besides, my wish should mean something to you."

Huff shrugged his shouldess.

"If I had burned a tenement full of people——"

"A man was nearly killed. He was on the ridge pole of the church and they turned the full force of the water on him. I saw it. I——almost fainted."

"You saw it?"

"I was there," said Elinor quietly.

Huff rose angrily.

"You were there! And who was it who almost fell off the roof? Your parson, I suppose."

Talbot silenced the boy. It was Lethbridge who took up the argument. He understood her position and sympathised,, he said. The fire was a mistake. But now that it was done —. He spoke of Boroday's critical condition, of their safety that depended on his, and finding her attitude to be unyielding, took refuge in her father's memory.

"If anything comes out, it will all come out," he reminded her. "It seems to me, Elinor, that you owe it to your father not to interfere. This isn't a new plan. Four or five years ago when the parish house was first built we talked it over here. And it isn't as though we meant to hurt this fellow Ward. We will be three to one; he'll make no resistance."

"Yes," she said. "Three to one. That is the way we fight. Oh, I am one of you, I know that, but it sickens me sometimes."

The men were astounded, frankly uncomfortable.

The conference got nowhere. Elinor acknowledged their duty to the Russian, offered all her jewels in fact for his defence. But she stubbornly refused to countenance the attack on Mr. Ward. Huff lapsed into sullen silence, his eyes on her. The other men found every argument met by silence except for the passionate outburst.

"He is my friend," she cried. "I have never had any friends except once, years ago, a girl. It was Boroday then who used my friendship for her. It was the Rutherford matter. Walter would not remember, but the rest of you—I tell you, I won't do this thing."

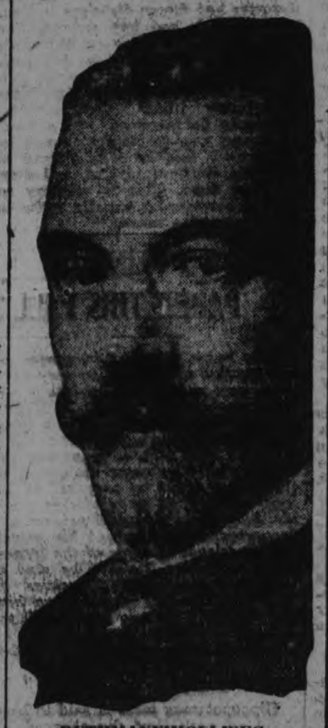
WAR STARTED BY CRIMINALS

German Soldier Makes a Startling Assertion.

WARLORDS ARE GUILTY

Capt. Von Beerfelde Sends to the Reichstag a Demand for the Arrest of Former Chancellor von Bethmann Hollweg, and He Says That Appalling Deceits Caused Outbreak In 1914.

EVEN though the Germans have been educated for four years by documents that blame the war upon the Allies, they seem to be commencing to feel that the nation was betrayed by the men who were at the helm in July, 1914. Their own writers are telling them that the famous meeting of July 5th, 1914, really did take place, at which the warlords decided that the time was ripe for a world war. A little incident recently occurred in Germany which is very significant. It would doubtless have been kept secret, but the channels of news are not all controlled by the military party, and these facts leaked out through Amsterdam. It appears that a memorandum demanding ruthless action against the men at the helm of the German Government in 1914 as guilty criminals, has been issued by former Capt. von Beerfelde. The memorandum is entitled "A Necessary Consequence of the White Book," and was sent to the members of the Reichstag during the third week of July by the captain, who was prominent in connection with the Prince Lichnowsky affair, brought about by the prince declaring that Germany was responsible for the war.



BETHMANN HOLLWEG.

Capt. von Beerfelde's memo. says that the German leaders at the beginning of the war were guilty of appalling deceits and acted in the service of traitors.

He demands the immediate arrest of former Chancellor von Bethmann Hollweg, and declares that if the Reichstag does not fulfil his demand the curse of this and all succeeding generations will fall upon it for cowardly neglect of duty.

In case of the Reichstag's refusal, Capt. von Beerfelde declares he will immediately request passes for himself and family to Switzerland, because he will not longer share Germany's shame and dishonor.

Tommy Burns an Instructor.

Tommy Burns, ex-champion heavyweight pugilist of the world, arrived in Vancouver during the last week of May, passed his medical examination and joined the forces as physical instructor at Hastings Park Camp. Tommy Burns, whose real name is Noah Brusso, is a Hanover, Ont., boy. He was well known as an amateur lacrosse player in the province before he took to boxing. Many lacrosse enthusiasts have seen him perform in the national game.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

Some Fall Fishing

By C. B. LEWIS

(Copyright, 1918, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

The doctor in the city had told Miss Gertie Ashford to stay in the country as long as she could, on account of the state of her throat, and that was why she was yet at her grandmother's when mid-September came.

It hadn't been a very lively summer for the girl. She had taken long walks. She had fussed with the old-fashioned flowers; she had sought in vain to win the confidence of the chipmunks and rabbits which came about, and she had hunted for quails' nests in the wheat fields. There was one sport, however, she had not participated in. There was a creek meandering its way over the country and crossing the highway a few rods below the house, and in that creek were fish at least as long as her finger. She knew it, because she had seen them, and because a neighbor's boy twelve years old had told her:

"Why, of course there are fish—slathers and slathers of 'em, and they are achin' to be cotched, jest as a cat aches for cream. Haven't hauled out more'n a hundred this summer."

"But I was taught in Sunday school that it was wicked to catch fish," was protested.

"Humph! Would we have codfish cakes if folks didn't go a-fishin'?"

The boy rigged up a line and pole for her, and Miss Gertie went fishing. He stood on the bank with her for a while to advise:

"Now, lower your hook!"

"Now, stop wobbling the pole!"

"Now, don't you dare breathe!"

"Now, shet you eyes and say your prayers, for there's a fish as long as a rail comin' for your hook!"

When half an hour had passed and the fisher hadn't had a nibble yet, the boy wandered away in disgust. At the end of the second half-hour Miss Gertie said to herself:

"I know why I don't have any luck. It's because the fish can see me. I'll play a trick on them."

Thereupon she stuck the end of the pole into the bank and left the hook to do its own fishing while she retired to the house for a rest. Ferrers Yorke, the author and artist, was planning a new story. The opening chapters would tell of a meadow, a brook, a bridge and a pretty girl, and the girl would be fishing in that brook. The author was great on local color, and he had come out into the country to find the spot that another would have to imagine. He was quite sure that he could find it, but the girl with a fishpole in her hands, and there was one chance in a thousand that he would find her. He had discovered two or three brooks, bridges and meadows when his search brought him to the willows opposite to where Gertie stood.

A rash young man would have stalked out of the bushes with a hello and a wave of his hat, and waded the brook and asked how many fish had been caught, and how many had got away. Mr. Yorke was not rash. He did not betray his presence among the willows. Not that he was a spy by nature, but that, having found his heroine, he must study her a bit.

The heroine of a story must have auburn hair which the sunshine turns to gold.

She must have a neck like a swan, though not as long.

She must have a Grecian nose—not the sort you see around the Greek restaurants of New York, but one made to order in Athens and sent on packed in pink cotton.

Her eyes must be like stars. The stars worn by constables are excluded from the contest.

Her form must be divine, which means it must not be molded on the lines of a sack of flour.

She must have twinkling feet.

She should sing as she fished.

Did the girl across the creek from the artist fill the bill? Yes, and more. She was a sylph—a houri—an angel. With her for a heroine that story would go like buckwheat cakes on a winter's morning. Even when she became discouraged about the fish and turned away with a shrug of her shoulders, he was delighted with the shrug.

An artist and an author has two souls, as we all know. One is a dream soul, and can hear the whispers of the angels with every breeze that blows through a patch of bull-thistles—the other gives him a proper appetite for a boiled dinner.

When Mr. Yorke had looked upon Gertie with one soul, he laid it aside to look with the other. The girl went away, but she would return. She would confidently expect to find something on her hook. If there was not a victim she would be disappointed.

How a farmer's cast-off boot came to be lying on the farther bank in plain sight is a mystery to be explained some other time. In days gone by a bear might have overtaken him at that spot and devoured everything but the boot. For the two-souled artist to lean the brook and seize the boot and make it fast to the fishhook and leap back among the willows was the work of three minutes.

The angels cannot look down and witness such base tricks and punish them, but there is generally a small boy around to see and to give things away. In this case it was the small boy who had left the spot an hour before. He was returning to see what luck Gertie had had. He came stealthily, and he saw all, and he said to himself:

"Gee, but don't I wish I was as big as a house, so that I could give that chap a licking!"

He waited in hiding to see what the girl would do when she returned. She came slowly. She thought she saw the fishpole quiver. She seized it and flung the "fish" on to the grass behind her. She had just discovered what it was, and was looking at it in wonder, when the small boy left his lair to say:

"I saw the guy when he done it!"

"Did some one put this old boot on my hook?" she asked.

"He did, Miss, and he's right over there in the willers!"

Gertie walked down to the bridge and over it and up the bank to the clump of willows, where the two-souled artist crouched. He saw her coming, but there was no escape for him. He straightened up and raised his hat.

The girl looked him up and down with contempt, and he felt obliged to say:

"—I did it as a joke!"

"Are you what is called a comic supplement to a Sunday paper?" was asked.

"I'm sorry I did it."

"Oh, don't apologize. There are men of all sorts of caliber, you know!"

"But——"

But Gertie had turned her back on him and was walking away. When she rejoined the boy, the latter said:

"Say, that guy is stopping over at Farmer Turner's. Do you want me to go over there and lick him? You made his knees wobble, but I can make his hair stand up."

"I guess he got enough," was the reply, and yet the girl did not congratulate herself upon her victory.

Had it been such a great crime after all?

Wouldn't almost anyone else have taken it as a joke?

Couldn't she have taken it as a joke but for the small boy?

The "guy" was good-looking and a gentleman. A gentleman sometimes jokes as well as other sorts of men. He had said he was sorry, and would have gone further if she had consented to listen. He had blushed and been confused, and had gone away as if looking for a hole to hide in.

Miss Gertie had a temper quick to flash and quick to cool off again, and by the next morning she had made reasonable excuses for the joker. So it was with the small boy. His father had said it was a good joke, and his mother had smiled at it, and the lad had come to feel it a duty to go over to Turner's and tell the guy that he was sorry he had given him away. He was on his way to Turner's across the fields, when he caught sight of Gertie on the highway. She was in the old buggy and behind the old horse which her grandmother had owned for nearly twenty years. She was headed for the village and the postoffice.

A quarter of a mile beyond the girl was the "guy." He was running down the hill and waving his hat at her.

"Now, then, is that feller crazy?" asked the small boy of himself, as he mounted a stump to see the better.

From the brow of the hill the artist had seen a pair of horses and a wagon coming on the dead run. He had instantly realized that the driver of the lighter vehicle would not take the alarm until too late. He was within five rods of her when he recognized Gertie, and as he reached the head of the old horse he grasped the bridle and fairly dragged the outfit into the ditch. As it was, a wheel was taken off the old buggy and the girl thrown out. She was somewhat bruised and terribly scared, and, of course, Mr. Yorke had to assist her to the house, while the small boy remained on the spot to pick up the pieces and assure old Dobbin that he had had the escape of his life.

That evening the same small boy called on Gertie to see if she had any toes broken and to add:

"Did you give the guy any more fits?"

"Why, no," was replied.

"Do you think him nice?"

"I—I think so."

"Is he a hero?"

"He must be."

"Then you'll marry him, of course, and I'll be left high and dry! That's what a boy gets for showing a girl how to go a-fishing and catch an old boot!"

Can You Solve This Great War Puzzle?
WHO WANTS ME?

Four Things That Will Win The War
WHAT ARE THEY?

THE 16 Circles above can be made to spell out the names of the four chief things that are going to win the war. Our bright loyal Canadian boys and girls can help provide at least one of these things. Every boy and girl should know all of them. Can you tell what words the four magic circles represent?

How to solve it.—Each circle represents a letter of the word called for. The number of dots in the circle represents the position of that letter in the alphabet. For instance: "A" would be represented by a circle with one dot because it is the first letter of the alphabet. "B" would be represented by a circle with two dots because it is the second letter. "C" would be represented by three dots, "D" by four dots and so on. You must correctly count the dots in each circle, figure out the letter represented by its position in the alphabet and when you have them all figured out put them into proper rotation to spell the name wanted. It's not an easy puzzle but if you can solve it correctly you may win this lovely shetland pony or one of the grand Cash prizes above.

NEW JERSEY MURDER MYSTERY IS SOLVED.

Binghampton, N. J., August 30. — Lucy Lewis, alias Courtright, of Rathway, N.Y., and James Conklin, of Rathway, confessed, according to Sheriff Neal Lewis, that they were responsible for the death of Horace N. They confessed, the sheriff says, to robbing the house in the absence of Woodward, a recluse, and later returning to compel him to disclose a supposed hoard of wealth.

Reception to Teacher.

On Monday evening a reception was held at the High School auditorium in honour of Superintendent M. E. Nugent and wife, who will soon depart for Fessenden at which place Mr. Nugent has accepted a position for the coming year.

The high esteem in which Mr. and Mrs. Nugent are held by the citizens of Glen Ullin and community, was manifested by the presence of over two hundred friends.

The auditorium was tastefully decorated for the occasion with flags, ferns and flowers, by members of the alumni.

The members of the school board and their wives assisted by others, acted as hosts and hostesses for the evening, and the High school girls acted as ushers and waiters.

A fine musical programme was rendered by the young people of the community, which consisted of solos, duets, orchestra music and selections by the Girls' Glee Club. The band also rendered several fine selections.

Rev. Hass gave the welcoming address. Attorney Temple from Elgin, gave a fine talk, setting forth the advantages of an education, and particularly stating what Mr. Nugent has done for their school and community. Mr. John Tavis, president of the School Board, gave a talk in behalf of the school patrons, and friends, expressing their appreciation of what seven years of conscientious work has meant to them and the community in general, which was responded to by Mr. Nugent in a very pleasing manner.

The programme closed by the entire audience singing America, followed by patriotic selections by the band.

A beautiful cut glass bowl was presented to Mr. and Mrs. Nugent by the company assembled.

While regretting that Mr. and Mrs. Nugent are leaving, the best wishes for their future welfare from the entire community goes with them.

Cramps and Pains In The Stomach QUICKLY CURED BY
DR. FOWLER'S
EXTRACT OF WILD STRAWBERRY.

Mrs. J. Fawcett, Hopewell Hill, N. B., writes: "I am writing you of my experience with Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry.
Last summer I was taken so very sick with cramps and pains across my stomach that I sent for the doctor. He said I had summer complaint and gave me some medicine, but it did me very little good. As I was reading your B. B. B. Almanac, I saw Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry advertised, so I asked my sister to go to the store and get me a bottle, and before I had taken all of it I was a well woman, and have not had the slightest return of the trouble since. I cannot say enough for your valuable medicine, and always keep a bottle in the house."
You run absolutely no risk when you buy Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry, as it has been a standard remedy on the market for the past 72 years. Ask for "Dr. Fowler's" and insist on getting it, as the cheap imitations are dangerous to your health. Price, 35c. Put up by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

We shall be glad, therefore, if you will kindly accept and convey to all those interested our hearty thanks for their kind co-operation in the work, which is indeed greatly appreciated.

LEMON JUICE TAKES OFF TAN
Girls! Make bleaching lotion if skin is sunburned, tanned or freckled

Squeeze the juice of two lemons into a bottle containing three ounces of Orchard White, shake well, and you have a quarter pint of the best freckle, sunburn and tan lotion, and complexion beautifier, at very, very, small cost.
Your grocer has the lemons, and any drug store or toilet counter will supply three ounces of Orchard White for a few cents. Massage this sweetly fragrant lotion into the face, neck, arms and hands each day and see how freckles, sunburn, windburn and tan disappear, and how clear, soft and white the skin becomes. Yes! It is harmless.

On Duty.

Abe, who was new to the army was placed on guard. During the day all had gone smoothly, and he was gaining in self-assurance. Before he went out with his relief at 9 p.m., the corporal asked him if he knew his general orders and how to challenge anyone at night. "Sure," said Abe; "I'll tell him in a high-pitched voice that he should stop." "That's it. 'Halt! Who is there?' but suppose he doesn't stop?" "Well, I'll tell him vonce, then I tell him again, then I'll shoot him in th' head." "Fine," grinned the corporal. "Look out for the officer of the day when he makes his tour of inspection. Halt him sharply. If you don't, woy! Pull in your neck!" "Ha, ha! Don't worry!" Abe had been walking his post for a little more than an hour. The night was clear, and there was a moon. He was getting lonesome, and was just a bit nervous. The trees and shadows made figures that moved with the leaves, and did not answer when challenged. It was disconcerting. A step sounded, and a form came out of the shade along the path. Abe stood with open mouth. The form came into the light of the moon, and Abe recognized the officer of the day. He heaved a great breath of relief and said: "Oh, it's you, is it? By golly, you scared me somethink awful."

Second suburbanite — No. After last year's thrift garden experience I concluded to feed my neighbor's chickens in the regular way instead of planting the seed.

HAIG'S MEN ARE GAINING ON BOTH SIDES OF LYS SALIENT

On the North Flank Dramoutre Has Been Captured, While in the South the Village of La Couture Has Been Entered—French Report Heavy Artillery.

GAINS NEAR PERONNE

Canadian Press:

LONDON, Aug. 31.— (Official.) — British forces have entered the village of Dranoutre, south of Locre, on the north side of the Lys salient.

The German troops have been driven from their positions east of Clery, on the Somme, north-west of Peronne, and the British advance in this locality is continuing.

On the south side of the Lys salient the British have occupied the village of La Couture, north-east of La Couture, north-east of Bethune.

THE FRENCH REPORT.

PARIS, Aug. 31.—(Official.)—Heavy artillery fighting near Noyon and below the Ailette and the Aisne rivers is reported to-day. The text of the statement reads:

During the night there was heavy artillery fighting in the region of the Canal Du Nord, north of Noyon and the Ailette and the Aisne rivers. German raids in the Champagne were unsuccessful.

LANDSCAPE UNCHANGED BY RECENT FIGHTING

(Special to the Examiner.)
(United Press Despatch)
(By Lowell Mellett)

WITH THE BRITISH ARMIES IN FRANCE, Aug. 31.—The ground over which the British are now fighting shows little new devastation since it was last occupied by them. The havoc wrought by the Huns in their previous retirement was so complete there is little left to destroy. It is even doubtful could the war last another four years, that these barren fields could be made a more complete waste than they are now.

As a matter of fact, however, the rapidity of the British advance is testified to by the fact that there are few signs of the recent fighting. The chief landmarks are the same rusty wrecks of tanks and the same enormous mine craters of a year ago.

A huge black wooden cross, a monument to the men lost by the Australian divisions at Poseires ridge, still stand not far from a new German cemetery. The cross is not harmed except for a few shrapnel splinters in spots. Poseires itself like Courcellett and other villages, featured daily in American newspapers, is a barren of houses as a new western boom townsite.

ENEMY POSITIONS ARE BECOMING MORE AND MORE DIFFICULT

Steady and Vigorous Artillery Battering of German Line in Chavigny—Livigny Region, Coupled With Brilliant Work of French Infantry, Are Having Their Effect.

(United Press.)
(By Fred S. Ferguson.)

Special to the Examiner:

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMIES IN FRANCE, Aug. 31.— Steady and vigorous artillery battering of the German line in the Chavigny-Juvigny region, coupled with the brilliant work of the French infantry, has rendered the enemy positions more difficult.

The harassing and desructive fire lasted all day yesterday in the American sector. Meanwhile the infantry kept to the shelter of the hastily dug holes, while patrols were maintaining contact with the Boche.

Juvigny has become most uncomfortable for the Germans and it is believed they have practically withdrawn from the village, leaving only strong machine gun nests to block the way.

The French in the Chavigny region, on the American right, progressed so rapidly that for a time the infantry fighting spread to the American lines. American light artillery fired on the Boche from the heights opposite Juvigny with direct, open sight fire..

The heaviest work in to-day's fighting fell to a French division. The Boches were cleared from an important wood and the line was generally shoved forward in the right flank area.

All prisoners taken by the Americans indicated that propaganda is still vigorously working in Germany to satisfy everyone of the justice of Germany's cause. This has been principally effective among the Prussians, who fail to show any of the lost confidence or low morale displayed by prisoners taken in the fighting along the Marne and the Vesle.

22,000 Policemen Now on Strike

City Police Joined the Strikers Last Night—Jewellers' Windows Are Broken and Considerable Property Stolen.

MUCH LAWLESSNESS

Canadian Press:

LONDON, Aug. 31.—Considerable lawlessness marked the first night passed by London without police protection.

During the earlier hours of the morning there were some harmless demonstrations, but later on these became active, and found a number of windows of jewellers' shops and other places of business broken and considerable property stolen, and there was trouble particularly in such centres as the Strand, Aldgate, and other busy streets, which are usually so well guarded that shopkeepers leave their goods on view during the night.

Twenty-two thousand policemen are now on strike, including the City police, who went out last night.

LIEUT. JACKSON ALIVE AND WELL BUT A PRISONER

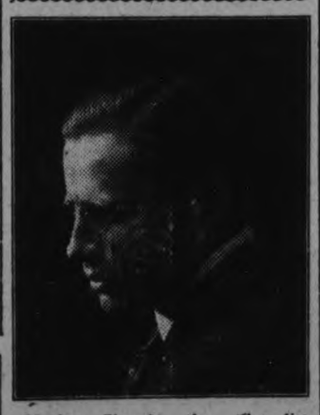
Peterboro Member of the Royal Air Force Who Has Been Missing Since August 10th is Located in Karlsruhe, Germany.

PRISONER-OF-WAR

The many friends of Lieut. Wm. Jackson, of the Royal Air Force, and son of Mr. James Jackson, 232 Perry Street, who has been missing since August 10th last, will be glad to learn that he is alive and, as far as is known, well, although a prisoner of war in Germany. The good news of Lieut. Jackson's safety was received by Mr. T. F. Matthews, of the Matthews-Blackwell Company, in a cable from London, which stated that the missing aviator was a prisoner in Germany.

Lieut. Jackson, after training in Canada and at the Royal Flying Corps camp in Texas last winter, went overseas in February, last, and after further training in England, was sent to France on duty. His relatives received official word several weeks ago that he had been missing since August 10th. The message which came yesterday stated that he is in Karlsruhe.

Lieut. Jackson is the second Peterborough flying man to fall into German hands, the other being Lieut. Geo. Logan, of the Royal Air Force. It is hoped that Lieut. Lorne McIntyre, also reported missing, may turn up in Germany as his fellow-flyers from this city have done.



Marley Sherris, the Canadian Baritone, of the Toronto Conservatory of Music, will visit Peterboro weekly, and will be identified with the vocal department of the Peterboro Conservatory of Music.

A singer of splendid attainments, he has built up an enviable reputation both in United States and Canada as a concert and oratoria artist, and this enables him to impart to his pupils a finish which none by a successful singer can give. Pupils will not only be prepared for the Toronto Conservatory examinations, but also for church and concert work, and those desirous of studying with him, should make application for time at once.

Great War Veterans Association Will Honour Memory of Comrades Who Are Buried in St. Peter's Cemetery.

BAND FOR COBOURG

There are several important events for the Peterborough branch of the Great War Veterans' Association in the near future.

To-morrow afternoon there will be a similar ceremony in connection with the graves of Roman Catholic comrades who have passed away. The Veterans will fall in at the armouries at 2 o'clock to-morrow afternoon, and the parade will be headed by the G.W.V.A. band. A very large turnout of members is expected.

On Tuesday night the regular monthly meeting of the Association will be held. Monday is the regular meeting night, but on account of the holiday the meeting has been postponed until the following evening.

The Great War Veterans' band will visit Cobourg a week from to-day and will give a concert for the soldiers at the Cobourg Military Hospital. On the Sunday the band will take part in the Decoration Day ceremonies which will be held under the auspices of the Oddfellows and the Cobourg branch of the G.W.V.A.

Vast Damage Done by Raid On Mannheim

Special to The Examiner:

LONDON, Aug. 31. — Despatches from Holland and Switzerland confirm the United Press interview with a British officer concerning the effectiveness of the aerial raid on Mannheim.

Enormous damage was done in some sections, according to despatches. Whole streets were devastated. The terror-stricken population seemed to be hypnotized and sought no cover, which is declared to be responsible for the large number of casualties.

BIG ADVANCE FOR BRITISH IN FLANDERS

LONDON, Aug. 31. — The official statement to-day says:

During the night the Australian troops drove the enemy from the east of Clery-Sur-Somme, capturing many prisoners and a number of machine guns. The advance in this locality is continuing.

Yesterday forenoon English troops carried out successful operations north of the Arras-Cambrai road, capturing a point north of St. Servine Farm, and the village of Eterpigny, on the east bank of the Sensee river.

On the Lys front our troops held La Couture, on the line of the Laws from Viellechapelle to Lestrom, both of which villages are in our hands. We are approaching Doulieu and have have gained Bailleul station and the hall to the east of it, known as Lille Mountain.

Mont Kemmel, the famous strong-hold south of Ypres, which was the scene of the territory fighting during the German offensive in Flanders late in April, has been captured by the British, according to despatches from the front.

Mont St. Quentin a mile and a half north of Peronne has also been taken. French troops made a small advance on the Ailette river and in that neighborhood occupying southern outskirts of the wod, 500 yards further on in Le Chateau in Lys sector.

Field Marshal Haig's forces also have progressed a mile and a half east of Bailleul.

PROPOSED THREE INSTALMENTS FOR CITIZEN'S TAXES

Ald. Edgar's Suggestion Will be Considered by Finance Committee—Wood Choppers Went on Strike.

NAVY LEAGUE'S REQUEST

The fuel question was the main feature of last night's meeting of the Finance committee. Those present were Ald. Taylor (chairman), Ald. Dobbin, Ald. Edgar, Ald. Saunders, the Mayor and Ald. Weir.

Mr. Chase of Chase's Corners, offered about three hundred cords of hardwood at $11 a cord. Soft wood was offered at $8 a cord, consisting mostly of elm and poplar.

"Snap it up quick," said Ald. Saunders.

It was decided to accept Mr. Chase's offer, subject to inspection.

Mr. Chalk, of Port Hope, has a wood lot about two miles from Bewdley, consisting of pine. Mayor Duncan moved that a letter be written him asking his price cut and delivered.—Carried.

His Men Struck.

Alexander Emery, of Dummer, whose proposition for wood has been accepted, asked for $1.00 a cord more on the hardwood, because his men had struck for higher wages. Ald. Dobbin was authorized to write to Mr. Emery and inform him that the former agreement would be accepted or none at all.

$500 to Exhibition.

A letter was received from Mr. Fred Hall, secretary of the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition, asking that the yearly grant of $500 be paid now to the Exhibition instead of at Fair time. The committee recommended to the Council that this request be granted.

Ald. Edgar's Proposal.

Ald. Edgar made the suggestion that the taxes be paid by the citizens in three instalments instead of two as at present: June 1st, Sept. 1st and Dec. 1st, were the dates suggested. He thought that it would be easier for the people to pay it, and also would diminish a big overdraft and a great deal of interest at the bank. The Mayor thought that the people would be fully occupied in paying for their coal on December 1st without bothering with taxes. Ald. Taylor thought that it would be an added burden on Tax Collector Green and that extra help would have to be engaged.

Ald Taylor was authorized to report on the advisability of the scheme at the next meeting of the committee.

Ask Grant to Navy League.

Mr. W. R. Morris and Mr. W. H. Dunsford waited on the committee in the interests of the Navy League.

"Peterborough's objective is $12,000," said Mr. Morris, "and we ask that the city grant us a portion of this."

Mr. Dunsford explained that they were gently preparing the members of the Finance committee. A delegation will wait on the City Council on Tuesday evening next. Toronto City Council is giving $100,000 in Sailors' Week, and Ald. Weir, with his pencil and paper, figured that Peterborough's City Council should give $2,500 at the same ratio as Toronto.

Want Council to Defer Building of New Bridge

Petition is Being Circulated Among the Citizens to this Effect.

A petition is being circulated, asking the Council to defer the construction of the overhead bridge over the Otonabee at Hunter Street until after the war. The petition sets forth as reasons for this course, the abnormal cost of material and labour, and the difficulty of securing steel and other necessary material as chief reasons for deferring this work until conditions have re-adjusted themselves. The petition will likely be presented to the City Council at its meeting on Tuesday night.

THE NEED OF THRIFT.

his address before the directors he Canadian National Exhibition erday, Mr. W. J. Taylor, of the adian Press Association, dealt a matter that is of the utmost portance to the Canadian people— great need of a national cam- gn in the interest of personal ft. There is no doubt of the truth Mr. Taylor's statement that many adians, intoxicated by the high es they have been making have n recklessly spending every cent have earned. They are living in present, oblivious of the future, d to the certainty that a rainy is coming, that sooner or later carnival of abnormal wages will e vanished and hard times will k through the land. Mr. Taylor ed the absolute need of the ut- t economy on the part of the Can- an people. Luxuries should be el- nated and only the absolute neces- es of life purchased. In England y say "every shilling wasted stabs oldier in the back." If this be true n the people of Canada have been lty of the murder of many a Can- an soldier, for extravagance is a ure of our national life. Many a in the factories, carried off her by wages double those of peace es, is spending every cent on hes. Many workmen are reckless- squandering their money on luxur- that will bring no revenue when pinch comes.

r. Taylor is to be commended up- bringing the importance of a thrift paign before the public. His sug- ion should be followed up.

THE CANADIANS' EXPLOITS.

While it is evident in the nature the fighting in which they have n engaged since they began their cessful advance last Monday, that Canadian casualties will not be onsiderable, it is reassuring to from the war correspondents at front that the losses will be light pared with the casualties inflict- on the Germans and the import- e of the ground gained. Since they an their attack on Monday the adians have penetrated fourteen sand yards deep into a most vit- oint of the enemy's defence. Their ant fighting and skillful leader- have enabled them to wrest posi- after position in the Hindenburg from the enemy, and fierce coun- attacks intended to restore the man positions have been ruthless- rushed by General Currie's men. 35th German division has been pletely smashed in this fighting. roughout the week the prowess of Canadians has been on a par with ir brilliant advance on August and with their dashing capture of y Ridge last year.

he Canadian people may be pard- d for feeling proud of what the Can- an Corps has accomplished. The Allied High Command has given a striking testimony to the valour of the Dominion's fighters by using them first with the British 4th army in the attack on August 8th and then surprising the Germans by suddenly shifting them back to General Horne's 1st army and giving them the place of honour in the fighting between the Scarpe and the Sensee.

The Canadians' exploits of the past month have shown them to be shock troops par excellence.

PAPERS NOT TO BLAME.

On every occasion when the Canadians have distinguished themselves in the fighting on the western front, there have been protests from a number of people that too much credit has been claimed for what the Canadians have accomplished. The newspapers of Canada are blamed for neglecting to praise what other allied troops have done. However, the fact remains that the glowing reports of Canadian prowess, to which some readers object, are not written by Canadian newspaper correspondents. The majority of such descriptions are from the pen of such famous English war correspondents as Philip Gibbs, Perry Robinson, W. Beach Thomas and other English war experts, or from Simms and other American correspondents. The only Canadian newspaper correspondent on duty in France is J. B. Livesay, the representative of the Canadian Press, so that it can readily be seen that if too much is said about what the Canadians are doing, the blame must be laid at the doors of English war correspondents, whose reports as a matter of fact are published in the big English newspapers simultaneously with their appearance in the Canadian dailies.

Canadian papers may grow a little egotistical over the feats of the Dominion troops, but in view of their achievements of the past month, and the fact that they have been used as shock troops with two different British armies, on two widely separated sectors, show there is considerable justification for the pride that is being shown throughout the Dominion.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

General Foch may break up the reunion that the Germans are planning to hold on the Hindenburg line.

The Belgians, away up on the sea coast, have reminded the enemy that they are still on the job by making a dashing raid.

It is to be hoped that in view of the high price of pork the taking of Ham will not be a costly victory for the allies.

"Our retreat is a failure," wails a German newspaper. And it might have added, "there's worse coming."

When the Men Come Home, What?

Things look as if this problem will present itself before many moons are past. Many fine fellows are sleeping in graves where the soldiers have laid them, they will be mourned but there will be a silver lining to the cloud of mourning, and the family history will be ennobled by the record that this one or that sleeps in France, or Belgium or Flanders, where he gave his life in defence of liberties that God gave as a birth-right to the sons of men. Our Canadian history will have a new starting point and dates will count from the time when the sons of Britain in all quarters of the world felt an irrestible impulse to gather under that flag which had waved over free men for a thousand years and was now being endangered by a people who from earliest history had not feared God nor regarded men and who would drive from the lands and seas men and ships which had defended the right and builded a Nation which stood for liberty and justice and truth.

We will mourn our dead but with pride we will point to the records of wars and victories of men who fought not to enrich themselves but to defend men in the struggle to maintain their national life against oppression of might and unscrupulous selfishness, "that liberty might not die from the world."

And now our men are coming home maimed, broken and whole, the light and pride of victory on their faces. Coming home to the fathers, mothers, children and kinsmen from whose side they slipped away to battle for their flag, their homes, their proud national place in the world and their loved ones All honor to them!

And now what can we do for them? A grateful country cannot forget the sacrifice they made. What more could they have done? They offered to sacrifice all that made their world, home, health, prospects, parents, wives and children.

We will honor them. Our country has not changed. The same broad lands are here, the same blue sky, the church bells ring, and the schools are open and happy children wait for the father who left them when babes and have been awaiting the return of the soldier boys, their fathers who sadly broke the bonds of love that they might obey the irrestible call that summoned them to defend rights and liberties without which they could not live, and which they determined should be inherited by their children. Now, to be practical, the thousands, who come home to us must have employment. To think that they have done all life's duties would be a great mistake. Four or five years in the stress of battle is not all of life. A new life begins. He has saved his nation, his home, his honor and now, to enjoy the new days in the dignity of labor and manly effort, all the better fitted because of the labors for his King and Country he is now disciplined to do well his duty to new home and in the new conditions. He has learned to obey, he has borne labor and hardship, he knows now that to shirk toil and effort is to be untrue to duty. He wants, encouragement, a chance to win. It is with himself—work is life's greatest duty, life's greatest blessing. Since he went away Canada is a better land for him and for his children, and now the loyalty that made him a good soldier should make him a good citizen, but he must not be content to sit in his club, smoking and rehearsing his soldier life over again, that gets stale. Duty calls him to meet the new emergency. Take hold, something will offer, take hold and work out a better life and destiny. He owes it to himself, his family, his country. These are victories to be won in peace as in war, but the peace victories are the nobler, by them you make your life, your country, your home better and you do a man's work and win a crown nobler than the Victoria Cross.

In my next paper I will point out practical steps and suggestions of an old man to help you in making a home for yourself and your loved ones in our beloved Canada.

WESTERN CROP DAMAGE REPORTS GREATLY MAGNIFIED

Want 10,000 Harvesters at Once.

Reports previously published regarding the damage by frost to the crops in Saskatchewan, were unduly pessimistic. Frequent showers and favorable weather have changed the outlook and it is apparent that the great Province of Saskatchewan will have a normal crop. This is evidenced by the western demands for Farm Laborers, as not less than 10,000 are required immediately for harvesting.

Every young man and those more mature, in every community in Ontario, including our own, should get away, and should make this a great opportunity to serve the country in a practical way, and at the same time be of invaluable benefit to himself. It means an interesting, long distance journey at low fares, and a chance to see and study the immense new country served by the Canadian Northern—the People's Road.

Final excursions by CanadianNorthern trains leaving Toronto 10 p.m., on Aug. 28th, 30th, September 4th and 11th. Harvesters from outside points to use connecting trains to Toronto.

Dayreak is Zero Hour for Duck Hunters on Labour Day

Holiday Coincides With the Opening of the Shooting Season and Sportsmen Are Eagerly Looking Forward to the Thrills of Rice Lake and Other Resorts of the Birds.

BONNYCASTLE DALE'S STORY

When Labour Day synchronizes with the opening of the duck shooting season it becomes for the sportsman a holiday extraordinary. Every other attraction is obscured by the visions of flocks of feeding in sheltered bays, in arms of the river, and on the fringes of the rice beds in the lake. It is an insistent call to many Peterboro men, some of whom have been practicing at clay birds on the shooting grounds south of the Henry Hope factory during the past two weeks.

The season opens on September 1st, but most of the duck hunters will be deterred by the Sabbath restrictions. Monday morning at daybreak, before the "jocund sun stands tiptoe on the misty mountain tops' the fusilade begins as soon as the first sights are made. Usually, the hunters reach the feeding beds on the previous night, especially if an adjacent shore offers a screen, and are all set for the first light of dawn. From that moment (the morning passes with varying results, largely dependent upon luck. Some times ,the ducks, routed by the gunfire from one bay will fly to some other familar spot, and may repeat this several times. Eventually however they seek the open lake where the intervening water affords security. This applies particularly to Rice Lake.

Peterboro is practically in the centre of a duck feeding district with well stocked and extensive grounds in the lower Otonabee and Rice Lake on the south, and Pigeon creek and other waters to the north.

Bonnycastle Dale's Story.

The following story from this month's issue of Rod and Gun has its setting in Rice Lake. It is by Mr. Bonnycastle Dale, and offers special interest in its timely reminiscence of duck shooting.

The True Sportsman.

Now, before I have the pleasure of telling you of our observations of the migration and shooting I want to say that I have noted with deep regret that writers who have conservation in their hearts have, in many cases, only abuse upon their lips. This will not, in my opinion, win the man we are after, the one who selfishly breaks our good laws and takes too many of the web-footed ones. It has been my great privilege to shoot and hunt in many Provinces and States and I tell you most decidedly, the fair average sportsman is a good law observer. In all the clubs and shooting grounds I have visited the greedy hunter hunts alone and is a rare animal. The chief cause of certain of our Eastern shooting grounds being depleted of birds is the ever northwestern trek of the settlers and the consequent alteration of the migration of the wild fowl. From the Great Lakes to the Atlantic was the regular route but it is now down all the rivers that empty into the Pacific and down along the Pacific coast. The next main cause of the decrease in numbers, counting the gunner as number one, is, number two, the gathering of wild fowl eggs on the breeding grounds and the consequent lowering of the clutch in the last laying to as few as four eggs, whereas the first one numbered over a dozen. The native Indians are the chief culprits here. I am strongly in favour of a hundred bag limit per season, a dozen bag a day, a small fee, numbered license for every gunner, a strict observance of the full and excellent game laws we have now, and a stiff fine for all peevish writers who call the other chap "a game hog." There were more ducks on Rice Lake last year than I have seen in several years. In fact there were as many as I can remember seeing in any one season in the last six years and hunters tell me there were more than were seen in the previous six years while I was away at the coast. So fellow hunters, ignore the selfish gunner as well as the selfish writer, keep the law and we will all have fair sport.

Now comes the most delightful, if slightly provoking, time of the year. It is the last week in August. Not a hunter or fisherman is to be seen in the wild rice beds. The lunge are biting up near the Otonabee, not here, and none of the Indians ever creep out and take a duck before season. We seem to possess it all. The sun is just sinking, a tremendous globe of red in the west, when Laddie, Jr., hisses into my ear:

"See those three?"—"Swish! swish! Swish! We can hear those great white-lined silky wings sing as they sweep by overhead. With only one small circle they settle down into the bed and their contented guttural "quacks" tell of spatter dock, and lily sprout, rare celery and wee, as yet, wapato, torn up last night by a roving muskrat. "Peet!" "peet!" "pett" sounds clearly in the gloaming and two wood ducks, last year's bachelors, swoop and curve into the wild rice. More "peets," and a wood duck and her brood sweep swiftly in and settle without that watchful overhead searching curve we both expect.

"I'll bet they don't drop in like that on the First night" sight Laddie, Jr.

"Now look at that," he continues, as a whole family of blacks, the duck and some ten young ones drift by and splash in. None save the mother have ever heard the "ping" of the smokeless.

"How do you know it's the mother?" asked the lad.

"Too noisy for the male and the ten followed her every motion." Until the dear little wildfowl that nightly gather on Migration Point to sing their buzzing melody—at least, Laddie, Jr., says they are as big as ducks—drove us into the incomplete mansion, the flight continued. Fully a hundred ducks were using this strip of wild rice and we had high hopes for the first, and the first only, for one rally, if they were unfortunately all in, would drive them out for the entire fall, as a body. Oh, the beauty of those moonlit nights, when the rail and plover and duck made the wild bay echo with their calls.

"Do you want to come out with me this morning?" I asked a very sleepy lad about two p.m. on the morning of the first.

"You just bet!" he peeped before his eyes were open.

An Early Start.

All the ducks were in the rice, as we could hear them splashing like a lot of boys in bathing, so we darkened our windows and worked silently with the breakfast. Then we crept down. Remember the nearest birds were even then within a long shot of our point, lifted the canoe clear up in the air, turned her with a rattle, and loaded her. I entered the bow, Laddie, gunless, too young to shoot, yet, crept into the stern. I taught him over the decoys later in the fall. I consider that it is very unwise to let a youngster ramble about with a death dealing shotgun, until he is able to care for the business end of it. We flared the birds that were near the rice straw covered hide we had hastily thrown up. Silently I dropped the six black duck decoys out in front and silently we took our puace.

Several times before it was light enough to clearly distinguish them, I made out the dark blurred lines of black ducks winging past over the decoys and plainly heard them settle in the rice bed. Now came the faint brightening of the horizon line into a lighter grey then—"Ping!" No! the Rice Lake fool was not dead. There he was firing before one could see the bird or the end of the gun. This shot was fired about 4.20, so he was fully an hour late this year. Strange what a big family this Fool family is, I have heard relatives of his in every hunting ground firing long before daylight.

"That one was in shot," whispered Laddie, Jr., in a blood-curdling manner. He coolly counted this "one missed bird" and lapsed into silence. I had not seen it.

"They're all dropping in above us!" he hissed complaingly. Too true, we had "jumped" this end of the bed and the ducks were all decoying to the other end, where the undisturbed ones sat.

"Best let me paddle you up the bed?" he queried.

As there was not another hunter in this bed I agreed and off we started, so silently. With a nerve-racking "quack" a big black duck leaped right up beside me and started off to the right. Curving back I did as near the "rubber man's" act as my body would let me and fired clean behind. The lad did not say anything but I could fairly feel his thoughts.

"You missed that one clean, shot under it!" he exclaimed, as I failed to connect with the next right quartering, back curving duck, the hardest shot of any flying bird for me. Then to prove just how consistent a shot I am, a left quaterer got upand I hit it with both barrels in just the same place that I struck the other two. Laddie's silence could now be felt.

I was using Laddie Sr's. gun, at his written request but my misses were awful, nevertheless. Along came a glorious young wood-drake. Ping! I centered him again and down Ping! I centred him again and down he splashed — dead. My wrathful young guide gave me a kindly word and I bucked up and we made the string five black and the one wood-drake before the sun set that night. You have often seen the title "My First Duck," well look at him coming up through the flags with his first bluebill in late September, but let me tell you how I got mine this year.

We had been photographing the early scaup (the big bluebills in this case). The swimming flock was many times within the fifty yard line and we snapped them a dozen times, all undiscovered ourselves, although our beating hearts sounded like pumping engines to us. Then we had pictured the active swift beauties as they flew to their feeding grounds. But the best picture we got was of two birds, a male and a female that came swimming along the shore and obligingly stopped to drink right in front of our inquisitive camera. But as to how I got that first bluebill this year.

It was one of the hottest days in September, not a ripple showed on the oily surface of the lake. Even in under the basswood trees, the heat was most oppressive. We had sought the shade and were lolling like dogs in its meagre comfort, when "Splash" went something into the lake. I crept to the bushes and searched with the binoculars and there —a full hundred yards outside the outer rice bed sat a "little bluebill" drake as stiff as though carved there. Satisfied, finally that all was well, it dived and brought up a celery sprout and swallowed it, again it went down and I timed it— thirty seconds — again, a bit longer this time.

"Guess I can get it," I whispered to Laddie Jr. The bird was two hundred and fifty odd yards away (we have all this ground measured for results).

"How?" he questioned. It did look a pretty slim chance to get it.

"Come and see" and I beckoned him down to the canoe which was hidden from the duck by the bushes. We entered that canoe with never a sound, pushed her out, slid her along the shore by grasping the short rushes and waited hidden there until it dived.

"Now" I ordered, and off we paddled across the first open place while I was counting twenty.

"Down" I hissed, and both our heads sank below the gunwale and the canoe bow on to the duck forged silently ahead, the very scrawny; thin fringe of rice just disguising its knife-like bow and silent ripple. Out of the corner of one eye I saw the trim, beautifully marked drake emerge at about one hundred and twenty-five yards, swallow his morsel and dip under for more. Twenty second this time took us into a bit of fairly good rice and we lay there and caught up with our breath. Up he came—down he went!

"Now! Hard!" I yelled, and straight out into that calm hot scene our long canoe darted. Half-way across I slid my paddle in and seized my gun. Laddie Jr. now redoubled his efforts—and still that unruffled, calm, unmarked glaring lake lay before us—then the surface seemed to split apart—up instantly lifted that small, fat body, out flew those pointed brown wings, in splashed those two velvety grey feet and off sped our dinner. All this time it was within thirty yards, and, although I wanted to give it a long fair chance my heart was pounding so I could not have shot before. It was soon over, one tiny pressure on the trigger and the straight tailing shot fell before the spattering hail of number six, and the day's shoot was over.

We used our "hut"—yes we have chosen that undignified name, you see "palace" is so common place now-a-days, until November storms drove us home. We shot some ninety days, or wee parts of days, killed a little over a duck a day on the average and when on November twenty-fourth the good old lake finally sealed over, we had a few fat birds "hanging up," or "winter froze," as our good friend the Ojibway hunter says.

BABY'S GREAT DANGER DURING HOT WEATHER

More little ones dies during the summer months than at any other time of the year. Diarrhoea, dysentry, cholera infantum and stomach disorders, come without warning and when a medicine is not at hand to give promptly the short delay too frequently means that the child has passed beyond aid. Baby's Own Tablets should always be kept in the home, where there are young children. An occasional dose of the Tablets will prevent stomach and bowel troubles or if the trouble comes suddenly the prompt use of the Tablets will cure the baby. Mrs. Chas. Anderson, Minda, Alta., says:—"Baby's Own Tablets are the best medicine for little ones who are suhering from stomach troubles. They cured my baby and have made her a fine healthy girl." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Call for Barb-wire Affected by the Allies' Offensive

There seems to be small chance for Canadian business talking of expansion, if such expansion depends in the first place upon their chances of going into the steel markets for increased supplies. The fact is that there is no chance of increased steel supplies coming to Canada. Taking that as the starting point, the only thing is to make the available supplies go to the points where the most essential work is being carried on from the viewpoint of the war officials. It has been a hard matter for the Canadian allotment of steel to be sustained week by week. In fact there have been times when there has been a falling off.

Conferences have been held between jobbers and the War Trade Board and in many staple lines prices are now recognized as standard, but there are a few lines that are not settled, the authorities holding that the warehousemen were doing business at too high a figure. The latter base their contention, in part at least, on the fact that their export trade is largely gone for the present, and that with this revenue cut off their overhead charges have not decreased at all.

The big problem for dealers in machine tools just now is not the securing of new business, but the filling of orders they already have on their books, and partial delivery of which has been made in a good many cases.

The situation in this regard is not all that could be desired by any means. This is not common to this country, but practically all over the United States the same story is heard. There are going to be some delays in deliveries on new shell contracts. Contractors do not favour the plan of going ahead and working on one or two operations in a shell plant, waiting for the rest of the work to be done when the machines arrive. The shop gets clogged at this one stage. The only way is to get a steady flow through the shop on all operations, and the non-delivery of certain machines is delaying this.

An interesting little sidelight is brought to notice in a despatch from one of the big steel centres of the United States. It announces that the call for barb-wirer for defensive purposes is falling off tremendously among the Allied forces since Marshal Foch took the offensive on the West. Mills that were working on this are getting instructions to turn more to other war lines.—Canadian Machinery.

GOVERNMENT TO GET 2,500 CARS FOR CROP.

OTTAWA, Aug. 29.—Deliveries of rolling stock under the large orders placed by the Dominion Government will be made at the rate of 40 cars a day throughout September. This rate will be increased to 50 cars a day in October. In the two months, thus, some 2,500 cars will be delivered to the Canadian Government Railways and will be available for use during the movement of the western wheat crop. The Government's orders are for some 8,000 cars, mostly box cars. This rolling stock will be paid for out of the $50,000,000 appropriation voted at the last session of Parliament for the purchase of rails, rolling stock and equipment.

NEW AND MODERN QUARTERS FOR THE LOCAL BUSINESS COLLEGE

A Progressive Educational Institution which Keeps Pace with Peterborough's Growth---One of Finest Schools in Ontario.

On Tuesday, September 3rd, the Peterborough Business College will open the doors of its handsome and commodious new home in the reconstructed Dominion Bank Building, southeast corner of George and Simcoe streets.

Since the inception of this business education institution, and especially so under present administration, its growth has kept apace with that of Peterborough city, until last term Principal J. A. McKone was faced with the necessity of either securing larger premises or rejecting students. Fortunately in his dilemma, Mr. McKone was offered the rental of the top flat of the Dominion Bank Building, to be reconstructed to suit his requirements, and he immediately accepted the opportunity thus afforded of leasing these new and larger quarters for a term of years.

BRIGHT AND CHEERFUL ROOM.

This new home of Peterborough Business College is centrally located, right in the heart of the city, within a minute's walk of the post office, and street cars, for and from all points stop at its doors. The premises have three exposures to light and air, with lofty windows and plenty of them. Its several rooms are finished in white kalsomine relieved with dark oak, the floors are of hard wood and the ceilings 12 feet high, all of which, together with glass and oak partitions, and doors present a bright, roomy, chereful and refreshing appearance, quite stimulating to the earnest student.

ONE OF THE FINEST.

The total 80 x 50 feet of floor has been arranged under Mr. McKone's personal supervision to meet the requirements of what can be truthfully characterized as one of the Province's foremost and most modern business colleges, and of which Peterborough is pardonably proud. The Principal's sanctum and general office are at the head of the stairs, and in immedate touch with a typewritng room, speed room, main class room and theory room, all completely furnished with up-to-the-minute educational equipment. The main class room is 58 x 39 feet in dimension, and has no less than 15 tall windows, facing north and west. The blackboard in this room is 50 feet in length.

All the rooms are practically sound-proof, the whole premises are heated with hot water, and the last word in sanitation and ventilation prevails. Admirably appointed cloak-rooms and lavatories are features of convenience upon which due attention has been paid; those for the young men are downstairs and the others for young women on the class room flat. The stairs are of hardwood, flanked by pure white walls with burlap base, and brightly illuminated from huge sky-lights above.

Without question Principal McKone offers students in his new quarters rooms unusually adapted for college work, and the fullest measure of those pleasing conditions which make for health, convenience, comfort and industry.

ESTABLISHED 33 YEARS.

The Peterborough Business College was established in 1885. Mr. J. A. McKone assumed the principalship in 1908, and continued in active control for three and a half years, after which he accepted a call to Toronto, where he conducted the Central Business College with marked success. In 1914, Mr. McKone again took hold of the Peterborough Business College, since which time he has experienced a gratifying period of appreciation and progress. The term closing June, 1917, showed an increase of 100 per cent. in the number of students on roll, and another 50 per cent. growth last year taxed the capacity of the old quarters, Bank of Commerce Building, to such an extent that the present new and more commodious and modern premises were imperative if Peterborough's widely known business college was to continue meeting the insistent calls from city, county and even far away localities, for accommodation.

ENCOURAGING RESULTS.

Nineteen-seventeen-eighteen proved a year of phenomenal encouragement to both principal and students. Nine candidates presented themselves at the June examinations, five passed with honours, two within three and five marks respectively of honours, while the remaining two failed only by but very few marks. This in itself is evidence of the commendable interest taken in students, and of the efficiency and aggressively applied teaching talent of Principal McKone, and his capable assistants.

POSITIONS AWAIT STUDENTS.

The Peterborough Business College offers opportunities, the importance of which is not realized by many parents. In a very short time it fits young men and young women for commercial and business positions, and good openings await them these days of scarcity of help. With six to ten months of business training, students holding only an entrance certificate go out into the world and earn salaries that equal and often exceed those paid the average public school teacher. Graduates from this college with a thorough knowledge of shorthand and typewriting readily secure positions at an initial salary of $600 per year with quick advancement.

Last year Principal McKone himself found openings for a large number of his students, whose letters of appreciation now on file refer to the surprising salaries that they are now drawing, and to the very bright prospects ahead of them. Girls with one, two or three years in high school and a diploma from the Peterborough Business College are especially in demand in banks, business, commercial and industrial offices. There are great opportunities in commercial business for young men, especially stenographers, and the Peterboro Business College boys have met with fine success after graduating.

Each year students from all over Ontario are found in the Peterborough Business College, and graduates therefrom have been placed in remunerative positions at Peterborough, Ottawa, Toronto, Oshawa and Port Hope; Toledo, Ohio; and in other Canadian and American towns.

The foregoing facts impel one to appreciate the importance of a business college; and the extraordinary demand for "trained help" should induce young people to give the benefits of a "business training" earnest consideration.

Courses of Instruction.

The Peterborough Business College is kept up to the highest state of efficiency to meet the present day conditions. Its courses consist of commercial or business, shorthand and typewriting, and stenographers' Civil Service course. It also offers a special business course for the farmer to fit him for contact with shrewd men who might otherwise take advantage of him in business deals. In the farm, as in other walks of life, business training is a valuable asset.

Six months is the average time required to complete either course of studies, while a satisfatcory shorthand and bookkeeping course can be completed in ten months.

Out of Town Students.

Principal McKone may be said to take a fatherly interest in out-of-town students, whom he cheerfully assists in securing desirable boarding accommodation. He is of a genial and approachable nature, and students find no difference in consulting with him in the many perplexing issues that frequently arise for young people in a strange town, and out of immediate touch with parental advice. He invites all out-of-town students on arriving in the city to leave their baggage at the station and make directly for the Peterborough Business College, corner of Simcoe and George streets, where they will be cordially welcomed and directed until comfortably located."

Most Crops Heavy in London District

Even Bees Have Gone in for Greater Production and Crop is a Record One.

LONDON, Ont., Aug. 30.—Farmers in this district report exceptional yields in all crops excepting Fall wheat, sections of which were frozen out during the spring. There is a magnificent crop of oats, the yield being from 50 to 75 bushels to the care. Corn is also abundant, August rains having proved most advantageous.

The late potatoes also are making an August growth which promises good quality and quantity. Many growers report a very good crop of early potatoes in spite of the leaf blight, which appeared early in the season. Fruit and honey have come in abundance this year. Early apples are bending the branches. The honey crop is said to be the best in years. One beekeeper in the suburbs of London is reported to have obtained two and a half tons of the nectar from 38 hives.

THE SALVATION ARMY HONOUR ROLL UNVEILED

A more fitting time for unveiling an honour roll could not have been chosen than last evening at the Salvation Barracks when the tablet bearing the names of their boys who have gone overseas, was unveiled on the eve of the departure of the beloved leader, Commandant McElhiney who has labored so tirelessly in encouraging his men to go overseas to fight for the liberty of their country.

Preceding the unveiling of the tablet some splendid views varying from scenes in the Holyland to France and Belgium and photos of departed heroes, were shown on the screen. As photo after photo of men overseas thrown on the screen the audience cheered enthusiastically but loudest was the enthusiasm as Commandant and Mrs. McElhiney's photos appeared.

Unveiled Tablet.

Brigadier Morehen, who unveiled the handsome black and gold tablet containing the names of 103 men spoke of the splendid record the Salvation Army men have made in upholding the principles of right and freedom so dearly bought by their ancestors and of the pride those who are at home feel for them. BRANTFORD, August 20.—Medical Health Officer Pearson stated here to-day that he proposed to insist on the City Council passing a by-law for the pasteurization of all milk delivered in this city as the only method of combating typhoid and restricting tuberculosis. The municipalization of the milk delivery system will be part of the by-law in order to prevent duplication and excessive cost.

CANADA'S HUGE FIRE LOSS TOLD AT PREVENTION MEETING

Ontario's Annual Bill Aggregated $12,000,000 and is Increasing—Homes of 35,000 People Destroyed Every Year.

MUST EDUCATE PEOPLE

TORONTO, Aug. 30.—"In these days of food shortage the loss by fire in Ontario during the last six months is well nigh alarming," said Premier Hearst this morning, in opening a Fire Preventive Convention, which 300 delegates attended, at the Parliament Buildings. "The quantities of food-stuffs destroyed by fires is a significant feature of the situation which must impress its seriousness in the mind of every thoughtful student of public affairs." The Premier said that since Confederation the direct fire losses in Canada had reached $350,000,000, and in that time $150,000,000 had been spent in maintaining fire protective services. In that time $197,000,000 over and above the sums returned for losses had been paid. Each year 200 persons are burned to death and 500 seriously injured. Canada's annual per capita loss is $2.73, as compared with $2.25 in the United States, 64 cents in England, 28 cents in Germany and 13 cents in Switzerland.

Heavy Provincial Losses.

"In the Province of Ontario our losses lately have annually aggregated approximately $12,000,000, and we are greater concerned over the fact that this is increasing," continued the Premier. "Seven thousand dwellings are destroyed annually at a time when the housing of the people is one of the most serious problems we have to meet. Take it at five persons to a home, it means that the homes of 35,000 of our people are destroyed annually.

"There were, 444 lightning fires during six months, with a loss of $220,878, and of this total 442 occurred in buildings not rodded. There was a loss of $536,820 during the period due to defective electric wiring and subsidiary causes. An analysis of the six months' report shows that there is only one cause to which practically all the fires must be attributed, and that is carelessness.

Government Sees the Waste.

"The Government of this province realizes the waste of the resources of this Dominion, and hopes the Fire Preventive League will be formed to foster and promote in every way the prevention of fire wastage.

"The assurance of support we have received from the people of the province has been most encouraging, and we hope the league will be instrumental in securing the reduction of wastage by fire and the reduction of the cost of insurance."

Go Slow, Says Lucas.

"Go slow about drastic legislation," was the advice tendered by Hon. I. B. Lucas, Attorney-General. "For obvious reasons we do not like to travel too fast. We do not like to swing the big club. We cannot go ahead of public opinion. It is not a case of going out from the Legislature compelling municipalities and individuals to do things. It should be more along the lines of legislation permitting municipalities to enforce fire prevention laws locally."

"The solution of the problem of the prevention of reckless and impoverishing fire waste that confronts the people of this province is education, carefulness and cleanliness, and the means of attainment is by action, co-operation and legislation," said Deputy Fire Marshal George F. Lewis. He said that of 5,396 fires during the first six months of 1918, no fewer than 537 were caused by the careless use of matches. In Europe the average fire waste is 33 cents per capita. In Ontario the fire waste for 1916 was approximately $6 per capita, and in 1917 $4 per capita.

During the first six months of this year 5,396 fires burned up over $7,000,000 worth of property in Ontario. Of these 3,456 occurred in the homes of the people, costing $1,063,598. There were 330 farm barns destroyed, entailing a loss of $369,328, and 601 mercantile stores burned with a loss of $1,754,374. To these must be added 261 fires classified as manufacturing and special hazards, amounting to $2,487,513.

Hon. T. Alfred Fleming, State Fire Marshal of Ohio, who is a Toronto University graduate, said that in North America reported fires were burning up $500 every minute. To this must be added the cost of maintaining fire brigades, and the damage done by unreported fires, so that the total cost of fire in North America is about $1,400 every minute of the day and night. He spoke at great length on the havoc wrought by the enemy agents who set fire to buildings throughout the United States in munition plants, airplane factories and important works.

Although the discussions during the winter of 1852-53, resulted adversely to the views of those who held that the Town of Peterboro ought to become stockholders in the Port Hope and Peterboro Railway Company, yet the idea of a railway connection with Port Hope had never been abandoned. In 1857 the agitation was resumed, and several public meetings were held to discuss the propriety of taking stock in the company with a view to constructing a branch road from the village of Millbrook to the town of Peterboro. The difficulty in the way was the unwillingness of the people to become stockholders in a company already so embarrassed as the Port Hope, Lindsay and Beaverton Railway Company was reported to be. Several proposals were made with a view to getting rid of this difficulty, and putitng the town in the position of preferential stockholders; but it was not until the month of October that a bylaw authorizing a subscription of stock to the extent of £30,000 currency, received the sanction of the ratepayers. The arrangement under which the stock was subscribed, it was believed, would relieve the town from any very serious burdens. Under it the company leased the right of way to Messrs. Tate and Fowler, the contractors, for a nominal rental of $5 per annum. The lessees were upon condition of Peterboro subscribing £30,000, and Port Hope the sum of £10,000, to supply the other £10,000 themselves, build the branch, and lease it on a perpetual lease of 6 per cent. of the stock subscribed, the rental to be paid to the municipalities. The work was at once proceeded with, and although the construction of this road has not proved an exception to others in the province in the delays, annoyances and difficulties that have arisen, yet the opening has taken place at as early a day as could reasonably have been expected. On the 20th of May, the first train passed over the line with the Government Inspecting Engineers. On the 21st a party composed of the Railway Board and the Town Council of Port Hope, came into Peterboro. On the 24th the contractor placed a train at the disposal of the people of Port Hope for a free excursion over the road, of which some 3000 availed hemselves, and on the 31st a return excursion by people of Peterboro to Port Hope was made. The road has been fairly opened for traffic, and it is generally admitted will secure a very large proportion of the carrying trade of Peterboro and the vicinity. Its completion by giving the town the advantage of a double outlet, is expected to prove of very considerable advantage to its prosperity.

It will thus be seen that the Counties of Peterboro and Victoria, in point of railway facility, are not behind other counties in the province. The road from Port Hope to Lindsay affords an outlet for the produce and lumber of Ops, Mariposa and Fenelon. The station at Omemee takes in the produce and lumber of the greater part of Emily, while the roads from Port Hope and Cobourg furnish outlets for the rising trade of the town of Peterboro and its adjoining townships. With these facilities and others which are already projected, and may e'er long be carried out, the continued advancement of the counties is by no means doubtful. In the past we have doubled our population in 10 years; in the future we may reasonably hope of doing quite as well. The towns of Peterboro and Lindsay, the principal towns of the counties, are rapidly rising in importance. The positions of both are eminently calculated to place them in the foremost ranks of Canadian inland towns; and there can be no question that the advancement of the past will find its repetition in the progress of the future.

THE TOWN OF PETERBOROUGH.

The Town of Peterborough is situated at the north east corner of the township of Monaghan. As already stated it was first located in the year 1818, and the survey was completed in 1825, so that it may be said to be but little over a quarter of a century old. It is built on a beautiful spot, the ground gently sloping from the west to the Otonabee River. Near the centre of the town stands the knoll, upon which is erected the Court House. In front of the building is a reservation of six acres, which is appropriated as a public park for the use of the town. The River Otonabee bounds the town on the east, and is crossed by a substantial bridge which was erected by the government in 1846. The river is very broad in front of the town and is picturesquely studded with islets covered with beautiful trees. Immediately above the bridge are numerous dams and timber slides, erected for the mills on each side of the river; and the scenic effect of these artificial waterfalls is very fine. Below the town the river widens, and forms what is called the "Little Lake," uopn a corner of the main land opposite the town, jetting into which, stands the Little Lake Cemetery.

In the year 1852, when the last census was taken, the town of Peterborough had a population of only 1800. This has steadily increased since, until by a special census taken this year the population is found to be 3500. This however gives an inadequate idea of the actual population of the place. The limits of the town are unfortunately very circumscribed and a large portion of the population of what to the stranger would be regarded as the town of Peterborough, resides without its limits, and are, therefore not reckoned in the census. Taking in the mills belonging to Messrs. Herst and Denny to the north the park lots to the west and south, and the "Scotch Village" to the east, all of which it is expected will before long be included within the limits of the town, the population cannot be much under 5,000!

The great feature about Peterborough, that upon which the hopes of its inhabitants for its future prosperity depend, is the immense water power furnished by the Otonabee River. From the town up the river for about ten miles, there is a fall of not less than 250 feet, furnishing upwards of 84,000 horse power. A statement in detail of the mills and their capacity will be found elsewhere. In the immediate vicinity of the town there are sawmills capable of cutting 325,000 feet of lumber a day. There are four excellent flour mills, capable of manufacturing 370 barrels of flour a day. Two extensive axe and tool factories. Two large foundries and machine shops, and a number of smaller ones. One large wagon shop, fitted up with all the labour saving appliances, and a number of lesser ones. Shingle factories, planing mills cabinet shops, sash, blind and door factories—in a word all the requisites of a large manufacturing town.

The general appearance of Peterborough is highly attractive. During the last few years a number of very fine buildings have been erected; and a number are now in course of erection. Among them is a school house estimated to cost when completed $16,000; a new brick Presbyterian church, to cost $14,000. The Montreal Bank have just opened, upon their property on Water street, facing the market square, a very handsome brick building, for an agency, at a cost of $12,000. A new town hall is to be erected, estimated to cost $20,000, the by-law authorizing the erection having been passed by the council, last fall. A large first class hotel, erected by E. Burnham, Esq., is in course of erection, and is expected to be opened this autumn. There are six churches in the town, belonging to the Episcopal, the Church of Scotland, the Wesleyan, the Baptist, the Bible Christian, and the Roman Catholic denominations. The Episcopal and Roman Catholic churches are very substantial buildings, the first erected upon the knoll before alluded to, near the Court House, and commanding a beautiful view of the Otonabee River, and the latter upon rising ground in rear of the town.

PRIVATE TO BRIG-GENERAL

Welsh Mine Foreman Once Considered By the Mine Officials With Whom He Worked As Lacking in Ability.

LONDON, Aug. 28.—Godfrey Jones a Welsh mine foreman, who enlisted early in the war as a private, and who yesterday was nominated to be a Brigadier-General, was once considered, by the mine officials, with whom he was connected for years, as lacking the ability to lead men.

According to the Daily Mail, Jones who is thirty-six years old, attended night school as a boy and finally obtained his diploma. He was appointed foreman in a mine, but did not make good and was reduced to the ranks of a digger. Given another chance he succeeded.

Shortly after the war broke out Jones joined the Cardiff "Pals" Battalion of the South Wales Borderers. He speedily was made corporal, and rapidly rose to the rank of sergeant-major. Later he received a commission.

Jones went to France in the autumn of 1915 and soon afterwards was transferred to Saloniki, where he won the Distinguished Service Order and promotion to a lieutenant-colonelcy. Three weeks ago he obtained leave to come home and marry a war hospital worker. The directors of the mining company with which he was formerly employed have decided to create a special position for him on his return to civil life.

YOUNG GIRL DROWNED

COBOURG, Aug 29.—A sad drowning accident took place here, whereby Bessie Isabel Heastie, the bright attractive young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Heastie, lost her life. The young girl was in bathing near the shore with some companions, and was about to come out of the water. She was an expert swimmer, and called to the others that she would wait for the big wave coming and ride in on it. The water had become quite rough, and the wave broke over her with great force, filling her mouth and lungs with water, and she was unable to make the shore. The alarm was given speedily, and efforts were made to recover the body. A friend of the family watched by the water all night, and early in the morning found the body had washed in close to the shore. Mr. Heastie had gone to British Columbia, and his family had packed up preparatory to going West to join him. Besides her parents, she leaves an elder sister, Margaret. The young girl was sixteen years old.

The funeral took place here. Eight Girl Guides acted as pallbearers, and the Guides also furnished an honorary escort. Rev. W. L. Armitage, formerly of Parkdale, who is spending holidays in Cobourg, conducted the services, which were most impressive.

EVERY WOMAN'S RIGHT

To every woman belongs the right to enjoy a healthy, active, happy life, yet nine out of every ten suffer years of agony, usually from some form of bloodlessness. That is why one sees on every side pale thin cheeks, dull eyes and drooping figures—sure signs of headaches, weak backs, aching limbs and uncertain health. All weak, suffering women should win the right to be well by refreshing their weary bodies with the new, rich, red blood that promptly transforms them into healthy attractive women. This new, rich, red blood is supplied in abundance by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills which reaches every organ and every nerve in the body.

Through the use of these pills thousands of women have found a prompt cure when suffering from anaemia, indigestion, heart palpitation, rheumatism, general weakness, and those ailments from which women alone suffer. There is no part of this broad Dominion in which you will not find some former sufferer who has regained health and strength through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and this is the reason why these pills have been a favourite household remedy for more than a generation. If you are ailing and will give the pills a fair trial you will find renewed health and happiness in their use.

You can get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills through any medicine dealer, or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

PETERBORO'S BEST LAWNS AND GARDENS ANNOUNCED BY THE JUDGE IN ANNUAL COMPETITION

Mr. Fred W. Adams, of Toronto, the judge of this year's lawn and garden competition, held under the auspices of the Peterboro Horticultural Society, has forwarded to Secretary Cecil Williamson, his criticism of the displays, together with the names of the successful contestants:

He says:

Dear Sir: I beg to give you herewith a summary of the awards in your recent competitions which I trust will meet with your approval. There is one outstanding feature in connection with some of the displays this year, which I think, if pointed out, will be of special benefit to your members. I refer particularly to some of your older exhibitors not putting up as good a show as formerly, due not to any slackening on their part, but rather to them persistently, year after year, taking more out of the soil than they put into it, or, more correctly speaking, trying to.

Use of Fertilizers.

While the use of fertilizers helps very materially to balance the soil, it does not completely do so with the result that each succeeding year's growth becomes more unsatisfactory. A remedy for this is new soil, ploughed about six inches deep, containing lots of fibre, and procured if possible from some pasture field. This year, no doubt, has been a very trying one on floriculturists, and that, too, has worked against many honest efforts. However, the work done by your various members is very commendable, and if I may be permitted to say so, there is also an unusually large amount of splendid effort put up by residents upon which I was not asked to pass an opinion. These I presume are not members of your society. If they are, why do they not compete?

The winner in Class A is Mr. A. W. Cressman, who scored 9 points out of a possible 10 on his flowers, and 9 on his lawn. While this lawn is far from clean, allowance had to be made on account of it being the first year. The grading is as fine a job as the writer has seen and there is no feature that helps a good piece of grass more than a proper grade. Mr. McKee, of Water Street, who is second, scored 9 on his lawn and 8 for flowers. Mr. Stocker gets third, with 9 for lawn and 7 for flowers. A little more floral display on the exhibitor's part would have put him nearer the top. Miss Dickson comes fourth, with a total of 15 points, Mr. Matthews sixth with 14 points, while Mr. Kennedy is in the fifth place. The order of the last two names are reversed.

Class B Winners.

The winner of Class B is Mr. J. Howland, Burnham Street. He has the best score of any class, viz.: 9½ for flowers and 9 for grass, out of a total of 20 points. The grass on his lawn needs only a vigorous raking to put it in perfect condition. The general appearance of his premises is a great credit both to himself and the locality. Mrs. W. Wood comes 2nd, scoring 7½ on flowers and 8 for lawn. Weeds and an odd bare spot on this lawn pulled down the score. Mr. J. T. Burke, Smith Street, scored 8½ on his lawn and only 6 on flowers, giving him third position. Mr. F. R. Ivy, 5 Wolesley Street, gets 4th with a total score of 14.

Class C Winners.

In Class C all four exhibitors scored high. Their war time gardens were all good, indicating much work and skilful attention on their part. Mrs. Wright, of Weller Street, and Mrs. Leal tied for points, each getting 18½ of a possible 20, divided 10 and 10 for varieties and cultivation. As Mrs. Leal sells considerable of her products I would recommend her for a special prize, as she would be considered a semi-professional gardener. If Mrs. Leal's entry is accepted in Class C I fail to see where the line could be drawn in the case of a professional market gardener desiring to enter. Mrs. White scored 16½, as did also Mrs. Boddison of Patterson Street. The former received 8 points on varieties and 8½ on cultivation, and the latter 8½ on varieties and 8 on cultivation. As better cultivation is to be preferred than better or more variety, Mrs. White gets third and Mrs. Boddison fourth place.

Class D Winners.

Class D provided stiff competition, though selecting their order of merit was comparatively easy. Vases and window boxes cannot very well be filled with too many plants of an annual nature if lasting qualities are desired. Resort must be made to the professional florist for propagated plants such as geraniums, coleus, vincas, honeysuckle, arizine, fuschias, etc. Strive for a riot of colour. Use as few green coloured plants as possible and don't forget that the addition of a little pulverized bone to the soil is absolutely necessary to sustain the plants in the later part of the season. The following scores are out of a possible of 10 points:

Mr. J. J. Turner gets 9 points, Mrs. Bricgal, of Gilmour Street, 8½; Mr. C. G. Graham, Gilmour Street, 8; E. Burnham, Weller Street, 8; and Mr. Coons, 7.

WHY SUGAR IS NOT PLENTIFUL HERE.

Large deliveries of sugar at Canada's seaports would be very welcome. Sugar is in great demand, not as one of the extras of the table, but as one of the necessaries of war. Sugar is as important for the conserving of food supplies as is salt. Without salt it would be impossible to have a great output of bacon as a source of supply to the men at the front. Without sugar it is next to impossible to save the fine fruits that are coming on the market. If for want of sugar these fruits are not preserved there will be a great loss of food and loss of money. Our defenders need the food and our producers need the money. Great as will be the loss and inconvenience on that account, it would however, be negligible by comparison with any failure at the front. There is reason to believe that we might now have had all the sugar we require if Governments had not faithfully attended to their first duty of pushing operations against the enemy. There is plenty of sugar in the countries of sugar production, and a few months ago there seemed to be a prospect that ships might be spared for the transportation to our shores of enough of it to satisfy our most urgent needs. But the Germans began their offensive on March 21. The British Government, as Mr. Lloyd George has stated, at once made a special appeal to President Wilson to send men over even if they were not formed into divisions so that they could be brigaded into British and French formations. President Wilson responded at once saying the troops would be sent if Britain would do her part in the work of transporting them. The British Government undertook to do so. "It was true," said Mr. Lloyd George, "that we had no ships to spare, but we impressed upon the Shipping Controller the enormous importance of getting every American soldier over, and we pulled ships out of trades which were quite essential. Do not let anyone imagine that we had ships to spare. In order to carry over American troops we have had to sustain a loss of 200,000 tons per month in essential cargoes, which means 2,500,000 tons per annum. But it has been justified by the result. Eight hundred thousand or nine hundred thousand troops have been brought over since the date of the battle (March 21) mostly in British ships." Bad as it would be for Canada to have to do without sugar, her people would a hundred times rather bear the consequent loss and inconvenience than have the Germans still hammering their way towards Paris instead of being hammered back, as they now are, towards their own country.—Toronto Mail and Empire.

SASKATCHEWAN NEEDS HELP

Former Estimates of the Total Yield Being Much Enlarged.

REGINA, Sask., Aug. 27.—The crop situation in Saskatchewan during the past two weeks, due to ideal weather conditions, has greatly improved and the former estimates of the total yield will probably have to be increased it was stated to-day by Hon. W. R. Motherwell, Minister of Agriculture. The improved conditions are responsible for a serious shortage of labor, and the local Government employment offices are now swamped with thousands of applications from farmers for men to assist them in harvesting their grain for wages of $4.50 per day.

Ohio Man Is Modern Wizard

Discovers magic ether compound which loosens a corn so it lifts right out

Good news spreads rapidly and druggists here are kept busy dispensing freezone, the ether discovery of a Cincinnati genius, which is said to loosen any corn so it lifts out with the fingers.

Ask at any pharmacy for a quarter ounce of freezone, which will cost very little, but is said to be sufficient to rid one's feet of every hard or soft corn or callus.

You apply just a few drops on the tender, aching corn and instantly the soreness is relieved, and soon the corn is so shriveled that it lifts out without a particle of pain. It is a sticky substance which dries when applied and never inflames or even irritates the adjoining tissue.

This discovery will prevent thousands of deaths annually from lockjaw and infection heretofore resulting from the suicidal habit of cutting corns.

LINDSAY HUNTERS WILL NOT SHOOT ON SUNDAY

"No person shall on the Lord's day hunt, take, kill or destroy any game, or use any gun or other engine for that purpose."

The Warder has been requested to state that the majority of sports have agreed verbally that they will not do any shooting on Sunday next. In fact according to law as quoted above) it is illegal to do so. However, as the first day for shooting commences on the first of September there might be some who would take advantage of the day, there being no work. Let it be remembered that Monday is also a holiday when shooting can be indulged in without interruption.

It is hoped that all sports will govern themselves acordingly—Lindsay Warder.

TWO BALL GAMES HERE ON MONDAY

Local fans have a chance to see two games of baseball on Monday, when the Port Hope team will visit Peterboro and will be seen in action twice, at the Riverside Park. In the morning game at 10 o'clock they will clash with an All Star team selected from the City League, and in the afternoon at 3 they will do battle with Manager Solomon's champion Riversides. Two good games should be the result. The Port Hopers are well fortified in battery men and expect to win both engagements.

Further List of Peterboro Girls Who Are Rendering Notable Service in the War

One Met Her Death, Several Have Been Appointed in Charge of Hospitals—All Are Eager and Untiring, and Have Already Had Wonderful Experience.

WOMEN'S WONDERFUL CHAPTER

Peterboro's daughters have scattered far and wide in the war zone, doing practically every branch of Red Cross work possible. In last Saturday's Examine rthe names of 17 graduates of the Nicholls Hospital, now overseas, appeared. A number of other Peterboro girls who have taken their diplomas in out of town hospitals, enlisted. Others are serving with the ambulance corps.

MATRON AT ALDERSHOT.

Matron Katherine McCarney, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. McCarney, 21 Bethune street, has won for herself many laurels in her overseas work. She enlisted in the early months of the war and went to France under very adverse conditions, her final landing being made after eight unsuccessful trials when the boat was driven back by submarines. At present Miss McCarney has assumed the title of Matron McCarney, having been placed in charge of the Aldershot Hospital of 1200 beds. She has had one home leave this spring since enlistment, after which she took her present position.

TWICE DECORATED.

At Orpington Hospital three Peterboro girls are on duty, one of these, Nursing Sister Beatrice I. Blewett, daugther of Mrs. J. G. Blewett, Toronto, a graduate of Grace Hospital, of Toronto, joined the service in 1914. She has since nursed in practically all the fronts, numbering amongst theea Salonika, Mesopotamia, France, and Egypt. For conspicuous service she wears the Mons Ribbon and the Royal Red Cross Ribbon. Recently she was given short Canadian leave, and on returning after nursing for weeks on board ship, returned to England to join the Orpington Hospital staff.

HAS HOSPITAL AT SALONIKA.

Nursing Sister Anna Doig, daughter of the late David Doig, of this city, graduated in 1913 from St. Michael's Hospital in Toronto. In 1914, shortly after the outbreak of the war, she crossed to England, and after service in France and Italy, finally reached Salonika, where she is at present. She has figured like a number of other Peterboro nursing sisters, in bombing raids on Red Cros Hospitals, and had some narrow escapes from death. Last Christmas (1917) she was placed in charge of a base hospital in Salonika.

FROM MOUNT SINAI.

Two of Peterboro's daughters went over in 1917 with the Mount Sinai unit. Nursing Sisters May and Marion Overend, daughters of the late Mr. W. J. Overend, of this city. Nursing Sister Marion Overend, who had been at Number 3 Base Hospital in France made the supreme sacrifice on June 16, 1918, when she was killed in an aeroplane accident. Nursing Sister May Overend graduated in 1911, from Mount Sinai Hospital, six years before her sister, and is attached to Base Hospital 3. At present she is at number 1 Military Hospital, near Paris.

RETURNED ON LEAVE.

Peterboro recently welcomed home Miss Jean Harstone, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Harstone, Water St. She went overseas in the early stages of the war to serve in any capacity, and release men for active service. After an interesting time spent in England she went to France to drive a motor ambulance. After some marvellous escapes made while fulfilling her duty, she was granted a two months' leave in her home in Canada.

WITH MOTOR CORPS.

A variation from the Nursing Sisters who are overseas, comes in the work done in the United States by one of Peterboro's daughters, Mrs. (Capt.) Varley, formerly Miss Agnes Heaslip, Gilmour street. Mrs. Varley was in New York at the time of the United States joining the Allies. Tiring of work not actually connected with active war service, she joined the New York Women's Motor Ambulance Corps of America, which is a unit recognized by the American Government. Recently Mrs. Varley visited the city and created great interest amongst her old friends by her uniform, which is identical with the regular military uniforms. Her husband, Captain W. H. Varley, is overseas with the Ordinance Department, Tanks Corps, American Expeditionary Force.

DOING V.A.D. WORK.

Recently Miss Margaret Eastwood and Miss Margery Hatton left for Toronto, to take a course in V. A. D., in readiness to take their places to aid wounded soldiers.

AT MASSEY-HARRIS HOSPITAL.

Nursing Sister Dorothy Harstone, daughter of Mrs. William Harstone, graduated in 1918 from the General Hospital in Toronto. She left for overseas a few months ago to join the Hassey-Harris Hospital, in England.

Arrived Overseas.

Nursing Sister Helen Denne, daughter of the late Henry Denne, of Peterborough, graduated in 1917 from the Presbyterian Hospital in Chicago, after completing her Arts course at Queen's University. Early this year she enlisted for overseas and left two weeks ago for the front. Word was received on Saturday of her safe arrival in England, but her destination is not known yet. Her sister, Mrs. Bell, graduated from Kingston General Hospital and enlisted for overseas in 1915. After service in France, Salonika and Lemnos, she returned to Canada to take a position in the Military Hospital at Kingston. She is at present on leave visiting her sisters in the city.

From Toronto General.

Nursing Sister Pearl Eastwood, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. I. Eastwood, 305 George street, graduated from the General Hospital in Toronto in 1916, and went overseas last fall.

Called to Halifax.

Nursing Sister Cathrine O'Brien 524 Bolivar street, is at present in the Whitby Convalescent Hospital. At the time of the Halifax disaster last winter she was sent to help in the hospitals, where she served for some weeks.

With Pension Fund.

Mrs. Russell Widdifield, daughter of Mr. Henry Denne, graduated from St. Hilda's College. When her husband, Captain Widdifield, went overseas with the 93rd Battalion, she wished to help with war work and took her present position with the Pensions Board in Toronto.

M.S.A. IN MONTREAL COURT.

Colonel Machin Tells of the Number of Recruits Obtained.

QUEBEC, Aug. 28.—Colonel Machin, director of military service, testified here to-day in the Practice Court in the pending proceedings in connection with the habeas corpus writs issued on behalf of a number of draftees. He stated that yesterday, just as he was leaving for Quebec, he received instructions from the Minister of Justice at Ottawa, to make no statement whatever as to the number of draftees obtained through the Military Service Act. He stated, however, that the 100,000 men authorized by the Military Service Act have not, so far, been enlisted.

However, he stated that to date the number of draftees enlisted under the Military Service Act is 42,396. He was asked if the 100,000 would be enlisted if the number of men on leave, of absentees and deserters was taken in, and he said no. Justice Drouin, presiding, asked Col. Machin if the deserters were included in the number of men called under the act, and if they would have given the required 100,000 men. Col. Machin answered that he believed not.

MAY MAKE CIDER IF NOT OVER 2½ P.C.

ST. THOMAS, Aug. 29.—Apple growers in this vicinity have been soliciting the advice of County Police Magistrate Hunt regarding the law's stand in the matter of making hard cider this fall. His Worship informed the men that, providing their product did not trespass beyond the 2½ per cent. quality, they would be permitted to make their cider and to dispose of it, but he warned them against disposing of a stronger drink.

SEES TROUBLE AFTER THE WAR.

Cunard Line Chairman Takes a Pessimistic View of Future.

LIVERPOOL, Aug. 30. — Stormy days after the war were predicted today by Sir Alfred Booth, presiding at the annual meeting of the Cunard Line. The principal dangers he foresaw where:

Difficulty of deflating currency and credit without destroying confidence.

The tendency to maintain government control, which he said, would produce a deadening effect on enterprise.

International attempt to divide up the raw materials of the world among competing industries, making politics instead of price, the determining factor of distribution. "The international jealousies engendered by such a system," said Sir Alfred, "would be sufficient to kill any league of nations which we might have to form."

Labor unrest due to false hopes of a new heaven and a new earth.

FINED FOR CONCEALING BROTHER WHO DESERTED

STRATFORD, Aug. 28.—Mrs. Henry Dietrick of South Easthope, was fined $100 and costs by Judge Barron today when convicted of concealing her brother, Pte. Adam Hartmann, a deserter from the W. O. R., London. The accused declared that her brother told her he had obtained leave, and she was unaware that he was a deserter. Her husband and his brother also said Hartmann represented himself on leave. Hartmann, who has since gone overseas, in his preliminary statement said he told his sister he was a deserter.

George Schmidt, of Rostock, was committed for trial by Magistrate Makins on a charge of concealing Edward Pehlke, a deserter. He had previously been committed for concealing his son.

Lift Off Corns Doesn't Hurt!

Few drops stop soreness, then corn or callus lifts off with fingers

The world owes thanks to the genius in Cincinnati who discovered freezone.

Tiny bottles of the magic fluid can now be had at any drug store for a few cents. You simply apply a few drops of freezone upon a tender, aching corn or a hardened callus. Instantly the soreness disappears and shortly you will find the corn or callus so loose and shriveled that you lift it off with the fingers. Not a bit of pain or soreness is felt when applying freezone or afterwards. It doesn't even irritate the skin or flesh.

For a few cents one can now get rid of every hard corn, soft corn, or corn between the toes, as well as painful calluses on bottom of feet. Everyone who tries freezone becomes an enthusiast, because it really doesn't hurt or pain one particle.

HUN MORALE IS BADLY SHAKEN BUT END IS NOT YET

No Signs of Rebellion Among the Austrian Population, According to the United States War and State Department.

AUSTRIA IS WEAK

Washington, D. C. — German morale has been badly shaken but there is at present no chance of an internal explosion in Germany, according to official advices of both the military intelligence branch of the War Department, and the State Department.

As for Austria the situation is somewhat different and rather more unsettled. A revolution would break out there if sufficiently encouraged, it is said.

The people of Germany, both soldier and civilian, are "pretty sick" as a result of the recent allied successes. The food situation is officially described as troublesome but not serious—not as bad as what the south endured during the civil war.

From one of the most important officials in close touch with soldier and civilian news of Germany came word to-day that the German people are badly discouraged because of the deceptions practised on them. These have served to disturb morale more than even the failure of their offensive in itself.

Told Americans were Worthless.

As this official put it, based on his information, they were told that Marshal Foch could do nothing of importance against the Germans. They were informed that he had no strategic reserve with which to strike back or even stem the German advance. Lastly they were told that the German submarines would not only starve England but would keep the Americans off French soil until it was too late for them to be of use—and they were led to believe that the American soldier would be of no use should he arrive.

All of these pet propaganda stories of the German press directors have been disproved to the full conviction of the German people. The result is as the authorities view it, that the Teuton soldier and civilian have lost some of their doglike devotion to and confidence in their leaders.

The reaction is found in dissatisfaction at home and discouragement within the army, according to official reports.

But the advices show conclusively that it would be a grave mistake for the United States and the Allies to believe that this sudden awakening from a "fool's paradise" means that the Germans are ready to turn the Hohenzollern dynasty out of its house.

Warned Against Excessive Optimism.

Officials here caution particularly against excessive optimism and indulgence in overconfidence at this time. They point out that General March's prediction of a victory in 1919 is based on a 4,000,000 army programme, which to be fulfilled, means sacrifices in men and money.

GERMANY'S DISTINCTIONS.

Germany is thus summed up by a New York Sun correspondent:

It is the only country in the world that murders the wounded, bombs hospitals, sinks hospital ships and shoots Red Cross workers.

It is the only country in the world that poisons wells and spreads disease germs.

It is the only country in the world that murders babes and strikes medals to commemorate the event.

It is the only country that shells unfortified towns.

It is the only country in the world that deports and enslaves civilian populations.

It is the only country in the world that advocates the extermination of weak peoples.

It is the only country in the world that scoffs at international law.

It is the only country in the world that disregards the rules of civilized warfare.

A trunk is usually strapped before going on a long journey.

RUNNING UP BIG SCORE.

Germany Will Have to Settle With Merchant Seamen After the War.

At a recent banquet of the Merchant Seamen's League in London the song that was sung with greatest spirit contained the following verse:

Oh, never a Fritz shall sail
In a ship that sails with me,
Never a box or bale
That smells of Germany.
Never the like of they Shall soil the British shore
Till the seamen of England say,
"You've settled the seamens score."

The score to be settled is the cold-blooded murder of something like twenty thousand British seamen on unarmed vessels which the Hun raiders have sunk either with no concern for the lives on board or with deliberate attempts to make their deaths sure. Cabinet Ministers and other distinguished guests joined the league in a solemn oath that the Germans must make full reparation for their crimes before they or any of their goods or products will be received at a British port or carried on a British ship.

As America's death list grows long, we shall probably begin to see some things with British eyes.—Rochester Post-Express.

BOLSHEVIK AND MENSHEVIK

There has been a great of discussion lately as to the exact meaning and origin of the terms "Bolshevik" and "Menshevik." Their origin is a matter of history, but various explanations have been put forward as to the meaning of the terms. Writing in the "Times" Literary Supplement, J. Y. W. MacAlister gives what appears to be the correct version.
